In his sermon delivered to his congregation Feb. 18 and printed in the March 1 issue of The Quincy Sun, Rev. Mr. Martin said:

"Motherhood should be a privilege and not a penalty. The backbone of a healthy society is a cherishing quality in motherhood.

"Giving birth to a child does not necessarily make a woman a thoroughly good mother. Bearing an unwanted child will do even less, if not the opposite.

"Removing the romantic, rosey glasses, we discover that much of societal sickness can be traced to or around our unloved 'accidents' ".

Rev. Mr. Martin said he chose to approach the Supreme Court decision on abortion "from the view of a healthy society with harmony between and among people who have a sound sense of well being."

Dr. Pattavina's statement in opposition follows:

Dr. Pattavina's statement follows:

"The problems of today's "societal sickness" can be traced to the problem the unborn are up against as has been true for them for thousands of years, not peculiar to "American Culture".

"Since I know that Rev. Mr. Martin as all of us, was made to the image and likeness of Christ, I find his sermon was not true to Judeo-Christian [Orthodox Jews and Christians] ethic. I respect Rev. Mr. Martin's rights to his views. I know he has integrity and is not interested in money which is a sickness of our materialistic society, the cause and root of our drug problem, alcoholism, fornications, adultery, stealing - including grey flannel style - character assassination by newspaper, lies, etc.

"We are in a pragmatic society on the whole - what's in it for me attitude. It's okay if it helps me even though it hurts my fellow man. This is Pragmatism or situational ethics. If I were a fetus I would want to be killed rather than put up with the terrible society which is present worldwide not only in the USA. [I guess I'll have to start my own country, since I am disgusted with the Supreme Court ruling, another reason to dislike the greatest country in the world.]

"Who am I to disagree with Rev. M. Martin that there is "societal sickness" in the USA. I agree. All I disagree with is the cause. What has a pregnant unmarried or married female have to do with the causing of this sickness? Actually, if it were the other way around, I would be compelled to agree. Everywhere Rev. Mr. Martin states Abortion is "killing", I am forced to agree but differ on a minor point, take off the quotes. I am sure we can agree with that minor exception. You see we are truly not far apart. Further I would have to disagree where he indicates that two evils make a right to wit: "Women trapped in an impossible situation" should have an abortion. Does Rev. Mr. Martin mean the sin of fornication or adultery should be settled by Murder or Abortion? Does he mean these two wrongs make a right?

"When does life begin? At conception is when human life really begins. [International Conference on Abortion, Washington, D.C.]

"Further I disagree with Rev. Mr. Martin's statement that during the first trimester [up to 12 weeks] the fetus is not recognizable as a human being.

"Not true, Rev. Mr. Martin. The fetus at 12 weeks or less that can be removed by suction-curettage, or a D & C can be recognized. At 25 days, [3½ weeks] the heart is beating. By 30 days, just two weeks past a mother's first missed period, the fetus is one-quarter inch long, has a brain, eyes, ears, mouth, kidneys, liver and umbilical cord and a heart pumping blood.

By 45 days, about the time of the second missed period, the fetus has a complete skeleton, milk teeth buds and moves its arms and legs, etc. The fetus is human looking - not a blob of marmalade as Mr. Bill Baird, New York abortionist states in his movies shown at our colleges and universities, etc.

"All Rev. Mr. Martin's other arguments are oversimplifications of "societal sickness", or lack of knowledge. I question further just how he made his sociological studies. Did he use a double blind method? As a family practitioner of 22 years, now no longer in practice of medicine, I dispute his studies. His causes and effects are illogical not to mention his lack of stated facts. I know of very few unloved children. I can ask most any experienced M.D. for his statistics on this issue to back me up.

"Interruption of life of the fetus is Murder in no uncertain terms. We of the Judeo-Christian [Orthodox Jews and Christians] ethic are agreed on the issue.

"If there is any doubt to my answer, I will be glad to debate Rev. Mr. Martin at Quincy High School or any high school or at his church or anywhere. If anyone will send any questions bothering them to Mass Citizens For Life [non sectarian Judeo Christians, et al] 1 Gateway Center, Newton 02158, it will be answered forthwith by others more capable than I. Also, donations to fight the abortion issue are tax deductible.

"Abortions will destroy American Society, now still the greatest in the world. Questions could be directed to me at 232 West St., Braintree 02184. Most of us are against killing by any means - war, including euthanasia - killing the elderly, and others.

"I am a Senior Naval Reserve Officer but I must point out that the closest I got to firing a gun in anger was a syringe against our enemy disease. As a member of our country's Armed Forces, I have not borne arms because of the Geneva Convention.

"I appreciate the Quincy Sun allowing me this space to exercise free speech. The Sun is noted for this fact."

George Cole's Magic

Snack Bar 'Howdy's, Dairy Queen'

By KATHY HUGHES

A successful thing has happened at North Quincy High!

This is the result of a wonderful idea conceived by George Cole, Director of Food Services in Quincy. What is this fantastic thing that has students excited and eager to attend school? Would you believe a combination of Howdy's and the Dairy Queen? Well, that's exactly what it is.

It all started when the cafeteria staff started selling pasteries during study periods a couple of years ago. They did this in order to provide students with an alternative to leaving school grounds for snacks. The students reacted favorably and this concept has grown into an $8,000 snack bar, and it's still expanding.

The Snack Bar is still staffed by the cafeteria matrons and managed by Miss Bette Ann Peruzzi a graduate of Quincy Vocational High School where she majored in food preparation. The staff includes Mrs. Frances Wardle, Mrs. Ardis Lally and Mrs. Kay Collins.

The Snack Bar opened March 8 at 8:15 a.m. and at 8:17 a.m. there were kids lined up four rows deep. By 1:10 p.m., teachers were hypnotized by the dairy treats, and they too, had them in hand.

The snack bar also features hamburgers, french fries, frappes, sandwiches, pastries and fruit juices, which are all enjoyed by the students.

Future additions to the Snack bar will be fried chicken, fish and chips, and Big Chief Burgers, similar to a quarter pounder. In addition, this Snack Bar may give kids a chance at making extra money during free periods by busing tables or serving customers.

Similar additions are being planned for Quincy High and Voc-Tech.

Getting Ready To Leave For Ireland 'Hectic Day'

By PAUL GOSLIN

Last Thursday night the many months of hard work put in by the North Quincy High School Band came to fruition when the band left for Ireland.

It was an exciting and hectic day for all involved as they packed their personal belongings. Band Director, David Watson, and many of the band members had to see that the instruments were ready to go airfreight to the "Old Sod". They loaded one bus to the gills with the instruments, uniforms, and repair tools. All these were sent ahead. The big job of getting the people off was still left.

A big job it was too. In the evening the band members arrived at North with luggage and many relatives who had come to see them off. The large group assembled in the auditorium and were given their final instructions by Mr. Watson.

They heard bon voyage statements from Mayor Walter Hannon, Ward Six Councillor J. Vincent Smyth, Dr. Lawrence Creedon, and Acting Assistant Principal Robert Collins.

The entourage was loaded onto five buses. Even with this many buses the trip was crowded.

The band arrived at Aer Lingus terminal and after checking in were soon on their way to Erin.

WAITING for the plane are Joanne Grazier, Nancy Larkin, Janet Londer and Sue O'Neill.

15th N. Quincy Science Fair

Edward Menz, Gary Canniff, Ann Wetherby Win Top Awards

By PETER DuFRESNE

Every year the students at North Quincy High School get to show off their work in the many fields of science.

For the 15th time, under the direction of Science Department chairwoman Miss Wilma Schields, this year's Science Fair was held in North's gym Saturday, March 10.

Months of planning have gone into the entire Fair, but the many months were all summed up in one day.

The Science teachers had been working on arranging the Fair, along with helping their students prepare projects. They also saw to it that judges were provided. The judges comprised members of the community and represented a wide variety of expertise and interest.

Each student's project was judged by three or four judges. If three judges could not come to a decision on the quality of the project, the fourth was called in.

The fair was expanded this year to include special exhibits contributed by the English, Math, Media and Science departments as well as members of the community.

After judging was over, a dinner sponsored by promoters of the Math and Science Departments was held for all participants.

In the evening the Fair was opened to the public. The students answered questions about their projects for all those interested until 8 p.m. During this time some of the visitors included Mayor Walter Hannon, Superintendent of Schools Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, Acting Principal Peter Chrisom, and Acting Assistant Principal Robert Collins and his wife.

Awards were presented to the students. Dr. Creedon, Mr. Chrisom and Mr. Collins all took time to commend the hard work and dedication of Miss Schields and her department.

The awards:

First place - Edward Menz - "Cryobiology".

Second place - Gary Cunniff - "Astrophotography".

Third place - Ann Marie Wetherby - "Nutrient Nourishment of Rye Grass".

North Competes In Regional Drama Festival

By TOM GOSLIN

On Saturday, March 10, North Quincy High School's Drama Club appeared in the Regional Drama Festival at Norwell High School, Norwell.

The Festival is sponsored by the Drama Guild and The Boston Globe. The schools competing were Braintree, Norwell, Weymouth South, Marshfield, Scituate and North Quincy.

There were two winners in each Regional Festival and one alternate, in case one school can't go to the State Festival. These schools compete in the State Drama Festival and from there to the New England Festival. If all goes well and you win in the New England Festival you move on into National Competition.

The winners in this region were Norwell and Marshfield, Braintree was given the alternate spot.

Congratulations to the cast of North Quincy's play: Andrea Vento, Jill McClearly, Tom Goslin, Kevin Veronneau [who was elected to the All-Star-Cast for his second year in a row] and Miss Byrne the Drama coach, for a fine job of directing.

Special thanks go to Mr. Lang and Peter Whalin for helping to build the scenery and to all those connected with the Drama Club who took care of props.

SILENT BABY KILLER

Very young children are vunerable to a home menace that can shut off life quickly, quietly, and without a cry. This silent killer is suffocation. An astounding number of youngsters under four - some 2,000 yearly - die in this manner.

Mothers with infants should regard the crib as a site of grave danger. At the top of the list of precautions is a ban against plastic bedding covers - especially those improvised from a thin, plastic bag used by dry cleaners. Despite nationwide warnings to this effect, well over a hundred infants, every year still suffocate from these plastic products. [80% of these are under one year of age].

Other crib precautions are: Don't put a pillow in with baby for him to bury his face in. Instead of using blankets, which could get piled onto a baby's face, put the child in a zippered bag which keeps him warm without blankets.

HOME IMPROVEMENT 1973

A GUIDE TO BETTER LIVING

Put kitchen remodeling in hands of professional

Home improvement isn't necessarily spelled do-it-yourself.

Let's face it, some of us have four thumbs. We'd rather do the planning, and let someone else do the work — especially when a room so complicated as a kitchen with all its built-ins and hook-ups is the room to improve.

Help is at hand, in the form of a professional whose sole business is the design, supply and installation of residential kitchens and baths. Look under Kitchen Cabinets & Equipment in your phone book, and the chances are you'll find more than one listed.

Assuming you'll be in good hands with whoever you ultimately retain on the basis of professional qualifications, references and preliminary conversations, what services will this kitchen planner perform?

Just about everything, from ideas to installation. Working from your answers to a long list of questions, he'll develop a floor plan; help you select cabinets and appliances; figure how much and what type of lighting you need; order all the components; supervise construction and installation; make sure all of the equipment operates as it should.

The great advantage to working with a pro is that he offers one-stop shopping. Whatever price you and he agree on, it's all-inclusive if that's the way your contract is written. If you prefer to combine the professional with the personal, he'll handle the functional and technical aspects of kitchen design and installation, and leave the decorative to you.

There are different ways to work with a kitchen specialist and, obviously, many prices you can pay for a kitchen. Don't think, just because yours is a VW instead of a Cadillac job, you can't enjoy the services of a specialist.

You can — and it's likely to cost you less than remodeling your kitchen yourself, unless you're a practicing do-it-yourselfer with a well equipped workshop and a handyman husband.

For one thing, the pro eliminates trial-and-error costs. He knows what's new, what's best for your budget, and what is most practical for your family's way of living. He also knows where and when to cut corners, without sacrificing quality or appearance.

You're paying for experience when you entrust a kitchen remodeling to a professional who does it day in, day out. Compare this with your once or twice in a lifetime, and don't apologize if you don't want to do it yourself!

No-tile wall panel system offers dramatic new look for updating existing bathrooms

If you are tired of seeing the same old look in your bathroom and want something really new in design, here's a suggestion you might heed for remodeling: Take a look at Formica Corporation's No-Tile Bath wall panel system for high-moisture areas.

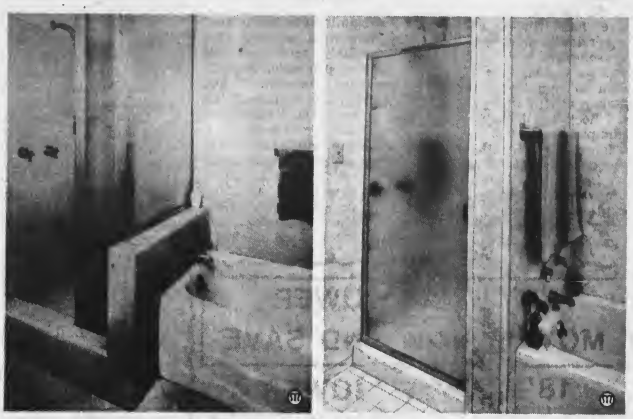
First, it's a dramatic change from the typical bathroom remodel with walls of paint, wallpaper or tile. Most of your friends don't have it yet, so that makes you a trend-setter. But, best of all, it can make a dingy, colorless, tired bathroom come to sparkling life.

Made waterproof

The No-Tile Bath is surfaced with Formica® brand laminate, but with some additions to make it watertight at the panel joints and easy to use over old surfaces including tile.

Formica offers a selection of 22 patterns and colors keyed to coordinate with Formica® laminate for bathroom cabinets and tops as well as other bathroom materials. Samples of selections can be obtained from Formica distributors, Formica sales offices and qualified No-Tile Bath dealers.

Among the patterns and colors are: Classic Cremo Marble, Starflower Blue, Starflower Gold, Portuguese Lioz Marble, Spring Pastorale, Ice White, Avocado Ondine, and three new designs for 1973: Regal Jade, Golden Heather and Gold Ondine.



Formica recommends that this wall system be installed by a dealer who knows the product and installation technique. Names of these companies can be obtained from Formica sales offices and distributors.

No extra cost

An average installation will cost no more than ceramic tile, the manufacturer reports, but without the added cost of removing the old surface first.

Walls are the largest surface area in the bathroom. Besides the room itself, there's usually a tub surround, a shower stall, or both. This total area can be a challenge in a remodeling or decorating plan. Fortunately, there are many good materials to use, and one of the newest is suggested here.

If you are familiar with laminate surfaces, you know they are practically indestructible and clean quickly and easily with just a damp cloth. That makes living a whole lot easier. And isn't that what remodeling is all about?

Before (left) — old fashioned bathroom was difficult to keep clean and attractive. After (right) — updated bathroom now has all walls including shower and tub surround surfaced with laminated plastic. Pattern is Autumn Pastorale, one of 22 colors and patterns available in Formica's No-Tile Bath wall panel system.

'Showplace' bathroom practical

As their families expand, many young marrieds find themselves moving out of modern apartments into older homes in the suburbs. Often the bathrooms in these older homes appear to be out of the dark ages in contrast to the modern facilities in most newer apartment buildings.

They need not remain so.

Because of its small area and because of a renewed interest in remodeling bathrooms you may find it considerably less costly to renovate the bathroom today as compared with just a few years ago. Judging from the variety of colors available for the permanent fixtures, boldness seems to be the key for a dramatic "showplace" bathroom.

For example, the added storage space available under the counters you will install to envelop sink and toilet, or the opportunity to literally let in some light by installing a skylight with bubble dome.

How improvements increase resale value

If you are a dedicated home improver, you are probably in for a pleasant surprise when you come to sell your present home.

Perhaps you will want more space because your family is larger. Or maybe you and your wife would like a smaller house to take care of once the children are grown and off on their own.

Whatever reason you may have for putting your house on the market, the chances are when you do, you will find it is worth considerably more today than when you originally purchased it.

Just about anywhere in the country, a well maintained home in an attractive neighborhood should fetch an appreciably higher price today than when it was originally purchased.

This holds true even if you have made no improvements on either the house or the land since you purchased the property. However, as Robert W. Johnson, president of J. I. Kislak Mortgage Corporation, points out, most people have made changes in the house they bought in line with their family's own needs and, quite often, these improvements also add to the value of the house when it is placed on the market.

The Kislak executive's view is worth noting since the company he heads is one of the nation's largest mortgage bankers and a leader in arranging for FHA and VA home mortgage loans.

Cautions seller

At the same time, Johnson cautions the prospective home seller against expecting a dollar-for-dollar return on every improvement which has been made. For example, changes that you made to add to the convenience or comfort of your family may not be so highly thought of by every prospective buyer.

A recreation room converted from basement space, however, or a family room added on to the original house represents an important addition and the homeowner who has made this improvement should expect that 70% to 80% of his cost can be recovered in the selling price.

Regional difference will also affect the "return" value of the improvement. A case in point is the outdoor patio, practically taken for granted in southern states where the climate makes it a useful addition to family living space nearly all year long.

In contrast, a patio area in New England, Michigan or Minnesota, even though it may enhance the overall appearance of the plot and setting of the house, can only be put to full use from late spring to early fall. In this case, perhaps no more than half the cost can be added to the asking price of the home.

Additions which the Kislak executive points out as having a high percentage of recovery are: a second bathroom in a three or four bedroom house, a lavatory addition on the ground floor of a two-story house, the addition of a third bedroom to what was formerly a two bedroom house (if the third bedroom is of comparable size to the others) and a fully modernized kitchen.

But don't expect to recapture very much of the cost of landscaping and other cosmetic changes, Johnson warns. Tastes differ, and the flocked wallpaper for which you paid $17 a roll may strike another person as a terrible waste of money. Other prospects may not be impressed by wall-to-wall carpeting and the same may be true of expensive and unusual lighting fixtures. A new exterior paint job may make the house look more attractive to prospects but the cost should be considered a normal maintenance expense.

Paneled walls can add up to more beautiful rooms

A wall is a wall is a wall. Put four of them together and you have a room.

After all, that's what a room is — space that has been "walled-in." For that reason, when it comes to lightening, brightening, beautifying or simply redoing a room, it's a good idea to start with the walls.

One way to begin is with paneling. Modern wall panels of prefinished hardboard offer a variety of designs, easy installation, and low maintenance. They make ordinary walls "come alive" in a number of ways.

Home highlight

A highlight for today's homes are walls of beauty. Panels in natural woodgrain finishes add a warm glow to any room. They range from pale ash and pecan to deep tones of rosewood and walnut.

If you prefer walls of color — bright or subdued hues that fit any setting — consider panels in decorator colors. They can be used in family rooms, bathrooms, bedrooms or kitchens to great visual advantage. Like all hardboard paneling, they are easy to keep clean with an occasional damp-wiping, won't dent, mar or scuff and are tough and durable.

For every room

Prefinished panels in colors, woodgrain finishes, patterns and textured designs are ideal for areas such as kitchens, baths and laundry areas.

Running out of space? Then you will need walls that can multiply present storage space. Perforated hardboard panels, which accept hooks and shelf brackets, can create a convenient storage wall in virtually any room: in a child's bedroom for getting those clothes off the floor; in a kitchen for hanging extra pots and pans; in family rooms to provide storage for books, games and hobby materials.

With sound-resistant hardboard paneling you can also have walls of silence — especially suitable for families with noisy youngsters around the house.

Living rooms, playrooms and other noisy areas can be quieted down with the installation of prefinished hardboard wall panels. Tests show that when used as facing materials over partition walls built of recommended backup materials, the paneling has a high resistance to noise transmission.

Easy installation

Hardboard panels are easily installed over furring strips, and in some cases right on the existing wall. Matching moldings, color-matched nails and special adhesive for nail-less applications are available to simplify installation.

More information on building rooms around paneled walls is contained in an illustrated color brochure, "New Dimensions in Living." It's available for 25 cents from the American Hardboard Assn., 20 N. Wacker Drive, Chicago, Illinois 60606.

Lovely as these furnishings are, it's the walls that make the room. The paneling is prefinished hardboard in a light-toned woodgrain design — a perfect backdrop for the exotic room decor. Despite their delicate look, the panels are sturdy and dent-resistant, and can be damp-wiped clean.

Backyard Golf? With the Right Advice, Perhaps

Golf in the backyard is a practical choice for almost any golfing homeowner. Three factors to be considered in planning this part of the recreational area, according to the American Association of Nurserymen, are the preparation of the soil, selection of lawn material, and the continuing care of the green. With the right advice—available through a nursery garden center—almost any sportsman can create an area where he can improve his game. Or at least have a good time trying.

Young adults 'furnish' clues to life styles; make it a point to select striking carpet

When is a carpet more than just a carpet? When it's striking enough to be used as a "floor mural," like Barwick's boldly patterned Navajo, made of easy-care "Antron" nylon. Here, Navajo makes a colorful, contemporary focal point for the conversation area of a young living room.

Who started the rumor that young people today have lost interest in acquiring furnishings and decorating their homes, choosing instead to live free of possessions?

It's not really so, say students of the young-adult scene. While it's true that the young aren't buying crystal chandeliers—if they ever did—they have simply redefined what they mean by furnishing a home.

But they're acquiring things, all right, and living happily with them, even if it's now called "creating an environment."

And in the process, a whole new design look has developed, involving lots of pattern cheerfully mixed; a spare, uncluttered, "underfurnished" comfort; and a front-and-center-stage spot for hobbies and interests, including music, handcrafts and art.

Pattern — in fabric and carpet — is often popular with the newly-settled-down young. They use it both as a kind of art, and as a way of disguising a sparseness of other furnishings.

A case in point is Barwick's striking carpeting of "Antron" nylon, called Navajo, in a vivid color scheme of terra cotta, blue, brass and green, in a young couple's living room.

Cut to large rug size, the carpet is treated like a mural on the floor. It acts may crack and necessitate costly repairs, while the use of pre-charged coolant tubing reduces the possibility patterned chairs.

The stark, white stucco wall provides an ideal backdrop for the warm colors and pattern interactions, giving a cozy, lived-in feeling with no sense of being bogged-down with unnecessary "things."

In line with young ideas, too, is the easy-care aspect of Navajo.

Thanks to the "Antron" fiber, specially constructed to make soil less visible, the carpet retains its fresh, new look through vigorous family use, and cleans up quickly and easily when needed.

Decorative improvement

That old, favorite chair looks like new when reupholstered in a colorful and durable vinyl. The pattern here is "Gala" by Masland Duran in a flowering of red, white and blue.

Reupholstering gives new life to chair

That old chair. Father's favorite. Mother's pet peeve.

Don't throw it out. Do it over.

As near as your nearest upholstery shop, there's an expert who can rejuvenate that sad sack. Give it a new look — and add a lift to your living room — by giving it a new cover.

Here's a hint: choose a vinyl reupholstery fabric — for durability, for color.

Masland Duran supplies most of the country's leading upholstery shops with their most popular covers. Not slipcovers, but permanent make-over materials that are long for this world. Long on style, long on wear.

There are tweeds, checks, solids, textures. Elegant traditional patterns and bright modern florals. Plus vinyls that look like silk, linen, matelasse, tapestry or brocade.

People used to think of vinyl as plastic, and sometimes felt they had to apologize for its use. Not so today! Now people would rather use vinyl that wipes clean and withstands wear than to select a more delicate fabric you can't sit on for fear it will soil.

So, home improvers, unite! While you're adding on, building in, and otherwise focussing attention on more spacious living, give some thought to the decorative aspects of improving your environment, too.

Start with a simple thing like a chair. Your upholsterer will gladly give you an estimate, and we think you'll find the price is right for a bright new vinyl cover!

Realistic Remodeling

The National Home Improvement Council cautions the homeowner who expects to recover his investment in home improvement when he sells his present home not to put more money into the remodeling project than he can realistically hope to retrieve.

For example, if a homeowner's house is presently worth $30,000 on the market and his remodeling investment is $25,000, he will most likely not find a buyer for $75,000.

The Council also provides a rule of thumb estimate for various remodeling projects. Naturally, costs vary from region to region. Also, the variety of work done under the various classifications and the size of the space affected will influence costs.

Kitchen Remodeling	$2,500 to $6,500
Bathroom Modernizing	$1,500 to $4,000
Adding a Room	$20 to $40 per square foot
Finishing Basement Recreation Room	$1,000 to $4,500
Residing, Aluminum, Wood	$75 to $150 per 100 square feet
Adding an Outdoor Swimming Pool	$5,000 to $9,000

RECORD WALLPAPER

When hanging wallpaper be sure to keep a record of the exact number of rolls used. This will help when re-ordering next time.

KEEP RECORD

Always keep a notation of the brand name and specific color of paints and stains. When touch-ups are needed, the correct color can be easily obtained.

Shade bordered with ruffles adds appeal

Using a fancy ruffled valance or cafe curtains with a window shade can be coordinated into a full-fledged window treatment by adding a narrow, shirred-fabric border to the shade with special, snap-on tape.

The ruffle can be easily removed for washing—and the vinyl-coated shade will need only a wipe-over with a damp cloth.

Trophy shelf displays family achievements

Planning on redoing the basement into a family room, but worried what to use to give it that sporty look? Why not include a trophy shelf.

Almost everyone has a trophy or two packed away in the attic. If the kids are on school sports teams or cheerleading, chances are they will be adding their own to the collection, and possibly even outdoing Mom and Dad in the trophy department.

Cool Weather Time To Install Air Conditioning

If you're thinking of installing air-conditioning, you'll be ahead of the game if you call your contractor well before hot weather. The Air-Conditioning and Refrigeration Institute says that most installing contractors are busiest during the hot weather months.

The two keys to obtaining a good cooling system, says ARI, are: (1) purchasing "certified" equipment and (2) using a qualified contractor.

Certified air-conditioning equipment gives the consumer an assurance that his equipment is accurately rated, will operate accurately, and has been sound rated. Certified equipment, says ARI, displays the blue and white ARI "Seals" for unitary and sound certification.

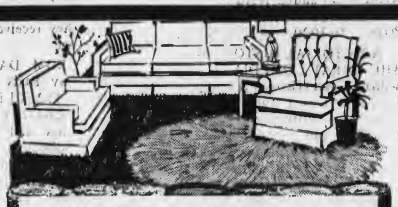
But certified equipment should be properly installed, and this is where the qualifications of the installing contractor come into play. To calculate the size and kind of air-conditioning that will serve you best, an expert contractor will study your house carefully.

He will consider a long list of facts: its orientation to the sun, its size, floor plan, construction, amount of glass area, landscaping and the size of your family.

CARPET VERSATILE

Keep worn out carpets for other purposes: to save garage floors under the car, for a pet mat, to protect the floor on rainy or snowy days, as a floor covering for a tree house or play house.

COATED TILES



Ceiling tiles for the kitchen are available coated.

SAFETY FACTOR

The most important ingredient of any home improvement project should be safety, especially when power tools are used.

FOIL RUST

Squares of aluminum foil under furniture feet will protect newly shampooed carpet from rusting.

Between the Covers

Burton, Satch, Elvis Gable, Jolson Good Reading

This week we present the first of a two part selection of books on the world of show business. Today we will look at pictorials, anthologies, and general works, while next week we will focus on the biographies of a few of the world's most celebrated entertainers.

The film world's most famous dancing partners are the subject of Arlene Croce's THE FRED ASTAIRE AND GINGER ROGERS BOOK [Outerbridge and Lazard Inc. $9.95]. Each of the Astaire-Rogers films is analyzed as to cast, musical numbers and inside production notes. Nostalgic photographs accompany each of the book's 14 chapters, while a unique "flip sequence" continues throughout the book in the upper corner of each page, such that when the pages are flipped steadily, a "mini-movie" dance number is produced.

For the avid theater goer who looks for a complete listing of plays produced each season both on Broadway and around the world, John Willis' THEATER WORLD [Crown Publishers. $8.95] is the answer. While the library has editions of this pictorial annual back to the 1945-46 season, the current Volume 27 deals with such notable shows as No, No, Nanette, Applause, Godspell, Sleuth and 1776.

Another interesting annual is BEST PLAYS OF 1971-72, edited by Otis L. Guernsey Jr. [Dodd, Mead and Co. $12.50]. This particular yearbook singles out 10 noteworthy productions each season and presents script and synopsis for each. Neil Simon's latest comedy hit, The Prisoner of Second Avenue, is one of this year's selections. A 32 page photo insert is included while a selection of caricatures by the renowned Al Hirshfield serves as an added feature. The library has past volumes of Best Plays .... to 1920.

A PICTORIAL HISTORY OF THE GREAT COMEDIANS, by William Cann [Grosset & Dunlap Inc. $7.95] is a warm look at American comedy through pictures and text. Slapstick, satire and situation comedy are just a few of the facets of humor that Cann examines. From Chaplin to Keaton and Lucy to Laugh-In, all your favorites are included.

The lively history of late-night television's most popular talk show can be found in TONIGHT!, by Terry Galanoy [Doubleday and Co. $7.95]. Through Steve Allen, Jack Paar, Johnny Carson and seven name changes, the Tonight Show has provided entertainment for millions and has helped send such talents as Barbra Streisand on their way to fame. This is truly the unknown side of the Tonight Show, from the embarrassing to the triumphant.

The Warner Brothers motion pictures studio turned out some of the finest films of the 30's and 40's, and the best of them are vividly recalled in WARNER BROTHERS PRESENTS, by Ted Sennett [Arlington House. $11.95]. The overdone musical extravaganzas of Busby Berkeley, the violent criminal escapades of Edward G. Robinson, the dramatic moments of Bette Davis, and the swashbuckling heroics of Errol Flynn reign supreme in this fascinating chronology of Hollywood's most productive years. Sennett has set aside one complete chapter just to list and analyze the works of the Warner Brothers Company of Players, some of whom went on to become wealthy stars. A listing of all Warner Brothers films and the awards they received round out the package.

MEMO FROM DAVID O. SELZNICK, by Rudy Behlmer [Viking Press. $12.50] is exactly that....a collection of memorandums and personal letters to directors, writers, studio executives, and stars, from one of Hollywood's landmark figures. The wit, rage and impatience of the man responsible for A Star is Born, King Kong and Rebecca is truly discovered through his correspondence. Over one fourth of the book is devoted to the behind-the-scenes drama of the filming of Gone With The Wind. Did you know that Vivian Leigh was cast as southern belle Scarlett O'Hara as an afterthought? Read about David O. and find out the rest.

The hair-raising excitement of perilous escapes that once kept you on the edge of your seat at Saturday matinees goneby is faithfully recreated in TO BE CONTINUED..., by Ken Weiss and Ed Goodgold [Crown Publishers. $9.95]. Over 230 motion picture serials are dealt with in this guide to the days when a week seemed an eternity to wait for the outcome of the latest episode of Flash Gordon.

Remember, next week....the biographies.

But I Never Made Funeral Arrangements Before!

There is probably no more difficult period than that encountered immediately after the death of someone you love. This is especially true if you have never made funeral arrangements before. Many things must be considered. After the funeral, you cannot then do what you feel you should have done, but didn't. After the funeral, you can't undo or change what was done.

First, there is no one prescribed form for a funeral. You should arrange the kind of service that best meets your needs. But what are these things you should consider, so that you can make meaningful decisions of lasting satisfaction?

Most of them are contained in an informative brochure about making funeral arrangements that you will find most beneficial at that crucial hour. It is published in your interest by the National Funeral Directors Association.

Five other NFDA brochures discuss: funeral costs, thoughts about the funeral, the presence of the body, the condolence visit, and children and death. You will find them all most helpful because they are based on experience, research and knowledge.

Send for your FREE copies today. You will be glad you did.

Hoover, FDR, Double X And Nostalgia

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

A friend of mine passed away recently. Although I hadn't had much contact with him in recent years; the usual separation of miles and interests, an occasional get-together with others from the old gang; he was a part of my younger years and his passing released a deluge of memories.

They say nostalgia is a sign of advancing age and maybe they're right. Still, it's fun, painful, satisfying, discouraging, to think back and remember "exactly" how things were.

My "were's" are some of your "were's", I'm sure, although mine probably start a little later. One of my earliest recollections is walking around on election eve sporting a Hoover button on my pajamas. The following morning, despite my obvious preference, F.D.R. was the new President. Beyond understanding! Today, I understand.

I remember N.R.A. and W.P.A. and I remember depression, not because I or my parents felt it, we didn't really. It was simply that depression was like mercury in sword fish, no matter what, it accumulated in your bones.

As a child I was a car buff. In those days cars were distinctive; the Pierce-Arrow with headlights in it's fenders, the Packard 12's and 16's with hoods incredibly long, the Terraplane roadster, built like a tank with the accelleration of a jackrabbit and no brakes, the first Ford V-8, the Chrysler Airflow and so many others. Oh, so distinctive, cars with real character, to captivate the imagination and turn us into a nation on wheels.

And who can forget the Red Sox of yore, or the Braves; the mighty deeds of Double XX, Lefty Grove, the Ferrello and Doc Cramer. The last gasp of Rabbit Maranville, closing out his illustrious career or Billy Urbanski, Ray Benge and of course Deacon Danny MacFadden and Wally Benger. We never set the world on fire, but there was always next year, and next year, and next year. It hasn't really changed so much.

I remember my very first movie, "The Three Little Pigs" together with Gable in "San Francisco". I was four, going on five and when, during the newsreel, a picture of F.D.R. flashed on the screen, I leaped from my front row seat, consumed with juvenile Republican rage, dashed up onto the stage and administered a resounding slap on the face.

Needless to say, ushers descended en-masse. However my instincts were good and I made my seat before they could identify me. Later in the picture, I also developed a healthy respect for earthquakes. In fact, I had the hell scared out of me. I was thoroughly subdued as we drove home from Boston.

I remember my first date, a Cub Scout party at St. Chrysostom's Church, presided over by Cubmaster Archie Briggs, who for so many years did so much for Quincy kids. I squired the daughter of friends of my parents and all went well until it came time to go home. Ignorant of convention and devoid of common sense, we boy's abandoned the girls and, in a group, toddled off into the night, intent on our own devices. To this day, I'm not sure how the girls got home. I am sure, however, that it never happened again.

The following morning, I had a most instructive session with my parents, during which I was acquainted with convention and absorbed some common sense.

Four Quincy Banks Make It Easier For Seniors To Cash Checks

Many senior citizens, particularly those who are dependent upon Social Security or other governmental programs, do not have accounts established in local banks.

Because some of our banks have been forced, through passing of stolen, forged, or bad checks by the public, to restrict services to their clients only, many elderly residents have encountered difficulty in cashing their checks.

The Quincy Council on Aging, at the request of Rev. Eric Youngholm, has surveyed the banking community to determine at which banks senior citizens without checking or savings accounts could obtain such service. The following banks in their replies, indicated they would provide such services: Hancock Bank, Norfolk Country Trust Company, Quincy Co-operative Bank, and Quincy Savings Bank.

These banks said their policy has been and will continue to be one of cashing government checks for senior citizens upon presentation of proper identification.

In each case, the bank suggested that should any difficulty be encountered, the individual speak to the bank manager, who would be pleased to offer assistance.

The Council on Aging wishes to extend its' thanks to these organizations for their concern and their community spirit. It also wishes to suggest that all senior citizens consider the use of banking services, checking and savings, for their own protection.

In these times, possession of loose amounts of cash, large or small, can result in theft or other even more serious consequences.

65 Or Older?
Enroll Now For Medical Insurance

People 65 and older who haven't already signed up for the medical insurance part of Medicare can enroll now through April 2 at any social security office, announces Frank Culkin, Quincy social security district manager.

Medical insurance helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses. It is the voluntary part of Medicare, funded by individual premiums and general revenues from the federal government. The basic premium is $5.80 a month through June 1973. It will be increased to $6.30 a month, starting July 1.

"You have seven months to sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare the first time," Culkin said. "You can apply in the three months before you age 65, the month you become 65, or the three months thereafter. But you must apply during the three-month period before you're 65 to have protection beginning the month you become 65. Otherwise your protection will begin with a later month.

"After your first sign-up period ends," Culkin said, "you can sign up only during a general enrollment period, the first three-months of every year. If you delay signing up for more than a year, however, you pay a higher premium." This year's general enrollment period has been extended through Monday April 2, because March 31 falls on Saturday.

"Previously," Culin said, "you had to sign up in an enrollment period that began within three years after you became eligible for medical insurance or within three years after your protection stopped because you cancelled. The three-year deadline was eliminated by the 1972 amendments to the social security law.

"If you cancel your medical insurance, you can re-enroll only once," he said.

Nine out of 10 people 65 and over are enrolled in the medical insurance part of Medicare. Last year the medical insurance program paid over $2 billion in benefits on behalf of more than 10½ million people.

The medical insurance part of Medicare supplements the Medicare hospital insurance program which helps pay for hospital bills and certain post-hospital expenses.

Medicare is administered by the Social Security Administration of the U.S. Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. The Quincy social security office is at 1431 Hancock St. The phone number is 471-3500.

John Farmer Hemophilia Treasurer

John A. Farmer of 3 Douse Rd, Wollaston, has been appointed Norfolk County treasurer of the Massachusetts Hemophilia campaign.

He is assistant treasurer of the Hancock Bank, and is also the bank's business development officer.

The first campaign on behalf of research support into improved disease control and management for victims of hemophilia will get underway with a residential canvass starting March 24. The drive is being coordinated by the New England Hemophilia Association, a chapter of the National Hemophilia Foundation.

Hemophilia is characterized by a lack of normal blood-clotting factors and a strong tendency to bleed. Prolonged bleeding episodes can be crippling and disabling and result in fatal hemorrhaging. Hemophilia research is directed toward improved and less costly blood concentrates to bring the cost of infusions within the reach of every hemophiliac and toward laboratory synthesis of the deficient blood-clotting factors.

Farmer, who will accept donations throughout Norfolk County, is also treasurer of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and a director of the South Shore Day Center. He is a member of North Quincy Knights of Columbus Council. Mr. and Mrs. Farmer are the parents of two daughters, Jill, 5 and Erin, 1.

Quincy Group Sees Archbishop Become Prince

deliberation and hesitation they joined us. Ruth Abbiatti then completed the party.

Of course, as always, when you plan anything, you must remember that nothing is simple. I won't go into details except to thank Congressman James Burke's office for helping us to secure passports.

The second night we met Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge and his wife and had a nice talk with them. He didn't look well; when I got home I saw he had been operated on at one of the Boston hospitals. Apparently, he must have left Rome right after the Consistory. We exchanged greetings with Mayor and Mrs. Kevin White. Everywhere there was good feelings and friendly greetings-even at breakfast. We were one happy family all rejoicing in the honor given to the Archdiocese by making our Archbishop a Cardinal.

We also ran into Father Lawrence E. Pratt and Father David F. Delaney of St. John's over there. And George D'Angelo, who used to own Ship's Haven Restaurant.

On Monday morning, March 5, we went by motor coach to the new Audience Hall where the new Cardinals were presented their Biglettos by the Cardinal Secretary of State. This was followed by scripture readings and the imposition of the Cardinals' birettas. As each Cardinal's name was called his followers would burst into shouts and clapping. I was amazed at the great reception given to our own Cardinal Medeiros. It was tremendous. I would say he was exceeded only by the response given to the two black Cardinals. Pope Paul enjoyed the whole thing as he would wait till the shouting stopped before going on with the ceremony.

The new Audience Hall is an amazing building. It shows the genius and the good sense and taste of the architects. It is modern in every sense yet fits in with the old architecture of the Vatican and its buildings. There is no clash anywhere...a tremendous display of architectural skill. The Auditorium I would estimate must hold 10,000 people. It was a joy to hear again the beautiful Latin Hymns and Gregorian chant sung during the ceremonies.

On Monday afternoon we went to St. Peter's where we attended a Solemn Concelebrated Mass in which the new Cardinals were presented their rings. Again, a beautiful ceremony and the much loved ancient Latin hymns. After the ceremonies there was the long procession down the main aisle. [The Basilica is so large that St. Patrick's Cathedral of New York would fit comfortably in about three quarters of St. Peter's.]

It was interesting to observe the different Cardinals as they marched down the aisle. There was no doubt they were in heaven. Some of them greeting friends and giving a smile of recognition.

Our own Cardinal Medeiros walked with his eyes closed and a happy smile on his face. There was no doubt to whom he was talking.

After the Mass we were all transferred to the beautiful North American College for a special buffet supper. Unfortunately this proved a snafu to many. We couldn't get food. We learned later there were an enormous number of gate crashers.

Ash Wednesday found us attending 6 a.m. Mass at St. Susannah's, the titular church of the late Cardinal Cushing and now of Cardinal Medeiros. The rector, a Paulist Father, made us all feel at home. It is a beautiful church covered everywhere with frescos and paintings. This apparently will be the home parish of Ambassador John Volpe while he is in Rome.

Cardinal Medeiros took possession of St. Susannah's on Thursday with an overflowing attendance. The Medeiros family was there in the front seats which had to be forced on them. Ambassador Volpe and his gracious wife were there. [The Volpes are amazing; they were everywhere attending all the big functions. It is amazing when you realize they were there only a few days before the consistory and trying to get settled in their home and in the embassy]. Later in the evening a reception was given the Cardinal at our Hotel by the parishioners of St. Susannah's. While in the lobby I was pleased to greet Cardinal Wright.

Friday found us in the afternoon at a reception by the Boston Pilgrims at the Hotel Metropole. Cardinal Medeiros greeted us all individually and had his picture taken with each of us. He is truly amazing in his patience and thoughtfulness.

A beautiful concelebrated Mass really closed out the pilgrimage on Saturday at the North American College at 7 p.m. We met John Abbruzzi who is a student from Boston at the College. He is a former student of Sister Joanice.

The Boston group, as such, never had a private audience with Pope Paul. The day it was scheduled-Thursday-His holiness was ill. An attempt to make up for that was made when we gathered at St. Peter's at Sunday noon to hear the Holy Father address the people from His balcony and to give us His blessing-a truly inspiring sight.

We boarded our plane at 1:15 p.m. on Sunday, March 11 and were home at 6:15 p.m. We were all a bit tired but happy as the authorities at the airport were most thoughtful and understanding letting us out to get home. The first thing I wanted when I got home was a cup of coffee.

North Quincy Band Returns From Ireland To Rousing Reception

The 119-member North Quincy High School Band returned home Tuesday night after a five-day tour of Ireland where they marched and performed in the St. Patrick's Day parades in Dublin and Limerick.

They were met at Logan Airport by the Quincy High School band, officials, parents and friends. The Quincy High Band greeted the Raiders with the music of North's football fight song.

When the Quincy High School Band returned from their performance in the Dallas, Texas Cotton Bowl Parade in January, they were greeted by the NQHS Band which had learned Quincy's "fight" song, "March Down the Field to the Music", for the occasion.

A reception for the returning band members and their parents was held in the North Quincy High School cafeteria, following the band's arrival. Refreshments were provided by the Culinary Arts Department of the Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

Six Quincy Public School buses returned the band to Quincy from the airport. Enroute the buses stopped at North Quincy High School to take any parents there into the airport, on a first-come, first-served basis.

David Watson, director of the North band, led the band on its engagements in Ireland. North Quincy High School principal Peter Chrisom, along with a number of band parerts, accompanied band members on their tour which began last Thursday [March 15, 1973].

Also accompanying the North band was Vito A. Barresi, a band parent, and general chairman of the band parents committee which raised some $27,000 over the last several months through dinners, tag days, cake sales, and business contributions to fund the trip.

As a way of thanking citizens for their support of the bands recent activities, the North Quincy High School and Quincy High School Bands will combine on May 7 for a "Pops" concert at the Quincy Armory, 1000 Hancock St. It will be open free-of-charge to the public.

Quincy Band Turns Down Invitation To Canada

Quincy may soon be better known for young musicians than for granite and presidents.

The North Quincy High School band was still serenading its way through Ireland when another invitation came in for the Quincy High School musicians.

The Quincy band, for the second year in a row, won first prize in the Lawrence parade and competition.

Last year the win was good for an invitation to participate in the New Year's Day Cotton Bowl Parade in Dallas, Texas.

This year the invitation came from the Blossom Festival, May 19, in Niagara Falls, Ont., which is Canada's equivalent to Washington's Cherry Blossom Festival.

"But we had to turn it down," said Band Director Michael Cahill regretfully. "It gets a little too much for a while.

"They said, however, that they would be sure to ask us again in 1974."

The band did get something out of it, though - a 2½ foot trophy and $150 for the band fund.

Brownell Legislation Calls For 'Circuit Breaker' Tax Relief

Rep. Thomas E. Brownell [D-Quincy] has filed legislation that would provide "circuit breaker" property tax relief for Massachusetts homeowners.

Brownell told the Legislature's committee on Taxation:

"These bills [two] are based on the fundamental idea that property tax levies should be considered in the light of one's ability to pay.

"They simply provide a credit or rebate to a homeowner whose property tax is excessive in relation to his income.

"Nationally, the average household pays about 4 per cent of its income for the local residential property tax.

"My proposal H. 559 would provide a credit or rebate to anyone paying more than 7 per cent of their income in property taxes.

"House 1608 is a much more sophisticated version.

"Any low or moderate income family earning less than $16,000 would be entitled to a state tax credit or refund for real property taxes paid in excess of 5 per cent gross family income."

25, 10 Cent MBTA Fares

On Off Hours Starting April 2

Fares on the MBTA's South Shore line are going down Monday [April 2], but only at off-peak hours and only for 90 days and in one direction the reduction is less than in the other.

If that sounds complicated, listen a moment while MBTA General Manager Joseph C. Kelly explains.

"The plan is simplicity itself," he says.

"Monday through Friday between the hours of 10 a.m. and 1 p.m. anyone entering a rapid transit station will pay only 10 cents, instead of the basic adult fare of 25 cents.

"The reduced fare will be paid either at the collector's booth or at a Manned S box, as we call them. The regular entrance passimeters will still take the regular 25 cent fare and will not accept the dime.

"The only exception to the 10 cent fare will be for people boarding at the three Quincy stations and riding into town. Here the basic adult fare of 50 cents will be reduced to 25 cents.

"While this may sound as though our South Shore friends are not being given fair treatment -- no pun intended -- they are actually getting a bit better bargain as their reduction measures more than 50 per cent.

"People riding from Boston to Quincy will pay only 10 cents when alighting at the three rapid transit stations instead of the usual 25 cent charge, and passengers riding between any of the three Quincy stations will pay only 10 cents instead of the present quarter."

Nixon Nominates Stephen Keefe For A.F. Brigadier General

COL. STEPHEN T. KEEFE, JR.

Col. Stephen T. Keefe Jr. of 175 Rock Island Rd, a Quincy attorney who is currently assigned to the Pentagon in Washington as assistant deputy chief of Air Force Reserve, has been nominated by President Nixon to the rank of brigadier general.

Col. Keefe, whose military service began as a private in the U.S. Army Air Corps in March, 1942, is a former assistant city solicitor of Quincy, past president of the Quincy Bar Association, and a director of the Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank.

He saw active duty in North Africa during World War II, in Korea during the Korean War and was recalled to active duty as commander of a troop carrier squadron during the Cuban Missile Crisis in 1962.

Prior to his Pentagon assignment, he was vice commander of the 94th Military Airlift Wing at Hanscom Field in Bedford.

Col. Keefe and his wife, Mary, have three sons, David J., who lives in Davenport, Iowa, and Michael and Stephen, twins and sophomores at Boston College.

Council Begins Probe Of Proposed 6% Hospital Rate Increase

A special subcommittee of the Quincy City Council met Tuesday night to begin an investigation into a proposed six per cent increase in rates at Quincy City Hospital.

Chairman Joseph. J. LaRaia described the meeting as informational.

"We wanted to discuss the reasons given for the increase and look into those aspects of the hospital that contributed to the increase," he said.

Other members of the subcommittee are Councillors John J. Quinn, Theophilus McClelland and Albert R. Barilaro.

The rate increase was voted March 19 by the hospital board of managers to go into effect April 1, subject to the approval of the State Rate Setting Commission.

It would bring the maximum room rate to $92 a day.

LaRaia questioned a reported $600,000 owed to the hospital by the State Department of Public Welfare, which was one of the major reasons given for the rate increase.

"I know this figure is inflated," LaRaia said. "There is a large amount of debt due but nowhere near the figure reported in the newspaper."

"The reasons given for the increase were not detailed," he added, "and for that reason I am asking for more information as to the reasons for their [the managers'] action.

"I will not reach any conclusions until the councillors have reviewed this matter."

CBS Denies Local Reports It Will Televise X-Rated Movies

Outraged churchfolk around Quincy can stay their writing hands.

CBS is not going to televise X-rated movies.

Some recent Quincy church bulletins have urged parishioners to write to CBS to protest a plan to show the movies on the network.

The Quincy Sun this week got in touch with CBS to find out what was going on.

Said CBS President R. D. Wood:

"CBS has no intention of broadcasting X-rated movies. It has none in its library nor does it contemplate acquiring any."

"We try to knock down that rumor whenever we can," said a spokesman, "but it continues to thrive."

The Quincy draft boards, which recently moved from their offices in the Adams Academy are expected to make another move by May 1st - this time to Needham.

The volunteer army has had a direct effect in reducing the work of the local boards and it is expected that all the boards in Norfolk County will be consolidated into one office in Needham.

IT'S A SURE SIGN OF SPRING when the politicians begin stirring. First to officially announce for office in this fall's city elections was John Lydon of Wollaston, a candidate for Ward Five councillor. He began his campaign with a kick-off meeting last Thursday night at the Hollow Restaurant.

SPEAKING OF POLITICS, 1974 is closer than you think, especially if you're a candidate for Governor. Attorney General Robert Quinn, an unannounced candidate who is doing a lot of campaigning, is scheduled to meet with South Shore Democrats this week.

And if Quinn vacates the A.G. spot to run for Governor, a scramble for the office of Attorney General would probably attract Norfolk District Attorney George Burk of Wollaston.

The light-weight, durable bats are supposedly the "latest thing", but Ryan points out that they will have to be tried out before being approved for use in the recreation program.

AND WHILE RYAN is getting the baseball equipment ready, Richard Koch, executive secretary of the Park-Recreation Board, is scheduling use of the fields. Last night Koch met with the managers of baseball, softball and little league teams to make sure all teams are provided time for their activities.

LONDON, MASSACHUSETTS 02169: If Captain John Smith had his way, the area of Quincy would be known today as London.

On his map of 1631, Captain Smith labeled this region London because he thought that because of its fine harbor and broad plains the area would probably become the capital of the New World. And to further indicate the future prosperity and grandeur of the place he drew castles and cathedrals on the site.

- Roller Coaster Economy
- Surprise Amnesty Figures
- Another Prison Problem

WASHINGTON — Most economists agree that business is booming and the economic outlook is bright. But they are troubled by the roller coaster quality the economy has taken on.

For example, corporate profits shot up 14 per cent in 1971, another 16 per cent last year. But wages haven't kept pace. Labor leaders, therefore, are demanding big wage boosts and are threatening strikes in everything from the auto industry to the post office.

Unemployment has been holding at a manageable five per cent. But among teen-age blacks, unemployment has reached an alarming 36 per cent. President Nixon, meanwhile, has cut back federal programs, which have been helping young people find jobs and keep out of trouble.

The President has managed to keep inflation in this country from becoming the galloping menace it is in other industrialized nations, but his policies have helped precipitate an international monetary crisis. This, in turn, led to the devaluation of the dollar and a rise in the price of imported goods.

In fact, most prices have suddenly started to soar. Over the past three months, food prices have shot up at an annual rate of more than 50 per cent.

The President has said that the government doesn't need to control food prices, but sources say that skyrocketing cost of living statistics have given him second thoughts. Meanwhile, meat boycotts are being urged and food chains have reported a four per cent drop in meat orders.

The loser on this economic roller coaster is, of course, the average worker. While prices and profits continue to climb, his purchasing power continues to dip.

Chinese Grain Shortage

Bad weather ravaged the Soviet grain harvest last year and forced the Soviets to buy $1 billion worth of grain from the United States in what has become known as the "great grain robbery."

Now, there are intelligence reports that China may find itself in a similar predicament this year. The information out of China is less reliable than the Soviet crop estimates. But droughts have been reported in some areas, flooding rains in others. The Central Intelligence Agency, therefore, reports that the agricultural outlook is bad. Just how bad is more than the CIA is willing to predict.

But even a slight crop failure can be a disaster for China, which has such a huge population to feed that the rice and wheat harvests are its most vital statistics. Already, the grain rations have been reduced.

So this year the Chinese may join the Russians in purchasing surplus American grain. To further ease relations with China, the government is likely to give them a favorable deal. This should mean higher bread prices for Americans.

Headlines and Footnotes

DANGEROUS X RAYS — The American Medical Association may soon ask the government to require chiropractors to display the same kind of health warnings that must now be published on cigarette packages.

The AMA is now charging that the chiropractors' routine use of X rays in examination and diagnosis is dangerous. The doctors, on the basis of California Department of Health sample of chiropractors' techniques, contend that the chiropractors expose many patients to a dangerous dosage of radiation and that the X rays often are useless for diagnosis.

AMNESTY FIGURES — The great controversy over amnesty, contrary to public impression, will affect only a handful of young men. The official records indicate less than 4,500 draft dodgers and deserters are under indictment. At least 1,700 of them are hiding out in this country. No more than 2,800 have escaped to Canada and another 500 have sought refuge elsewhere — mostly in Sweden.

PRISONERS — The nation's prison director, Norman Carlson, and the former head prison chaplain, Frederick Silber, may soon find themselves looking out of the prisons they have ruled over. District Court Judge Newell Edenfield has found the two guilty of contempt of court for failing to allow prison members of the "Church of the New Song" to practice their religion.

Brownell Asks Tax Credit For Home Maintenance

A bill by Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] that would permit owners of single family houses to take a 50 per cent state income tax credit for building maintenance is now before the House Committee on Taxation.

"Under current tax policy," said Brownell in support of his bill, "we allow owners of income producing property to deduct maintenance costs as ordinary and necessary business expense.

"Yet, the residential property owner is not allowed to deduct this very same expense.

"In all fairness, I believe that we should allow homeowners to deduct one half the cost of protecting and repairing their homes."

All income tax forms packages contain an envelope addressed to the Service Center.

Checks or money orders in payment of the tax should be made payable to: "Internal Revenue Service", Williams said. "And don't forget to put your social security number on the check."

● QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What About Absentee Ballots ?

"Are absentee ballots allowed for town elections?" asked a caller to the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone? Absentee ballots are now mandatory for ALL elections reported the Voter Information Phone.

Two years ago absentee ballots were made mandatory for all elections - regular or special or any primary or preliminary election on the local, state or federal level. Registered voters may apply up to 24 hours before the election to their city or town clerks for absentee ballots if they will be out of town on election day or if they are disabled or ill and unable to get to the polls.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters' Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Rev. Lloyd Martin Appreciates Response To Abortion Sermon

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I thank you for placing Father Tierney's article in the same prime position as you did the resume of my sermon on the subject of abortion. I had hopefully expected that you would be giving equal space to other viewpoints. The public is best served by being given alternative thought on controversial subjects.

I have appreciated the great response that I have had, both pro and con. It is encouraging to see such public interest and concern on so significant an issue. I am sure that some social good will come out of the total evaluating process. Certainly the outcome will affect our society in many ways.

This is a time for good, rational thought in the light of the Supreme Court's ruling and I accordingly offered my views to congregation and then, in resume form, to the public forum, fully realizing that other opinions would need to be expressed. I am urging my parishioners to read them all. Incidentally, my quoted sermon was but one of three on tough social issues in a series entitled, "No Easy Answers".

I thank you for requesting my sermon resume and for the very fair treatment you extended. Aside from the headline which pushes me into an extreme position, where I am not, I leave my resume to stand for anyone's fair and thoughtful reading.

A 'Thank You' From League Of Women Voters

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The League of Women Voters of Quincy wishes to thank the Quincy Sun for helping us let citizens know about the League of Women Voters' new service, the Voter Information Phone.

The Sun has been most helpful in publishing the Question of the Week series, with questions drawn from those called into the Voter Information Phone by Massachusetts residents.

Hundreds of questions have been phoned in, questions about proposed bills, hearings, how to secure absentee ballots, how to reach legislators, etc.

Citizens are encouraged to use the Voter Information' Phone as a resource if they need answers about government. The number in Boston is 357-5880. Outside the Boston area, the toll-free number is 1-800-882-1649.

Fr. John J. McMahon On Abortion:

'Life Should Be A Right -- Not A Priviledge'

Rev. John J. McMahon, pastor of St. Mary's Church, West Quincy, today voiced strong opposition against abortion declaring that "life should be a right--not a privilege."

Rev. Fr. McMahon took sharp issue with the recent stand of Rev. Lloyd F. Martin, minister of Wollaston Congregational Church, who favored the U.S. Supreme Court decision legalizing abortion.

In a sermon delivered to his congregation Feb. 18 Rev. Mr. Martin said:

"Motherhood should be a privilege and not a penalty. The backbone of a healthy society is a cherishing quality in motherhood.

"Giving birth to a child does not necessarily make a woman a thoroughly good mother. Bearing an unwanted child will do even less if not the opposite.

"Removing the romantic, rosey glasses, we discover that much of societal sickness can be traced to or around our unloved 'accidents' ".

A resume of the sermon appeared in the March 1 issue of The Quincy Sun under a headline quoting Rev. Mr. Martin: "Motherhood Should Be A Privilege – Not A Penalty".

Rev. Fr. McMahon asked that his statement be printed under the headline: "Life Should Be A Right – Not A Privilege".

Rev. Fr. McMahon's statement follows:

Fr. McMahon's statement follows:

You recently granted extensive coverage to the sermon of a Quincy clergyman in which he supported the Supreme Court decision on abortion. You did so under the headline, "Motherhood Should Be a Privilege–Not a Penalty." May I request that you grant what I have written below the same courtesy under the headline "Life Should be a Right–Not a Privilege".

There is no possible way of arguing around the fact that a new life is created at the moment of conception, a life distinct from the life of the father and mother who conceived it. There is no possible way of arguing around the fact that this newly created life develops in a systematic fashion for a period of nine months and then and then only does it enter a new stage, the stage in which it is biologically independent of the mother. There is no possible way of arguing around the fact that to kill life in the unborn is just as truly killing as it is to kill life in the already born.

Let those who are concerned about the psychological impact upon the woman who gives birth to an unwanted life consider the psychological impact upon the same woman if she caused that life to be killed before birth. No casuistry of reasoning and no distortion of science can ever remove from her conscience the awareness that she has been party to a murder, and that she has made her own womb the scene of a bloody crime. Is that the burden she wants upon her soul to the day she dies? Is that the way to happiness and peace?

There is another answer when a child is conceived outside wedlock and the black cloud of shame hangs over a young woman. It is a way that demands self-discipline and a period of self-sacrifice, but it is a way that through contrition and atonement can lead to the sense of forgiveness and the healing balm of peace.

Society has the means of sequestering such young women for the necessary time, and the nation is full of men and women longing for children in their homes, eager to give the full measure of love and every worldly advantage to the children they adopt.

The woman who gives her illegitimate child to others for adoption can at least hope and do so with good confidence that people who love children enough to seek them out for adoption will give her child the privilege of its share in the good life. Abortion is a dead-end street on which none dwell but Shame, Remorse, and Guilt.

Adoption leads through self-discipline and self-denial to the sense of forgiveness bred of atonement. There is only one way to gain the healing satisfaction of having paid the price, and that is to pay the price. There is no easy way out of serious sin.

Once life is created, it has the right to life. We preach about the rights of underprivileged minorities. Is there in America today a minority so underprivileged as to be denied the very right to life, except the unborn babies of America? Abortion is death, and we clergymen should not stand in the ranks of death. Let us rather stand together in the ranks of life, steadfast in the belief that life is a right and not a privilege.

In effect the Supreme Court decision is a decision that a canon of personal morality cannot be enforced by law. But canons of personal morality can be enforced by religion, and it is to result in such enforcement that religious belief exists. The Supreme Court may say that man's law cannot forbid the killing of the unborn child, but it cannot deny that God's law forbids it.

We clergymen belong on God's side, and God's side is the side of life. Let us work together, literally in the name of God, that life may be a right and not a privilege in a land that has always liked to declare itself God's country.

WHAT HAPPENED TO SPRINGTIME?

According to folklore and songwriters, a young man's fancy turns to romance in the springtime, Right? Don't you believe it! Now, there is solid evidence that babies are most likely to be conceived in the autumn.

For what it's worth, a long-range study by the New York City Health Department determined the dates of conception in some 1.3 million New York City pregnancies between 1960 and 1967. In each year, the rate of conception increased in September and reached its peak in November and December. The low point seemed to occur between May and July.

According to the researchers, these findings may have important implications for family planning, especially if it turns out that fall-conceived children fare better physically than those conceived in the spring. On the other end of the coin - what will happen to all those poems in print and songs already recorded about love in the springtime?

ROTC Member Enjoys Aerospace

By TOM COOLEY
[Member of ROTC]

One of the most interesting and beneficial courses that has been added to the Quincy High curriculum is Aerospace Education; otherwise known as Air Force ROTC.

Its main purpose is to introduce the challenges of the aerospace age and develop qualities of leadership. Air Force ROTC provides a student the opportunity to work with people and to be a member of a team.

Navigation, jet propulsion, rocketry, and weather are only a few of the many subjects that are covered in Aerospace. About 20 percent of class time is spent reviewing various methods of leadership and drill.

Drill becomes a necessary part of the program in order that we may participate in local parades and other civic functions. In the past we have attended memorial services for President Johnson and Dr. Djerf, the Thanksgiving for Peace Ceremony and several other civic functions.

Our aim is not recruiting for the Air Force, but to tell the student the different aspects of aerospace and aerospace jobs. Although the aerospace industry is now going through a major recession, new advances in space technology will undoubtedly make it a booming industry in the not to distant future.

There is absolutely NO OBLIGATION to enter the service after high school if ROTC is elected. There are, however, several benefits in ROTC. The most immediate one is field trips to such places at Pease AFB, N.H.; Westover AFB and Otis AFB; Logan Airport; Hanscom Field; General Electric and The Boston Museum of Science.

Also 25 percent of graduation points may be obtained from three years in ROTC. Special consideration is given to ROTC students who apply for ROTC college scholarships, and to students nominated to the Air Force Academy.

Quincy High School ROTC is looking for a cross-section of students, including those going into industry or trade schools, college bound, and those looking to enter the service, but there is no obligation to join the service.

Another point that should be included is that GIRLS ARE WELCOMED. Starting this past year, girls have been allowed to and are encouraged to join the program. Also worth mentioning, here is our annual flight in an Air Force Plane. In the past the flights have lasted from 2 to 3 hours.

There are two Aerospace Instructors at QHS. They are Lt. Col. Arthur Allen and MSgt. Edwin Frost. Both are retired Air Force personnel with teaching backgrounds and both are looking ahead to a bright future for Aerospace at Quincy High School.

Venereal Disease

What You Don't Know Will Hurt You

By SYLVIA PATTAVINA
Future Nurses Of America

This article has mainly been written to encourage students to clear up the mysteries that surround venereal disease.

The truth is despite the fact that V.D. has been around for thousands of years, people still have a lot of crazy ideas about the disease.

Science has known the cure for syphilis since 1909 and gonorrhea since 1943. Yet America is in the middle of a V.D. epidemic!

Just how bad is it? Syphilis ranks as a major killer among communicable diseases. As for gonorrhea, at least 2,000,000 cases occured in 1970. And the amount has been climbing steadily since then.

One factor is embarrassment. A person won't mind telling you when he has the measles, pneumonia, or some other contagious disease. But V.D. is another matter, because it's associated with sex. The law in Massachusetts states that a parent's consent is not necessary to be treated for V.D.

The more people that there are who understand V.D. and know what to do about it the easier it will be to combat the epidemic in our country. The most common way to get V.D. is through sexual contact with a person who already has the germ, although if the person has the infection in his mouth you may get it by mouth to mouth contact. The results of untreated gonorrhea are blindness, sterility, arthritis, heart disease and death.

Syphilis results in blindness, insanity, paralysis, heart disease, and death. This should be enough to encourage you to find out all you can about V.D. We have excellent sources here at Q.H.S. and Voc-Tech in the Health Service room. There are two pamphlets available for students to have. This article was not meant to answer all questions you may have about V.D., but to encourage you to read on. The information contained in these pamphlets could be of great value, if not for you, maybe a friend.

'Let There Be Peace' Theme Song For International Festival

By RUSS RAND

The Foreign Language Department under the guidance of Mr. Ellis Swartz, Coordinator of Foreign Language for the Quincy School System, will be sponsoring the second annual International Festival during the week of April 9-14.

The theme "Peace, Love, and Brotherhood" used last year will be used again this year. This enables them to display respect and admiration for all cultures in the world.

The committee of students, teachers, parents and representatives of various ethnic groups have chosen for their theme song "Let There Be Peace On Earth".

During the school week of April 9-12 our 22 elementary, five junior high and three high schools will be honoring the festival activities in their own schools. Many cultural exhibits, music, dance, foods of different cultures will be topics of discussion. Also the theme song will be played on tapes.

Like last year full length motion pictures will be shown for students to view absolute free. The Spanish film, "Lazarello" the French film, "The Two of Us", the German film, "The Good Soldier Schweek" and the Latin film, "Fall of the Roman Empire" are films not to be missed.

All films are in the native language, except the Latin one, which will be in English.

During the weekend of the 13 and 14 of April in the Quincy High School Vocational Technical gymnasium from the hours of 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. there will be a Public International Festival free to all with exhibits from over 20 different cultures, some of which are the Greek, Italian, Irish, Mexican and Swiss to name just five.

In addition to these, there will also be an exhibit on International Currency, Chess and Stamps.

YOUTHFUL ENTERTAINERS from the Quincy and North Quincy High School Tri-Hi-Y pose for photographer outside Quincy High School before leaving to perform in a variety show for senior citizens at Marion Manor in Old Harbor Village, South Boston. More than 100 girls from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools made the trip Sunday afternoon.

'Symphony Cocktail' Appears Again At Walsh's Restaurant

The "Symphony Cocktail" has appeared once again in North Quincy.

Every few weeks before the Quincy Symphony Orchestra has a public performance, bartender Ray Kelly at Walsh's Restaurant in North Quincy springs forth with his "Symphony Cocktail".

"Andy [Walsh] is a member of the orchestra and it's a good take in" Kelly points out. "I just help the guys along by publicizing their concerts". he added.

Patrons at Walsh's have until Tuesday April 10 to sample the bubbling liquid. That's the evening the QSO presents its Spring Concert. Highlight this year is a solo performance by Alfred Krips of the Boston Symphony and Boston Pops Orchestras. Krips started his career with the Berlin [Germany] State Opera Orchestra, played under Richard Strauss, and finished the 1972 season as concert-master of the Boston groups.

The 'Unisex' Approach

Russell Edwards Features 'Complete Hair Care For Men, Women'

Russell Edwards, recently located at 27 Cottage Ave., in downtown Quincy, is a salon "devoted to the complete hair care needs of men and women."

The "unisex" approach is just beginning to emerge in the large metropolitan cities and according to Russell Edwards, proprietor of the salon "within 10 years my salons will no longer be unique–as they are today."

Two separate entrances provide easy access to the street and parking area. Edwards takes pride in the tastefully decorated salon with red accents and white walls. The modern air condition dryers are comfortable as well as good looking.

And, how about the staff?

Mr. Sonny, a native of Boston, has practiced his profession for 9 years in Boston and has studied in Newbury St., Boston and Virginia Beach, Va., for advanced hair cutting and styling. "We specialize in all phases of hair care, but without the proper cut – specifically, the scissor cut – there is no 'base' for good hair styling," he says.

Miss Margaret was born and raised in Great Britain. She is an expert in the latest trends from London and the Continent. She brings with her the experience in the now famous "blow dry" method which originated in London.

Mr. Russell a native of Boston, now living in Quincy, has been a creative hair stylist for more than 20 years. He has salons throughout the state. In his Boston salon Mr. Russell became very involved with hair pieces for professional entertainers and local business executives.

"If a man requires a hair piece he should not be embarrassed to seek out professional help," he says. "I'm sure you've all seen ill-fitting hair pieces – either the wrong color, or texture or thickness.

"I will not fit nor sell a hair piece that I myself would not personally wear. When a man finally decides to purchase a hair piece, he wants it to be as natural and comfortable as possible."

He said he would be glad to advise anyone contemplating the purchase of a hair piece.

The new hair style for men requires professional care. No longer acceptable, he said, is shoulder length hair...so "at our salon, the emphasis is the cut."

The salon has been opened since the first of the year and the response has been "just great" according to Edwards.

There is ample parking in the lot adjacent to the salon. The salon is open Monday thru Saturday and Thursday evenings.

Edwards invites the public to "drop by" to meet him and the staff. He indicated that he would give a free consultation on your hair needs and wants.

Between the Covers

As mentioned last week, this is the second of a two part selection of books concerning show business. Today we present a few of the latest biographies dealing with performers.

The man behind the myth is explored in RICHARD BURTON: VERY CLOSE UP, by John Cottrell and Fergus Cashin [Prentice Hall Inc. $7.95]. Born into bleak poverty in South Wales, Burton, today, along with his wife, Elizabeth Taylor, belongs to the select crowd of jet-setting Beautiful People. But is that the only side of the famous couple? And what of Burton himself? Is it all a facade? Cottrell and Cashin present some very interesting points both for and against.

From films to Broadway, MILLER'S HIGH LIFE, by Ann Miller and Norma Lee Browning [Doubleday and Co. $7.95] is the glossy rags to riches story of tap dancing star, Ann Miller. With compassion and humor, she bares both her private and public lives in a new light as she tells the tale of the little girl from Texas who conquered all mediums and eventually wound up in television's most expensive commercial, tap dancing on top of a giant can of soup in The Great American Soups ad.

AZNAVOUR BY AZNAVOUR: The autobiography of Charles Aznavour, [Cowles Book Co. Inc. $8.95] is definitely a unique story. All the glittering details are put aside, leaving the reader with the honest, and totally frank story of a man's painful progression from laughing stock to international celebrity. Beginning with his boyhood in France, Aznavour leaves very little untold. Truly interesting reading.

An important work for those interested in jazz history is LOUIS: THE LOUIS ARMSTRONG STORY, by Max Jones and John Chilton [Little, Brown and Co. $9.50]. So much has already been written about Satchmo that it seems improbable that anything new could be added, yet the authors have answered previously unanswered questions, and in the end, paint a new picture of the man who brought musical magic to so many millions.

Few entertainers ever win the privilege of being so well known that they are recognized by their first name only, but the subject of ELVIS, by Jerry Hopkins [Simon and Schuster $7.95] is definitely one of them. Gaining fame in the fifties, Presley has consistently remained on the top, and as Hopkins points out, has changed and adapted to the times, growing from the slick haired rock 'n roll star of the fifties to the cool and professionally polished performer of the seventies.

One of the world's most beloved and most imitated entertainers is alive again through JOLSON, by Michael Freedland [Stein and Day $8.95]. The kaleidoscope world of Al Jolson, best remembered as being on one knee with arms outstretched, singing Mammy, has dramatically been captured through pictures and the remembrances of close friends.

The career of one of Hollywood's most popular leading men has been recorded from obscurity to stardom in THE FILMS OF CLARK GABLE, by Gabe Esso [Citadel Press $10.]. Along with his stage and silent screen appearances, each of Gable's 67 films, from "Mutiny on the Bounty" to "Gone With the Wind" is recalled through studio stills, candid photos, and rare snapshots.

Plans Moving Ahead For City's 350 th Anniversary Celebration

The 350th Anniversary Committee adopted a proposal Monday night which seeks funds from the Ford Foundation to provide public information on a national scale for the city's celebration activities in 1975.

Maurice J. Daly, Assistant Superintendent of Schools for Vocational Education, said the proposal would set up a cooperative endeavor between a local advertising agency and the commercial Graphic Arts Department of Quincy Vocational-Technical School.

Daly exhibited several posters and brochures designed by students which could be used to highlight 350th anniversary events on billboards, buses and in magazine and newspaper media.

The proposal calls for a local advertising agency to provide facilities for students to design informational advertisements for radio, television and print media.

Graphic arts instructors Saul Levanson, Frederick Gibbs, and Paul Tranford would work with their students and the advertising agency in developing the informational packets for the public, Mr. Daly said.

The committee will hold its next meeting April 30 at the Broad Meadows Junior High School. At that time the committee will work out a detailed calendar of events to celebrate the city's 350th anniversary.

Some of the planned events include:

- A formal ball in March or April, featuring noted Quincy citizens.
- A December dinner meeting.
- An Education Week in October with schools setting up their own displays and program activities.
- Publication of a history of education in Quincy by students in cooperation with the Quincy Historical Society.
- Student research into the sites on the Historic Trail and publication of brochures.
- Production of the play "1776" by the combined drama clubs of Quincy and North Quincy High Schools.
- Five parade days commemorating the military heritage of Quincy.
- A concelebrated Mass with Humberto Cardinal Medeiros and Cardinal Wright.
- An interfaith sunrise service.
- Concerts by the Vienna Choir Boys.
- A sprucing up of such historic sites as the first iron foundry and the first railroad, with the aid of federal funds.

"Anything Goes" Attitude Endangers America

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
9-5 Weekdays 9-7:30 Thursday

The permissive attitude of society toward crime and criminals is paralleled by a similar spirit of "anything goes" in other areas of social conduct.

Pearl Buck has observed that with the possible exception of Red China no people in the world has changed so much as Americans in the past twenty years. "And nowhere is the change more apparent than in our ethics of sex," she says. "The change is so abrupt and far-reaching that we are all dazed by it."

Books making the best-seller lists seem to depend for their success on graphic portrayal of assorted sexual aberrations. Successful magazines philosophize about the values of a life devoted to material possessions, sexual gratification, hedonistic pursuits.

About 40 per cent of all brides in the U.S. today are between 15 and 18. Half of these marriages, according to an Associated Press survey, end in divorce within five years. Among teenagers, according to the experts, at least two of five brides, perhaps one of two, are pregnant at the altar.

There is an epidemic of venereal disease in the country and teenagers are among the prime victims. The American Medical Association notes that at least 1.1 million Americans are infected with venereal disease each year; some experts put the figure as high as 1.7 million. People 24 years of age and younger account for more than half of all cases.

The basic cause of our present plight is an erosion of standards that has left us unsure about what is right and what is wrong and quite indifferent as to the implications. In an address at the Twenty-Second National Conference on Higher Education, Pulitzer-Prize-winning author Barbara W. Tuchman said:

"Of all the ills that our poor criticized, analyzed, sociologized society is heir to, it seems to me that the focal one, from which so much of our uneasiness and confusion derive, is the absence of standards. We seem to be afflicted by a widespread and eroding reluctance to take any stand on any values—moral, behavioral, or esthetic. Everyone is afraid to call anything wrong, or vulgar, or fraudulent, or just bad taste or bad manners."

Quoting John Gardner, who said that "every great civilization has been characterized by confidence in itself," author Tuchman observed that the supply in the the U.S. today is low. "We hesitate to label anything wrong and therefore hesitate to require the individual to bear moral responsibility for his acts."

A dozen years ago, newspaperman Sydney J. Harris wrote in his syndicated column:

"It is this lack of belief in the absolute standard of right and wrong that is a greater menace to the future of mankind than communism, fascism, or any other ism in the lexicon of human history."

Books On Judaism Presented To Eastern Nazarene College

Students at Eastern Nazarene College are a little better informed about Jews and Judaism, thanks to the Jewish Chautauqua Society.

The society is dedicated to teaching the truth about Jews and Judaism and, along with its Christian counterparts, fostering a better understanding of the Judeo-Christian ethical force.

Lester H. Glasser of Wollaston, chairman of the Jewish Chautauqua Society Committee of Temple Israel in Boston, recently presented seven books on Judaism to Eastern Nazarene as part of the society's program.

They were accepted for the college by Miss Dorothy King, the head librarian, and Dr. Leslie Parrot, the president.

Among the books were "Consecrated Unto Me" and "The Meaning of Judaism", both by Rabbi Roland B. Gittelsohn, spiritual leader of Temple Israel.

Something New On Local Sports Scene: Rugby

Something new has been added to the Quincy sports scene--rugby.

The newly-organized Quincy Rugby Club, consisting entirely of Quincy and North Quincy players, including several members of last fall's North Quincy High football and soccer teams, has scrimmaged Boston University and on April 7 will open a seven-game schedule at Springfield College.

Rugby, which originated in England and is rated one of the fastest and roughest of games, is extremely popular in England and Europe and its popularity in this country is growing fast.

Most of the Quincy players have had no previous experience. Chris Connors, president of the club, played at Boston University and last year played on the strong Boston Rugby Football Club; Bob Bertoni, team captain, played at St. John's University and also played with the Boston club a year ago, and Steve Poore played some at Annapolis.

"Although most of the players are playing rugby for the first time, they are improving tremendously and they looked good in the scrimmage against B.U., although we lost," Connors said. "I think by the time we open our season, we will be ready to give a good account of ourselves."

"This is a great social sport and after the teams play two 30-minute halves with no timeouts, they get together and shake hands and enjoy refreshments served by the home team. There are 15 men to a side and the action is really fast. Unlike American football, the players wear no pads."

"Anyone can join the club and no one will be cut," Connors continued.

He explained that in May at Hormel Stadium in Medford a rugby tourney will be played with top teams from this country, England and Wales.

Because of the lack of an available field on Saturdays, all Quincy games this spring will be away from home and it is hoped to have the teams come to Quincy for games in the fall.

The schedule: April 7, Springfield College: April 22, Keene, N.H. State College; April 28, Harvard Business School; May 5, Amherst; May 13, Dartmouth; May 19, Hartford Rugby Club; May 26, Beacon Hill Rugby Club.

"We are strictly an amateur team with no sponsors," Connors said. "We are getting new uniforms which will be ready for our opening game."

Anyone interested in joining the team is asked to call Chris Connors at 472-1208 or Bob Bertoni at 328-9287.

Big Question At ENC

Who'll Replace Ron Bradley?

Another successful season is now history for the Eastern Nazarene College basketball team and the big question is "Who will replace the brilliant Ron Bradley next year?"

Bradley, one of the finest small college players in the country and an All-American candidate, sparked the Crusaders to a 21-9 record, the co-championship of the Seaboard Conference and to third place in the National Christian College Athletic Association Tourney last weekend in Chattanooga, Tenn. He now has his eye on a pro career.

Coach Jim Smith, completing his third excellent season since taking over for Carroll Bradley, brought his record to 71-22.

ENC qualified for the NCCAA semifinals by edging Malone College of Canton, Ohio, 99-95, backed by some 1,000 fans at Quincy Voc-Tech gym.

Bradley had one of his finest nights as he scored 46 points and continually frustrated a good Malone team with his sensational dribbling and ball handling.

ENC fell behind by 11 points midway in the first half but led at the intermission, 51-48.

The Crusaders pulled ahead by 10 but Malone cut the gap to one. The Wollaston team appeared to be in as it pulled away again, 91-79, with 3:17 to play but Malone refused to quit and moved to within four.

Also shining for ENC was Dave Eads with 25 points. Dave Constantine scored 13 and set up many points and Rick Reyenger stood out on the boards.

In its semifinal game at Chattanooga ENC bowed to the eventual champion, Lee College of Baytown, Texas, 75-64.

The Crusaders won the consolation game from Grace College of Winona Lake, Indiana, 80-75, for third place honors. They were fourth in the tourney a year ago and second two years ago as it became the first team from the Northeast to win a game in the tourney.

Bradley was held to his lowest scores of the year but Eads and Constantine came to the fore. Eads scored 20 points in the consolation win while Constantine who, like Bradley, is a former North Quincy captain, had 16 points against Lee and 19 points and 12 rebounds against Grace. Bradley was held to a new low of 12 points by Grace and Reyenger had 11 points and again dominated the boards.

Giordani Cited In Magazine

Mark Giordani, 13-year old Houghs Neck athlete, has been named the Most Valuable Player in the Quincy Junior Baseball League for last summer by Sports Digest, a new and unique publication which made its debut this month.

The young pitcher-outfielder, an outstanding hitter, will play in the Babe Ruth League this season.

Boys Street Hockey Quarter Finals Underway

The Quincy Recreation Department city-wide elementary Boys Quarter final competition got underway Saturday, with the two divisions facing off at Pond St. playground and Montclair playground.

In the Southern Division playoffs, area teams from Central and Hunting got things off to a lively start. In less than two minutes of play Central's Pat Clifford broke through the defense and fired home for Central's first goal of the playoffs.

Michael Oriola of Central then took over and placed back to back goals in the Hunting net. James McHugh also scored for Central only moments before the end of the first period.

Hunting's defense mobilized and managed to hold Central at bay until the waning moments of the second period when Central's John Cahill scored the second period's only goal. Pat Clifford and Brian Norton also scored for Central in the 7-0 bombing.

Councillor Clifford Marshall set the puck in motion in the Snug Harbor - Hancock game. Snug Harbor's Ken Grindstaff put Snug Harbor ahead with back to back goals. Hancock's Richard Rooney and Richard Ahola then took over to score one each. Michael Lupo and Ray Verrier combined and assisted each other on their two goals. Robert Tompson of Snug Harbor intercepted a Hancock pass and scored the only second period goal. Defense for both teams then took over for a scoreless third period. Snug Harbor won it, 5-2.

Fore River defeated Atherton Hough, 3-1.

James Burm was the only player able to penetrate Atherton Hough's stone wall defense until the second period when Steve Buckley saw just enough daylight and slapped one home and brought the score to 2-0 in favor of Fore River. Atherton Hough bounced back with Mark Hamell walking in for a goal early in the third. But Fore River's Dave Flaherty intercepted a pass and shifted in on goal for the score.

Sterling defeated Beechwood Knoll 2-0 in perhaps the best defensive playing of the series. Tony Palmer of Sterling scored midway through the first period to give Sterling an early lead. Beechwood Knoll maintained its fine defensive playing until Bill Chiavaroli managed a break-away and a goal early in the third period. Sterling's defense refused to weaken.

Northern Division action found Councillor William Delahunt on hand to drop the puck in the Squantum - Quincy game, won by Quincy, 5-1. Tom Geary stole the puck and raced in for a Quincy goal, followed by one from Andy Crevier. Quincy's Tom Dormandy then came up with Quincy's first hat-trick of the playoffs.

Gridley Bryant enjoyed its first shutout of the season in its 3-0 win over Atlantic. Two goals by Ricky Newcomb and one by Scott Lowell, with assists from Lowell, Larry Bertrand and Richard Campbell gave Gridley Bryant the victory.

Parker defeated Wollaston 5-1.

Paul Nestor put Parker out ahead with an early goal, and later was credited with an assist to Kevin Cobban. James Keenan of Parker had the hat-trick, Parker's first of the playoffs.

Quincy Team Expected To Enter Senior Hockey Loop

Starting in September a new senior hockey league, The Greater Boston League, will take to the ice and among the communities expected to enter a team is Quincy.

Other teams are expected from West Roxbury, Dedham, Chelsea, Norwood, Needham, Walpole and Brighton.

This league will be open to all men, 19 and older, not participating in any kind of professional, semi-pro or college leagues.

It will be a strictly amateur league and it will be against regulations for any team to offer or any player to accept payment for playing. Each team will also be responsible for its own operating costs and for obtaining its own sponsors.

Games will be played on Sunday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the new Four Seasons III Arena in Quincy. No admission will be charged to the games. It is hoped to choose the two best players from each team to represent the league in an all-star game against other senior leagues in Eastern Mass.

The league is seeking coaches, volunteer referees, writers, timers and photographers.

Anyone interested in offering to help in one of these capacities or receiving further information on the proposed league, is asked to send a postcard with his age and telephone number to the Greater Boston Senior Hockey League, P.O. Box 865, Quincy

END OF THE WAR

People everywhere are happy!
End of the war!
All people filled with joy!
Children and Adults filled with joy!
Everywhere everybody is happy!

Any one can be happy when the war is over!
No one can be sad!
Dumb people start wars!

Joy throughout the world!
Only good people are happy!
You can be happy too!

THE PLEASURES OF LIFE

A peppy puppy,
A purring kitten,
A playful bear,
My friends,
The cool ice,
A blue sky's wind,
Some sweet candy,
Reading books,
My wonderful family,
Life is full of such lovely things.

IF I HAD A THIRD EYE

If I had a third eye I could play cards with my friend and I could peek at the cards and win all the time. I could play monsters and be one and scare the people away. I could take things and scare little children, take their toys from them. If one eye gets hurt I would have two eyes left - but I don't like to scare people or children and take things away from the little kids. I want two eyes - I don't want to play monsters and look at peoples card - I just want to be myself.

IF I HAD A THIRD EYE

If I had a third eye, I would look up, down and all around. If I had a third eye one would be looking one way and the other another way and one on my paper. If I had a third eye I would be different from everybody else - I would not like that very much. But if I really had a third eye everybody would laugh and call me names. I would have no friends at all. I'm glad I don't have three eyes. Oh! Oh! how glad I am!

THE LION THAT DIED FROM POLLUTION

Once there was a lion who was free. There was clean air and he was very happy. He could run and jump in the green grass and have lots of fun. One day the lion saw a little girl. She was very nice to the lion and brought him food. She said to the lion, "I am going to bring my friends to see you, OK" The lion couldn't talk so he just walked away. The next day she came with her friends to see the lion. Her friends liked the lion too. They had a picnic and threw papers all around. They told their mothers and fathers about this wonderful place. Their mother and fathers told their friends and they all made it into a park. Soon it became a very polluted area and the lion died.

Mark Spitz As Tarzan?

There'll be two BERGMAN'S present at this years Cannes Film Festival [May 10-25]. Actress INGRID BERGMAN will be president of the film jury, and director INGMAR BERGMAN will have his latest stateside prizewinning "CRIES AND WHISPERS" shown in a non-competing slot... Seven gold medals aside, MARK SPITZ strikes me as too much the creampuff to make any worthwhile contribution to the film industry. And as an actor, SPITZ is too much a mustached skin and bones to make an even convincing Tarzan... Watch and see. SPITZ will star in one film, bomb, and swim on into the great sunset of oblivion...

The Kansas City Film Critics Circle recently picked "A CLOCKWORK ORANGE" as the best film to play there in 1972... For the curious, the American Newsreel, once a theatre staple before the showing of motion pictures, gave birth in 1911 and vanished from the screens in 1967... Columbia Pictures merchandising campaign on behalf of "LOST HORIZON" is "the most extensive" in the company's history. Perfumes, body oils, drapes, bedspreads, fabrics, colognes, pillows, kimonos plus the paperback reprint of the book and the BURT BACHRACH-HAL DAVID soundtrack will all be on sale soon as part of Columbia' national sales pitch to the public...

QUOTABLE, QUOTES: JAMES COCO reflecting on his many years on struggling to attain a foothold in film: "With things going so right for me these days, it's easy to remember my disappointments and even hungry moments with a sense of amused detachment. I thought I was a good actor much before I was successful...in my book, being good means accepting any job no matter how big or small it is and doing it seriously"... In JAMES COCO'S case it was a matter of paying one's dues-20 years he struggled before hitting paydirt...

RICHARD CONTE, veteran character actor of plus two decades in show biz, is in Europe filming the two-fisted Mafia themer "BIG GUNS"... ELLIOTT GOULD returns to the motion picture scene via his film comeback "GOODBYE", a movie he hopes proves his return to fan and critical acclaim, rather than his swansong... "THE POLICE CONNECTION" is a followup to "FRENCH CONNECTION" top cop EDDIE EGAN'S police heroics... "McQ" finds JOHN WAYNE in the contemporary drama of a hard nosed police detective...

What kind of director is ARTHUR HILLER? The type responsible for bringing to the screen such popular film fare as "LOVE STORY", "THE OUT OF TOWNERS", "THE HOSPITAL" and his latest achievement, "MAN OF LA MANCHA"... Since when have Minnesota and New Jersey been considered "romantic" locations? According to the release "THE HEARTBREAK KID" was filmed in such "romantic" locale... Monte Carlo, sure; but New Jersey?... Joining those of us who suffer from acrophobia [fear of heights] are stars CAROL LYNLEY and RED BUTTONS...

Remember ART LUND, the singer who gained fame in the big-band era? Well if you do, you can catch him in the gangland flick "BLACK CAESAR"... LUND'S is one of the stronger characterizations in this motion picture... "BROTHER SUN AND SISTER MOON" will soon be making its New England debut. The movie is the story of St. Francis of Assisi, and should prove of special interest, not only to Church-related groups, but those who like than film fare of the G-rated variety...

And no, SEAN CONNERY "was not" the first choice of producers BROCCOLI and SALTZMAN to portray the James Bond roles. In order of contention it went like this: ROGER MOORE, the "new" James Bond who was then commited to the TV series, "THE SAINT", SEAN CONNERY and PATRICK McGOOHAN...

Now this columnist takes an ever so slow "burn". How CHARLES BRONSON missed making the Herald poll, I'll never know. All he did was have three box office hits; "CHATO'S LAND", "THE MECHANIC", and "THE VALACHI PAPERS"... BRONSON is the highest paid actor in the motion picture industry today. He is the number one box office star in the world today... But, for some mysterious reason [known only to God and the Herald poll-takers] he just isn't good enough to qualify as a Top Ten Star in America...

Services Held For Russell T. Bates

RUSSELL T. BATES

Funeral services were held Saturday for Russell T. Bates, 80, of 5 Shellton Rd, Adams Shore, whose political career of more than half a century included service as a State Representative, City Councillor and County Commissioner. He died March 22.

The son of Mayor Gustave B. Bates [1916-17, 1923-24], he was elected to the State Legislature in 1917 and, after resigning to enlist in the Navy, he was elected again in 1920, 1921 and 1922.

Defeated for the State Senate in 1922, he was elected to the City Council in 1926 and to the County Commission in 1928. He remained a commissioner until his retirement in 1968.

Bates was a member of the City Council until 1949 when, in the first Plan E election, he was defeated. He also lost three bids for mayor of Quincy and one for county sheriff.

"A fellow shows his true colors when he loses," he said, "I've always said that I didn't lose – the city of Quincy did."

Bates captained the Quincy High School baseball, football and basketball teams, graduating in 1910. He attended Bates College and later played semi-professional baseball in Halifax, N.S.

He was president and treasurer of Bates Brothers Seam-Face Granite Co. of Weymouth, which provided building materials for Yale, Boston College, Yeshiva of New York and other public buildings in the eastern states.

He leaves his wife, Gretchen. three daughters, Mrs. Dennis Green of Wollaston, Mrs. James Bristol of Weymouth, and Mrs. Tom McCord of Colorado Springs, Colo., and a sister, Mrs. Mila Eggleton of Scituate.

Burial was in Mt. Hope Cemetery in South Weymouth.

S.S. Council For Children To Be Formed Tonight

A South Shore Regional Council for Children will be formed tonight [Thursday] at 7:30 p.m. at the Naval Reserve Center on Sea Street.

The meeting was called by David Liederman, director of the newly formed Office for Children, which was created by the Legislature late last year to coordinate services for children across the state.

A unique part of the legislation is the establishment of 35 to 40 local councils to oversee the development of comprehensive services to youngsters up to 16 [and in some cases 18] on a local level.

Once a general membership has been established for the local council, decision-making boards will be elected, with at least 50 per cent of the board members coming from the ranks of parents and consumers.

Election of board members from the South Shore Council will take place next Thursday [April 5] at 7:30 p.m. at a meeting in St. Coletta's Day School in Braintree.

Paul Harold Meets With Democratic Leaders

Paul D. Harold of Adams Shore, President of the Massachusetts Young Democrats, met last week with Democratic leaders in Washington.

Purpose of the conference was to discuss plans for organizing a federation of Young Democratic Clubs of New England.

Harold also met at the Capitol with Rep. Thomas O'Neil of Cambridge, Democratic Majority Leader of the U.S. House of Representatives.

Council Budget Session Saturday

The City Council's finance Committee will resume its budget-pruning Saturday.

The public session will start at 9:30 a.m. in the Council Chamber, at City Hall.

Brett Requests Foot Patrolman For Montclair

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has asked for a full-time foot patrolman for the Montclair section to combat vandalism on West Squantum St., Montclair Ave., and Safford St.

"The motor patrols do the best they can," he wrote Mayor Hannon, "but they have such wide areas to cover it is impossible for them to control the actions of vandals and other scofflaws.

"Perhaps it would be well to reverse the modern day trend toward motorization of police forces and return to the days of the 'cop-on-the-beat'.

"That would allow for a closer neighborhood involvement by the police and a closer relationship with the citizens in a particular area.

"Perhaps this may appear to some as simply 'turning the calendar back' but I personally believe crime control was more effective when there were more foot patrolmen in the neighborhoods."

$1.5 Million Budget Cut Seen

Little Or No Tax Rate Hike Possible, Says Quinn

By TOM HENSHAW

Councillor John J. Quinn sees the possibility of "a little or no increase" in the Quincy tax rate for 1973.

Quinn is chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee which has been wrestling with the city budget for the past month and a half.

"It looks now like we'll be able to cut another million and a half out of it," Quinn declared.

"If all the Finance Committee's recommendations are adhered to and if the cherry sheet [state contributions] is not reduced and if revenue sharing is on target, coupled with the actions of the Quincy School Departments' vote on payment of teachers' salaries, then we should be close to no tax increase."

The current Quincy tax rate is $152.40.

The budget, covering 18 months instead of the usual 12, came to the Council at $87.2 million after Mayor Hannon had snipped $7.7 million out of the original requests.

The City Council, sitting as a finance committee of the whole, held what was possibly its final budget hearing last night [Wednesday] with Saturday reserved for any holdover items.

The budget is expected to be passed by the full council next Monday.

Said Quinn:

"Quincy has the most attractive and solid fiscal base that we have had in the last 20 years.

"The visions we have had of holding the tax rate as a result of 'the people's budget' are within reach."

Quincy High 'Shots' Today

126 Cases Of Measles, 70 German

Immunization shots are scheduled to be given this morning [Thursday] at Quincy High School in a continuing effort to stem an alarming tide of measles cases that has been spreading across the city.

As of Tuesday, the Quincy Health Department reported 126 cases of measles and 70 cases of German measles [rubella] in the city.

Some 525 vaccine shots were administered at North Quincy High School this week.

Jeanne Doherty, RN, of the Health Department urged anyone wishing measles vaccine to call the Nursing Office at the Health Department [773-1380] for referral to the proper administering agency.

Vaccine is free to all Quincy residents.

Nurse Doherty reported the response to appeals made thus far is great but it may be late in many cases. The vaccine takes some six weeks to be effective against the disease.

"A lot of people will just have to sweat out the six weeks," she said.

Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred V. Mahoney urged that parents report any cases of measles or German measles to the Health Department as quickly as possible – "just a simple phone call will do."

"It is vital that we have accurate statistics and know where the measles are occuring," he said.

Measles are characterized by these symptoms:

* First, a fever, a cough, a runny nose or similar signs of a cold.
* A rash starts around the face and spreads over the rest of the body.
* The victim feels ill and his eyes feel sensitive to light.

The rash usually lasts at least three days.

Symptoms of the German measles are similar, except that there are no cold symptoms preceding the rash and a major complaint is the painful enlargement of lymph nodes in the scalp.

Joint pains and sore eyelids may also accompany German measles.

The Health Department pointed out that German measles are particularly dangerous to pregnant women.

20,000 Names Goal

Petition Drive Underway Against S. Quincy MBTA Station

A petition drive–with a goal of 20,000 names–is underway in opposition to the proposed South Quincy MBTA station and parking facility.

The petitions are being circulated by the South Quincy Civic Association and will be presented at a public hearing on the proposed station to be held April 26 at 7:30 p.m. at Sterling Junior High School.

The Citizens Petition "strongly opposes" an MBTA station at South Quincy or North Braintree, favoring instead the South Braintree dump site as the location.

The MBTA will conduct the public hearing.

MBTA General Manager Joseph C. Kelly calls the South Quincy station the "next phase" of the extension of the South Shore rapid transit line to South Braintree.

The station would have a 1,750 car parking garage and a new expressway ramp system connecting the station with Rtes 3 and 128.

Cost of the project is set at $15.8 million.

Addressed to Gov. Francis Sargent, State Transportation Secretary Alan A. Altshuler and Mayor Walter J. Hannon, the petitions read:

"We the undersigned citizens of QUINCY, MASSACHUSETTS, being 18 years of age or older, do hereby declare that we stand strongly opposed to the construction of an MBTA station and parking facility either in SOUTH QUINCY or NORTH BRAINTREE, MASSACHUSETTS, and further that we are of the opinion that such planned station and parking facility would better be located at SOUTH BRAINTREE, at the so-called 'DUMP SITE'".

Pat DiStefano, president of the South Quincy Civic Association, said more than 700 copies of the petition with room for 30 signatures on each, were distributed over the weekend to

Any pregnant woman who has been exposed to the disease should contact her obstetrician.

Although the current rash of measles cases has been associated mostly with North Quincy High School [60 cases] Nurse Doherty said it is not confined to the north section of the city.

"There have been cases at Quincy High School and at Quincy Voc-Tech," she said. "There have also been a lot of cases at the Gridley Bryant School in West Quincy."

Cases have also been reported from the Quincy, Montclair, Beechwood Knoll, Parker, and Wollaston Schools. Also the Hunting, Daniel Webster and Willard Schools.

The problem is the strongest among ages 14 to 20, the group which did not respond well to appeals to take booster shots in January.

"Most of the elementary school kids got their booster shots in January," said Nurse Doherty. "That age group is quiet now."

GD Future At Stake

BRATS Working For New Bridge

The Fore River Brats met for the first time Monday and narrowed their aims down to one important goal.

The Brats are the Fore River Bridge Replacement Action Team.

The goal is the replacement of the existing Fore River Bridge with a new bridge 300 feet wide and 300 feet high within a five year period.

Unless the current bridge [175 feet wide] is replaced General Dynamics Quincy Shipbuilding Division faces possible extinction since the present span cannot handle the large tankers of the future.

"I can build a 400,000-ton ship but the biggest I can get out of the yard is 150,000 tons," said P. Takis Veliotis, general manager of the shipyard.

Possibility of a sizeable market for 150,000 ships is dim.

At its peak, the Quincy shipyard employes 4,000 workers with a payroll of $50 million.

The Fore River BRAT was formed to try to expedite the building of a new bridge.

Members who showed up at the organizational meeting Monday included:

State Sen. Allan McKinnon [D-Weymouth]; Edward Moore, representing Congressman James Burke's office; Congressman Gerry Studds [D-Cohasset], Robert Smith and David Dwyer of General Dynamics; Arthur Batson, president of Shipbuilders' Local 5; Robert McDonough of the State Department of Public Works.

Also Mayor Walter J. Hannon; Harold Davis, manager of economic development for the South Shore Chamber of Commerce; John Blake, president and Eric W. Swider, executive vice president of the chamber.

Also invited to future meetings are State Reps. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy], Clifford Marshall [D-Quincy], Robert Ambler [D-Weymouth] and William Connell [D-Weymouth] and State Sen. Arthur Tobin [D-Quincy].

Sen. McKinnon and Mayor Hannon were elected co-chairmen of the committee.

Swider said McDonough told members of the committee that it would take five years to build the bridge from the design stage through construction. Under present law, he said, it would take five more years to satisfy environmental demands.

The committee will explore the possibility of special legislation to exempt the bridge project from environmental statement requirements.

Quinn Sees Little Or No Tax Increase

Meanwhile, even though the final score is not yet in, the City Council's hearings on the budget have drawn the plaudits of three civic organizations.

The Quincy Citizens Association, the Quincy Taxpayer's Revolt and the South Quincy Civic Association have dispatched a "thank you" note to Councillor John J. Quinn, the finance committee chairman.

The note of thanks to Quinn, signed by James J. Vey of the QCA, Timothy P. Cardwell of the QTR and Pat DiStefano of the SQCA, said:

"As representatives of Quincy civic organizations, we should like to thank you for the splendid job you have done in your capacity as chairman of this year's critical budget hearings for our city.

"Your goal of making this year "The People's Budget' became a reality every Saturday at City Hall when we put forth numerous questions on every department.

"Never once did you or your colleagues fail to answer a single question.

"We have attended every session and join in our appreciation that we were afforded this unique opportunity.

"While we may disagree on many matters, we all agree that you have conducted these hearings with rare dignity and sincere concern."

MBTA Opponents Seek 20,000 Petition Names

"every community organization".

The association's 15-member Board of Directors is also conducting a house-to-house campaign against the proposed MBTA station.

"Our goal is to get 20,000 signatures or more to present at the public hearing April 26," said DiStefano.

DiStefano said the association also plans to distribute more than 5,000 flyers the week before the public hearing urging Quincy residents to attend the hearing and speak or record themselves in opposition to the South Quincy site.

"This is not just a South Quincy issue," said DiStefano. "This is a city-wide issue affecting everyone in the entire city.

"A station at South Quincy is not necessary. There is no financial need for it or benefit from it."

DiStefano said the MBTA deficit assessment would be unfair to Quincy.

"Quincy's share of the deficit would be larger with a station in South Quincy because the deficit is assessed on a commuter head count," he said.

He said also that his association is looking into the possibility that the South Quincy site may be a wetlands violation.

DiStefano said his association also opposes the proposed "dead-ending" of Penn and Centre Sts.

"We reject this idea," he said. "It would cause traffic jams on Water St. and Independence Ave. Access ramps would force motorists to enter the MBTA station either from the Expressway or the new Upland Rd extension. If they dead-end Penn St. and Centre St., this would create insurmountable traffic problems by vehicles attempting to get to Braintree."

DiStefano said there is strong opposition to placing the MBTA station in South Quincy or North Braintree and strong support for locating it in South Braintree.

"A station in South Braintree would meet the approval of the vast majority of residents and local officials," he noted. "Why can't it be located there? Why should we let them stuff the South Quincy site down our throats?"

The City Council is on record opposing another MBTA station in any part of Quincy.

A lull before the storm has settled over City Hall. Nobody is talking about the upcoming city elections, at least they are not saying anything for publication.

Meanwhile, the Speculation Corps is forecasting a Hannon-LaRaia contest for mayor. And they say that Councillor-at-large John Quinn of Wollaston is out of the running for mayor. Instead, he'll seek re-election to the council.

WORD FROM North Quincy is that there may be another hat in the Ward 4 council ring. Peter Cappola of Montclair, active in neighborhood PTA and civic associations, is being mentioned as a candidate to face off against incumbent Vincent Smyth and Atty. Dennis Harrington, runner-up for council in 1971.

WHILE OTHER CANDIDATES for city office are waiting for nomination papers to be issued in May before they officially begin their campaigns, John Lydon of Wollaston, candidate for Ward 5 councillor, already has his campaign in first gear. Black, red and white "Lydon" bumper stickers have appeared this week in Wollaston, with the first campaign sign of the season on Quarry St.

THE BILL INTRODUCED by QHS Student Council President Ronald Iacobucci to make it easier to have voter registration at schools, made it over its first hurdle last week as it was passed by the state Senate. Two days before the upper chamber had rejected the proposal, but on a reconsideration pushed by Senator Arthur Tobin, of Quincy, the bill passed. It's now in the House to be voted on.

Incidentally, the three students who originally testified in favor of the bill before the Elections Committee, Linda DiSalvio, Lee Wardle and Ronald Iacobucci, recently appeared on Channel 2's Reporters.

WASHINGTON — Watergate conspirator James McCord has alleged that pressure was brought on the Watergate defendants to plead guilty and, thereby, to keep the details of the scandal out of the court record. He also named higher-ups whom he claimed had advance knowledge of the Watergate break-in and bugging. His charges have brought howls of denial from the White House.

I happened to be at the Arlington Towers, where the Watergate defendants were holding their secret strategy sessions just before Christmas. I was waiting in a nearby room for one of the Watergate figures to report the latest developments to me.

After the session broke up, my informant slipped into my room and reported that powerful pressure had been brought on the defendants to plead guilty. He said E. Howard Hunt, the Watergate ringleader, had made the pitch. Hunt promised that their families would receive $1,000 a month while they were in prison and implied an early pardon would be arranged. My informant said Hunt had a charismatic influence over the other defendants. Most had worked under him during the Bay of Pigs plotting.

We wrote a story, which was published on December 26th, about the pressure and the $1,000-a-month offer. But we held back the other details to protect my source. We are now free to tell more about the incident, although we still cannot reveal the source. But the incident strongly suggests that McCord is telling the truth.

White House sources also told us months ago that presidential aides John Dean and Jeb Magruder were far more deeply implicated in the Watergate affair than they were admitting. These are the same higher-ups whom McCord has now named.

We don't pretend to know the whole Watergate story and have been able to put together only some of the jigsaw pieces. But the way to get the truth is for President Nixon to cooperate with the Senate, not to obstruct its investigation.

Deep Concern

We reported on June 12, 1969, that the Kremlin was seriously considering a preventive attack on China. The story was confirmed two months later by CIA Director Richard Helms, who told newsmen about the danger during a deep background session. Since we didn't attend the background session, we are free to reveal that Helms was the man who confirmed the story.

The Kremlin wanted to knock out China's nuclear works before China developed nuclear missiles that could menace Russia. The Central Intelligence Agency now believes it's too late for Russia to consider a preventive attack. China now has an estimated four dozen nuclear-tipped missiles deployed against Soviet cities, including Moscow itself.

The CIA has no doubt that Russia would win a nuclear war with China. But the CIA believes the price would be too high. It almost surely would cost Russia most of her great cities. Most intelligence experts agree with the CIA.

But some of President Nixon's key intelligence advisers inside the National Security Agency still regard a Soviet attack on China as a real possibility. The Soviets now have at least 41 divisions massed along the China border. They are backed by an arsenal of nuclear weapons.

White House sources tell us the President is deeply concerned that the Soviets might strike. He warned Soviet Chairman Leonid Brezhnev in Moscow last year against such an attack. The President is worried that a war between Russia and China would erupt into a world war, with horrible nuclear devastation. Even a nuclear exchange between Russia and China, alone, would endanger the United States. For the United States is downwind from Asia. The wind currents would carry the nuclear fall-out directly over this country.

Thus, President Nixon, once the implacable foe of both Communist giants, is now in the curious role of trying to keep peace between them.

Still There

The withdrawal of American military forces from South Vietnam definitely does not mean the United States is abandoning the Saigon regime or pulling out of Southeast Asia. The military command has simply been transferred from Saigon to Nakhon Phanom in Thailand, just across the border from Laos.

The command will continue to operate, keeping air and naval forces on the alert, until the peace is stabilized in Indochina.

Meanwhile, the United States will continue to bolster South Vietnam with economic aid. Counting both direct and indirect aid, the American taxpayers will pay between 70 to 90 per cent of the actual cost of running the South Vietnamese government.

The United States will also supply friendly governments in Southeast Asia with all the arms they need to stay in power. Military shipments will be increased to Australia, Cambodia, Indonesia, Laos, Thailand and the Philippines. The strategy will be to furnish arms, but no longer men, to support our allies in Southeast Asia.

President Nixon also intends to maintain American military power in Asia. The 7th Fleet will continue to patrol Asian waters, although it has already been cut back from six to four carriers. A Marine division will also be kept in Okinawa, if permission can be arranged with Japan.

The 7th Air Force will make its headquarters in Thailand as long as Indochina is threatened by Communist forces. The President hopes to reduce this threat by offering economic aid to Hanoi and persuading the North Vietnamese they would be better off developing friendly, peaceful relations with the United States. Thereafter, the 7th Air Force would be pulled back to the Philippines.

A couple of years ago, this powerful American presence in Asia would have upset Peking. But now the Chinese Communists secretly welcome the 7th Fleet and 7th Air Force as a deterrent to the Soviet forces massed on the Chinese border.

She Takes Issue With Dr. Pattavina On Abortion

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Considering his background and position, it is understandable that a local Roman Catholic priest might take issue with the sermon of the Wollaston Congregational minister, as reported in the Quincy Sun. Still, the fact that the Rev. Mr. Martin was positive in outlook and supportive of a Supreme Court decision, should not be overlooked.

But, Dr. Pattavina, as a "Senior Naval Reserve Officer", freely took an oath to uphold the Constitution of the United States. The Supreme Court decision is in accordance with that Constitution. It hardly behooves a commissioned officer to take exception to decisions with which he personally disagrees, and to use such intemperate language ["murder"] in making judgements when he is not a judge. For, his reserve pay comes from U.S. taxpayers of both sexes and all faiths.

A fetus is not a viable human being. Until comparatively recently, there were doctors [usually Roman Catholics] who, rather than perform an "abortion" would close the incision without action or qualm upon discovering an ECTOPIC pregnancy. They did this despite the knowledge that the fatality rate was 100% for the female adult as well as for the fetus.

A new born infant is not a viable person. Every child needs to be lovingly nurtured for at least a dozen years after birth. The problem for us is to quietly make our society a nurturing one, so that females need not choose abortion.

Until that time arrives, however, every decent citizen of the United States should respect the divine spark of Conscience that dwells in every person. We must learn to trust each woman for her ability to resolve her own destiny in dignity [without epithets], within the framework of a compassionately just law.

Louise Hatch Meservey

He Replies To Fr. McMahon

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I find Rev. McMahon's allusion to "black cloud[s] of shame", "sequestering" of women bearing children out of wedlock, "serious sin", "paying the price", "God's side", "God's country" etc., in his statement on abortion however sincere they obviously may be, to be quite obscure and evasive of the abortion dilemma. There is more than "Shame, Remorse and Guilt" [pro-abortion] vs. God's Right [anti-abortion] to the discussion as expressed in this religious rebuttal. There is the very real and agonizing burden of personal responsibility in the fuller sense.

The essential reality and dilemma of the human condition is that we as individuals and social members are left with whatever values we have inherited, assimilated or developed on our own to define what is good, right, just, humane and responsible. Nowhere these definitions of value more difficult to formulate than in the question of abortion. The decision of what right-to-life takes precedence [or even exists at all] that of the born or unborn has always been morally left to the individual.

With the Supreme Court decision the exercise of that moral right and responsibility has been given legal approval. Unfortunately we do not live in a society humane enough in all cases to care for children who either cannot be cared for by their biological parents or are for one reason or another unwanted [many would not abandon a child to the mercy of the institutionalism and variance of our society] or reasonable enough to provide birth control methods and information to all, particularly the young. Safe and effective birth control seems to be the only uncomplicated deliverance from the moral malaise.

The issues involved are extremely complex and agonizing both emotionally and intellectually, especially for those like myself who have seen the process of growth begun at conception realized in the person of a child. I would have to say that abortion is at least [or most] the termination of that potential. The validity of that termination is dependent upon the individual's assessment and exercise of responsibility philosophically, emotionally, economically and socially.

I agree with the free exercise granted by the Court's decision and at the same time I hope that this freedom will enable a greater responsibility among individuals and society at large, a responsibility whose elements should contain:

1. The research, development and are of safer and more effective birth control methods, and in particularly the availability of this information to the young.

2. The careful and thorough consideration of both pro and con arguments and all possible alternatives, including the availability of comprehensive medical and psychiatric counsel in the community when the abortion dilemma becomes an immediate crisis for the individual. This position while much less god-fearing is far more humane.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Massachusetts gas, electric and telephone users will be better equipped to deal with proposed rate increases if 11 bills filed jointly by the Consumer Protection Division and the Consumers' Council are enacted.

Sponsored by Rep. Robert Ambler [D-Weymouth] the bills have a double purpose. First, they will guarantee that the public is represented at all rate increase hearings before the Department of Public Utilities by the attorney general, the Consumers' Council and other official intervenors.

In addition, all costs involved in getting the consumers' position into the rate hearing records would have to be borne by the companies.

Second, these bills would provide the state Public Utility Commissioners with the facts and figures needed to assure that their decisions in rate increase cases serve the best interest of the consuming public.

The Department of Public Utilities' lack of information concerning the companies' efficiency cost of service by class users; cost of new capital; and the quality of service provided customers has made regulation of gas, electric and telephone companies one-sided.

Two separate bills require that the attorney general and the Consumers' Council be officially notified when rate increase applications are filed and that well-advertised public hearings are conducted.

Massachusetts consumers should be given "equal time" in all rate-increase proceedings–they pay the bills.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

Problem Of Male Inadequacy

Male impotency has long been the dread of men and the bane of women. The condition is seemingly on the increase. Impotency is the inability of a man to function sexually ... through lack of desire ... the inability to have erection ... premature ejaculation ... the inability to climax. Most men experience some form of inadequacy from time to time ... some men most of the time. Some estimate that half the men in civilized society are impotent. In some states (Massachusetts included) it is a ground for divorce.

Impotency depresses men ... causes men to worry ... to brag about their sexual powers (which do not or never did exist) ... causes them to show irritation over small things ... causes them to lose faith in themselves ... heightens the fear of failure sexually and in other ways. Good sexual functioning is necessary to good emotional and physical health ... don't let anyone tell you otherwise. All this complicated sexual apparatus is not built into the human being solely for reproduction. Good sex bathes the whole personality in fulfilling power. Sexual adequacy is important to being a full person.

What are the causes of male inadequacy? There are many. One is POOR ATTITUDE TOWARD SEX. Usually this comes out of early life. The domineering mother ... the overly strict father ... the over-emphasis upon sex ... the message spoken or unspoken that sex is dirty ... all lead to adult male impotency.

Denny's problem started when he was 9 with a little girl playmate. His mother "caught" them half undressed exploring each other's bodies. The mother was irate... slapped the little girl and shouted ... "You little witch ... you've corrupted my beautiful son ... go home immediately." Then she turned on the little boy ... beat him 'til his buttocks were bruised and bleeding ... shouting ... "I'll teach you to lower your pants ... you dirty little rascal" (she used stronger words that we can't print). Now do you wonder that Denny is sexually inadequate at 26 ... and just can't make it with girls? He got his mother's message ... loud and clear ... "Sex is dirty."

A second cause of male inadequacy is WORRY AND ANXIETY ... about almost anything. In our times large segments of our men are carrying responsibilities that are too heavy. Their energies are sapped ... their minds are preoccupied (and not about sex). They have deadlines to meet ... notes falling due at the banks without money to meet them ... fear of loss of job ... the worry of losing one's health. All these and more ... cause men to be sexually inadequate.

A third cause is the EMASCULATION of wives. More and more wives are putting themselves in competing positions with their husbands ... taking over the leadership of the family and putting down a husband who will not fight her for his rightful place. She handles the money ... disciplines the children ... plans the trips ... buys his clothes ... tells him when and how he may have sexual relationship with her. Hardly the ways a man gets turned on. Little wonder some men don't want to go home ... little wonder the angry responses of fists thrust through doors and tires screeching as a man takes off into the night. Wives who don't act like women cause male inadequacy ... at least with them.

The cure ... you can plainly see depends upon the cause. This is why in counseling and group therapy we seek first to find the cause of impotency ... attitude toward sex ... worry ... emasculation ... his own resentment or feelings of incompetency. Once the cause is found we must proceed to diminish its strangle-hold on its victim. The brain is the main sex organ ... therefore the cure has to come by way of REASON ... THINKING ... ANALYZING ... REACHING CONCLUSIONS. Once we get a healthy attitude toward sex ... and sexuality ... we can usually adjust the behavior to satisfactory sexual response.

For your comments ... For Group Therapy ... For Private Counseling, you may write Dr. Knox at 628 High Street, Dedham, Mass. or call 326-5990 or 659-7595 or 545-5947.

•Youth Speaks Out

• The National Park Commission wants to make the Dedham Courthouse a national landmark because the Sacco-Venzetti trial was held there. We wonder if that isn't best forgotten.

• All the Raid in the country couldn't clear up the bugs in Washington.

• We have a new slogan from the administration concerning food prices - "Beef with honor".

• John Havlicek was once again by-passed for the league's M.V.P. Over the years he has averaged [each game] 23 pts., seven assists and 10 rebounds. To win the award he'll have to sell coke, inflate the balls and sweep the Garden.

• Not to be outdone by Commissioner Boone who allowed nine murderers to have furloughs from prison, President Nixon commuted the sentence of an underworld gangster because of ill health. He was so sick that he's back running his operation and making millions.

• I wonder if we'll hear from the Women's Lib movement about the ban on meat being alled a BOYcott.

Sterling Junior French Club Whips Up soupe a l' oignon, coq au vin salade verte For 104 Guests

The Sterling Junior High School French Club recently held its annual Mardi Gras dinner for 104 parents, students and guest in the school cafeteria.

The menu included soupe a l'oignon, coq au vin, salade verte and peche Melba - which any student in Madame Deborah Higgins' French class will immediately recognize as onion soup, chicken in wine, green salad and ice cream with peaches and rasberry sauce.

In fact, Mme. Higgins herself supervised the meal, which was cooked and served by members of her French Club.

Invited guests included School Supt. and Mrs. Lawrence Creedon, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Swartz, Principal Arnold Rubin, Assistant Principal Fred Whittaker and Guidance Councelor Dana Smith. Swartz is Foreign Language Coordinator at Quincy High School.

After the dinner, parents, students and guests sang French folk songs in the cafeteria which had been decorated with posters of France and a giant cardboard Eiffel Tower.

To Halt Outbreak

North Students Get Measles Shots

By KEN SHINE

On Monday morning, North Quincy High School underwent a vast innoculation of Measles vaccine - not German Measles mind you but the good old regular measles.

The purpose of this innoculation was to stop the spread of measle outbreaks in the northern section of Quincy. Approximately 64 students have already been dismissed, with more calling in daily. The aim of City Health Commissioner Alfred V. Mahoney, is to immunize the entire student enrollment in Quincy. All students over eight will receive the shots.

Approximately 800 students were immunized Monday by the Health Center's core of nurses. They were Dianne Huston, Mary D. Taylor, Joan Doherty and Lucinda Morrissey.

It is recommended that any child who received the Measles vaccine under one year of age, be re-vaccinated against Measles unless he has already had the disease.

IT DOESN'T HURT - Steve Miller manages a smile as Lucinda Morrissey, Health Department Nurse, gives him measles innoculation at North Quincy High School.

A Dismal Day But-

Senior Class Raises $500 At Rummage

By JACKIE BANGS

Saturday, March 31st may have been a dismal, rainy day to some, but for the Senior class at NQHS it was quite a successful one.

After a full month of planning and collecting for the rummage sale held that morning and afternoon, their efforts finally came to fruition. They made a clear profit of $500.

From 10 a.m. to almost 4 p.m. a steady stream of bargain-hunters visited the N.Q.H.S. gym that offered everything from clothes, household items, jewelry, odds and ends to coffee and baked goods for those disappointed bargain-hunters.

Included in the day's events was also an old-fashioned jelly bean guessing game and a raffle. The raffle included as it's top prize an antique rocking chair that was refinished in school colors by Mrs. Joan Gillespie and her daughter Dawne. Second prize was a cake decorated in the shape of Raggedy Ann done by Mrs. Helen Chiampa. Third prize was a bottle of aged brandy. To the delight of all the rocking chair was won by young Danny Marster, age 8, the cake by Susan Mader and the brandy by Charles Ripley.

Special thanks go to senior class advisors, Mrs. Sadof and Mr. Verrenis, Dawne Gillespie, chairman of the sale, parents Beverly Riley, Terry Phelan, Ann Doherty, Rose Marsters, Arthur Morrissey, Joan Gillespie, students Chris Carroll, Don Cameron, David Poutree, Mark Hemphill, Dave Barry, Dave Ashmanskas, Peter Belotti, Ruthie Mewis, Katie O'Hare, Joanne Arcana, Joan Day, Laura Twomey, Elaine Veasy, Jeanne Berlinguet, Andrea Quinn, Marina Fredrico, Mary Puleo, Leslie Runge, Susan Stamos and finally the custodians.

The money will fund a number of senior scholarships and in particular the Penny Petrakos Scholarship.

'Julie Of The Wolves' Newberry Medal Winner

In 1744 John Newbery, an Englishman, published a book especially for children titled "A Little Pretty Pocketbook" and sold it in his shop, The Bible and Sun.

Almost 200 years later in 1922 the first John Newbery Medal was awarded to Hendrik Van Loon, the author of the most distinguished contribution to American literature for children. Each year for the past 50 years this medal has been awarded to an author in honor of John Newbery who is often called the father of children's literature.

This year the winner is Jean Craighead George for JULIE OF THE WOLVES [Harper, $4.95], a story of courage, survival, and a changing way of life. The story takes place on the Alaskan tundra where Julie, a 13-year old Eskimo girl, is fleeing from a prearranged marriage. Her plan is to walk from Point Barrow to Point Hope to catch a ship for San Francisco.

But the journey is far from simple, and Julie discovers that to survive she must become a member of a wolf pack. Calling upon all her Eskimo skills Julie courts the pack, and using her resourcefulness and intelligence she is able to survive. The author writes eloquently of life in the natural world, the nobility of the wolves, the strength of the heroine, and she creates a believable picture of the Eskimos changing way of life under the white man's influence.

The author of MY SIDE OF THE MOUNTAIN has written another outstanding novel for young people, rich in natural detail, inspiring and exciting in its message of survival.

The Newbery Honor Books are: THE WITCHES OF WORM by Zilpha Snyder, about a young girl who suspects her cat is compelling her to do strange and wicked deeds; FROG AND TOAD TOGETHER by Arnold Lobel, more wise tales about two friends; and THE UPSTAIRS ROOM by Johanna Reiss, a true account of two sisters forced to go into hiding during the Nazi occupation of Holland.

The lively and humorous pictures of Randolph Caldecott appeared in in children's books during the 19th century and began a tradition of picture books for children. As printing methods improved artistic techniques became more varied and exciting, and in 1938 The Caldecott Medal was first awarded. Named in honor of Randolph Caldecott the medal is presented to the artist of the most distinguished American picture book for children.

Blair Lent, several times a runner-up for the Caldecott Medal, has won it this year for his illustrations in THE FUNNY LITTLE WOMAN [Dutton, $5.95] retold by Arlene Mosel. In this Japanese folk tale a funny little woman who likes to laugh and likes to make rice dumplings pursues a dumpling down into the underground world of the wicked oni.

The funny little woman cooks for these monstrous creatures until, at last, she is able to escape. The artist captures the suspense and the humor of the story with the muted eerie tones of the underworld and the strong life-like colors of the world above. The oni are fearsome with fangs and three eyes just as the little woman is sprightly and amusing. The illustrations are imaginative and creative in this tale to look at, to listen to, and to read.

The Caldecott Honor Books are: HOSIE'S ALPHABET illustrated by Leonard Baskin, an alphabet of creatures luminously drawn especially for the artist's three year old son; WHEN CLAY SINGS illustrated by Tom Bahti, a poetic recreation of the past as revealed by fragments of prehistoric Indian pottery; and SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS illustrated by Nancy Burkert in which a series of paintings captures the magic and moods of a familiar tale by the Brothers Grimm.

April Fools Day, Washington Style

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

April Fools Day was last Sunday and I'm sure we all remember the old rhyme:

"April Fools is gone and past
And you're the biggest fool at last."

Apparently, for our administrative officials in Washington, every day is April Fools Day. Secretary of Agriculture Butz put it quite succinctly when he recently stated that anyone favoring controls on food prices was a fool.

He also said that it was about time that his farmers got theirs. Now, to put these remarks in their proper context, it's important to understand exactly who "his farmers" really are.

Please divorce yourself from that romantic picture of the traditional agrarian; the lean, weatherbeaten, sower of seeds who eekes out his precarious existence, tilling his rocky patch of ground from dawn to dusk; constantly fearful that the bank will foreclose on his mortgage and his family will starve. There are some farmers like this and apparently this is the image Mr. Butz would have us accept.

However, these are not "his farmers". "His farmers" are, in reality, not farmers at all. They are businessmen in the business of growing foods for sale and profit.

They are business men who, on 20% of the cultivated land in the United States grow 80% of the produce. They are businessmen who receive the bulk of the enormous farm subsidies extracted from our tax dollar.

They are businessmen who receive annually, from our federal government, "welfare" payments in a magnitude which would make the so-called welfare chiseler turn green with envy, if perchance he could even conceive of such sums. These are Mr. Butz's farmers and believe me, they are getting theirs.

So what does this mean to the senior citizen living on a fixed income? It means just this: if Secretary Butz and "his farmers" have their way, you will pay more to buy less, eat less, and have fewer of the small comforts you have been enjoying. It may well mean, for many, an inability to maintain a diet of proper nutritional content, resulting in malnutrition, illness and even premature death.

And let me make this perfectly clear, an expression I'm sure you're all familiar with, do not expect any significant relief from Washington officialdom. They have made it perfectly clear that payoffs to special interests are considered good economics while assistance to the elderly is considered inflationary.

And don't be misled by the so-called "ceiling" recently placed upon the price of meat. This only tells Mr. Butz and "his farmers" that while they may continue to keep one hand in your pocketbook they can't use both. It means that if your meat diet has been reduced to hamburg and hot dogs, you will still be able to buy them. However, don't whet your appetite for a steak or a chop, they will continue to be a fond memory of days gone by.

Are you concerned? You should be. Is there anything you, as an individual, can do? Yes there is.

First, recognize that in numbers there is strength and that today, senior citizens constitute a significant segment of the population. Recognize that your elected representatives in Washington are receptive to your needs; are your friends and welcome communication from you.

Those of you who belong to senior citizen organizations, develop a concerted letter writing campaign. Write to Senators Brooke and Kennedy and to Congressman Burke. Let them know how you feel about food prices. They are on your side and will welcome your support.

Spread the word to your friends who do not belong to formal organizations; enlist their help. Their letters are vital. Write to your friends in other towns and cities within Massachusetts and in other states. Tell them what you are doing and ask them to do likewise.

Organize and communicate. Demand that all food prices be rolled back to at least a December 1972 level.

90 Years Young

Charles McGarry Re-appointed To Council On Aging Board

Charles H. McGarry of 11 Snug Harbor Court, who recently celebrated his 90th birthday, has been reappointed to a three year term as a member of the Board of Directors, Quincy Council on Aging.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, in making the appointment, commented: "It is a distinct pleasure to be able to reappoint this truly remarkable man. He has dedicated many years of his life to the welfare of the senior citizens of our community."

In addition to his continuing involvement with the Council on Aging, Mr. McGarry is also active in the Germantown Senior Citizens Club and the Quincy Center Senior Citizens Club. He also participated in the founding of the Quincy Community Action Organization.

Words Of Praise For Lunch Program

"Every once in a while we get a pleasant surprise," said Putnam S. Borden, executive director of the Council on Aging, and just recently we did receive one.

"A letter arrived from Fred DePaulo, a resident of Pagnano Towers, commending our Hot Lunch Program staff. If I may I would like to quote a couple of passages.

Mr. DePaulo writes:

"Dear Mrs. Pearson:

"I think it is about time I commended you for the nice luncheons you put on at the Martensen St. project. I also think that we all should give you a big vote of thanks. You and your helpers must work very hard preparing food...."

"Mr. DePaulo's letter continues but I think this covers the substance of his comments. I might add that Mrs. Pearson, Mrs. Fisher, Mrs. Long and Mr. Christian really appreciate comments from those enjoying the lunches, as do I."

Borden urges all senior citizens to try this program. For information he suggests calling the Council on Aging office.

Quincy, South Shore Realtors Report $12,549,266 MLS Sales

A total of 14,703 residential properties were sold through Multiple Listing Service [MLS] in 1972.

This generated a sales volume of $419,341,278. MLS had a sales volume of $321,370,837 in 1971, based on 12,225 home sales.

Realtor Gerald C. Melanson, Chairman of the Multiple Listing Service of the Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors, noted that the cooperative efforts of realtors in this area resulted in a sales volume of $12,549,266 last year. This represents an increase in sales activity as compared with 1971.

The average sales price of residential properties in the state rose from $26,505 in 1971 to $28,521 in 1972, Melanson said.

It is important to note, said Melanson, that the major portion of this increase in the average sales price of residential properties state-wide occured during the first half of the year and that the average sales price remained relatively stable during the third and fourth quarters of 1972.

Melanson said all present economic indicators point to the continued rapid growth of MLS sales in Massachusetts in 1973.

Federal Rent Controls Seen Curtailing New Housing Construction

Spokesmen for the rental housing industry in Massachusetts recently presented testimony before the House Committee on Banking and Currency, in Washington, claiming that the imposition of federal rent controls would result in a sharp curtailment of new housing construction and deterioration in the quality of available housing.

A statement prepared by President Robert E. Page of the Rental Housing Association was presented to the congressional committee by Eliot Jacobson of Newton and David Taylor of Hingham, both executives of the trade organization, a division of the Greater Boston Real Estate Board.

Page warned that experience with rent control in four Massachusetts communities showed that government attempts to regulate rents had two major negative effects: the discouragement of privately financed new housing construction and the abandonment of older, but structurally sound buildings by owners whose expenses outstripped their income.

The real estate executive noted that since rent control went into effect in Boston, Brookline, Cambridge and Somerville the construction of new rental housing slumped by 50 per cent while "new construction in the Commonwealth's non-controlled cities and towns flourished, collectively recording a 60 per cent increase."

"These are not happenstance statistics," Page said. "They accurately reflect the attitude of the major lending institutions in the Commonwealth who regard the risks of mortgage financing for housing projects in communities with rent controls as unacceptably high. This policy of withdrawing investment capital from rent controlled areas was publicly confirmed last December by one of the state's top lending officers, Robert S. Swain Jr., senior vice president for real estate and construction of the New England Merchants National Bank."

Tullio & Sons Wins Nationwide Prize For Remodelling Of Holbrook Church

Tullio and Sons Manufacturing Co., a Quincy home improvement firm, has won the grand prize in a nationwide contest sponsored by Bird & Son, Inc., for its remodelling work on St. Joseph's Church in Holbrook.

The principals in the firm, Vice President John S. DiTullio and General Manager Robert [Dan] Kennedy, and their wives win an expense paid week in Bermuda and St. Joseph's wins a cash award.

Tullio and Sons, located at 170 Washington St., was founded in the 1950's by John DiTullio Sr., who left the auto repair business and joined with his son in the manufacture of storm windows and doors and awnings.

The elder DiTullio still comes to the shop on a regular basis. His wife is general bookkeeper and another son, Robert, is the accountant. Kennedy joined the firm in 1957 and became a partner in 1969.

GRAND PRIZE winners in nationwide contest are General Manager Robert [Dan] Kennedy and Vice-president John S. DiTullio of Tullio & Sons Manufacturing Company, of Quincy.

The prize-winning work on St. Joseph's Church took Tullio and Sons the better part of a year from first contact to application of nearly 100 squares of Bird Solid Vinyl siding. The entry also won the monthly prize in July.

The nationwide contest has been sponsored by Bird & Son for the past three years. Nearly 350 home improvement contractors have been cited for quality workmanship in that time.

Primary concern of the contest, which is called "Best Dressed Homes Wear Bird", is to encourage homeowners to maintain and update their homes by rewarding the contractors who show the most skill and ingenuity.

Homeowners are encouraged to submit their homes in the campaign and receive a Better Homes & Gardens Cookbook with hundreds of America's favorite recipes, simply for entering.

24.6 Point Average

Bradley Again Leads ENC Scorers

Ron Bradley, who could probably play on any college team in the country, again led the Eastern Nazarene College basketball scorers this year with an average of 24.6 points a game.

He hit on 41.3 percent of his field goal tries and led the team with a 76.8 average from the foul line.

Bradley, who was drafted a year ago by the New York Nets of the ABA and has his sights set on a pro career, also grabbed 197 rebounds for a 6.5 game average and averaged nine assists a game.

Dave Eads was second in scoring with 16.7 points a game, followed by Don Constantine who, like Bradley, is a former North Quincy High star, who had a 10.2 average.

Recruitment will be a key issue for Coach Jim Smith next year as he loses standouts Bradley, Constantine, Eads, Steve Shoff and Ray Shannon. Only three players who saw much action will be returning: Rick Reyenger, 6-7 former Quincy High star, who averaged 13 rebounds a game this year as well as scoring 9.9 points a game; 6-6 Howie Briggs and six-foot Gerry Whetstone. Also returning will be Reggie Henley of Hingham, Bob O'Shea and Don Kinder. Henley is a sophomore, the other two promising freshmen.

Dee Dee's Shuts Out NQPB, Nardone Squeezes By Hannon

Goalie Brian O'Hanley backstopped Dee Dee's to a 3-0 victory over the North Quincy Professional Building March 30 in Squirt House League action at Hingham Arena.

John Lyons, with a goal and an assist, and Tommy Doherty and Rick Penzo with goals, showed the way for Dee Dee's.

Kevin Ryan, Tony Chiochio, Kevin Gallo and Joe McKenna had assists.

It was the third straight game in which the NQPB had been shut out.

League-leading Nardone Aluminum recovered from its only loss of the season to squeeze by Hannon Tire, 3-2, on two goals by Dennis Harrington and a single tally by Brian Sullivan.

Willie Dudley had three assists.

The victory brought Nardone's record to 14 wins, one loss and one tie. The loss and the tie came against Dee Dee's.

Dave Noonan Scores 2 But Midget B's Bow

Dave Noonan got two goals, his 17th and 18th of the season, March 30 but it wasn't enough as the Quincy Midget "B" team bowed to Abington, 5-4, in an Alamo Hockey League game at Hingham Arena.

Quincy led for most of the game only to suffer several costly penalties in the third period when Abington tallied the tying and winning goals.

Mike McAuley and Bud Pisterino got the other Quincy goals with assists going to McAuley [two], Fred Murray, Tim Pyne and Gary Delorio.

Rich Wilson and Mark Fanning starred in the Quincy nets despite the loss.

Quincy's league record is now 22 wins, eight losses and two ties. Overall they are 35-16-3.

The Midgets meet Scituate Saturday [April 7] at 10:45 p.m. on Rink A.

The Crease Curse

Bantam B's Bow In Tourney On Disputed Goal

When is a goal not a goal?

Answer: When the referee rules that someone was in the crease.

The Quincy Bantam "B" team learned that lesson in the hardest possible way Sunday as they bowed to host Natick, 4-3, in the semi-finals of the Natick Invitational Tournament.

With seven seconds left and goalie Jeff Nord pulled for a sixth skater, Quincy scored what was apparently the tying goal only to have the referee rule that a Quincy player was in the crease at the time.

The "goal" was scored by John Chiavaroli.

Quincy led 1-0 early in the game on a goal by Jimmy Shea, assisted by Dennis Bertoni and Mike Smith, only to have Natick tie up the game and go ahead, 2-1.

Bertoni tied it up for Quincy, with assists to Smith and Shea, but Natick went back into the lead and added another goal for a 4-2 advantage late in the game.

Larry Calley, assisted by Dave Perdios, closed the margin to 4-3 with a minute and 27 seconds left to play but, even with goalie Nord pulled with 22 seconds left, Quincy was unable to knot the count – officially, at least.

Quincy got into the semi-finals despite an opening round loss to Hudson, on the strength of Saturday victories over Brockton and Weymouth.

They rolled over Brockton, 10-1, Saturday morning, as Dave Perdios collected four goals and an assist and Joe McConville got two goals and three assists.

Dennis Bertoni scored twice and Rich Carnali and Matt Dillon once each for Quincy. Assists went to Dave Previte [3], Richie Troy [2], Frankie Penzo, Jimmy Shea and Paul Higgins.

Dave Perdios got a goal and two assists and Mike Smith got three assists as Quincy dumped Weymouth, 5-1, Saturday night, knocking the Weymouth club out of the tournament.

John Chiavaroli, Joe McConville, Richie Troy and Dennis Bertoni got the other goals while Frankie Penzo was credited with an assist.

Jimmy Shea got the only Quincy goal and Jackie Cronin the assist in a 7-1 loss to Hudson Friday night.

The Quincy Bantams return to the Alamo Hockey League wars Friday [April 6] against Hull at 10 p.m. on Rink C, Hingham Arena.

Pee Wee A's Belt Scituate, Columbia

The Quincy Pee Wee "A" team regained the winning path with a vengeance last week with a pair of resounding Alamo Hockey League victories – 10-3 over Scituate and 7-0 over Columbia.

Quincy had lost for the first time after seven straight wins, 3-2, to Falmouth the week before.

Mark Giortani had two goals and two assists and Brian Bertoni two goals and a single assist March 28 in the rout of Scituate. Bobby Hayes had a goal and a pair of assists.

Other goals were scored by Dave Lewis, Ed Kane, Brian Jolley, Paul McDermott and Jim Fitzpatrick with assists going to Jim Triglia, John Kelley, John Norton and Leo Doyle.

Brian Bertoni and Mark Giortani had two goals each and Jim Triglia had three assists Sunday [April 1] in the Columbia win.

Dave Lewis, John Norton and John Kelley also had goals and Neal Sullivan, Jim Fitzpatrick, Bobby Hayes and Ed Kane got assists.

Quincy plays Brockton Sunday [April 8] at 1 p.m. on Rink C, Hingham Arena.

Stevens, Craig Pace Mite A's To Win

Richie Stevens had three goals and two assists and Kevin Craig two goals and two assists in leading the Quincy Mite "A" team to a 9-4 victory over Avon Sunday in a Bay Colony Hockey Association game at Hingham Arena.

Paul McCabe had a pair of goals and Timmy Ryan and Tommy Murphy one each.

Assists were awarded to Mike McNiece, Kevin Chase, Richie Durham, Johnny Cummings, Mark Tenney and Richie Milano.

Kevin Duff, Chris Gorman, Kevin Chase and Richie Durham stood out on defense.

Quincy closes out its league season next Sunday [April 8] against Hanover at 12:15 p.m. on Rink B.

Ring Of Truth

The letter began, as hundreds do, "Dear Abby: I am one of those foolish wives who insisted my husband wear his wedding ring at all times.... Yesterday, while jumping off a construction truck, he caught his ring on a piece of metal and his finger was practically torn off. He was lucky he wasn't killed as he lost his balance and fell under the truck wheels.

"Abby, please put this in your column as a warning to other women who want their husbands to wear rings to work."

This letter to columnist Abigail Van Buren could be written hundreds of times a year by other wives whose husbands were injured wearing rings around electricity, machinery and equipment.

Sentimentality is a nice thing, but it should be tempered with discretion in situations where it can be the unwitting cause of injury.

The tourney opens on a rink called Skate 3 April 16 with 112 teams with rosters of 2,240 boys in squirt, peewee, bantam and midget classes from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Squirts will play their elimination rounds April 16 and midgets on April 19 with the semi-finals in all divisions on April 20. Championship games April 21 will be televised in color over Channel 2, Boston.

Squirt A's Really Won

The Quincy Squirt "A" team's winning streak didn't really end at nine games after all.

Actually, Quincy won by a score of 5-4, for their 10th consecutive Bay Colony Hockey Association victory.

Marshall Seeks Insurance Benefits For Retired

Rep. Clifford H. Marshall [D-Quincy] has urged Mayor Hannon to examine the possibility of providing $2,000 group life insurance and $2,000 group accidental death insurance for retired employees of the city of Quincy.

He pointed out that permissive legislation, passed in 1972, needs only acceptance by the City Council to be effective.

Investigation by the mayor, said Marshall, "will show a very minimal cost to former and present employees and to the city of Quincy compared to the extra insurance coverage that this act will provide."

Acceptance of the act, he added, "would give retirees far better coverage for hospital, surgical and medical health insurance."

Local 5 Members Vote To Increase Pension Benefits

Members of Shipbuilders' Local 5 have voted supplements to their pension plan that will cost each member an additional five cents an hour.

The vote, taken Saturday [March 31], was 616 to 47.

In other changes:

Eligibility for vested pension rights was reduced to 10 years of continuous service with no age qualifications. Previously the worker had to be 45 with 15 years service to receive a pension at 65.

Eligibility to hold pension rights during layoff was extended to 30 months. Previously it was 18 months for employees with less than six years service and 24 months for employees with six to 11 years service.

The pension changes were made retroactive to include all workers now on layoff.

South West Africa Bishop-In-Exile To Speak April 11 At St. Chrysostrom's

Rt. Rev. Colin O'Brien Winter, Angelican bishop-in-exile of South West Africa [Namibia] will speak at St. Chrysostom's Church, Wollaston, April 11 at 8 p.m.

Bishop Winter will discuss the apartheid issue and its effects on black and white Christians.

This will be the third lecture in a Lenten series of "sharing faith on the intellectual, social and missionary level."

Bishop Winter is the seventh Bishop of Damaraland. Born and educated in England, he served parishes in South Africa where four of his five children were born, before going to the country of Namibia [South West Africa] where he was Dean of the Cathedral in Windhoek.

Since 1968, he has been Bishop of the Diocese of Damaraland which includes the whole of Namibia.

BISHOP WINTER

Early in 1972, Bishop Winter was deported [as was his predecessor, Bishop Mize] from South West Africa by the government under an "undesirables" proclamation. [South Africa has also deported two Bishops and over 85 priests have been expelled]. Though the government gave no official reason for this action, it was undoubtedly due to the Bishop's stand against apartheid and more specifically to his defense in December 1971 of Black Africans striking against the contract migrant-labor system. Bishop Winter is completely committed to pacifism, but he fears that the South African government policy of racial separation is leading the country toward violence.

Bishop Winter has received a mandate from his diocesan synod to continue as Bishop-in-Exile for two years and is managing the affairs of the Diocese from a small office in London. He is also busy making trips to the Continent and to the States in attempts to arouse interest and to elicit support for victims of apartheid.

On The Screen

By Vincent Puleo

CLINT EASTWOOD found stardom in Italy, CHARLES BRONSON his ticket to the good life in France, and for former character actor BRUCE LEE Hong Kong has proven to be his Shangra-Lai... The number one box office attraction in the Orient today is new superstar BRUCE LEE. Less than a year ago LEE was receiving a paltry $10,000 per flick. Today he commands upwards of $300,000 per assignment...

BRUCE LEE'S skyrocketing fan appeal rests upon the shoulders of the Kung-Fu film fad which is sweeping the Orient, the Mid East and now even Europe... For the uninitiated Kung-Fu is the Chinese reply to the Spaghetti Westerns; the magical Karate ingredient which spells explosive violence on the screen, and is the biggest thing to hit the Orient since the Boxer Rebellion...

Three years ago the SHAW Brothers set up shop in Hong Kong and signed BRUCE LEE as the star of such Kung-Fu fare as "BIG BOSS", "FIST OF FURY", and "THE INVINCIBLE BOXER". Grinding them out at a $40,000 per film, six week clip, it wasn't too long before the SHAW Brothers and BRUCE LEE were on the gold-lined way to fame and fortune... And for LEE his new found success is the even more gratifying, considering he was ticketed out of Hollywood many years ago as a washed up has-been... Ironically so it was in the careers of EASTWOOD and BRONSON not too long ago... Today every major studio in Tinseltown is pawing after BRUCE LEE'S signature, Filmdom's newest superstar...

CHERI CAFFARO, Women Lib's sexsationally curvaceous rebuttal to James Bond, breaks loose on the nation's screens Memorial Day in the no-holds-barred "GIRLS ARE FOR LOVING"... Judge JOEL TYLER, the New York magistrate responsible for giving "DEEP THROAT" the boot, espousing the virtues of "CRIES AND WHISPERS": "now, that was with redeeming social value. It was so moving I came out shaking. There was sex in it but it was a part of life"...

SARAH MILES, starring in "LADY CAROLINE LAMB", is spontaneous, totally impulsive, enchanting and intriguing in the title role of Lady Caroline, the married woman who has an "affair"... Last seen in the film "RYAN'S DAUGHTER" for which she won an Academy Award nomination and glowing reviews, Miss MILES is one of a select handful of actresses who can portray "any" role because of their total commitment to the character...

Written and directed by ROBERT BOLT, "LADY CAROLINE LAMB" is one of the big pluses of the new cinema year. A picture one is immediately drawn to...a picture to savor again, and again... If Miss MILES [The Mrs. SARAH BOLT in real life] had difficulty with her role, it was in finding the balance in her character... "Lady Caroline is not exactly mad but she could go either way...this is the most demanding part I've ever played. It's not a part you can hide behind either as an actress or as a person. It exposes you...", commented SARAH MILES...

Financial arrangements for "PAPILLON" stars STEVE McQUEEN and DUSTIN HOFFMAN are $2 million and $1.25 million respectively. And the director gets a piece of the action with a guaranteed $750,000... "THE EMIGRANTS" and "SOUNDER" were winners of the 1972 Interreligious Film Awards granted by the National Council of Churches, the Synagogue Council of America, and the U.S. Catholic Conference...

FABIAN FORTE and KAREN BLACK give it one and all in "LITTLE LAURA AND BIG JOHN", leaders of the legendary Ashley Gang which shot its way thru the Southeast during the Prohibition Era... A HUMPHREY BOGART Renaissance is enjoying a heyday in gay Paris. Forty of his films are being screened to capacity plus business...

THE GWYNNE MICHAELS Quartet is appearing nightly at Kimberley's Restaurant and Lounge, Quincy Shore Drive, at Wollaston Beach. Completely remodeled, Kimberley's specializes in steaks, beef and chops.

Chamber Favors Half Holiday Status For Columbus Day

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce favors changing the status of Columbus Day from a full legal holiday with Sunday laws applying all day to a half holiday with Sunday laws applying only until 1 p.m.

The South Shore Chamber last year testified on the status of Veterans Day which was changed in 1972. The Columbus Day bill, if passed, would have the same status.

Laurie G. Henley, Co-chairman of the Retail Task Force, a sub-committee of the Chamber's State Affairs Committee, testifying before the Judiciary Committee, said that the Chamber favored H-3320, The Columbus Day Bill, because:

- The spirit and reverence of Columbus Day would be maintained by having stores remain closed until noon.

- Afternoon opening of retail stores and specialty stores will give a significant boost to the State's sagging economy - The Veteran's Day figure exceeded $45 million in added sales.

- This level of business activity would benefit employers and employees alike with higher sales volume and increased wages and salaries.

- The State would receive a substantial amount of much needed tax revenue. Sales tax for Veteran's Day Sales, that in great part would have gone to other states, exceeded $750,000.

- Massachusetts retailers would be able to compete with out of state enterprises on an equal footing on Columbus Day.

County Legion Commander To Be Honored April 7

The event, under the direction of James D. Flynn, General Chairman and County Junior Vice-commander, will be held at the Medfield American Legion Post.

NATURE

Nature is the world around,
Nature makes a beautiful sound.
It is the new crisp trees,

I went to the Dunkin Donut University at 2-7-73. We got a Dunkin Donut hat and a Dunkin Donut ticket, that we could use over. We can get twelve donuts with that ticket at any Dunkin Donut store. ME, THE SNOWFLAKE

Hi there! My name is Snow. You might think thats a funny name. But it's not, because I am a beautiful snowflake. One Wintery day I was blowing around Santa Claus's house. I was very sad. All the kids were throwing me and making me into a snowball. They would slide all over me and suddenly I would melt in their hands. I became a drop of water. I was so unhappy.

Wollaston Divided, Weymouth In

Quincy State Representative Districts To Be Revamped

By PAUL HAROLD

Quincy's state representative districts will be revamped under redistricting plan sent to the Senate Tuesday, The Quincy Sun has learned.

According to informative State House sources, the plan calls for four Quincy districts rather than the current three.

The biggest change would split the Wollaston-North Quincy-West Quincy two-man district into two separate districts with one seat in each district.

Under the new setup, Wollaston would be divided between the two new districts–part of it with North Quincy and part of it with West Quincy.

In another major change the present Quincy Point–South Quincy district would pick up two North Weymouth precincts.

The proposed plan redistricting the Massachusetts House of Representatives was sent to the Senate Tuesday but is not expected to be made public until next week.

The Sun, however, has learned that Quincy would be affected thusly:

FIRST NORFOLK DISTRICT [presently Ward One] represented by Thomas Brownell of Merrymount will be made up of Ward One plus precincts 3 and 4 of Ward Three.

SECOND NORFOLK DISTRICT [presently Wards Two and Three] represented by Clifford Marshall of Quincy Point will comprise Ward Two, precincts 1, 2, and 5 of Ward Three and two precincts in North Weymouth.

THIRD NORFOLK DISTRICT [presently Wards Four, Five and Six] represented by William Delahunt and Joseph Brett of Wollaston will be divided into two separate districts.

Delahunt's new district will be made up of Ward Four, precincts 1, 2, 3, 6, 7, and 8 of Ward Five and precinct 8 of Ward Six. Brett's new district will be made up of precincts 4, 5 and 9 of Ward Five and precincts 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6 and 7 of Ward Six.

CPPAX To Protest Federal Budget Cuts

The newly formed Quincy Chapter of Citizens for Participation in Political Action [CPPAX] will hold a public meeting Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Quincy Jewish Community Center to protest Federal Budget cuts that affect local affairs.

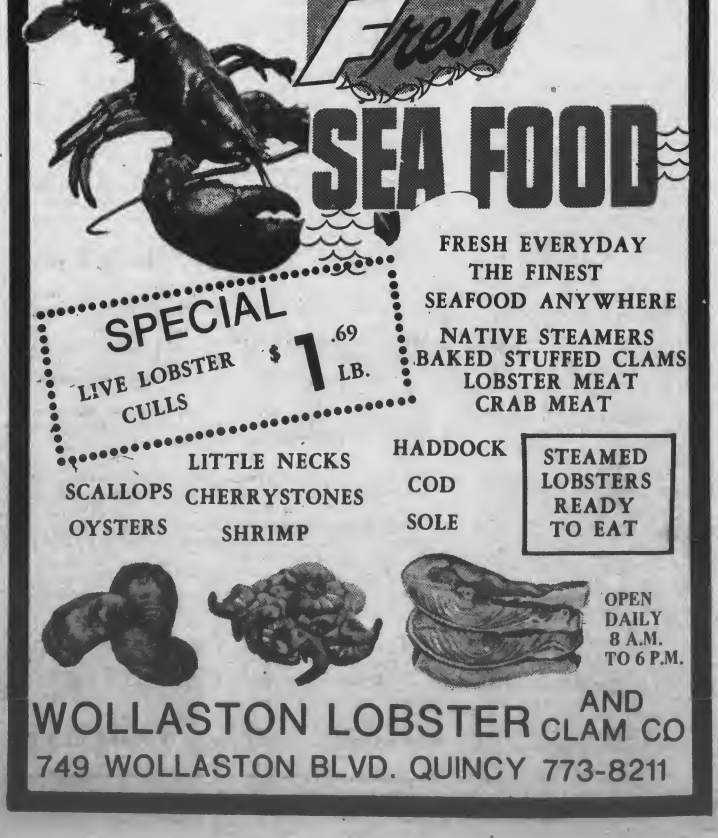
CPPAX is an outgrowth of a merger between Citizens for Participation Politics [CPP] and Mass. Pax.

Madeline M. Cohen of CPPAX said the meeting is necessary "because the Federal budget cuts, as proposed by President Nixon, have a direct effect on the people of Quincy through increased taxes and decreased social services.

"We have found that the directors of city social services are very anxious to reach the people and discuss these matters with them."

Six community agency directors will be on hand to discuss the effects of the cuts on their programs. They are:

Mary K. Goodwin of Quincy Community Action, Clement O'Brien of Quincy Housing Authority, Geoffrey Davidson, City Planning Director, Muriel Douglas of South Shore Mental Health; Paul Provencher of South Shore Community Service Center, and the Rev. Dean Tegler of South Shore Day Care Centers.



Broad Meadows 'Cre-Activities' Demonstration

The students of Broad Meadows Junior High School will provide a demonstration of creative activities tonight [Thursday] from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Although the major portion of the program will be devoted to musical performances and an art exhibit, the format will be quite different from the past presentation-oriented programs.

There will be displays and demonstrations of the creative aspects of pupil activities in many of the discipline areas.

There is no admission charge for the program called, "Cre-Activities '73". Parents and other interested members of the community are welcome. Refreshments will be available.

ate Now,' Says Gillis

8-Ward Plan Dead, No Changes Until At Least 1975

By PAUL HAROLD

The widely publicized plan to re-align Quincy into eight new wards is dead for this year, according to City Clerk John M. Gillis.

Gillis says he has "waited long enough" for the City Council to act on the plan which would have divided the city into eight wards of equal size. The present six ward set up will be used for this fall's municipal elections.

This week, the city clerk's office is preparing to put the street lists and voting lists out for printing bids. They will be printed according to the six ward plan.

"If the Council had acted, the new wards would have been in effect this year," Gillis said, "but it's too late now."

"Originally I had enough votes to get it through the Council, but the longer it sat in committee, the less chance there was of it finally being adopted," he said. "The final blow came with the United States Supreme Court's decision that loosen the "one man one vote" requirements."

While the city is under no direct pressure to re-district its wards, Gillis said he will re-introduce a balanced ward plan. "A balanced ward plan is much fairer," he said.

The next re-alignment plan he submits could be either another eight ward set up or just a modification of the present six. But whatever it is, Gillis says he won't introduce it until 1975, a city election year.

"Re-districting is confusing enough, but when you try to re-district ward lines in a state election year everyone gets really mixed up," Gillis declared.

The original idea to re-align the city into more equal districts was the City Clerk's, as was the idea to increase the city from six to eight wards. Under the eight ward plan, traditional

$83.2 Million Budget Passed

Only 25-Cent Tax Hike Seen By Quinn

By TOM HENSHAW

Look for an increase of no more than 25 cents in the Quincy tax rate for 1973.

The prediction comes from a good authority – City Councillor John J. Quinn.

"I see no more than a 25-cent hike in the 1973 tax rate", Quinn told the Quincy Sun. Present rate is $152.40.

Quinn, as chairman of the City Council's Finance Committee, was the chief surgeon in the operation that trimmed $4,003,982.54 out of the 18-month budget proposed by Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

The $83,279,779.95 budget was passed by the City Council Monday night.

The eventual tax rate, of course, depends upon several factors that are not reflected in the budget.

The amount of money received from the state on the "cherry sheet" and the sum derived from revenue sharing are two of them.

The MBTA assessment is another.

Two bills, slated for hearing in the State House at the end of the month, would have a big effect on Quincy's MBTA tab, which is set at $1,284,066 by the current formula.

A bill filed by Rep. Raymond F. Rourke [D-Lowell] would boost Quincy's assessment to $1,440,618, an increase of $156,552.

Another measure proposed by a Recess Commission would

Police Identification Engraving Program Battles Burglars

Quincy residents can now have their social security number engraved on their valuables in a police public service campaign designed to cut down burglaries and thefts.

The program, part of a nation-wide one known as "Operation Identification", was announced Wednesday by Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Under it, residents, business owners, and civic organizations are invited to participate in the free "do-it-yourself" engraving project.

The Police Department has acquired a number of small electric engravers.

They will be loaned out–at no cost–to any Quincy resident who can take it home, engrave his valuables and then return the engraver.

Those participating are then issued a set of orange and blue colored decals to be placed on doors or windows warning would-be burglars that "all items on these premises have been marked for ready identification by Law Enforcement Agencies."

Operation Identification has been most effective in reducing burglaries in cities throughout the United States, according to Police Chief Francis X. Finn. Success of the program has been attributed to the active and broad participation by local residents.

Even if the thief should ignore the warning Decal, the police have a much greater chance of arresting the thief or fence for receiving stolen property, and returning the property to its rightful owners.

In Quincy, Operation Identification is part of a series of Community Crime Prevention projects being planned by the Quincy Police Department under a federal grant awarded by the Governor's Committee on Law Enforcement and Administration of Criminal Justice.

With emphasis on combating burglary, other community-based projects being planned include increased security measures for business and home owners, a citizen education and public information program and police-community meetings.

Chief Finn declared' "All of

Hannon In Favor Of Montclair Foot Patrolman

A police officer may soon be patrolling the Montclair section on foot once again.

Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] has asked for one to help curb vandalism in the area and Mayor Walter J. Hannon thinks it is a pretty good idea.

Mayor Hannon has requested Police Chief Francis Finn that an "impact man" be assigned to the beat.

"If we are successful in obtaining an officer for this purpose, he will be a foot patrolman," the mayor assured Rep. Brett.

"I also believe that the foot patrolman is far more effective in the neighborhood.

"However, modern police thought evidently has gone to the trend of motorization and the day of the foot patrolman is unfortunately coming to an end."

these projects will result in increased public awareness of the burglary problem in Quincy and greater citizen cooperation with the Police. The result will be better police protection for the citizens of Quincy. But for these programs to be successful, they will need the support and active involvement of the people of Quincy."

"The police can't do the job alone. We need the active cooperation of the community. We are appealing to all Quincy residents to be alert and to report to the police any incident of suspicious nature. We are asking those whom we serve to "Help Us Help You". We want to make Quincy safer for you and unsafe for criminals. But we need your help and concern."

The Police Department is accepting requests at this time, and interested residents are asked to call Police Headquarters immediately to enlist in the program. Each person who identifies his property in this way will be given a set of Decals to place on the doors and windows of his home or place of business, warning the would-be burglar that all items of value inside have been marked for ready identification by law enforcement agencies.

Finn encourages local merchants, appliance dealers and local civic and citizen groups to actively participate in the program by providing publicity for the program and by offering the engravers to Quincy residents.

Many businessmen, such as insurance companies, already own engravers and provide this service and their cooperation is encouraged. Representatives from the police department are willing to meet with interested groups to explain the program in detail.

Any business, civic organization, or citizen group [no matter how small] wishing to participate, is asked to contact the Police Department Planning Office at 479-1212, extension 378.

New Emblem For Fire Dept.

A splash of color has been added to the uniforms of the Quincy Fire Department.

The new basic red and blue shoulder patches were designed by Firefighter Robert Mood with the assistance of Fire Chief Edward Barry.

They are shaped like an arrowhead, blue with red trim.

The seal of the city of Quincy is emblazoned on a red Maltese Cross with the words "Quincy Fire Department, 1889".

Beneath the cross is the inscription "City of Presidents" in gold lettering.

The discrepancy between the date 1889 and the date 1888 that appears on the city seal is explained like this:

Quincy became a city in 1888.

The Fire Department was created by the first ordinance passed by the City Council in January, 1889.

Lydon Seeks To Ban Alcohol From City Streets

John J. Lydon, who is a lone announced candidate for election to the City Council, feels that a public street is no place to drink alcoholic beverages, particularly since the temptation is so strong to dispose of the bottle or can in the same public way.

Lydon, who lives at 468 Beale St., Wollaston, has asked Ward 5 Councillor William D. Delahunt to file an amendment to the city ordinances adding public ways to the list of places where consumption of liquor is forbidden.

Current dry areas are Veterans' Memorial Stadium, any public park or playground and any public school building or ground.

"Anyone can walk down the street with a bottle or a can in his hand and drink it and there is nothing the police can do about it," said Lydon. "I have seen more and more cans and bottles thrown in the street."

The amendment resolution will be presented at next Monday's Council meeting. He also brought the matter up before the Licensing Board on Tuesday.

The official word that the present six wards will be used for this year's elections is expected to affect the plans of a number of "hopefuls" who had considered running for council from the new wards.

NEW HEADQUARTERS for the Quincy Savings Bank shown in this artist's rendering will be an attractive addition to the downtown Quincy scene.

Groundbreaking This Summer

New Quincy Savings Bank Building Plans Finalized

A new headquarters building for the Quincy Savings Bank, the first in 76 years, moved to the edge of the drawing board this week.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon announced that the bank and the developer, Spaulding and Slye Corp. of Boston, have finalized plans for the new building at 1200 Hancock St. between the Elks Home and the Masonic Temple, across the street from the MBTA Quincy Center station.

Ground is expected to be broken for the three-story masonry and solar bronze glass sometime this summer with the target for completion sometime in 1974.

Mayor Hannon congratulated both principles on their decision to proceed with the new building, which replaces a parking lot.

"In my mind," said the Mayor, "the revitalization of our downtown area is one of the most important programs that our city is involved in, and the decision made by the Quincy Savings Bank is most important to the growth of the city as a whole.

"I believe the bank's commitment demonstrates their faith in the future of our city's downtown area and will encourage other members of our business community to move in a similar direction."

The bank will occupy 26,000 square feet of floor space in the 51,000 square foot building, more than twice the size of its present 12,000 square foot headquarters building at 1374 Hancock St. The remainder will be rented out.

"The primary purpose of this move," said Bank President Charles A. Pearce, "is to provide better service for our customers and a more pleasant banking and working environment.

"The Quincy Savings Bank has been in its present headquarters building since 1897, and, in terms of modern-day banking, our facilities are out of date.

"In addition to our new headquarters, our present bank location at 1374 Hancock St. will remain in operation, offering depositors full service."

Other branches of the bank are located in South Quincy and North Quincy.

Artist renderings of the coming addition to downtown architecture show a graceful low building set in attractive park-like surroundings of trees and grass.

There will be customer parking in the rear of the building, with drive-up teller's stations and an after hours deposit box for convenient banking 24 hours a day.

Landscaping has been designed to surround the entire building, offering an attractive park-like setting for the enjoyment of both customers and passers-by.

The bank also hopes to provide a spacious area on the lower level for community projects. Architectural plans have been submitted to the Bank Commissioner for approval.

Charles B. Twigg, Senior Vice President of Spaulding and Slye Corporation's Real Estate Brokerage Division negotiated the turn-key agreement and is presently responsible for the marketing of the 25,000 additional square feet in the new bank. This is the second time in less than a year that Twigg has been responsible for a major corporate relocation. He negotiated the lease of 120,000 square feet for the U.S. Headquarters of Sun Life Assurance Company at Wellesley Hills Executive Park.

Spaulding and Slye has "packaged" the turn-key development of the new Quincy Savings Bank Headquarters in record time. Richard W. Spaulding, Executive Vice President, Development Operations, attributes this "fast track package" to the firm's full-time development services. "Within a six-week period, our in-house staff assembled from scratch all the ingredients necessary to break ground; a major and highly creditworthy owner, community liaison, financing arrangement, completion of the preliminary interior-exterior building design and feasibility studies, organization of construction, and preparation of all the related legal agreements in final form," commented Spaulding.

Spaulding and Slye Corporation's developments include three office parks along 128; New England Executive Park in Burlington, The Travelers Building in Endicott Office Park in Danvers, and Wellesley Hills Executive Park in Wellesley. The firm also developed Hampshire Plaza, a 20-story office tower, adjacent shopping mall, and parking complex in Manchester, N.H.; Central Plaza, New England Gas and Electric Association's 14-story office tower in Cambridge; Wellesley Green, a luxury condominium development under construction in Wellesley, Mass.; and Faneuil Square, a 7-story office-parking-retail complex in Boston, is planned for the Haymarket area.

Montclair School Pupil Receives Letter From His Friend The President

Paul Lyons of 8 Belmont St., North Quincy, is the proud possessor of a personal letter from his friend, the President of the United States.

Paul, a third grade student at Montclair School, was assigned to write a letter to a friend.

He selected one, Richard M. Nixon, who lives at 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., Washington, D.C., and invited him to visit the school.

Back came the reply on White House stationery:

"Dear Paul;

"It was a pleasure to receive your invitation to visit your school.

"There is nothing that pleases me more than the opportunity to visit with girls and boys across our nation, and while my schedule usually does not permit me this pleasure, I am nevertheless deeply grateful for your kindness in thinking of me in this way.

"With my appreciation and best wishes to you and your classmates at Montclair School.

Sincerely,
Richard M. Nixon"

By PAUL HAROLD

When the long awaited plan to redistrict the state legislature was made public last week, there was hardly a stir in Quincy. The real re-districting of the city took place weeks ago, behind closed doors, and the disclosure was for the most part anti-climactic. Most interested parties had followed progress of the redistricting closely, and the new alignment of four districts was pretty much as expected, with no real surprises.

The proposed plan seems to assure all four incumbents of re-election. While Rep. Clifford Marshall of Quincy Point picks up two North Weymouth precincts, the balance of power remains in Quincy. Rep. Joseph Brett of Wollaston loses some of his strongest support with the elimination of West Quincy from his district, but it is believed that he had a chance of being re-elected by the time the 1974 state elections roll around.

THINGS SHOULD START perking shortly on the local political front. Nomination papers for this fall's municipal elections are expected to be available May 15, just one month from Sunday.

WORD FROM QUINCY POINT is that Dean Paul Nicastro is not saying no to the urging of friends that he become a candidate for school committee this year.

Nicastro is working on his law degree at Harvard Law School and has recently accepted a clerkship for next summer with a prominent Boston law firm.

He ran an impressive race for school committee in 1971, topping the ticket in two of Quincy's six wards in both the 23-man primary and the six man run-off.

SPEAKING OF THE SCHOOL COMMITTEE, Daniel Raymondi received notice last week that he was among those passing the December Bar Exam.

POLICE CAPTAIN Paul Nestor's daughter, Marie, appeared on Ch. 5's "Winning Pins" for the second time last Saturday. In all, it was the 13-year old's sixth TV bowling appearance.

Marie is a student at Atlantic Junior High School and bowls regularly with the Koch Club Seniors.

Incidentally, her mother, Marilyn, is the director of the Koch Club's women's bowling program.

THE SOUTH SHORE CHAMBER of Commerce joined the housewives in the meat boycott and decided not to serve bacon at its breakfast meeting last Friday.

ONE OF THE State Representatives participating in the Chamber's Legislative Workshop Friday was George Young of Scituate, who many remember as a former teacher at Central Junior High School.

WILLIAM O'CONNELL, first vice president of the Quincy Historical Society, has suggested the following "trademark" for the Quincy organizations and for all historic societies: "The historical society - where everyone belongs".

And if O'Connell has his way everyone will belong. In the last couple of months he has helped increase membership in the society to more than 600, the largest membership in the 80 year history of the society. He expects to reach his goal of 750 by June.

GILBERT CROFTS, former executive secretary for the Quincy YMCA, was recently elected to his fourth term as constable in the town of Gosnold, Mass. Gosnold is an island off Cape Cod, near Martha's Vineyard.

Croft's election was somewhat of a "landslide"; he received 41 votes out of a possible total of 51. And this year he also received a pay increase, from $25. to $75. a year.

POLICE CHIEF Francis Finn participated last week at the meeting of the Massachusetts Safety Council in Boston. He spoke on ways of improving the no-fix ticket system.

Moderator for the conference was former Quincy resident, Francis Collerton, a member of the Govemor's Committee on Highway Safety.

RICHARD KOCH Jr. of North Quincy, son of the executive secretary of the Park and Recreation Board, didn't waste anytime registering to vote. His 18th birthday was Tuesday. He registered Wednesday morning.

A BENEFIT BASKETBALL game for Project Turnabout [drug rehabilitation program] was held last Friday.

WASHINGTON — Protests are pouring into President Nixon over singer Frank Sinatra's invitation to perform at the White House. The protests are coming largely from Middle America, which the President considers Nixon country. Apparently, a lot of conservative Republicans don't believe Sinatra is the sort who ought to be hobnobbing with the President.

They remember him as the leader of the Hollywood Rat Pack, who were notorious for their night clubbing, gambling and womanizing. This isn't the life style of Middle America. They are also disturbed over reports of Sinatra's friendship with Mafia mobsters. John Kennedy, for example, quietly disassociated himself from Sinatra after reading a Justice Department dossier on the singer's racketeer friends.

The protests put President Nixon on the spot. He owes Sinatra a political debt for persuading Sammy Davis, Jr., to campaign for him last year. This helped to dispel the talk that Nixon was against the Blacks. In gratitude, the President scheduled a Sinatra gala at the White House. He has had some second thoughts, however, since he started hearing from Middle America. Our White House sources say he won't cancel the Sinatra special but will try to play it down.

Vice President Agnew has also been damaged with his conservative constituency by his friendship with Sinatra. But the Vice President is a proud and stubborn man who isn't likely to let politics dictate who his friends will be. He has found the controversial crooner to be a warm, thoughtful, sensitive friend. Agnew, therefore, accepts Sinatra's explanation that he was unavoidably thrown into the company with hoodlums during his rise from the streets of Hoboken, N.J., and his early days as a nightclub entertainer. He has never been implicated in any illegal activities himself.

But Agnew has his eye on the 1976 presidential nomination. The political pressure may compel him, too, to back off from Sinatra.

Can Thieu Hold On?

The Joint Chiefs have quietly revised their estimate of President Thieu's chances to survive in South Vietnam. During the final negotiations over a cease-fire, the Joint Chiefs solemnly warned that North Vietnam held the balance of power and ultimately would take over all Vietnam.

This warning last October persuaded President Nixon to bolster the Thieu regime by rushing hundreds of aircraft and tons of supplies to Saigon. The sudden, heavy pouring of military equipment into South Vietnam temporarily disrupted the truce negotiations.

All this equipment, however, didn't entirely change the Joint Chiefs' estimate. After the cease-fire was signed, they still doubted Thieu's ability to withstand a final North Vietnamese onslaught. But their latest estimate is far more optimistic.

They now report, for example, that Thieu's forces have a decisive military superiority over the Communists in South Vietnam. On the eve of the cease-fire, Communist forces made quick, coordinated attacks on hundreds of strategic points. Their obvious intent was to improve their position and increase the area under their control before the truce teams arrived to keep the peace.

The South Vietnamese, therefore, were caught off balance when the cease-fire was signed. But President Thieu ignored the cease-fire and ordered his troops to counterattack. They have now recaptured, with an impressive show of military strength, nearly every strongpoint that the Communists had occupied. The battle over the cease-fire positions, in other words, definitely has been won by the South Vietnamese.

The North Vietnamese, meanwhile, have reinforced their troops and replenished their supplies. But the secret estimate of the Joint Chiefs is that the North Vietnamese are weaker and the South Vietnamese stronger than the military situation was before Hanoi launched the Easter offensive of 1972. The coming monsoons will also restrict Hanoi's ability to strenghthen its position in the South for the next few months.

This will give South Vietnam urgently needed time to assimilate the new American equipment, to redeploy its forces and to brace for future Communist moves.

Headlines and Footnotes

CONSUMER WARNING — Housewives should be suspicious of fantastic sales on red meats this week. The sales may be only a gimmick to lure unsuspecting shoppers into grocery stores. Government officials warn that a grocery store may offer a great bargain on rib roasts, for example, and at the same time jack up the price of potatoes or other commodities. Unless a housewife is careful, she may end up losing more than she saves at the cash register.

CRIME PAYS — Licensed security firms are raking in millions each day protecting Americans from vandals, robbers, hijackers and, ironically, other private eyes. Last year alone, for example, industry and government officials shelled out $60 million just to have their offices "swept" for electronic bugs and wiretap devices. Private eyes, by and large, were responsible for planting the illegal bugs. Then, other private eyes cashed in for taking them out. Corporate spying, meanwhile, is expected to triple in the next year.

PENTAGON TURNABOUT — Until his retirement a year ago, Col. Hubert A. Connelly supervised all commercial solicitation in the military. Connelly's job was to investigate the Sergeant Bilkos who prey on gullible GIs. Colonel Connelly now finds himself in an embarrassing position as chief executive officer of Ammest Inc., an insurance holding company in Dallas, Texas. Ammest-affiliated agents have come under fire in Europe for their strong sales pitches to GI-members of the Non-Commissioned Officers Association. European post commanders have actually banned some of the insurance men from several military installations.

Urges Women To Consider Adoption Instead Of Abortion

Editor, Quincy Sun:

In response to two items published in the Quincy Sun written by 1.) Louise Hatch Meservy and 2.) Michael F. Cotter, I would like to speak out against abortion.

Mr. Cotter's article is very "wordy" and well written but all it says is that a woman should be free to choose whether or not to Murder [not a pretty word, but fact is fact] her unborn child or not. In all conscience a person of reasonable intelligence could not possibly give her consent for such a crime.

Louise Hatch Meservy, in her article, seems to think that just because the Supreme Court ruled in favor of abortion that this is 100% correct. The Court is made up entirely of human beings capable of human error. The Supreme Court is not infallible. Sorry to disappoint you, Louise!

Abortion doesn't even consider the baby, just the rights, feelings and desires of the woman carrying the unborn child. If the woman doesn't want the baby, [she has 9 months to make a decision] the excellent alternative is surrendering the baby for adoption. There are many eager and loving parents just waiting for a child they can care for and love. So, if the woman doesn't feel she is capable of caring for the child after birth, there are many women who would jump at the chance.

Please, women, consider this alternative before giving consent to any justifiable killing. Surely, it would make for many clearer consciences in years to come.

Thank you for your time.

Mrs. George E. Stebbins Jr.

13- Year Old Sees More Problems From 18- Year Olds Drinking

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I read Tom Henshaw's article on "Creedon sees 'Social' but not serious H. S. Liquor Problems". I read it in the Quincy Sun March 8, 1973. I disagree with Dr. Creedon, I think there will be more problems in Quincy now that 18 year olds get to drink. I think that they will bring liquor into school, but you won't know it because they can put the liquor into empty tonic cans.

There will be more car accidents by drunken drivers. I think there will be more teen-age fights then before because they will get drunk and they won't know what they're doing.

A Reminder About Flood Insurance Program

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Thousands of property owners in coastal and inland communities are faced with the threat of losses from destructive and possibly devastating floods each year. Hundreds of millions of dollars worth of property losses are suffered annually. While flood insurance coverage has been virtually non-existent in the past, it is now available to eligible communities in the form of federally subsidized flood insurance under the National Flood Insurance Program administration by the Federal Insurance Administration of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Quincy is one of 60 cities and towns in Massachusetts that are eligible for participation in the National Flood Insurance Program.

With the imminence of the spring flooding season I have taken the liberty to furnish the residents of South Quincy living in the flood prone area a pamphlet which provides information on the way the program works and how coverage can be obtained.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

During the past few months a number of Massachusetts home owners have complained to my Consumer Protection Division that their basic home insurance policies have been cancelled for no plausible reason.

In most instances, the insured iis simply told that the cancellation was necessitated by a substantial increase in policy "risk". However, the companies either failed to explain what they mean by risk or what factors brought about the increased risk.

Consumers faced with this type of policy cancellation have had no recourse–they have been forced either to renew their policies at a great increase in cost or to find another insurance company. If only for the sake of convenience, the Consumer Protection Division has found that the insured will usually pay the higher premium.

In order to prevent these sudden policy cancellations, the division has refiled a bill which will provide a measure of protection to home owners. The proposed legislation would prohibit policy cancellation unless the insured has failed to pay premiums; made material misrepresentations of fact to the company; or changed the physical make-up of his property so that it became uninsurable.

In addition, the proposed legislation requires that any cancellation notice state the reasons and, if desired by the policy holder, the facts on which this decision was based. The bill also provides for automatic policy renewal if the company does not notify the insured at least 45 days prior to the end of the policy period of its intention not to renew or to condition the renewal upon certain reduction of limits or elimination of coverages.

Arbitrary insurance cancellation is one of the few remaining loopholes in Massachusetts' otherwise comprehensive consumer protection statutes.

She's Three Writers

What do authors Barbara Michaels, Barbara Mertz, and Elizabeth Peters have in common? Simple, they are all one very talented lady – Barbara Mertz to be exact.

Shifting easily from fact to fiction, she can describe in detail the ancient tombs of the pharaohs, or tell about the current activities of a juvenile poltergeist who dwells on the rocky coast of Maine. So what better time to bring to light Mrs. Mertz's versatility in writing than during National Library Week.

Born the daughter of a printer in Canton, Ill., Mrs. Mertz began writing professionally almost 10 years ago. Since that time, she had produced almost 20 works.

Under her own name, she had her first book published in 1964. Having received a Ph.D. from the Oriental Institute of the University of Chicago, and as a member of the Egyptian Exploration Society, Mrs. Mertz put together TEMPLES, TOMBS, AND HIEROGLYPHS: the story of Egyptology [Coward-McCann. $6.95]. Both the Library Journal and Atlantic Magazine praised her highly for it.

Two more serious works were then published, a second on Egypt, and a first on Rome. However at the same time, Mrs. Mertz decided to try her hand at fiction, using two pen names.

As Barbara Michaels, Mrs. Mertz has written tales of suspense that often border on the eerie and supernatural. In AMMIE COME HOME [Meredith Press $4.95] a collection of colonial earth-bound spirits were the objects of a ghost hunt that ended just short of death. So successful was "Ammie" that it wound up as an ABC Movie of the Week as "The House that Wouldn't Die" starring Barbara Stanwyck.

Under the second of the pen names, Elizabeth Peters [the clever collaboration of the names of her son and daughter], Barbara Mertz has written mysteries with archeological settings.

THE CAMELOT CAPER [Meredith Press $4.95] told of an American visitor in England who inadvertently becomes involved in a plot concerning the mythological kingdom of Camelot. Publisher's Weekly said, "It is, we may say without giving too much away, a brilliant and scholarly ploy based on the latest archeological findings."

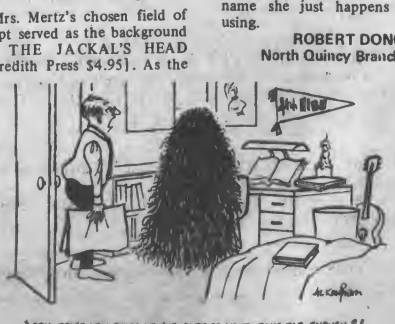
Mrs. Mertz's chosen field of Egypt served as the background for THE JACKAL'S HEAD [Meredith Press $4.95]. As the heroine attempts to clear the name of her late father who had been wrongly accused of forging antiques, she is faced with countless setbacks, and eventually becomes trapped within one of the pharaohs tombs.

The latest Elizabeth Peters work is BORROWER OF THE NIGHT [Dodd, Mead $5.95] and is set in Germany, a country in which Mrs. Mertz spent two years.

As The New York Times, Publisher's Weekly, The Library Journal and many other magazines agree, two of Barbara Mertz's shining points in regard to fiction are her knack for building and retaining suspense, and her astounding ability to mold out-of-the-ordinary circumstances and events into such realistic forms that even sceptics become ardent believers.

Both qualities are demonstrated in THE DARK ON THE OTHER SIDE [Dodd, Mead $5.95]. As the plot unfolds, the reader learns that one of the main characters is deeply connected with witchcraft and Satanism, and that his wife is fearful for her life because of it.

Though the plot is complete with swirling winds, a Black Mass, ritualistic ceremonies, and unearthly howls in the night, she has made the storyline unfailingly believeable.



Along with this, Mrs. Mertz suspensefully lures the reader to the end, climaxing the entire story with a last line that sends shivers up the spine.

This same sort of climax is reached in the latest Barbara Michaels novel, GREYGALLOWS [Dodd, Mead $6.95]. The solution isn't brought about until the last paragraph, but when it is, all the mysterious happenings and puzzling events are cleared up in a spectacular finish that prompts the reader to mentally exclaim, "Of course"!

Whether she is devoting her time to an all-night writing session, or serving as a valuable contributor to the World Book, Barbara Mertz is definitely a talented artist.

And a talented artist, it is interesting to add, who is complimented, yet often surprised upon learning of the great number of fans she has, many of them male. She feels that men don't usually bother with semi-Gothic tales, however, what she doesn't realize is that Barbara Mertz is one author everyone reads, no matter which name she just happens to be using.

Israel Day Parade Planned May 20

George Bernstein, President of the South Area Jewish Community Center, announces that the Jewish Community Center, at the request of the Jewish Community Council, will co-ordinate the annual Israel Day Parade for the entire South Area.

At the first planning meeting held recently at Temple Beth David in Canton, almost all of the Jewish organizations and synagogues indicated their commitment to see that the South Area will be well represented in the parade on May 20. Several institutions indicated that the Parade will be their annual Lag B'omer celebration, as both dates coincide.

Participants informed the Jewish Community Center that they will have floats which will range from and-held to those on a flat-bed truck. Although plans are well under way, Jeremy Neimand, Director of the South Area Jewish Community Center, indicated that there was still time for organizations to register for participation in the parade.

The Jewish Community Center will be able to help those organizations to develop themes and plans for their group's participation. For further information, contact Jeremy S. Neimand at 773-3000.

20 Quincy Students To Fly To London

With spring in the air, April vacation is approaching and with it comes the excitement of flying to England for some 20 students and their chaperones.

Arrangements for the trip were made by Colossus Travel, which also arranged the previous year's trip to Greece and Rome.

The group will fly by jet plane to London where their hotel and guides will be waiting for them. They will enjoy English hospitality for 9 days and 8 nights with not one moment to waste.

Highlights of the trip will include a "London-by-Night" tour, a tour of Buckingham Palace, Piccadilly Circus, Big Ben and Westminster Abbey. One day will be devoted to touring Canterbury, one of the most beautiful cities in England dating back to ancient times.

Due to a longer vacation this year the group will have an extra tour of Windsor and Hampton Court. This tour takes us past Eton, the famous school to Windsor. From the Castle Walls there is a breath-taking view of the countryside. After the visit at the castle the group will travel to Runnymede, where the Magna Carta was signed, the site of the memorial to President Kennedy.

The group then travels to Hampton Court, famous residence of Kings and Queens, which we visit before returning to London.

There will also be a full-day excursion to Shakespearean country. The tour will begin at Oxford, one of England's most famous university cities, then past Blenheim Palace, birthplace of Winston Churchill to Stratford-On-Avon. At Stratford we will see Shakespear's birthplace, and after a quick lunch attend a matinee performance at the Royal Shakespeare Theatre.

It is truly a chance of a lifetime.

Afro American Dance Group To Perform At Festival

The Afro American Dance Group of the Solomon Lewenberg Junior High School in Mattapan will perform at the Quincy International Festival at the Quincy High School - Vocational-Technical School, April 14, at 4 p.m., 5 p.m., and 7 p.m.

The group was started in 1972 by Brenda Jones of The Lewis Middle School and Helen Moore of The Lewenberg School. Since that time they have performed at Boston City Hall, the Weston Public Schools Art Festival, at several Boston City Schools. The dance, while basically an expression of Black American Culture, reveals traces of African Heritage. The Dancers are April King, Anita Randleman, Helen Curry, Denise Stampley, Denise Ruggin, Rene Link, Sister Wilson, Linda Hunter, Angela James, Zenigh Garvin, Joyce Vannison and Venitha Riley. The Drummers are: Vannessa Brownn, Andre Semper, Desmond Raper, Michael Rock, Kevin Brown, Frank Nagim.

QUINCY HIGH School Art Staff plans fourth annual exhibit May 3.

Art Department Exhibit Set For May 3

By NANCY COCHRANE

On May 3 from 7 to 10 p.m. the Quincy Art Department will be opening up its studios for the fourth annual Art Exhibit.

There will be student art work on display, and there will also be workshop demonstrations in pottery, photography, sculpture and painting. Some student work will be for sale and refreshments will be served.

Other art displays around the school are photographic work by Louis Gentile and Robert Horton, drawings by Mary Ellen Tribble and paintings by Sarah Pynny. These are or will soon be in the Bradford Library.

In the teachers cafeteria there have been displays of weavings, wall hangings and baliko. Pottery by James Seckinger and Mary Picard has been exhibited in the high school lobby showcase, and the school administration office has displayed photographs by Joe Curry.

The Paul Benzaquin Experience

By BRIAN SULLIVAN

On March 19, approximately 40 to 50 students of Miss Shaw's Black Studies class, and Mr. Merrill's Psychology class visited the studio of the Paul Benzaquin show at WNAC-TV in Boston.

His first guest, John Gray, discussed the correlation between intelligence and race and how it effects chances of an executive position within his company.

His bigoted, irritating remarks about long hair, the brain capacity of blacks, and what he called "communistic material" that is being taught in black studies courses at the high school level, incensed the crowd to the point of uproar.

Blacks as well as whites looked in disdain at this tall gangly version of Archie Bunker, as the first segment of the show came to a close.

Suddenly he made the most flabbergasting announcement. He, John Gray, was in reality a black, that his face is white is only a freak of nature; he is married to a black, and his "role playing" he just finished was an act designed to bring out the reactions of people to bigots. He goes by an assumed name, and works at Kent State University.

The dropping of this little bombshell quieted down the audience, so much so, that one boy at the podium [getting ready to ask a question] completely lost track of his thoughts, and blurted out a few mumbled words.

The program was quite an experience and helped show how our emotions if not controlled properly, would lead to a dangerous situation.

PERILOUS POTTERY

A potential cause for exposure to lead poisoning has been discovered recently in pottery made by folk craftsmen in this country or imported from Mexico or Japan.

A California family received a Mexican pottery pitcher as a gift and used it for fruit juice. Over a period of time, lead leached into the juice and all of the members contracted symptons of lead poisoning and one of the children became partially paralyzed.

The Food and Drug Administration found that lead could be leached out of 26 or 28 samples of Mexican earthenware and issued a warning that Mexican and other handcrafted earthenware should not be used as food or beverage containers unless it is known to be properly glazed. The danger of lead poisoning is especially great where acid foods are concerned such as coffee, tea and citrus juices. A good rule - Decoration - yes - Food - no.

HOPE FOR THE PEOPLE

One day in the opening of spring
The flowers bloomed
The sun was bright
The sky was clear
All round near
The people were smiling
So bright and gay
So now I will say
Hope for the people
Now and in the future.

A PILLOW FIGHT

One night two boys had a pajama party. Just for fun they had a pillow fillow. I hit a face and I got hurt. So I yelled, "Ouch!" and my stuffing started to fly around the room. I thought it was the end of me. But just in time I heard footsteps on the stairs. "It's mother," the boys said. Quickly they shut the light and lay very still. Mother opened the door and said "I hope I don't hear any more noise tonight." I was glad it was over and I was in one piece.

I saw some police men walking dowe the street. I banged on the window The police men opened the door and I never went to that store again!

Pollution is something that is a disgrace to our country and to the whole world. It is not a nice sight to see. People talk and talk about it and try to do their best to help. But something else has to be done, and fast; for the land will die of pollution, the water won't be fit to drink and the air won't be fit to breathe, and the people and the animals will die along with our world.

How to Deal with Home Repair Racketeers

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

How can the homeowner protect himself from the racketeers and gyp artists who belabor his doorbell or his phone with propositions to fleece him?

For one thing, he should realize there is no such thing as "something for nothing." Again, salesmen or workmen who operate out of their pockets or nearby trucks can hardly be reached later to make good on faulty products or performance.

There are, right in your own community, plenty of reliable, honest repairmen and firms that provide quality merchandise and workmanlike installation at a fair price. The fact that they have been providing goods and services to your neighbors for many years —and are still in business— suggests that it would be safe for you to deal with them.

Better business bureaus offer these guides to avoid home improvement headaches, noting that reliable contractors —do not attempt to avoid selling you an advertised job at the featured price and terms.

—do not advertise or otherwise offer long-term guarantees that are not clearly and specifically spelled out.

—do not quote a "blind" price without first having obtained full details of the remodeling required, preferably by examining your premises.

—do not tell you there is no carrying charge for extended payments. (Such charges either will be added to the price or have already been included in the figure quoted.)

—do not fail to write into the contract the exact nature of the work to be completed or omit oral promises which induced you to sign the contract.

—do not request a signature to a completion certificate before the work is finished.

—do not allow a salesman to misrepresent himself as someone whose contacts can get you a "price."

—do not pressure you into signing "tonight" because the price is going up tomorrow.

—do not pose as city inspectors or other official representatives to gain entrance into your home.

—do not scare you into signing a contract by claiming your building violates regulations.

—do not use "par" selling, wherein the price is boosted two or three times over the actual figure at which the job is estimated.

—do not refuse to give waivers of lien, whether from themselves, or labor or material suppliers, on completion of the work.

—do not question the homeowner's decision to have his attorney examine the contract or discuss the financing.

Don't push too hard for bargains, the Better Business Bureau people advise. When you find an able, honest repair shop or repairman, treat him with the respect and confidence his specialized skill deserves.

N.Q. MBTA Track Section To Be Repaired

A 100-foot section of MBTA track just north of the North Quincy Station will be undergoing minor repairs next week, a spokesman for the MBTA said Tuesday.

There will be no disruption of service.

"Apparently there is a normal settling of the ballast under the track in that section," the spokesman said. "It is an easily correctible thing. There is no safety hazard."

Trucks were delivering gravel and stone to the site early this week but work cannot begin until a new ballast and tamping machine is delivered some time next week.

The spokesman said the job is expected to be finished in 48 hours.

Large trucks today began hauling gravel into the area to brace the tracks.

New Fore River Bridge In Less Than 10 Years Possibility

By PAUL HAROLD

The timetable for the proposed new Fore River Bridge was the main topic of discussion last week at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce's second annual Legislators Workshop.

The breakfast meeting was attended by an estimated 200 people. When the floor was open for a question and answer period, it became obvious that the future of the General Dynamics Shipyard was a major concern of the South Shore businessmen. From Quincy to Hanover, the local businessmen explained how the yard was one of the pillars of the Quincy-South Shore economy and repeated the immediate need for a new Fore River Bridge.

A new bridge with a wider span would allow the yard to bid on the new larger size tankers. General Dynamics is willing to invest $30-40 million to modernize the Quincy yard, but only if a new bridge is built.

Discussion of the proposed bridge focused on the ways to cut the red tape that could hold up construction for an estimated 10 years.

When asked why the combined legislative muscle of South Shore legislators couldn't cut the 10 year period to five years, Senator Arthur Tobin of Quincy said that according to DPW Commissioner Bruce Campbell, the expected delay was because of federal and state laws requiring environmental impact studies, public hearings, etc. For the most part, however, Tobin thought that the 10 year period could be reduced and said he'd do all he could to reduce it.

Rep. Clifford Marshall of Quincy Point, who represents the shipyard area, said the need for a new bridge has been known for a long time. When the DPW studied the bridge traffic four or five years ago it found the structure adequate and appears to have given construction of a new bridge low priority because it would only serve the shipyard.

He went on to say that he hoped the DPW and the Attorney General would provide areas in which special legislation could be filed to avoid unnecessary delay.

Rep. Robert Gillette of Pembroke claimed that the DPW was using environmental impact studies to hide behind and as a way of avoiding construction of a new bridge.

Rep. William Delahunt of Wollaston suggested that the chamber use its combined influence to put pressure directly on the Governor and high officials in the Governor's administration as a means of speeding the project along.

Marvin Watts, of Proctor and Gamble, was moderator.

25-Cent Tax Hike Seen By Quinn

lower Quincy's share to $800,473, a decrease of $483,593.

A fluctuation of $250,000 in city expenses usually means a $1 change in the tax rate.

"I am urging Quincy's representatives in the State House to defeat the Rourke bill and pass the Recess Commission's proposal," said Quinn.

The largest single item in the budget is for schools -- $28,766,581. The Council trimmed $2,541,000 from the original request.

Quincy City Hospital is budgeted for $18,884,642. That's $307,755 less than it was before the Council got a hold of it.

Other large items fared thusly at the hands of the Council:

Police, $5,448,303 -- down $361,504.

Fire, $5,287,650 -- down $271,686.

Highway, $2,828,912.42 -- down $37,813.78.

Sanitation, $1,915,535.75 -- down $5,000.

Water, $1,212,994 -- down $73,140.

Retirement Board, $2,348,721 -- down $3,195.

Parking areas suffered the most at the hands of the economy-minded Council. Its request for $162,429 was wiped out completely.

"Parking meter receipts have put the department on a self-supporting basis," explained Quinn.

A $65,000 capital outlay expenditure that was chopped from the Fire Department's budget represents the cost of a new pumper engine, which may not be lost to the city after all.

"I predict," said Quinn, "that the city will get the funds from increased revenue sharing before the end of the month. Then the department can go forward."

The more than $4 million cut from the budget by the City Council brings the grand total of cuts to more than $10 million.

Mayor Hannon, who had first crack at the budget requests made by department heads, pruned $7.7 million out of the original proposals.

VA Offers Tips To Veterans Selling Homes With G.I. Loans

The Veterans Administration, mindful of the spring home-buying season, cautions veterans, with thoughts of selling homes purchased with G.I. home loans, to get "releases of liability" from VA if the loan is assumed by the buyer.

Loan guaranty officials explained that unless a veteran asks for and receives a "release from liability" from the VA office which guaranteed his home loan, he will be liable for payment in the event of default by the purchaser.

Getting a "release from further liability" is simple, officials noted, provided certain conditions are met:

- The veteran's loan must be current.
- The purchaser must agree to assume the veteran's liabilities.
- The prospective purchaser must be a good credit risk.
- Income must be sufficient to cover payments on the G.I. loan.

It was pointed out, however, that a "release of liability" does not automatically restore G.I. loan entitlement the veteran used to purchase the home he sold.

VA may restore entitlement only under certain conditions - mostly those which the agency considers "compelling reasons" for disposing of the property.

At any rate, officials urged veterans who plan to sell G.I. homes [subject to the veterans' mortgage] to apply for a "release" from the VA office which guaranteed their loans before finalizing sales.

Sawyer's Campus Shop Opens New, Larger Hancock St. Location

Sawyer's Campus Shop has come back home to Hancock St. after an absence of 10 years.

The shop that features young men's fashions opened its doors recently at 1508 Hancock St., formerly the Capitol Market, after nearly a decade in cramped quarters at 148 Parking Way.

The new location is only a few doors down from the corner of Hancock St. and Revere Rd. where Sawyer's began as an Army-Navy store 35 years ago.

Behind an imposing brick and glass facade, the handsomely decorated new Sawyer's has 8,000 square feet of floor space [more than four times that of the old store] and employs a staff of 12 [twice as many as the shop on Parking Way].

Although the new Sawyer's will offer a greater variety of young mens sportswear, manager and vice president Jerry Hurwitz, whose father founded the store in 1938, notes that policies will remain the same.

"We will retain the same method of operation on Hancock St. that we had on Parking Way and that is popular brands at realistic prices," he said.

New Coach Art Mosher Depends On Former Jayvees

Quincy has a new varsity baseball coach this spring but he is no stranger to his players.

Following nine years as Presidents' head man, Bob Basiliere, who last year gained his 100th victory, resigned to devote full time to his administrative duties.

Taking over is Art [Bud] Mosher, Quincy's highly successful junior varsity coach for the past seven years.

Succeeding Bud as jayvee coach is Rich Hutchins, a former Boston College and Boston Park League player who has been in the Quincy system for several years.

Mosher will be depending heavily upon his jayvee players of last year. He has only four varsity returnees plus a few jayvees who saw a sprinkling of varsity service.

He is all set for catching with Ron Smith back, and two of the jayvee graduates, Tom Perry and Paul Craig, are other catching hopefuls.

Bobby Lane is the only pitcher with varsity experience and a key man will be Gary Bugdon, a standout for the jayvees last year.

Second baseman Mark Dwyer and third baseman Frank DiSalvio will also do some pitching.

"I expect Lane and Bugdon to do very well but we will be in for trouble in the event of rainouts, piling the games up," Mosher said.

Big Mike Varrasso and Jim French, each with the junior varsity in 1972, are battling it out for first base. Dwyer and DiSalvio appear set at second and shortstop and Bob Benn looks like the third baseman.

Last year Benn was called up to the varsity in the final game with North Quincy, made a sensational catch to prevent a North run, then won the game, 1-0, with a ninth inning hit.

Other infielders are Dennis Fitzgibbons and Dan Sullivan, each of whom should see a good amount of action.

Two veterans, Mike Long and Mike Marvelle, are set in the outfield with Lane, when not pitching, George French and Mike DePaulo also seeking positions.

Two other jayvee graduates who may see some varsity service are Roy Pettinelli and Mark Austin. They are called "real hard workers" by their coach.

"The middle of the batting order, Marvelle, Long and Varrasso shape up as the best hitters," the new coach explained. "We will have good speed and if such boys as DiSalvio, Dwyer, Benn and Fitzgibbons get on base, they will really move.

"We have good talent but the lack of experience will hurt and our depth is a question mark. You have to call this a building year but next year we will be strong with only a few seniors on this year's club."

The Presidents got off to a fast start with two non-league wins last week.

They opened with a 5-3 win over Weymouth North in a rain-shortened game in which Lane was the winning pitcher, and followed up with a 5-1 decision over B.C. High.

Bugdon pitched a brilliant six innings of no-hit, no run ball with 10 strikeouts, and Dwyer finished up well. Marvelle's bases loaded triple was the big blow of the game.

Quincy opens its league season Monday at 10 a.m. at Medford and has four more non-league games this week. Tuesday it hosted Abp. Williams, played at Weymouth South yesterday, again entertains Williams Friday at Adams Field and Saturday at 10 plays at Braintree.

Veteran Infield Key To QJC Title Chances

A veteran infield will hold the key to the success this spring of the Quincy Junior College baseball team which last year won the Mass. Junior College Conference playoffs.

Coach Dave Burke's Collejuns seemed headed for a certain league title only to falter late in the year and finished second. They rebounded with a vengeance to sweep through the playoffs to end their most successful season.

Burke has several holes to fill this year, and has a particularly big job molding a pitching staff.

However, he has three-quarters of his infield back with three hard-hitting former North Quincy High teammates, second baseman Tim Flynn, third baseman Jack Flaherty and shortstop Tony Alibrandi back. Flaherty and Alibrandi are co-captains.

Other veterans are Frank Niles of Weymouth, a good hitting outfielder, catcher George Foley of Hyde Park and pitcher Paul Vickers of North Quincy, whose service last season was extremely limited, although he showed fine promise.

Other pitching hopefuls include Skip Haddix of Quincy, Jim Stenman of Boston, the only southpaw, Jim Broadbent of North Quincy, Jim Anderson of Quincy and Ken Corbett of Boston.

Backing up Foley behind the plate are Jim Fasino of Weymouth and Farris Hanna of Quincy.

Steve Bartlett of Marshfield and Charlie Genovese of Hingham are the first basemen, Pete Bongarzone of Weymouth is backing up Flynn at second base and Joe Corrigan of Dorchester is behind Bartlett at first.

Niles is all set for the left field job and others seeking outfield slots are Dom D'Olimpio of Quincy, John Caprio of Nahant, Dave McKinnon of Braintree, Larry Spano of Hyde Park, Tony Gaeta of Weymouth, Alan Gately of Dorchester and Dick Culkins of North Quincy.

"We will be strong defensively and our hitting should again be solid," Burke said. "Everything depends upon our pitching. Our pitching was strong last year but it will be up to Vickers, Haddix and Stenman to show the way this year."

QJC, which will play all home games at O'Rourke Field, opened Tuesday against Mass. Bay at 3:30 p.m. in a non-conference game. The Collejuns opened their league season Wednesday at East Coast and today [Thursday] hosts Bryant and Stratton in a league game.

North Baseball

Bunker Lacks Power Must Rely On Raider Speed

Last year North Quincy's baseball team had some of the best power hitters in the Greater Boston League with the likes of Jim Driscoll, Dave Nelson and Tom Burke.

Despite a mediocre record, this trio in particular kept the Raiders in the running for at least second place in the GBL and an Eastern Mass. tourney berth until the final week.

This year, as Coach Charlie Bunker again seeks his elusive first tourney berth, the power is lacking and the Raiders will rely on their speed.

"We not only lack last year's power, but also have little experience with only a few varsity returnees," Bunker said. "As in the past, the pitching holds the key. Last year I lost two starting pitchers during the year and we were practically a one-pitcher team late in the season with Bobby Pierce, one of the best in the league, carrying the load."

Pierce is back, which is bad news for the Raiders' foes, but Bunker's number two pitcher, Steve McLaughlin, is hampered by a sore arm and if he is sidelined, it will be up to Tim Clifford, a big sophomore, to take up the slack.

"McLaughlin is a fine pitcher and I was banking on him to team up with Pierce and use Clifford as our third man," Bunker said. "We will be up against it for pitching if McLaughlin is out for long."

Also being depended upon for pitching help is Billy Shea, the starting first baseman.

Bunker lost his entire 1972 infield and it looks like Shea at first, Jim McCabe at second, Lee Watkins or Jack Rabel at shortstop and Kevin Jago at third. When not pitching Pierce will also play third. Bill Carroll is another good infield prospect.

The catching is in good hands with Bobby Morton, backup man to Nelson last year and a fine catcher in Legion ball last summer. He played several games at third base last spring.

The outfield also will be all new with Frank Miceli, Bill Berbaren, Mike Conroy and Paul Cunniff fighting it out for starting spots.

"We had an unusually large turnout of 78 boys including many good looking sophomores, most of whom will play junior varsity ball," the North coach pointed out. "Two of them, John Lawlor, and Rich Befera, could stay up with the varsity."

"It probably will be necessary to drop several boys and I told all the players that I would be keeping tabs on them during the summer and those dropped will have a good shot at making the team next year."

Bunker looks to Morton, Watkins and Shea as the best hitting hopes.

There are two coaching changes this year. Lou Ioanilli, the head soccer coach, has succeeded Jack Bowes, now at Milton, as junior varsity coach, and Ron LaQuaglia, highly successful ninth grade basketball coach, has replaced Mike Hurley as junior high coach.

North dropped a hard-luck 6-5 decision to Weymouth North last week as a passed ball in the sixth inning let in the winning run. The Raiders' had a run nullified earlier when a runner on second, apparently scoring on a single, was called out for failing to touch third base.

Pierce and Clifford pitched creditably for North but wildness hurt them, especially young Clifford. Rabel stood out at shortstop while Minton and Berberan had two hits each.

North opens its league season Monday at 10 a.m. hosting Somerville at Adams Field and this week had several other non-league games. Tuesday it played at Weymouth North, plays today at Milton Academy and Saturday hosts Boston Latin at 10 at Adams Field.

International Festival Offers Cultural Variety Friday, Saturday

Quincy's second annual International Festival climaxes a week-long run Friday and Saturday in the Quincy High Vocational Technical gym with a variety of cultural fare from Greek dances and Israeli songs to a demonstration of Polish paper cutting.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon and School Superintendent Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon will open this part of the festival at 11 a.m. but the program will have begun an hour before with international dances performed by members of the Physical Education Department.

The various cultural exhibits and entertainments, together with samples of national food specialties, will be open to the public between 10 a.m. and 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Special exhibits include: Polish paper cutting by Mrs. Madelyn Sargent of Saugus, winner of numerous paper cutting awards; commemorative stamps by Frank Tamits; crafts of the world by 18 children under the direction of Mrs. Virginia Hurley, coordinator of the Fenway Community Center.

Also a chess match between teams from Quincy and North Quincy High Schools; Dutch shoes by the International Institute of Boston; special slides at the French exhibit by Josianne Roignant; the Patriot Ledger; UNICEF; international currency; and Amity Aides.

Cultural exhibits include French, German, Latin, Spanish [the languages taught in the Quincy School System], plus American Indian, Argentinian, African, Egyptian, English, Greek, Hungarian, Irish, Israeli, Mexican and Swiss.

The entertainment schedule follows:

Spaghetti Day

Some 15 children in grades 5 and 6 at the Furnace Brook Elementary School recently prepared a luncheon for 100 of their younger classmates to "kick off" International Festival Week activities there.

Aided by parents Mrs. Barbara Gale, Mrs. Vivian Carey and Mrs. Carmella Leonhardi, the students served spaghetti, Italian and French breads, salad with French dressing, and desserts from Israel, Italy and France.

The luncheon was an offshoot of the students' studies of Italy and France.

Israel Consul To Attend

Arieh Bilar, Vice Consul of the Consulate General of Israel in Boston, has informed Ellis J. Swartz, Foreign Language Coordinator of the Quincy School System, that he plans to attend Quincy's Second Annual International Festival in the Quincy High School, Vocational-Technical Gym April 13 at 7 p.m.

The Consul General of France, Monsieur Daniel Oriez has also expressed his plans to attend the Festival.

Israel and France are two of the 25 ethnic and cultural groups represented at the Festival which is open to the public.

SPAGHETTI DAY at Furnace Brook Elementary School was a joint effort on the part of students and teachers to prepare foreign foods for students in the lower grades. Shown here are, front row, Cheryl Carey, 6, Paul McKeen, 7, and [back row] Donna Gale, 10, Furnace Brook teacher Mrs. Joanne Daley and Ruth Lingoes, 12.

Ryan O'Neal Doing Own Stuntwork

That campaign to rename downtown East 12th St. in Cleveland BOB HOPE BLVD. [his hometown] ran asnag of too many red lights. The plan was initiated by city councilman GERALD T. McFAUL, one of HOPE'S greatest admirers, but fell through when residents on the street signed a petition against the name-changing, not out of disrespect of BOB HOPE, "but because it would cause many letter mailing problems"...

"MARY POPPINS" will be re-issued this summer when it opens in the world's biggest theatre, N.Y.C.'s Radio City Music Hall... And if JULIE ANDREWS does her TV series next season, it will be taped in London. She and husband BLAKE EDWARDS have made London their permanent home... At this writing EDWARDS is readying "THE TAMARIND SEED", a film starring his wife and OMAR SHARIFF which will be shot in the locales of London, Paris and the Barbados...

Paramount Pictures will world premiere "JONATHAN LIVINGSTON SEAGULL" this Fall... MGM's new comedy "SLITHER" sports the dynamite cast of JAMES CAAN, PETER BOYLE and SALLY KELLERMAN... The new Mafia flick "THE DON IS DEAD" stars ANTHONY QUINN in the lead... Jazz musician SCAT MAN CROTHERS, recently seen in "LADY SINGS THE BLUES", has been tapped for a key role in the JIM BROWN topliner, "SLAUGHTER II"...

"THIS IS CINERAMA" is back! Famed for its roller coaster sequence which literally puts the audience into the roller-coaster itself, "CINERAMA" opens April 4 for an exclusive New England engagement at Boston's Sack Beacon Hill Theatre... RYAN O'NEAL does his own stuntwork in his new release "THE THIEF WHO CAME TO DINNER". This is no mean achievement considering O'NEAL underwent disc surgery last year and it appeared that he would be unable to recover fully and quickly enough to play the demanding role of a cat burglar...

However, O'NEAL was determined to play the part of McGee and undertook a strenuous exercise program which put him in 100% peak condition by the time the cameras rolled on location in Houston, Texas... In the same film, actress JACQUELINE BISSET establishes herself as one of the most beautiful women to appear on the screen today. And she can act too.

"SMILES OF A SUMMER NIGHT" was the first INGMAR BERGMAN film to be adapted to the Broadway stage... Add the name JACK LEMMON to the swelling list of show biz types enthused over the ecology movement... "LOLLY MADONNA XXX", though a film lesson of big name stars not being able to carry the burden of a clumsy property, did have one redeeming quality... The ROD STEIGER-ROBERT RYAN starrer illustrated at the family level the game that nations too often play: the use of force to settle differences...

Aside from that, STEIGER and RYAN overacted in their roles of family patriarchs; young actors JEFF BRIDGES and SCOTT WILSON just didn't "fit" into the hillbilly scenario; and director RICHARD C. SARAFIN was unable to control the tempo of the picture... Other than the theme that war makes no sense, the only other redeeming quality of "LOLLY MADONNA XXX" was the film debut of youthful SEASON HUBLEY, a good-looker with the basic ability to develop into a half way decent film actress...

For the curious, American film box office business is up 6% for the Jan.-Feb. period compared to the comparable period a year ago. And the way receipts are rolling in for the March-April time slot, this 6% figure could be topped... YUL BRYNNER goes before the cameras in the suspense drama "WESTWORLD"... New York Judge JOEL TYLER slapping "DEEP THROAT", one of the most controversial X-raters to come along: "as soon as I saw the picture I knew it wasn't redeeming"...

FRANCIS FORD COPPOLA was singled out as the "Best Motion Picture of 1972" by the Directors Guild of America for his "THE GODFATHER" masterpiece... And in England, LIZA MINNELLI, JOEL GREY, and BOB FOSSE won Awards from the British Society of Film and TV Arts for Acting, most promising newcomer to films and director respectively... You're a World War II vet if you recall condums being referred to as SYLVIA SYDNEY'S because of the latters role in "MADAME BUTTERFLY"...

"WALKING TALL" these days is potential superstar JOE DON BAKER. If ever an actor were more tailor fitted for a role it is BAKER in his newest film... As Buford Pusser, the real life ex-marine, ex-wrestler who became sheriff of a wide-open town in McNairy County, Tennessee, and wiped out gambling, moonshining and prostitution, JOE DON BAKER digs deep into the root of his characterization... BAKER put to good use his early growing years in a small Texas town to capture the flavor of a man like Buford Pusser...

"I knew men like him and he knew people like me and we understood each other." JOE DON added, "they'd give you every chance and then when you turned on them they would shoot you deader than last year's apple cider"... And it is this quality of justice and toughmindedness which BAKER so genuinely captures on the screen. You come away with the impression he isn't acting, so damn good is his performance... For the larger than life, black-haired BAKER born in rural Groesbeck, Texas, his superstar is on the rise...

MASSACHUSETTS BAY TRANSPORTATION AUTHORITY

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Pursuant to Section 3 [d] [1] of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 as amended, the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority will hold a PUBLIC HEARING at 7:30 P.M. on April 26, 1973 at Sterling Junior High School, 444 Granite Street, South Quincy, Massachusetts, concerning its plans for a South Quincy Extension Project which constitutes the next phase of the extension of the South Shore rapid transit line to South Braintree.

The project consists of a 1.5 mile further extension of the South Shore Rapid Transit line utilizing the existing Old Colony Railroad right-of-way. This extension will include one station complex at South Quincy with associated track, power, signals, communications and structures. The South Quincy Station will be located in the City of Quincy approximately 1.5 miles from Quincy Center Station. The station's 1,750 car parking garage and the new expressway ramp system connecting the station with Routes 3 and 128 will be provided by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works, and financially are not a part of the above described project.

The project is estimated to cost $15,890,000. An application for a capital grant of $10,593,333 will be filed with the Urban Mass Transportation Administration of the United States Department of Transportation, under the provisions of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 as amended. The remaining $5,296,667 in capital funds will be provided as local share by the issuance of Authority bonds consistent with authorization granted by the Legislature.

Nine businesses housed in five structures will be displaced by the project and the freight tracks used by the Penn Central will be relocated. No families will be displaced by the project and no significant adverse environmental impacts of the project are expected. A full description of environmental considerations involved in the project is contained in the Environmental Analysis for the project, referred to below. The special needs of the elderly and physically handicapped will be given consideration in this project.

The project is part of the Authority's Approved Program for Mass Transportation, which is based upon the transportation plans and programs prepared by the Massachusetts Department of Public Works, and is consistent with the comprehensive development plans of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council. This application is currently under review by the state and metropolitan A-95 clearing-houses and the Section 204 review agency.

The following documents will be displayed at the hearing, and are available for public inspection at the Offices of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority, 500 Arborway, Jamaica Plain, Massachusetts and at the Office of the South Shore Construction Project Manager at Quincy Center Station.

1. The Application of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority for a Mass Transportation Facilities Grant to the Urban Mass Transportation Administration.

2. The Transit Development Program.

3. An Environmental Analysis describing the environmental impact anticipated as a result of the project.

All interested persons or agencies will be afforded an adequate opportunity to be heard with respect to the social, economic or environmental aspects of the proposed project. Interested persons may submit orally or in writing evidence and recommendations with respect to said project.

Hannon Urges MDC To 'Get Going' On Furnace Brook Flood Control

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has urged MDC Commissioner John W. Sears to "get moving" on flood control projects along Furnace Brook.

Hannon and Sears met Jan. 26 to discuss the situation but so far no action has been taken by the MDC.

"The people whose homes are affected by the Furnace Brook floods have been promised each year since 1955 that something would be done," said the mayor in a letter this week to the commissioner.

"Each promise, however, was contingent on the availability of funds; and the failure of the legislature to respond to the need was always the excuse for inaction.

"Now funds are available to improve a significant portion of the Brook.

"I believe it would be highly irresponsible of us to delay any longer in putting these funds to work where they are most needed and where the legislature had mandated that they be used."

Hospital X-Ray Technician School Receives Approval

The school for x-ray technicians has been operated by the hospital for the last 24 years and presently has seven students enrolled in its two-year course which qualifies graduates for registration as X-Ray Technologists.

Over 600 Invitations Going Out

'Farewell Party' May 24 For Hancock, Lincoln Schools

By TOM HENSHAW

They're throwing a farewell party May 24 for two of the real veterans of the Quincy School System.

About 600 old friends are expected to toast [with coffee and pastry] the passing of the 88-year-old Hancock School and the 84-year-old Lincoln School.

The two schools will be replaced next fall by the new $5 million Southwest Elementary School.

By the time the party rolls around the school will have a name, too.

The school committee is expected to pass on the name at its next meeting, April 25, or, failing that, put it up for a public vote.

Front runner on the list of suggested names is that of Dr. Charles Djerf, former school committeeman and civic leader who died in February.

Invitation to the party will go out to graduates of the two schools and to former members of the teaching staffs.

Each school will have a party of its own, from 7:30 p.m. to 10 p.m., featuring a cake baked in the shape of the school building.

Pictures of graduating classes will be on display in each school, and, in the Hancock, Harry Maki will show movies taken at its 75th anniversary in 1960.

Each visitor will receive a scroll marking the occasion and each former member of the teaching staffs will receive a flower.

Meanwhile, the School Committee authorized Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon to dismiss students of the Hancock and

Major Fund Raising Campaign

YMCA Plans To 'Greatly Expand'

The Quincy YMCA tonight will unveil plans to "greatly expand" its present facilities.

President Floyd J. Folmsbee said a major capital fund campaign will be launched following an informal "kick-off dinner" tonight at 6:30 p.m. at Valle's Steak House, Braintree.

Charles G. Peterson, president Quincy Cooperative Bank, has been named general chairman of the fund-raising campaign. Serving on the campaign executive committee with him are:

Paul E. Hurley, vice-chairman; Robert L. Blair, Fred E. Bergfors Jr., W. Gordon Clark, Thomas F. Curtis, Nissie Grossman, F. J. Landenberger, Frank X. Messina, Charles A. Pearce, J. Brooks Robbie, Peter G. Ruscitto, Winthrop Sargent IV, Floyd Folmsbee and George S. Ramsden Jr.

Serving as honorary co-chairmen are Thomas S. Burgin and A. Wendell Clark.

Folmsbee said:

CHARLES G. PETERSON

"We must expand to meet the needs of an ever-increasing membership. When the present building was erected in 1955, it was designed for 3,000 members and we now have over 6,000 members, so we desperately need more space."

Plans of the proposed expansion will be described at the dinner, which will be attended by several hundred citizens from throughout the South Shore area. Guest speaker will be Bonnie Prudden, one of the leading physical fitness authorities. Miss Prudden, Director of the Bonnie Prudden Institute of Physical Fitness, has been a staunch supporter of the YMCA for many years.

Peterson will serve as master of ceremonies. Other speakers on the program will be: Senator-City Council President Arthur H. Tobin, John Appleton, representing the National Council of YMCA's, Folmsbee, and Dr. V. James DiNardo, who will outline the proposed plans. Rev. John R. Graham of First Parish United Church will give the invocation.

Mrs. Paul C. Reardon, Chairman, and Mrs. Robert A. Gentry are in charge of the dinner arrangements.

Second City Candidate

Warren Powers To Seek Ward 5 Council Seat

Asst. Dist. Atty. Warren Powers Wednesday announced his candidacy for the Ward 5 City Council seat.

Powers becomes the second official candidate in this year's city election–and for the same post.

John J. Lydon, Wollaston funeral director announced his candidacy March 22.

Entrance of both Powers and Lydon into the race at this early date is a sign to political observers that incumbent William D. Delahunt will not seek re-election to the Ward 5 seat.

There is speculation, however, that he may make a bid for council at-large.

A lifelong resident of Wollaston, Atty. Powers joined Norfolk County Dist. Atty. George G. Burke's staff four years ago and has been prominent in the prosecution of welfare fraud and embezzlement cases. He was recently appointed to head up the legal research work of Burke's investigations at Massachusetts Maximum Security Institution at Walpole.

Lincoln Schools a week early so that teachers can move learning materials and equipment to the new building.

The new school, which was first recommended in April, 1965, in a survey by the Arthur D. Little Co. of Cambridge, will open its doors Sept. 5.

The building at the corner of Granite and Water Streets, occupies 103,000 feet of open space on three floors and can house 650 students.

Only the gym and swimming pool remain to be constructed on the adjacent site of the Hancock School, which will be torn down this summer.

Instructional areas are on the second and third floors with a multipurpose area, including a "cafetorium" [cafeteria and auditorium], on the first floor.

The building, including gym and swimming pool, is designed for community use after school hours.

Morrie Hibbard, current principal of the Hancock-Lincoln schools, will also be principal of the new one.

Instruction areas are designed as open space that can be broken up into small spaces by the use of movable partitions.

It's one of the latest innovations in learning.

But when the Hancock School was built in 1885, it too had the latest in innovations.

Room windows faced south and students' desks faced west so that they would read with the light coming over their left shoulders.

Coatrooms were located so that teachers could watch what went on in both coatrooms and classrooms without leaving her seat.

Two large playrooms in the basement neatly segregated the boys from the girls.

And it cost $34,995.76 to build.

The School Committee anted up $35,000 for it – and got $4.24 back unused.

The new building costs about $5 million – but don't expect any change.

Warren Powers To Seek Ward 5 Seat

In announcing his candidacy, Powers said:

"The City Council has the delicate and complex task of approving the millions of dollars expended annually, and the moral obligation to act as the public's watchdog on its money."

"The City Council bears the responsibility for assuring the citizenry that expenditures are correctly made, that budget limits are carefully observed, and that retiring municipal employees are fairly treated."

"This responsibility can only be met through a complete analysis of all expenditures, asking how much it will cost, why are we spending it, and what return are we getting? Wise spending and not more taxes is, I believe, the answer."

Atty. Powers attended Wollaston, Central and Quincy High Schools. He graduated from Suffolk University with a Bachelor of Science Degree in Business Administration and earned his Doctor of Jurisprudence Degree at Suffolk Law School. He completed graduate work at Boston University legal-Medical Institute.

With Law offices at 339 Hancock St., Quincy, Atty. Powers is a member of the Norfolk County and Massachusetts Bar Associations, and the Massachusetts District Attorneys Association.

He is a member of the Montclair Men's Club, the Quincy Lodge of Elks, the North Quincy Council Knights of Columbus, the Wollaston Park Association and the Board of Directors of the South Shore Unit of the American Cancer Society.

He is married to the former Holly Grazioso of Wollaston, and with her, has been active in youth activities in the city.

He was a recreation leader in the Park and Recreation Department program for several years.

In the District Attorney's office, he has served as a Law Enforcement Educator, lecturing to classes on the administration of justice, and working in the drug abuse program.

His "interest and concern for the youth and their problems" led him to become a founder of the Massachusetts Drug Advisory Council.

Wrong Lock, Thick Shrub Invitation To A Burglar

By WILLIAM FETTIG
Quincy Police Department
Planning & Research

The prevention of burglary involves the taking of a little time to check your premises to insure that proper locks are installed on all doors and windows, and that every aspect of your residence makes it as difficult as possible for a burglar to operate.

Go outside and look at your home. Can you see all doors and windows from the street, and from your neighbor's house? Is there a fence or shrubbery that would let a burglar operate unwatched while he picks your door lock, or breaks and opens a window? If there is such an obstruction, consider removing it or cutting it back so your neighbors will be able to watch your home while you are away.

If you have drapes in your home, keep them drawn, unless you are at home and wish to look out. This prevents a would-be intruder from observing a color TV set, a stereo, or silver tea service. If a burglar is able to see these valuable items, he will attempt to find a way in.

Proper locks are a must!! Most locks do not offer good security. Make sure that all entrances are in proper repair, and that locks are secure and well installed.

Most locks used in homes are totally inadequate. The most commonly used lock is the snap lock. It may be housed within the doorknob assembly or in a metal casing attached to the door. The latch snaps into the metal strike plate, and locks automatically when you close the door. These latches are easily maneuvered by the least talented burglar, using only a knife, a piece of wire, a plastic card, or at most, and easily concealed jimmy. Also, the doorknob locks can simply be twisted off with a pipe wrench.

The most secure type of lock for an exterior door is one with a solid dead bolt latch. In order for this to be secure, the dead bolt must extend at least ¾ of an inch from the edge of the door, into the door frame. Locks may also be supplemented with vertical dead bolt auxiliary locks. This type of vertical dead bolt lock secures the door to the frame, thus preventing jimmying or prying of the door. This type of lock must have the strike very securely fastened to the door frame to make it effective.

Any glass door or wooden door with glass panes requires installation of a double cylinder dead bolt lock. This type of lock requires the use of a key to open the dead bolt from both inside and outside the house. It is recommended that, when using this type of lock, the key be left in the lock while you are home, or that it be left unlocked so that in an emergency situation a quick exit can be made. This lock is mainly for security of your home while you are out.

The police department will demonstrate the various types of locks to any interested citizen or group of citizens wishing additional information.

Call the Police Department, Planning & Research Office, at 479-1212, extension 378.

About 400 people attended Attorney General Robert Quinn's recent meeting at the South Shore Country Club. Quinn, an unannounced candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor, met with the Quincy-South Shore Democratic leaders to ask for their support [for what, he didn't exactly say].

One of those attending, with a special interest in Quinn's future plans, was Dist. Atty. George Burke of Wollaston. Burke has more than a passing interest in the A. G.'s position, but will have to wait until Quinn makes up his mind to vacate the Attorney General's office.

Should Burke give up his county position to run for A.G. we can expect a lively campaign on the county level, with the top posts of District Attorney, Sheriff and County Commissioner up for grabs in 1974.

She started out as a stenographer in 1921 [at $13 a week] and in 1967 was appointed Director [the first woman in the history of Massachusetts to hold that position].

COUNTY COMMISSIONER JAMES COLLINS of Milton reminds us that it's Norfolk County's 180th anniversary this year. Norfolk County was created in 1793 when the area was separated from Suffolk County [the year before, Quincy had separated from Braintree]. One of the reasons for the separation from Boston was an attempt to escape from the Boston lawyers who controlled Suffolk County's court system.

Norfolk County is believed to be the only county in the United States that has non-contigious towns: Brookline and Cohasset. Brookline is entirely surrounded by parts of Suffolk County and Cohasset by Plymouth County.

- Watergate And Mysterious Money
- The Mail Problem
- Chiang's Impossible Dream

WASHINGTON — Reporters are still trying to put together the jigsaw pieces of the baffling Watergate puzzle. The picture has become confused by a whirlwind of rumors, leaks, charges and denials. We have done our best to separate the hard from the soft facts. Here is the picture that emerges:

In 1971, President Nixon became alarmed as Sen. Ed Muskie overtook him in the presidential polls. The President, who has a zest for political intrigue, called for an undercover intelligence-gathering operation. His instructions were implemented by his chief of staff, H.R. Haldeman, who issued the orders through White House aides and the President's personal lawyer.

There is no evidence that the President or Haldeman ever intended that their subordinates get involved in anything illegal. Three separate operations began to take form: One, spying upon the Democrats; two, sabotage against the Democrats; and three, internal security to make sure the Democrats didn't do the same thing to them.

The three activities ultimately became combined under the control of two White House aides, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt. Liddy maintained the contacts with the higher-ups. He told his coconspirators that he got his orders from Attorney General John Mitchell, both before and after Mitchell left the Justice Department.

Liddy even described, in detail, the meetings he held with Mitchell to discuss the Watergate bugging. Mitchell vigorously denies that any such meetings ever took place. Liddy has refused to talk about it under oath, preferring to accept a stiff prison sentence instead. What he told his colleagues, meanwhile, is strictly hearsay.

Liddy and Hunt, together with their break-in crew, have now been convicted. But those who took the rap by pleading guilty have continued to receive mysterious cash payments. Someone higher than Liddy and Hunt has continued to furnish money to the Watergate conspirators.

The Cycle Express: In frontier days, the daring riders of the pony express raced across the country on horseback, delivering the mail at unheard-of speeds.

Although the method of transportation has become much more sophisticated today, with the jet plane replacing the horse, the postal system has not cut down the cross-country delivery time appreciably.

It has now been two years since the post office was put on a business basis. The whole idea was to increase efficiency and improve service. Congressional investigators have been checking into citizens' complaints about the service. Their preliminary, unpublished findings are that long-distance mail delivery is slower today than it was two years ago. Cross-town delivery within most cities is slower than two years ago, and overall service is increasingly erratic.

Our congressional sources lay much of the blame on former Postmaster General Winton Blount. Blount started the reorganization of the Post Office and then left in the middle of it. The new head man, E.T. Klassen, was left to tie up the loose ends, of which there were many.

Besides the reorganization shuffle, Klassen also has to fight the bugaboo of many new administrators — the entrenched bureaucracy.

For example, Klassen recently went on an inspection tour. Everything seemed to be running smoothly. What he didn't know was that local postmasters had brought in extra help to make themselves look good. In at least one case, they actually hid mail outside the post office to conceal the evidence of their snail-like working pace.

All of the problems have citizens howling and congressional investigators scurrying. But whether the flurry of activity speeds the mail eventually remains to be seen.

One Washington wit has suggested that the answer may be to bring back the pony express, perhaps replacing the ponies with motorcycles.

Impossible Dream: the venerable but implacable Chiang Kai-shek has salted away millions of dollars to finance his dream of reconquering the Chinese mainland. This has been reported to the Pentagon by our military advisory group in Taipei.

In their secret report, the advisers note: "We do know privately that (Chiang's government) has considerable sums of money in special funds, mostly marked for contingency use in mainland recovery."

But the old warrior had counted upon American support to help him retake the mainland. Now he has seen his dream shattered. His old friend and ally, Richard Nixon, has suddenly started to court the Chinese Communists. They, in turn, have lost no opportunity to remind Taiwan that the United States is now their friend. They have appealed to Taiwan to reunite with the motherland voluntarily. The appeal has been made from Peking by former Nationalist leaders now in the Communist camp.

But those who know old Chiang say he still hasn't given up dreaming the impossible dream. It is the "cement," says the secret report, that holds his government "intact in the absence of any real or emotional rallying point." And he may have another ace up his sleeve.

There is no more intransigent anti-Communist than Chiang Kai-shek. Yet, in order to achieve the impossible dream, he has now started to think the unthinkable thoughts. He has hinted that he might just switch allegiance from the United States to the Soviet Union.

The Russians, whose hostility toward their Chinese Communist comrades seems to be heightening daily, have given Chiang quiet encouragement. A Soviet United Nations delegate showed up the other day, for example, at a conference on Taiwan. He argued that Taiwan is not part of China and need not be returned to Peking's control.

The old diehard anti-Communists must be blinking their eyes in disbelief — what with Richard Nixon courting Peking and Chiang Kai-shek flirting with Moscow.

Takes Issue With Councilor Barilaro Over Rents

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I would like to take issue with Councillor Barilaro concerning the statements he made at the April 2 Council Meeting about landlords raising rents.

Why should Councillor Barilaro indict all landlords for the actions of a few? It is the landlords who have from the beginning played a great part in the building of cities. Most tenant rent increases are small compared to the 100% salary increase Councillor Barilaro voted himself for his part-time job. No other employees in the world have the privilege of raising their own salaries except elected officials.

The careless spending of the cities money by the City Council and others is responsible for most of the increases in rent. Everyone, including the landlords, should pay their fair share, but why should 30% of the taxpayers have to carry a greater burden than others. Are the landlords expected to pay ever increasing taxes without increasing rents?

Mr. Barilaro owes an apology to the landlords in this city who treat their tenants fairly and honestly. Both sides of the question should be heard and Mr. Barilaro should not think he has all the power in settling this matter in a one-sided manner.

...If he spent as much time earning his salary conducting city business as he does maligning honest people who are the backbone of this city, the city would be much better off.

'Big People' Should Listen To Young Adults

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Three cheers for your page, "Quincy High - Voc Tech News".

You do have many editorials written by responsible, aware young adults.

After just observing another flagrant violation of the school bus law, and this happens almost daily, I felt compelled to come in and corroborate Bruce Corwin's editorial of March 15th titled "Woodward Ave. Sometimes Like Dragway".

It is a helpless situation to see motor vehicle laws being broken and not having the jurisdiction or the power to do anything about them.

A great many of these offenders are OVER eighteen, we call them adults.

Will our "big people" PLEASE listen to our young adults who write these editorials, as they know whats going on.

The birth of spring must not be marred by the death or maiming of one of our loved ones.

Yours for a better world.

Mrs. John D. MacInnis

Brett Thanks Hannon, Finn For Foot Patrolman

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I would like to publicly express the appreciation of myself and many other residents and merchants in the Montclair area to Mayor Hannon and Police Chief Finn for the assignment of a foot patrolman in the area.

Though the "cop-on-the--beat" has only been in effect a short time, area residents have already noticed an improvement in the neighborhood atmosphere. Peace and quiet is again the rule.

We hope this improvement will last and that it may establish a precedent for more foot patrolmen in other sections of the city.

Once again...Thank You,
Mayor Hannon and Chief Finn.

South Quincy Civic Association Appreciates MBTA Coverage

Editor, Quincy Sun:

The officers, directors and membership of the South Quincy Civic Association join in extending a sincere "thank you", for the recent coverage your publication afforded our city-wide petition drive against the proposed South Quincy MBTA Station.

Your story was timely, factual and most interestingly written. We have received numerous requests for petitions, as well as many volunteer workers as the result of your splendid front page story.

While we fully realize that you have not taken sides in the MBTA issue, we are especially grateful that you printed the entire story and stuck strictly to the facts. Concern and accurate reporting such as this can only bring success and continued good fortune to you and yours.

PEOPLE LIKE YOU HELPING PEOPLE LIKE YOU

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Coincidental with arrival of each season is the arrival of the seasonal gypster using his timely set of schemes to defraud the unsuspecting Massachusetts consumers.

Home improvement is the ruse many of these tricksters use during the spring and summer months. So, as winter comes to an end, door-to-door salesmen such as those selling aluminum siding begin their yearly bell-ringing.

Many of these salesmen offer a legitimate product. However, during the past several seasons my Consumer Protection Division has received reports from Massachusetts homeowners of sales techniques that persuade them to purchase costly siding for unnecessary remodeling.

One of these devious techniques is called referral selling. A salesman tells a buyer that his home will be used as a model for other prospective aluminum siding customers. In addition, for each sale made from the showing, the salesman promises that the homeowner will receive a bonus. According to the salesman, the homeowner can earn enough in bonuses to recover the entire cost of the siding.

In Massachusetts referral selling is illegal. The Consumer Protection Division has found that when this scheme is used, the siding sold is generally more expensive than siding sold through conventional techniques. But sales tactics need not be dishonest. Many homeowners by the mere fact of being faced with a persuasive salesman have found themselves buying siding they do not need or cannot afford. Realizing their mistake, homeowners often feel the contract binds them to the hasty purchase.

Two state laws give Massachusetts consumers three days during which they may cancel a contract.

If a homeowner purchases siding on credit, he must receive a dated notice advising him that he retains the right to cancel the contract up until midnight of the third business day after having received the notice. To cancel the contract the buyer must notify the creditor by mail or telegram. The buyer is entitled to cancel the contract if the contract was signed in the buyer's home; or at a location other than the seller's place of business, or if the contract calls for four or more payments with an interest charge.

The cancellation must be in writing and must be postmarked within three business days after the buyer receives his contract.

'Your New Marriage Contract'

Amidst the beautiful flowers and burning candles ... the soft music of the organ and the mellow voice of the clergyman ... you stood before your relatives and friends at the altar and made a marriage contract. What were the terms? It's doubtful that you knew ... It's doubtful that you and your partner had really formed an agreement which you publicly accepted before the congregation and God. Yes ... you agreed to love each other ... but that means different things to different people. Besides love is expressed in our everyday transactions with each other ... and if we don't know WHAT WE CAN COUNT ON ... and what our NEEDS are, love has a way of fading quite rapidly. LOVE ALONE IS NOT ENOUGH.

I'm suggesting that most people would do well to re-write ... or up-date their marriage contract. Most people have only a fuzzy idea of what they are agreeing to at the time of their marriage. It's little wonder that there are so many quarrels ... sad faces ... hidden resentments in marriage. We need to know what is expected ... what we agreed to.

Take some examples: what is your contract regarding breakfast? Who gets it? What time? Do you wives get taken out on Saturday nights? Was that in your contract? Can you husbands watch the Bruins without interruption? Was that in your contract? Do you want pillow talk at night? What about going to Church? What about the children's discipline? Do you agree sexually? Amount of affection? number of dogs? Cats? Friends? Golf? Handling of money? Do you know what you can count on? Or is it all fuzzy leading to misunderstandings ... disappointments ... growing resentments ... fights?

Here's an example of a new marriage contract which Phyllis and Harrell are starting ... it isn't complete yet ... it takes time to write a good contract. Phyllis and Harrell were having much trouble over ENTERTAINMENT. Here's their new contract on ENTERTAINMENT:

I. We mutually agree to entertain guests once each month ... the occasion to be agreed upon the first of the month ... dinner party ... theatre ... cocktail party ... cook-out, etc.

II. We mutually agree to plan together for such occasions in the selection of guests ... what we shall do ... the cost ... and to work together both in the preparation and the clean-up.

III. We mutually agree that these occasions are for the express purpose of having fun ... enjoying each other ... expressing ourselves creatively ... and that jealousies ... criticism of each other ... or any negative attitude will be talked through to the complete satisfaction of each.

That was Phyllis and Harrell's ENTERTAINMENT CONTRACT. They're now working on other aspects of their marriage contract. Their love for each other bathes the whole relationship ... but they know what they can count on. Do you?

How Much Can You Earn While Receiving Social Security ?

The League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone received several calls asking how much additional income can a person receiving Social Security retirement benefits earn without loss of those benefits?

Volunteers answering the Voter Information Phone researched the question and found that recipients may earn up to $2,100 a year and still remain eligible for Social Security benefits. Once they reach the age of 72 they may earn as much as they wish; they will still receive Social Security payments. Those on pensions may still earn up to $2,100 a year since pensions are not considered current earnings.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Jack Conway Sales Up 69% Over Last Year

Real estate sales activity for the 12 South Shore and Cape Cod offices of the Jack Conway organization for the first quarter of 1973 shows a 69% increase over last year, according to figures released by Vice President John R. Reardon.

Total sales volume for the period amounted to $12,457,000, which figures out to about $1 million a week in residential and commercial sales.

"This is the first time that any residential sales office in New England has been able to set such a blistering pace of activities as this $1 million a week figure," said Reardon.

Topping the company's offices was the Hanover sales office which logged $1,600,000 during the period. The best percentage of increase of any of the company sales offices turned in by the Hingham office, which is moving ahead at a pace better than twice that of last year.

"I am constantly amazed at the fast running sales figures", stated Reardon "and I attribute this to the plentiful supply of mortgage money in the area, plus an abundance of young and enthusiastic buyers".

Student's Suggestion

Social Health Week Set At North May 7-11

By MARY BUCKLEY

The week of May 7-11 has been declared Social Health week at North Quincy High.

The program was suggested by senior class vice-president Dave Ashmanskas and developed by Robert Mahoney, Social Health Director of Quincy Public Schools.

The schedule will consist of speakers, conferences and workshops conducted by professionals from the Quincy area. Represented during the week will be the Division of Alcoholism, The Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission, Survival Inc., the Department of Youth Services, the Massachusetts Parole Board, the Narcotics Division of the Quincy Police Department, and members of the clergy.

An attempt has been made to secure speakers from the field of medicine, but definite plans have not yet resulted.

It has been planned that during the morning hours of each of the five days of the program there will be a presentation of facts pertaining to the subject of concern, to be followed by workshops or seminars in the afternoon. Subject matters will be presented as follows:

MONDAY, May 7: DRUGS, as seen from the phsycho-social aspect as opposed to the pharmaceutical point of view.

TUESDAY, May 8: ALCOHOL and its relationship to society. A very timely topic since the lowering of the drinking age.

WEDNESDAY, May 9: Various family problems.

THURSDAY, May 10: Rehabilitation in the form of hospitals, drug centers, alcoholics, mental and penal institutions.

FRIDAY, May 11: Social Institutions and their roles. For example: education, religion, correctional institutions, etc.

When asked why the program was organized, Mr. Mahoney reflected, "It was not created to dramatize or draw attention to the problems, but to take the last week of school for seniors and give direction to students and the faculty on health problems, and also to give the community a chance to have their questions answered."

The program will be available to seniors with good academic standing only.

Senioritis Spreads

It Happens Only Once A Year!

By JACKIE BANGS

June 6th is the designated date of graduation ceremonies in Quincy, but by the looks of things at North Quincy High, it may as well be tomorrow!

Consider first of all, the apparent development of "Senioritis" that has inflicted a growing number of the seniors As each day brings dismissal and graduation nearer, the excitement and anxiety towards the coming events makes the schoolday a little harder to face

Books? Homework? Ask any senior about those two subjects and they'll act as if they didn't have the slightest idea as to what you were talking about.

On April 12, however, all the obvious indications as to the end of an era - The Class of 73 - were present. The English resource center had been transformed into Senior Headquarters and for the most part of the day, it couldn't of been anything else

Starting at 8:30 a.m., the seniors were called down in order of homerooms to be tagged, measured, charged and made ready for shipment, that is GRADUATION!

Booths were set up for the purposes of recording names and payment but "order" was out of the question. On entering the room, one was measured for the graduation cap and gown, impressed for the payment of $3.50 and then received the catalog of his years, the yearbook, Volume I.

CAPS AND GOWNS confusion is a part of "Senioritis" at North Quincy which fortunately happens only once a year.

But that's not all. Green trash bags, full of beach towels that had been sold by the Girls' Club had arrived and if you ordered one, you could start the summer early. In addition, before you got out the door, you may have been persuaded to buy a ticket to the Senior Farewell party that was given by the juniors, Friday the 13th. If one hadn't been preoccupied previously with thoughts of graduation, you now left that room in a state of wild and restless anticipation.

Many of you former graduates may have your own memories as to the preparation of graduation, but Thank God it only happens once a year!

Who could take all that confusion and excitement more than once???

Foreign Language Classes Serve Up Delicacies

By JOSEPH CARROLL

The foreign language classes at North Quincy High School were serving a vast spectrum of delicacies from many lands, April 11.

Spanish teacher, Ann Martyak explained that during Brotherhood week, April 8-14, all the schools were having special programs. This included the food fair at North, and the City International Festival at Quincy Vocational Technical School April 13.

Miss Kathleen Huchinson, a German teacher, was the central chairman of the food fair at North. She said the administration of Quincy High conceived the idea. Each language teacher at North was given $20 to buy ingredients for the foods connected with their particular language. Foods were prepared by teachers and students.

The purpose was to prepare students for living in other

PLAY IT COOL

A Seattle man decided to heat up a pressure can because the flow of the contents was sluggish. The top blew off, struck the man in the face and cut off his nose. In New York State, an attendant at a village incinerator opened the door to stoke the fire. A spray can exploded and destroyed one of his eyes. In Ohio, a man put an aerosol container onto a pile of burning leaves. It exploded, hurling a sliver of debris into the man's leg, slashing an artery and causing him to bleed to death. In San Diego, a man put an aerosol paint can into a pan of boiling water. The can exploded and the man lost the sight of his left eye. In Virginia, a 4-year-old boy's eye was injured when a spray starch can exploded in a backyard incinerator.

There are many unique ways of getting injured by exploding aerosol cans. The morale is - keep them away from heat or you'll have an unguided aerosol missle. Play it cool with pressure cans!

cultures. After all, even if you could get along in other countries without the language or money, you still have to eat their foods.

Each language had a sub-chairman. They were Miss D'Arcangelo [Spanish], Miss Haganback [French], and Mrs. Reinersten [Latin].

To show you how different those foods can be, the German students had Citrus Torte [pineapple pastry], Apfelkuchen [apple cake], Schwarzwalde-kirchtorte [chocolate cake with cherry burgundy in it], and Schnapps [actually diluted Zarex].

The French classes got Canadian Honey drops, butter cookies, lace cookies, and cherry noels. Spanish students had Gazpacho [a southern spanish salad], tortillo espanola [stuffed omeletes], Arroz con pollo [chicken with rice], Flah [carmel custard], tortilla chips with "hot" sauces, and Sangria punch.

North Seniors Have Variety Of Plans

Our staff has compiled a listing of seniors who will soon be graduating and their individual ambitions.

Ken Graham is planning to work with Carlson Metal Craft as a metal fabricator. John Stevens has been accepted to Northeastern, Acadia University, and Nichols College, but he hopes to go to the University of Vermont. John is willing to play football at any college he attends, and he's majoring in Business Administration.

Bob Schaetzl intends to go to Boston College where he will major in Sports Management [football]. Robert E. Benson is going to attend Quincy Junior College and plans to continue to a "four-year" school to obtain a bachelor degree for teaching Industrial Arts. Robert presently works as a gas station attendant and as a busboy during the summer.

Danny Atkinson is a "small boss" at the Bargain Center and wishes to further pursue a career in that and possibly other retail stores. Scott Holbrook will attend Wentworth Institute, majoring in Building Construction Technology. After completing this schooling, he would like to work for the Bristol Boat Building Company as a materials man.

Steven Cavanagh is quite content to work at McDonald's full time for the time being, though he has no ambition to make it his lifetime career. He'd like to attend a school for Airplane Mechanics eventually.

Rhonda Randall is currently trying to obtain funds so that she may attend Northeastern University. Her ambitions aren't all too clear just yet, but she would like to go into social work of some sort, and she's enrolled at the college under Liberal Arts. Rhonda is currently working at Brigham's as a waitress. Maureen Conlan works for Kemper Insurance as a junior typist and wishes to continue in her job.

Ken Shine would like to attend West Point, but if he is unable to, he will attend Boston University College of Liberal Arts, where he's already been accepted. Bernard J. O'Donald intends to go to the University of Massachusetts in Boston where he will major in Engineering.

Ed Petit will be working full time at the Capitol Market as head cashier, and perhaps he will attend night school at Quincy Junior College next year for a course in management and accounting. Thomas F. Rice will be attending Massachusetts Maritime Academy in Buzzards Bay, Cape Cod. Tom isn't yet decided as to what he'll major in but he thinks it's either Oceanography or Marine Engineering. Mash Anderson will be attending Quincy Junior College.

Gary Cunniff will probably attend Northeastern University in the College of Engineering, where he will major in Civil engineering. He would like to study architecture but if he doesn't get accepted into Harvard, he'll try again next year. Judy McLaughlin currently works as a proof machine operator in the First National Bank of Boston. She hopes to attend Airline Training School and perhaps go into communications.

Kathleen Hughes has been accepted at Eastern Nazarene where she will major in Biology. Marie Giordano has been accepted to Boston U. where she will major in physical therapy.

International Festival Really Something Special

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

Did you visit the International Festival? If not, you missed something rather extraordinary.

With a theme of Peace, Love and Brotherhood, the Quincy School System brought together, under the roof of the Vocational-Technical High School, a delightful display of divergent cultures. Centered around a performance area, within which one saw a variety of cultural and ethnic presentations, ranging from a children's symphony to a gripping Afro-American dance group, were some 23 booths offering displays, informational brochures and foods from a number of countries.

To wander through the festival, browsing here, tasting food there, watching members of the Quincy and North Quincy High School Chess Club take on all comers and enjoying the performances of the amateur and professional participants, had to be an experience enjoyed and savored for some time to come.

I had to reflect, also, on the theme, Peace, Love and Brotherhood. It is so appropriate today. For the first time in nearly 40 years, there is a faint glimmer of hope for lasting international peace. It is, I grant, a rather tenuous hope, but one which we all want and pray for. Love and Brotherhood, will as the popular song says, "that's the only thing that there's just too little of."

There's no question that such past virtues as courtesy, consideration, decency and honesty have tended to be ignored in recent years. A pervasive atmosphere of "the end justifies the means", "I'm alright, Jack", "getting mine", and some of the other divisive attitudes which have made all our lives considerably less pleasant, have fostered chasms between age groups, between religions, between nationalities.

However, programs such as the International Festival make positive impact on such situations. By bringing together divergent groups, by offering, in a small way, information which might tend to disperse misconceptions and by involving people of all ages and backgrounds, they make a contribution.

You know, it is particularly appropriate that our city have such a festival because we do, here in Quincy, have segments of our population with strong ethnic ties to the "old countries". I'm thinking particularly of those in our community descended from Irish, Italian, and Scottish immigrants. In many instances, today's generations are far removed in point of time from their intrepid ancestors. However, the pride of origin still exists.

It was not so long ago that our annual Thanksgiving football game between the two high schools was really an annual struggle for supremacy by the Irish at the north end of the city and the Italians at the southern end.

However, the great vehicle of brotherhood, marriage, has, over the years, made great strides away from that rather narrow rationale. It is common today to find milk white skin, blue eyes and light hair sporting ancient names such as Leone and DiBona while names replete of the bog, such as Murphy and Flaherty are born by dark eyes and olive skins.

Having lived in Quincy and having seen it happen, brotherhood in Quincy, based upon love, I say congratulations Ellis Swartz, congratulations and thanks for the second annual International Festival.

Lower Employer, Employee Tax

Burke Bill Would Increase SS Benefits By 50%, Hike Earning Limit To $3,000

By PAUL HAROLD
Quincy Sun Correspondent

WASHINGTON - Congressman James A. Burke's "Revenue Sharing Plan with the People", House Bill 48, is a new approach to Social Security funding, benefits and taxation.

High food prices, rising rents, rising cost of living and a regressive tax structure hurt nearly everyone in our society, but the people who suffer most are the millions of elderly who live on the fixed income of Social Security. Congressman Burke has long recognized this sad situation and reintroduced H.R. 48 in this session of Congress.

"Millions of elderly people who have worked all their lives and are entirely dependent on Social Security for income are now forced to apply for old age assistance to meet their needs," Burke said. "By increasing Social Security we can take these people off old age assistance."

The present system of taxation is highly regressive and penalizes the lower income worker.

A worker 20 years old will have to live till age 70 to get back the money he has paid into Social Security, and he will have to live to age 78 to get back the money his employer has paid.

Adoption of H.R. 38 would give approximately 80 million people a pay raise and provide an incentive to work.

First, the proposal would give approximately 25 million elderly an immediate 50 per cent increase in benefits. Some of the hardship of living on a fixed income in these days of inflation and rising food costs would be alleviated. It would also reduce the welfare rolls by taking some people off old age assistance, freeing some state and federal monies.

Second, the bill would change the tax structure, by shifting a part of the Social Security contributions from the employee and employer to the government. The present one half employee, one half employer contributions would be changed to one third employee, one third employer and one third general revenues.

Right now the Social Security tax rate is 5.8 per sent on earned income up to $10,800. If H.R. 48 is adopted, the tax would drop to 3.9 per cent. For every $100, the taxpayer would pay $3.80 instead of $5.80. This represents a $2. savings for each worker and releases that money for his own use.

"My proposal puts money back in the pockets of the people where it belongs, said Congressman Burke. "They know how to use it."

Third, Burke's bill would raise the amount of outside earnings which a beneficiary could have without suffering deductions from his benefits. The amount of earnings would be increased from its present $2,100 limit to $3,000.

"This bill also has tremendous appeal for the business community," said Burke. "Employers benefit from it because their share of the Social Security tax drops to one third. This frees a considerable amount of money to utilize in investment or whatever way the employer wishes."

Congressman Burke feels the additional cost could easily be financed by closing some of the glaring loopholes that now riddle our tax system.

"My Revenue Sharing Plan with the People is actually a modest proposal," Burke pointed out. "The benefits should be much higher, but it is a realistic proposal whose time has come."

Burke said that other reforms could be added to H.R. 48 as amendments if Congress so desired.

"Perhaps the wage-base could be adjusted. Our Social Security system needs reform badly. However, my bill goes a long way toward providing equity and adequate benefits. It has appeal and advantages for many segments of society: the elderly, the worker, the employer and the government. Support for H.R. 48 is building and chances for its enactment are improving."

As a member of the Ways and Means Committee, Burke has been one of the architects of the reform of Social Security laws in the last eight years. And he's also been the watch-dog of the Social Security Trust Fund, stopping the federal government's practice of borrowing money from the fund, at low interest rates.

Hannon Calls Conference For Volunteers April 25

Mayor Walter J. Hannon plans to sponsor a one-day conference April 25, on "Voluntarism, the Immediate Realism".

All community service agencies have been invited to explore means of maintaining or broadening program through use of volunteers.

North In League Win Over Somerville

North Quincy's baseball team lost both its non-league games but opened its Greater Boston League season with a 7-5 win over Somerville Monday at Adams Field.

The Raiders yesterday played at Chelsea, will play at Everett Friday at 10 a.m. and Monday will be home to Revere at Adams Field.

Coach Charlie Bunker admitted the win over Somerville left something to be desired as his players missed several signs to put themselves in trouble but said, "it is good anytime you can beat Somerville."

The outstanding player for North was Bobby Morton. The starting catcher relieved starting pitcher Bob Pierce in the seventh with one out and two runs in, cutting North's lead to 6-5, and blanked Somerville over the last 2 2/3 innings. He also had a great day at the bat with a triple, double and single and had a sacrifice hit his final time up.

Dan Minton and Jim McCabe had two hits each and Sophomore Jack Rabel, batting leadoff, had two more walks and a hit and continued to sparkle at shortstop.

The Raiders didn't fare well in non-league games and Saturday lost to Boston Latin, 8-4, for their second non-league loss in a row.

North led, 3-0, after tive innings but Latin exploded for all eight runs in the sixth inning, described by Bunker as "the worst inning of baseball in my five years at North Quincy."

Everything went wrong for the Raiders in that inning. Sophomore Tim Clifford, who was shaky with four walks but had given up only one scratch hit, walked the first two batters in the sixth and Bunker put in Pierce.

But the nightmare continued with three safe bunts, a fly which should have been caught but dropped in for an extra base hit in right field, more walks and errors and that was the game.

Lee Watkins and Mike Conroy had three hits apiece for North, Billy Shea had only one hit but hit the ball hard every time and Jack Rabel walked twice.

"I just hope we left all our bad baseball in that inning," Bunker said.

Charlie McCormack was the winner for 18-20 year old men, followed by Rico Lorenzetti and Charlies Johnson.

The 21-30 year old division was won by Bob Perchard, followed by Stanley Picarski, Paul Jon Conti, John Picarski, Tom Healy, Allen Harvey and Dennis Moore.

Tom Morrell was the winner in the 31 and over division, followed by Jim Walker, Bill Murphy, Bob Kamb, Bob Batson, Sandy Rounseville and Paul Shaw.

The women's division was won by Ginger Denvir, followed by Leslie Kenny, Lois Murphy, Ronnie Collagan, Laurel Baker, Lynne Belanger, Virginia Kamb, Pam Craig, Jean Aupperlee, Judy Morris, Theresa Forgeron and Teri Baker.

William Morrell, Raymond LaRue, Eben Robertson, Jack Morris and Frank Kerien were in charge of the arrangements and Leo J. Kelly was the starter for the 20th year.

Rick Wilson and Mark Fanning split the game in the Quincy goal while Tim Pyne, Mike Conti and Gary Dilorio also played well.

After a winning record in non-league games, the Quincy baseball team dropped its Greater Boston League opener Monday, bowing, 5-2, at Medford.

The Presidents made another try for their first league win yesterday against Revere. Friday they host Chelsea at 10 a.m. at Adams Field and Monday will play at Somerville.

Quincy was held to five hits at Medford and scored both runs in the fourth on hits by Mike Marvelle, Bob Benn and Mike Varrasso and a sacrifice fly by Mike DePaulo. The other hits were collected by George French and Bobby Lane.

Lane pitched a good game but was foiled by some cheap hits. He went all the way, striking out six and walking three. Second baseman Mark Dwyer made the fielding play of the game, a diving catch.

The Quincy junior varsity, under new coach Rick Hutchinson, walloped Medford, 11-4, with Tim Riley pitching the entire game. This gave the Quincy jayvees a 4-2 overall mark.

The Presidents, following three non-league wins, struck a snag last week and dropped a pair of decisions to Abp. Williams, taking a 3-2 non-league mark into Monday's league opener.

Following wins over Weymouth North and B.C. High, Quincy pulverized Weymouth South, 11-0.

While Paul Craig held Weymouth to three hits, his mates pounded out 16 including six for extra bases.

Marvelle had a home run and single, Lane a triple and double, Benn a double and two singles, Jim French a double and single, Mike Varrasso two singles and Frank DiSalvio a double.

In the first of two games with Williams, Lane pitched excellent ball for eight innings, the teams being tied, 1-1, but Mosher, wanting to save him for Monday's league opener, lifted him and the roof fell in as Williams scored six unearned runs for a 7-1 win. "It was a nightmarish inning for us," the Quincy coach said.

The second game was also won by Williams, 4-1, despite a good pitching performance by Mark Dwyer. Marvelle paced the attack with two hits.

Bob Hayes To Be Honored On May 17

Quincy Youth Hockey will honor one of its principal founders, Bob Hayes, with a testimonial dinner May 17 at the Lantana in Randolph.

Hayes and his wife, Audrey, were instrumental in starting Quincy Youth Hockey eight years ago with 43 youngsters skating early morning ice time at Ridge Arena in Braintree.

Now there are more than 750 boys playing [and a lot more waiting to play] and in July Quincy Youth Hockey will open its own $700,000 skating facility in Houghs Neck.

Hayes has stepped down as president of Quincy Youth Hockey but he will remain with the program, coaching, instructing and working with the rink committee.

Tickets for the Hayes testimonial are available through the Bob Hayes Testimonial Committee, 50 Warwick St., and should be obtained before the closing date, Friday, April 27.

The testimonial will begin with a cocktail hour at 6:30 p.m. and will be followed by dancing until midnight.

Squirt B's Split

The Quincy Squirt "B" team bowed to Easton, 4-2, and whipped Cohasset, 6-1, in Alamo Hockey League action last week at Hingham Arena.

Bob Beniers had a goal and an assist, Tommy Joe Connelly had a goal and Mark Boussy and Mike Doherty had an assist apiece in the Easton game.

Beniers, with two goals and an assist, and Connelly, with three assists, led the way in the Cohasset game.

Boussy had two goals and Doherty a goal and an assist.

Fred Palmer scored the sixth goal and Paul McConville added an assist.

North Track

Gentry Banking On Lettermen

Veteran North Quincy track coach Bob Gentry is banking on a fine group of lettermen to bring the Raiders back from a disappointing 1972 spring season and to continue the success of the winter team.

Last spring North won only one meet but during the winter tied for the Greater Boston League championship with a 5-1 mark.

Gentry has lettermen in 10 of the 14 events including a two-event record holder and a promising group of youngsters to back up the veterans.

"The league had some real good teams during the winter and I expect they will carry over and I see a very close race this spring," Gentry said. "These kids I have back are all competitive and they should do pretty well."

Among the top lettermen is Bob McCormack, a senior who holds the GBL winter records in the mile [4:42] and 1000-yard run [1:25]. He will probably run the half mile this spring along with another letterman, senior Bob Crowell.

Another outstanding returnee is senior Jack Reynolds, who ran the fastest 300-yard run in the Class B indoor state tourney trials. Unfortunately he pulled a muscle and couldn't compete in the finals.

Reynolds is expected to be tops in the low hurdles along with senior letterman Chuck deVarennes, and also will compete in the high jump with sophomore Mark Canavan.

Canavan's strong event is the 440. "He was one of our consistent winners in the indoor 600-yard run," Gentry said.

Other lettermen are Steve Fransoco, high hurdles and shot put; Dave Ashmanskas, dash; Jack Pomerole, 220; Dick Malloy, veteran miler; John Murphy, two-mile; Pete Quinn, javelin, and Mark Mulvaney, Discus.

Among the younger candidates coming along fast are Jeff Hennessey, high hurdles; sophomores Paul O'Donnell and Paul Doherty, dash; sophomore Steve Grant and junior Charley Eaton, 220; junior Rich Coughlin, 440; junior Chris Cordeiro, mile; sophomore Art Barrett, two-mile and Joe Marinelli, discus.

One of Gentry's key performers could be Joe Psota, his "swingman", who can run the mile, half mile and two-mile and may see service in all three during the season.

Another excellent prospect is Mark Jago in the half mile.

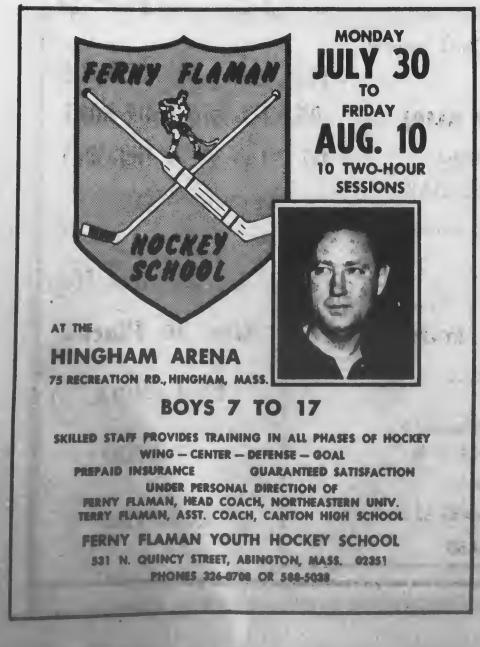
Gentry predicted he would have the best relay team in the winter league and this prediction held up. Three of the quartet are back, McCormack, Pomerole, and Reynolds and, although the fourth, Lee Watkins, is playing baseball, Gentry feels O'Donnell will fill his shoes capably. He played hockey during the winter. Ashmanskas is another fine relay man.

All-Scholastic football player Bert Bray should score his share of points in the shot put. He has bettered 45 feet and is improving all the time.

North held practice meets with Xaverian and Hingham last week but had only about a half a squad for each meet. Gentry was pleased with the performances of Psota, Jago and Canavan. Canavan ran a fine 440 and also looked good in the high jump.

"We have the talent and are particularly strong in the running events," said the veteran coach. "But I have been pleased with the improvement in the field events and we should be ready."

Injuries hurt the Raiders in their opening league meet last week as they lost to a strong Somerville team, 71-60. Gentry rates Somerville and Quincy as the league's top teams.



McCormack was a double winner in the triple jump and 440, Reynolds won the low hurdles, Quinn the javelin, Canavan the half mile, Fransoso the high hurdles and Bray the shot put.

"Reynolds hurt his leg and couldn't compete in the high jump, one of his strong events, and Pomerole pulled a leg muscle and had to be satisfied with second in the mile," Gentry said. "I think they might have won these events, which would have changed things around. Also, I was forced to shake up my relay team as the results of injuries and we lost.

North faced Abp. Williams in a non-league meet at Quincy Veterans Stadium Tuesday and next Thursday will face Chelsea in a league meet at Quincy. This will be the only set of league meets run in Quincy. All others are run at Medford.

The scheduled league opener with Malden, rained out last week, will be held May 10.

● Quincy Track

Hall Confident Of Good Season

In past years Quincy's track teams were known for their strength in the middle distances and distance runs and, although Coach Tom Hall is weaker here than in the past, he is confident of another good Greater Boston League season.

Hall has a tremendous GBL record with two straight undefeated seasons with 14 straight wins and a 20-1 record over the past three years. The only loss in that time was to rival North Quincy in 1970 when the Raiders were unbeaten league champion.

"I don't consider us weak in any event but we are far stronger this year in the field events," Hall said. "If we are to win the title again it will be the field events that will do it for us."

Quincy held two practice meets with Weymouth South and Scituate and, although no scores were kept, Hall was pleased with the Presidents' performances and some fine individual efforts heartened him.

Quincy had only a .500 record in winter track due to a series of injuries and illnesses but with 15 veterans including eight lettermen, it should do much better this spring.

Topping the weightmen is Dave Sten, a big junior who holds the league discus mark. Phil Iovanna is back in the javelin and he holds the league mark in that event.

John Johnson, the league's high scorer last year with 52 points in seven meets, is back in the high jump and hurdles, and big Paul Riggs, a junior who came in second in the Class A state meet last spring in the long jump [21 feet, ½ inch] is ready and he will double in the 220.

Behind Sten in the discus is Frank Guido, a consistent 130-foot thrower, and two promising sophomores, Mike Cullen and Charley Djerf.

"I have hopes for first and second consistently in the discus," Hall admitted.

One of Hall's favorites is Preston Carroll, a sophomore who made the varsity football team last fall and who is looking good in the low hurdles and long jump. He upset Johnson in the hurdles. Another key performer could be John MacFarlane, a junior out for the first time who shows considerable promise in the triple jump and 220. He did particularly well in the triple jump in the two practice meets, doing 30 feet.

Sophomore Art DiLoretto, who cleared 5-10 in the high jump during the winter, also is doing well in the high hurdles.

Holding Hall's hopes in the shot put is a transfer junior from Abp. Williams, Fred Donahue, who has been doing about 50 feet in practice and could be one of the league's best in this event.

Ray Lawyer, a senior who lost only once last spring, is the best 100-yarder and is one of the key relay runners.

Marty Swirko, undefeated in the half mile in indoor tack, should do well, Gary Delorio hopes to fill the shoes of the brilliant Bobby Ciano, now at the U. of Kentucky, in the mile, and Mark MacLeod, who divided his time between track and basketball during the winter, is the most versatile performer who may compete in several different events.

"Mark can run anywhere from the 220 to the two-mile," Hall said. "He ran the 600 in winter track, was the number one cross country runner last fall and was a starter on the basketball squad, showing his great athletic ability. I really don't know just where I'll use him."

Layne Watkins, whose brother was a track star at North Quincy where he is playing baseball this spring, is a fine sophomore 100-yarder.

Another soph, Steve Player, ran the 2-mile indoors and was the number two cross country runner last fall and is expected to do well in the 2-mile.

Junior Steve Nolan will alternate between the mile and two-mile.

Hall will especially miss Ciano, who in three years was unbeaten in spring track, winter track and cross country.

"I expect our league will be strong and well-balanced this year," Tom said. "If we do win another championship, it won't be easy. I expect North Quincy to have a really strong team. They did very well in winter track, sharing the title, and have a number of veterans."

The Presidents showed no signs of any running weaknesses as they rolled over Revere by the surprising score of 90-41 last week in their league opener. The originally scheduled opener with Malden was rained out and will be held May 10.

Quincy was scheduled to face Abp. Williams in a non-league meet today at Veterans' Memorial Stadium and its next league meet will be next Thursday with Everett, also at Veterans' Stadium. This will be the only set of league meets in Quincy, all others being scheduled for Medford.

In winning their 15th successive league meet and their 21st in their last 22 meets, the Presidents won 11 of 15 events.

"I thought we would win but never by that score," Hall said. "I was especially pleased with the showing of our younger boys, as five juniors and a sophomore were among our winners. It was an excellent way to start the season."

Quincy's winners were Lawyer in the 100, Oriola, 220; Swirko, half mile; Nolan, mile; Carroll, low hurdles; Riggs, long jump; MacFarlane, triple jump; Donahue, shot put; Sten, discus; Iovanna, javelin and the relay team of Lawyer, Ramponi, Watkins and Carroll.

The meet's only double winner was Revere's sensational Kevin Leppo, also a standout in winter track, who took the high jump and 440-yard run.

Brando's Absence At Awards Bush League

The marriage that is the bliss of athletes and show biz continues on its merry way with ex-footballer ALEX KARRAS inked for a role in "BLACK BART", and the duo of former heavyweight contender ROLAND LA STARZA and Purple People Eater CARL ELLER going before the cameras in "THE OUTFIT"... And can MUHAMMAD ALI be far away? His March 31st "WIDE WORLD OF SPORTS" showing was a sour note on an illustrious ring career... ALI has said on occasion that when he retires, he would consider a career as an actor...

Yup, but those residuals do add up... ROBERT CULP'S re-run take from 78 segments of his "I SPY" series is flowing in to the jingle-jangle of $400,000 thus far... Director VITTORIO DeSICA is talking with TONY BENNETT about filming the singer's life. The tentative title for the picture is "TWO BITS" and DeSICA reportedly got the idea for the biopic at the time of "THE GODFATHER" emergence... What DeSICA wants to present is "another view of the Italian community in America, one void of violence"...

Just out from "DEEP THROAT" producer GERARD DAIMIANO "THE DEVIL IN MISS JONES", a flick [X-rated natch'] many New York film critics are hailing as a bridge between sex films and art films... Perennial JACK BENNY gets younger every year. When most his age are soaking up the sun, the forever 39ish JACK BENNY is firmed for a British concert tour this summer, his first such undertaking in 20 years...

OSCAR Wrap-ups: Five out of six isn't bad with my predicted picks "THE GODFATHER", MARLON BRANDO, LIZA MINELLI, JOEL GREY and EILEEN HECKART coming through winners... BOB FOSSE ["CABARET"] receiving Best Director Gold came as a surprise. COPPOLA was my choice. Never figured FOSSE as a frontrunner... However, the biggest, most unexpected jolt of this well done Oscar presentation, came when MARLON BRANDO pulled a GEORGE C. SCOTT. Not very original...

I can appreciate BRANDO'S involvement with the Indian movement. I admire him for it... What I can't understand is what "relation" there is between BRANDO refusing the Oscar as a way of protest for American Indian Civil Rights... I think it would have been nicer, more admirable, for him to have been there, gone to the podium, accepted his award, and then had given a speech on the plight of the American Indian...

Sending a fair Indian maiden to the slaughter of audience disapproval seemed bush league to me. If you believe in something strong enough, and I don't for a minute doubt MARLON BRANDO'S sincerity, you should have the guts to accept the catcalls as well as the applause... And what of the Academy? Their feelings? Adding insult to injury as it were... I fear the precedent set by GEORGE C. SCOTT will be enacted in the years to come. Not a very original act to pattern. But one the dubiously unenlightened will surely follow...

For the curious, "SLITHER", the unusual contemporary comedy suspense thriller from MGM, is the "first" motion picture in which the very special way of life of millions of Americans who live and travel in trailers, campers and motor homes is portrayed... The JAMES CAAN starrer is adventure, fun, frolic, who-dun-it, excitement which keeps the viewer glued to his seat right till the very end when the film climaxes in a surprise ending involving a unique battle on the highway between a car and trailer and two huge motor homes... Well worth the price of admission. Catch "SLITHER" - you'll like it...

BURT LANCASTER, ALAIN DELON and PAUL SCOFIELD are each at the top of their form in "SCORPIO", a story of international intrigue surrounding the CIA chase of Russian KGB agent named "Scorpio"... The picture was directed in superb fashion by MICHAEL WINNER whose previous outing was the recently shown "THE MECHANIC"... DORIS DAY is saying goodbye to CBS-TV. Says she won't be back next year with her "THE DORIS DAY SHOW"...

On the other side of the ledger, the highly popular situation-comedy "THE LITTLE PEOPLE" has been NBC-TV renewed for a second year... MPAA president JACK VALENTI is upset. And the Oklahoma Publishing Co. is the reason why... The Company which controls The Daily Oklahoman, the Oklahoma City Times, the Sunday Oklahoma, WKY-TV and WKY radio has since last October refused to run advertising for X-rated films... VALENTI fears "the dark shadow of precedent hangs over this situation" where one company which owns all media outlets in a given area can dictate as it wants...

Universal TV is preparing a biopic on Mrs. ROSE KENNEDY for ABC-TV as part of the latters "BIOGRAPHY" series... URSULA ANDRESS, ELI WALLACH and newcomer FABIO TESTI are north of the border filming "LAST CHANCE FOR A BORN LOSER"... Certainly is about time. WARREN BEATTY, who has an aversion towards work, is now filming his first film in almost two years, "PARALLAX VIEW". In a career going back a dozen years or more, BEATTY has made less than a baker's dozen pictures...

Should The Body Be Present At The Funeral?

People of most cultures have usually viewed their dead and then buried them with ceremony. A funeral with the body present is not an American phenomenon.

Experts say viewing is psychologically sound and emotionally beneficial to the bereaved. It is difficult and sometimes impossible for survivors to immediately disassociate themselves from the lifeless body. And viewing helps to confirm the reality of death.

There are many other values in having the body present at the funeral and viewing it whenever possible. Most of them are contained in a brochure on this subject available from the National Funeral Directors Association. On organ and body donations, it tells how a choice need not be made between an anatomical gift and a funeral with the body present. Under most circumstances, both are possible.

Five other NFDA brochures discuss: thoughts about the funeral, arranging a funeral, funeral costs, the condolence visit, and children and death. You will find them all most helpful because they are based on experience, research and knowledge.

Send for your FREE copies today. You will be glad you did.

Three carrier boys are in strong contention for the 10-speed bicycle being awarded as the top prize in the Quincy Sun Junior Salesman Circulation contest.

But not far behind and in a good challenging position are Eddie DiTullio of Curtis Ave., Quincy Point and Cameron Porter of Wedgewood St., Squantum, each with 20 new customers.

The new Space Pac Lightweight 10-speed bike from Colman's Sporting Goods Store will go to the newsboy or newsgirl with the most new customers when the contest ends May 3.

But every one who gets at least five new customers wins a prize. And for every five other new customers after that there are prizes.

The prizes go like this:

- A $15 gift certificate to Colman's Sporting Goods, 1630 Hancock St., or Jason's Music and Luggage Shop, 1514 Hancock St., for 20 new customers.

Every time you get five new customers – bingo! – you win a prize. But time is running out. May 3 is the deadline.

Newsboys and girls are urged to turn in the names of their new customers to the Quincy Sun office, 1601 Hancock St., Quincy so they can pick up their prizes.

Ricky McCarter so far has won: two tickets to the Strand Theater, an RCA transistor radio from South Shore Television & Appliance, two tickets to a Red Sox game and a $15 gift certificate from Colman's Sporting Goods Store.

Variety Of Courses Offered By Fast Growing Junior College

Quincy Junior College's Division of Continuing Education is looking for new fields of learning to conquer.

The division now has an enrollment of 1,490 students, an increase of 50 per cent over the previous year.

And there is room for further development, Dr. Edward F. Pierce, the college president, said this week.

The range of instruction goes from traditional college courses to non-traditional independent studies, taped or programmed.

The Junior College also offers off-campus courses in such places as Hingham, Hanover, Kingston and Scituate, with the support of local school committees.

There is even a program offered to servicemen and civilians at the South Weymouth Air Station.

Courses range from preparation for a real estate broker's license [121 students] to international relations [88 students].

"For most institutions this type of community pioneering would be costly," said Dr. Pierce.

"But Quincy Junior College has successfully reversed this economic principle of academic development.

"Through local prestudies and prudent planning, the College has realized a net profit which will be used for further development."

Lincoln School To Be Main Cafeteria For Elementary Hot Lunch Program

The Lincoln School will be converted into a central cafeteria facility for the hot lunch program that will begin next fall for Quincy's 8,500 elementary school youngsters.

The 84-year-old structure will undergo an estimated $100,000 worth of renovations this summer, including the installation of refrigeration and storage units for the lunch program.

In addition, warming ovens will be required for each of the city's 21 elementary schools capable of preparing 280 hot lunches of more than 100 varieties within 20 minutes.

Disclosure of the Lincoln School's new role came Wednesday from School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

The Lincoln and the 38-year-old Hancock School are being replaced by the new $5 million-plus southwest elementary school scheduled to open its doors in September.

The Hancock School will be razed, however, to make way for the new school.

Cost for each meal will be 42 cents, but with 12 cents of it reimbursable from federal funds, actual price to each student will be 30 cents per meal. Children of needy families will not be charged for the lunches, while children of low-income families will receive their meals at reduced rates.

The Quincy School Committee approved the program for the elementary schools at its Feb. 1 meeting. Total start-up costs approved by the committee amount to $405,000 but the net cost to the city will be about $200,000 if the state reimburses its full share in the program.

George Cole, Director of Cafeterias for the school system, is implementing the hot lunch program for the elementary schools.

All of the meals served in the program will meet United States Department of Agriculture guidelines for a type "A" lunch. A type "A" lunch is based on providing one-third of the minimum daily requirements for 10-12 year old children, according to Coordinator of Elementary Schools Wilfred Nolan.

For example, a type "A" lunch would consist of two ounces of meat, poultry, fish or cheese, three-quarters of a cup of vegetables or fruit or both, one slice of whole grain or enriched bread, two teaspoons of butter or 4 to 5 teaspoons of margarine, and one-half pint of unflavored whole milk, Nolan said.

Such a type "A" lunch might include meat loaf, mashed potatoes, cabbage, bread and butter, apple crisp, and milk.

The program is in compliance with Chapter 871 of the state legislature's acts of 1970 which require that all public schools provide type "A" lunches to their students by September of 1973.

Excise Tax Delinquents Face Loss Of License

The legal net is closing a little tighter around those motorists who scoff at paying excise taxes on their automobiles.

A new law, approved April 5 by Gov. Sargent, empowers the Registrar of Motor Vehicles to suspend the driver's license of a delinquent car owner until the tax, plus a filing fee, is paid.

"It used to be that only the registration was suspended," said Quincy City Treasurer Robert Foy. "All the delinquent had to do was change cars and nothing could be done. Now he can't drive at all because he has no license."

Excise bills go out at staggered times through the year. After 60 days of non-payment, a demand bill is sent. If that is not paid within 15 days, the matter is turned over to a deputy tax collector, who can recommend license suspension to the registrar.

Foy said his department is still sending out excise bills for 1972.

"With the increase in apartment living and the large number of college students, it's difficult to keep up with them," he said.

Both Sides Ready Ammo

Full House Expected At South Quincy MBTA Hearing

By TOM HENSHAW

The battle over the proposed South Quincy MBTA station reaches a climax tonight [Thursday] with both sides in the controversial $15 million plan bringing up their biggest guns for what may be the deciding confrontation.

The occasion is a public hearing at 7:30 p.m. in Sterling Junior High School on Granite St., during which the MBTA will listen to reasons why the station should or should not be built in South Quincy at the Braintree line.

Big guns for the proponents are the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, the Quincy Downtown Steering Committee, the Building and Construction Trades Council of Quincy, and the Quincy Taxpayers Association.

The opposition is led by the South Quincy Civic Association and includes the Quincy Taxpayers Revolt, the Quincy Citizens' Association, the Wollaston Park Association and the Southwest Council.

Opposition petitions bearing an estimated 12,000 names are expected to be presented at the hearing.

Also listed among the opposition is the Quincy City Council, which voted unanimously [8-0 with Clifford Marshall absent because of a family illness] March 5 to oppose the station, not only in South Quincy but anywhere else in the city.

Since that time, however, proponents received a shot in the arm when the state let it be known that, unless the station is built, there will be no federal or state money to extend the city's North-South Artery and connect it with the Southeast Expressway.

The Quincy business community regards the North-South Artery, which would afford easy access to the downtown area from the Expressway at both Neponset and the Braintree line, as vital to the economic rejuvenation of Quincy Center.

5 Buildings To Be Razed, 9 Firms Relocated For MBTA

Five buildings housing nine businesses are marked for demolition if a new MBTA station is built in South Quincy.

MBTA spokesmen told The Quincy Sun the station is to be located at the corner of Penn and Centre Streets, just 1,000 feet from the Braintree line.

Buildings to be torn down would be:

- Granite City Bonded Cold Storage Warehouse Inc. at 170 Penn St.
- [A & P] Capt. John Sea Food Storage at 200 Penn St.
- The Four Seasons Ice Arena building at 222 Penn St., also housing R & A Sandwich Shop and The Sports Center.
- Belmont Tire Inc. at 224 Penn St.
- Colony Inc., housing Colony Welding Supply, Colony Baking Supply and Colony Monarch Gas Supply at 480 Centre St.

Thomas Muldoon, relocation coordinator for the MBTA, will be at Sterling Junior High School at Thursday night's meeting to speak on relocation procedures and distribute information.

MBTA officials point out that "no families will be displaced by the project and no significant adverse environmental impacts of the project are expected."

The total project will include laying 1.5 miles of track south from Quincy Center station, construction of the new facility and DPW construction of a 1,750-car garage and a ramp connecting to Rte. 3.

Official notification has not been given, pending further surveys and interviews with the individuals and companies concerned.

Opposition to the station, which is particularly strong in South Quincy, has expressed concern over its effect on the local wetlands, creation of a new traffic problem, and a possible increase in Quincy's share of the MBTA's annual deficit.

The South Quincy Civic Association and its partners in opposition expect to have petitions containing more than 12,000 names ready to be displayed at the hearing. They plan to continue collecting signatures.

The cause of all this uproar is described in the MBTA's notice of the public hearing:

"The project consists of a 1.5 mile further extension of the South Shore Rapid Transit line utilizing the existing Old Colony Railroad right-of-way.

"This extension will include one station complex at South Quincy with associated track, power, signals, communications and structures.

"The South Quincy Station will be located in the City of Quincy approximately 1.5 miles from Quincy Center Station.

"The station's 1,750 car parking garage and the new expressway ramp system connecting the station with Routes 3 and 128 will be provided by the Massachusetts DPW and financially are not a part of the above described project.

"Nine businesses housed in five structures will be displaced by the project and the freight tracks used by the Penn Central will be relocated.

"No families will be displaced by the project and no significant adverse environmental impacts of the project are expected."

Both the South Shore Chamber of Commerce and the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association got out letters to its membership last week urging personal testimony at the hearing in favor of the station.

The Board of Directors of the QCBPA voted to go on record in favor of the station and Executive Director Ronald H. Mendler issued this statement:

"The board feels the building of the station is a must, due to the need of an easy access into downtown Quincy from the north and south.

"At present Quincy is landlocked.

"For anyone coming into downtown Quincy, they must get to the Furnace Brook Parkway and then travel a winding road that, to the first time visitor, could become an obstacle in itself.

"This problem can be solved with the building of the MBTA station, the ramps leading into Routes 3 and 128, plus the Upland Road Extension [the North-South Artery].

"Also there is an excellent chance that the area around the station will be developed, and this will aid the Quincy tax structure.

"Therefore, this station would not only serve as a broad regional transportation function but also as a stimulus to community development."

Mendler said the association has commitments from more than 40 merchants to speak in favor of the station at the hearing.

The executive Board of the Quincy-South Shore Building and Construction Trades Council at a meeting Wednesday voted to endorse the concept of the South Quincy-Braintree MBTA extension.

President Carmine D'Olimpio said the board feels "the problems of traffic and flooding can be resolved. This would definitely be a plus for the city and would involve tremendous job opportunities."

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce, in a special bulletin to selected members, urged a letter writing campaign directed at State Transportation Secretary Alan A. Altshuler.

Said the bulletin, issued by the Chamber's Executive Vice President Eric M. Swider:

"We believe that the reduction of congestion on the Southeast Expressway [eliminating about 9,000 cars a day] is a fringe benefit in comparison with the important job development potential the line will provide.

"It makes our number one source of well-paying jobs – downtown Boston – considerably more accessible, thereby creating more opportunities for well paid employed people to live on the South Shore and to do business with you.

"It creates countless new development opportunities in and around the MBTA stations [like State Street South] which will improve Quincy and Braintree's taxable base and stabilize or potentially reduce their tax rates.

"The chamber supports legislation which will eliminate the boarding count for Expressway stations as part of the computation for determining a community's share of the MBTA net cost of service [the deficit]."

The chamber bulletin warned that "a small, but vocal, group of South Quincy residents will appear at the public hearing arguing against the MBTA extension. . .

". . . A small, but vocal, group killed the North Braintree proposal [yes they did, and permanently] and a similar victory by a small, but vocal, group here could hopelessly

Why The Big Rush?

The recent City Council action in rejecting the nomination of Carmen D'Olimpio to the Quincy Housing Authority is, to us, both mystifying and deeply disturbing.

D'Olimpio, president of the Builders' Trade Union, had been nominated by Mayor Hannon to replace Constanzo Pagnano on the housing board.

His nomination was rejected on a motion by Ward 1 Councillor Edward S. Graham based on a verbal opinion by the late City Solicitor Harry Pavan that the appointment would involve a conflict of interest.

And the council then voted to refuse reconsideration of the matter by a 7-2 vote.

D'Olimpio, upon returning from a legislative conference in Washington, labeled the action "a kangaroo court masquerading under the disguise of the Quincy City Council".

Points disturbing to us include:

- Rejecting a nominee on the verbal opinion of a dead man.
- The council's failure to seek the opinion of the present City Solicitor Richard McCormick while it meant something.
- The fact that, after the council voted against reconsideration, when McCormick was then asked his opinion, he said he could see no conflict of interest in the appointment. It was then too late to reconsider the vote. The matter was all buttoned up.
- The fact both Mayor Hannon and D'Olimpio were absent from the hearing. The mayor was vacationing and D'Olimpio was in Washington when the vote was taken. Couldn't the Council have tabled the matter until they could be present?

Carmen D'Olimpio may or may not be the best qualified man to serve on the Quincy Housing Authority.

But that point is irrelevant.

We do not question the City Council's right to reject mayoral nominees.

But we do question the manner in which they did it. It looked like an awful big rush to slam a door.

We feel the city fathers have acted with undue haste and failed to avail themselves of information available to them.

Suggests New School Be Named For Southwest Quincy

Editor, Quincy Sun:

While like thousands of others, I had great respect and admiration for the late Dr. Charles Djerf, I have the feeling that something other than a school should be named in his memory.

I like the names of schools to reflect the name of the neighborhood in which they exist. For example, we have the Wollaston School, the Montclair School, the Squantum School, the Merrymount School, the Furnace Brook School, the Cranch School, the Beechwood Knoll School, and others which reflect the names of the communities in which they are located.

In the case of the new school to replace the Hancock and Lincoln Schools, I would suggest a name such as Southwest Quincy School or Brewers Corner School in recognition of that section of our city.

Joseph E. Brett,
Representative.

Does Not Advocate Abortion Per Se

Editor, Quincy Sun:

If Mrs. Stebbins would read what was actually written, instead of arbitrarily assuming a pro-con debate on the issue of abortion, she would realize that I did not advocate abortion per se.

I believe in neither the infallibility of human beings, nor the infallibility of law. However, I do have: reverence for life as a whole [as it actually is, without worshiping mankind]; love for people; respect and loyalty for the laws which govern my country [whether I personally agree with them 100% or not]. I happen to hold the Constitution above the presidency; believe in amnesty or forgiveness; think that the Vietnam War and continued bombing in Cambodia is illegal as well as immoral.

Words, like stones, can hurt. When intemperately used in public, they indicate the vindictive, self-righteousness of bigotry. Apparently in America today, there are many so-called Judeo-Christians who are absolutely without SIN. They throw stones labeled "MURDERER", "... Hypocrite[s], first cast out the beam[s] out of thine own eye[s]. Judge not, that ye be not judged."

- Watergate Almost Funny
- Hoffa In Huff
- Toilet In The Sky

WASHINGTON — If the Watergate caper were not so politically explosive, it would be hilariously funny. Not since the slapstick days of the Three Stooges have such an improbable trio so captivated the American public.

The Three Stooges in the Watergate affair, of course, are its mastermind Gordon Liddy and his top lieutenants, Howard Hunt and James McCord.

We have uncovered their secret, sworn testimony before a grand jury detailing their madcap adventures. It turns out that their "Mission: Impossible" team tried to break into the Democratic headquarters not once, but at least three times.

On an initial reconnoitering effort, Hunt tried to enter through a Watergate dining room, but couldn't get a connecting door open without alarming a guard. So, the ex-CIA man remained locked in the dining room all night, sleeping in a closet. He finally escaped at seven a.m. when the office building was opened.

Of the three, Hunt is the romantic with a flair for the bizarre. In between writing spy thrillers, he donned a preposterous red wig last spring, flew to Denver and tried to interview Dita Beard during the ITT fiasco.

Ultimate Bureaucrat

McCord, in contrast, is the ultimate bureaucrat. When Hunt's wife allegedly delivered hush money to McCord last summer, he tried to give her a written receipt for it. But Mrs. Hunt told McCord that a receipt wasn't necessary in this line of business.

The biggest comic of the lot, however, is Gordon Liddy, who has demonstrated a fascination for guns and aliases. One of his unimaginative aliases was George Leonard. But he did use exotic code words for his operations such as Gemstone, Ruby and Crystal.

Not only is Liddy a bad spy, he apparently is also a bad neighbor. Some of his ex-neighbors tell us he used to terrorize neighborhood children. And once he even leaped off a garage roof like Batman to scare children.

All three of these men have years of experience in government intelligence work. Congress might consider investigating the caliber of spies we have coming in from the cold.

Ehrlichman Relieved: At least one top White House aide breathed a sigh of relief last week when President Nixon announced he would no longer shield administration officials from Senate Watergate investigators.

Our White House sources tell us one of the President's closest advisers, John Ehrlichman, wanted to put out a statement as long ago as last Labor Day, acknowledging the role of the campaign committee in the Watergate break-in and identifying the officials who were responsible.

This was blocked, however, by Clark MacGregor who took over the committee from former Attorney General John Mitchell. MacGregor was supported by White House counsel John Dean, who also favored covering up the scandal.

Even after the November election, Dean continued to urge the President to keep the lid on Watergate and not to cooperate with the Senate investigation. It was Dean who wrote the legal opinion, claiming executive privilege for White House aides and refusing to let them testify.

But as the Watergate clamor grew louder, the President began listening to Ehrlichman. It was Ehrlichman's urgent advice that White House aides should testify at the Senate hearings voluntarily and that the White House itself should expose the wrongdoers.

He had also become suspicious that John Dean was more concerned about protecting himself than protecting the President. Both Dean and Mitchell were present at a meeting in February 1972 when G. Gordon Liddy, the Watergate ringleader, allegedly discussed a bugging operation.

The grand jury has now heard detailed sworn testimony about this meeting. Dean has also admitted to others inside the White House that bugging plans were discussed. Dean still denies, however, that the Watergate operation was discussed specifically. But a circumstantial web is closing in on John Dean and John Mitchell. Also caught in the web is another high campaign official, Jeb Magruder.

The President has decided, apparently, that they are expendable.

Space-Age Problem: Skylab astronaut Charles (Pete) Conrad has registered complaints with space engineers about one of their most prized gadgets: Skylab's $238,000 prototype space toilet which Conrad can't quite figure out how to use. To help the astronaut, Skylab's engineers have furnished Conrad with a rear view mirror.

Hoffa in Huff: Former Teamsters boss, Jimmy Hoffa, has turned against the man he hand-picked to be his successor. Hoffa is quietly spreading the charge that Teamsters president Frank Fitzsimmons helped keep him in prison a year longer than Hoffa otherwise would have had to serve.

Skyjacking Windfall: The heightened threat of hijackings at the nation's 531 airports has meant a multimillion dollar windfall for licensed security firms. Most gumshoe firms were already in a pinch to meet the mounting demands for armed guards and security personnel. Now they are desperately trying to provide the thousands of extra inspectors and guards that the airlines must hire because of tighter security regulations. Inevitably, the squeeze for more guards has brought complaints from airline passengers that the guards are not as well trained as they should be.

Up in Smoke: Utah's Sen. Frank Moss has mounted a quiet, one-man lobbying campaign with his fellow senators to overcome the power of the tobacco lobby. He is telling his colleagues that the U.S. government is, at the same time, both promoting and opposing cigarette smoking. The taxpayers shell out $30 million a year to encourage tobacco growing and $3 million a year to discourage tobacco smoking. Moss wants to force tobacco smokers to pay the full $30 million subsidy themselves. Under present laws, the nonsmokers also help subsidize the tobacco growers.

The Quincy political scene is still moving in slow motion. Some City Hall observers feel things won't really get moving until the tax rate is announced. If it's a small increase as predicted by Councillor John Quinn, it won't give challengers much ammunition for their campaigns.

REPORTS, meanwhile, have at least two candidates challenging Mayor Hannon.

COMMENTING ON AN item that appeared here last week, County Commissioner Thomas McManus of Norwood points out that while one of the county commissioner's seats is up for election in 1974, it's not exactly "up for grabs". Only incumbent scheduled for re-election is McManus and he plans to run again.

And as long as George McDonald of West Quincy keeps his seat as commissioner, no other resident of Quincy can be elected to the county board.

QUINCY 1894: Former City Councillor David Crowley has loaned us a copy of the City Report for 1894, showing what it was like to live in Quincy before the turn of the century.

Like the Police Department. Chief Joseph Hayden [assisted by 8 regular officers and 1 special] reported a total of 380 arrests. Offenses included: stubborness, profanity, collecting junk without a license, violation of the bicycle law and discharging a firearm on Sunday. Miscellaneous police services included: 1 horse blanket found and returned to owner, 2 pigs found and cared for, 4 Sunday ball games broken up and 19 runaway horses caught.

The chief recommended that some type of communication be set up between the station and the different sections of the city. Police had to rely mainly on street car conductors to carry messages to and from the station to the foot patrolman.

He also recommended the city provide a horse and wagon to transport arrested persons to the station house. It was a little outmoded, he thought that police had to take prisoners to the station on the street car. And if the prisoner was using foul language, the street car wouldn't take him. The officer then had to wrestle with his prisoner for the one or two mile walk to the lock-up.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

During the coming weeks swimming pool companies will conduct extensive advertising campaigns. The Consumer Protection Division urges consumers to check the reputation of the companies they do business with.

For the past several years, the Consumer Protection Division has received numerous complaints about fly-by-night companies which advertise bargain prices for pools and later fail to produce the product at the price quoted or by the salesman's stated deadline–which at this time of year is generally Memorial Day.

Because the salesmen are interested in getting a large commission, they take more orders than the company can possibly build within the promised time period. In addition, in many instances, due to the overabundance of orders the quality of workmanship is below average. The Consumer Protection Division urges consumers ordering swimming pools to have the completion date included in the terms of the contract.

These companies also require deposits at each stage of the construction. Upon signing a contract, a consumer pays an initial five to 20 percent deposit on his purchase price–the cost of the pools is usually between $2,500 and $3,500.

The company then requires a deposit upon delivery of the building material, another when they dig the hole. Then, all too often, the company vanishes leaving the homeowner with a ruined yard and the subcontractor without payment for his work. [Most swimming pool companies subcontract the various stages of pool construction].

In some cases, pool companies will be listed as doing business as a company, when, in fact, they are corporations. After some disreputable companies have completed a pool, they fail to honor the owner's warranty. If a pool owner attempts to have repairs made under his warranty, he finds that the corporation has gone out of business and a new one established. The warranty provided by the old company or corporation is frequently worthless.

Dealing with a reputable company in any business venture prevents a host of difficulties which may occur after the contract is signed.

'Your New Marriage Contract...No. 2'

The marital conflict that is disturbing you ... and most people right now ... is probably the result of having no marriage contract on the subject of the disagreement. Or ... if you have an agreement, one of you hasn't kept it.

Take Mabel and Marvis for example. She wanted to go to work. Marvis opposed it. He said, "A woman's place is in the home." Then he said, "The kids need you at home." ... and "I don't need what you can earn." In the argument his clincher was "my mother never went out to work" ... which wasn't very convincing to Mabel. But finally he gave in and agreed to her working at the cocktail lounge.

Mabel had worked just three weeks when Marvis began to pick. First, it was the cost of the gasoline for her to drive to work. Then it was that he couldn't go to sleep unless she was close to him. "Look, Marvis" ... she said when she's had enough ... "we made a deal. I'm staying by my part of it ... and I expect you to stay by yours." Marvis saw that he was acting out his child ... not his adult. He made an about face ... began helping with the evening meal ... with the children. They became a very close working team. Both were very happy. They lived out the terms of their contract.

Now observe ... their contract worked and they got happy because THEY MUTUALLY AGREED and MUTUALLY BENEFITTED from the terms of the contract. Mabel benefitted because she found fulfillment in being out with people ... the house and kids were closing in on her. She needed to do something on her own ... to be more than just Marvis' wife ... the mother of Marvis' children. She was really happy having the new job ... being her own person.

Marvis benefitted not only because she was bringing home a hundred dollars a week which enabled the family to have a winter vacation in Florida ... to save $1000 ... and to carpet their living room ... But above that ... he found Mabel lovlier ... more vibrant ... happier than he'd seen her for years. So, he benefitted emotionally in their relationship from this term of their new contract. Since they MUTUALLY BENEFITTED the term of the contract worked ... it was not one-sided.

Marvis had to get rid of his hang-up about women working. He had brought this idea into the marriage without examining it ... without discussing it ... he just assumed that since his mother hadn't worked, his wife wouldn't either. When with help he was able to examine his attitude toward women ... his relationship with his wife ... become willing to let her have a life of her own ... their agreement on Mabel's working become easy and beneficial. The wife having a job is often a source of conflict.

If you're having conflict over work ... money ... the use of the car ... friends ... alcohol ... or whatever your conflict, you would do well to work through a contract that will be mutually beneficial. ADULT marriage partners do this. Maybe the problem in many marriages is that there are too many 35 year old "children" in the role of husbands and wives. Marriage is only for adults.

•Youth Speaks Out

• President Nixon's statement that he was "totally behind" his aide John Dean sounded an awful lot like a 1000% statement made by another politician.

• Young people are often accused of being negative, but if you analyze things, there isn't too much to be happy about - we're still bombing Cambodia and Laos, and Americans are losing their lives. The cost of living took its highest jump ever and the White House is rocked with scandal.

• The energy crisis is nothing new. Most people I know don't have much energy for much of anything.

• It appears the Celtics and the Bruins have caught the same disease the Patriots and Red Sox have had for years.

• Senator Jackson of Washington described the new Washington, D.C. game after the Watergate mess. It's called - "Everybody save my fanny".

• It's amazing how crazy we all thought Martha Mitchell was. She probably knows more than anyone.

The third term at QHS is over.

For seniors, the fourth term is shortened so they can get jobs for the summer. Does that sound like a good idea to you?

It is for the students who are able to find jobs, but for the others it means maybe a month of applying and being turned down.

After the first month many students give up. Stores don't hire; offices are looking for more experienced people etc. The only way to get a job is to know somebody.

That means at the end of the summer kids find they can't pay for clothes or transportation or college.

If anyone can help by giving the school names of places that need help please do so.

People are always complaining about "kids" hanging around, here's a chance to help out.

Calendar Of Events

- Seniors in "good standing" will be released from school on May 14, at 2:30 p.m.
- The annual Senior Prom is scheduled for Friday May 25, at the Chateau de Ville in Randolph. Tickets may be purchased through May 11.
- Senior Class Day at Lake Pearl in Wrentham will be held Tuesday May 22.
- The combined graduation of Quincy High, Quincy Voc-Tech and North Quincy High will be Wednesday Evening June 6.
- Elections to elect next years junior and senior class officers will be held Wednesday, May 2.

Quincy Future Nurses Club Gets Inside Look At Medical Field

By CHRISTINE PETRILLO

The future nurses club is an organization for girls who plan to enter the medical field.

So far the club has visited the New England Deaconess Hospital, New England Baptist Hospital, Quincy City Hospital, Newton-Wellesley and Boston State Hospital.

On these trips the girls are shown various parts of the hospital, take part in demonstrations and are told what subjects are needed for the nursing course.

Guest speakers have come to speak on topics of interest to the prospective nursing students.

This is an excellent club to join if you are interested in this field.

Charlene Jones is president of this year's club. Linda McConville is vice-president; Jean Bowen is secretary and Gail Jaffarian, treasurer. Miss O'Brien is club advisor.

Facts and Figures

200,000 New Secretaries Needed Annually For Next 10 Years

According to the 1960 U.S. Census, there were 7,000,000 office women in this country.

Women held two thirds of all clerical jobs, but in some areas of clerical work such as office machine operators of heavy EDP equipment, men began to replace women to some extent.

There are more than 1,500,000 secretaries and about 97% are women. Eleven percent of secretaries are executive secretaries, according to the official definition of The National Secretaries Association [International].

NSA, with its members in Chapters in the U.S.A., Canada and Puerto Rico and affiliates in Mexico, Panama, Argentina, the Bahamas, Curacao, Finland, Costa Rica, Germany, Peru, Thailand, Venezuela, Hong Kong, is the world's largest secretarial association, and supplies this definition of a secretary:

200,000 New Secretaries Needed

"A secretary shall be defined as an assistant to an executive, possessing mastery of office skills and ability to assume responsibility without direct supervision, who displays initiative, exercises judgement, and makes decisions within the scope of assigned authority."

About 44 percent of working women in the U.S.A. are married. The average woman works 28 years. One of every five working women is the head of the household. At 40 hours per week, one-third of a working woman's weekday time is spent at her job.

The U.S. Department of Labor estimates that 200,000 more secretaries will be needed every year amounting to another 2,000,000 over the next 10 years.

Few jobs offer as wide a variety of tasks as does secretarial work. One survey by the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor turned up nearly 900 specific duties performed by secretaries. NSA's own Membership Profile Survey shows that the six most common of these duties are:

- Handling incoming and outgoing calls for an employer.
- Reading, sorting, and routing mail.
- Organizing and maintaining files.
- Composing letters, instructions, or notes on own initiative.
- Making appointments for an employer.
- Receiving customers and meeting the public.

Many professional and business employers require secretaries training in their special fields, for example, law, engineering, medicine, teaching, and library work.

There are, in addition to the National Secretaries Association with its extensive membership covering many fields, The National Association of Legal Secretaries; the American Association of Medical Assistants, whose membership includes secretaries as well as other job classifications; the National Association of Educational Secretaries, a department of the National Education Association, for secretaries who work in schools and colleges, as well as several smaller specialized secretarial associations.

DOLORES T. ALMEIDA

Meet Dolores Almeida

Secretary Of The Year Stresses 'Loyalty To Your Boss And Company'

"It certainly is an honor and a privilege to have been chosen to serve as Secretary of the Year for the South Shore Chapter, especially since my Chapter makes its selection based on a point system.

"I have been very pleased to be associated with the members of this Chapter and hope that I can justify their choice".

That was the reaction of Miss Dolores T. Almeida, of North Plymouth, when she learned of her honor.

Miss Almeida has been a member of The National Secretaries Association [International] since 1956 when the South Shore Chapter installed the Plymouth Chapter.

When the Plymouth Chapter disbanded, Miss Almeida transferred her membership to the South Shore Chapter and is presently completing her second term as its president. In the past, she has also served as an officer on the Division level.

When asked to comment on her boss, or what she expects from the typical boss, she said she has been "fortunate to have worked for several wonderful bosses" and felt they exemplified, the perfect boss.

"You must realize that bosses are people, just like everybody else," she says. "So many people figure that because they hold certain positions, they are considered possibly 'untouchable' ... but I honestly believe that most bosses want to be considered human by their colleagues, their peers and more importantly, by their secretaries."

At the present time, Dolores is secretary to Ronald J. Ferioli, president of R. J. Ferioli Insurance Agency, Inc., of Plymouth, a position she has held since the Twin Rock Insurance Agency merged.

At that time she was secretary to Alfred Almeida, who was president of that organization, and incidentally is her brother and a state representative. This is another important part of her spare time -- since she actively campaigns for all of his elections, which have become a part of life for her, and her family.

Dolores, who resides on Standish Ave., Plymouth, with her mother, Mrs. John Almeida admits that all of her activities have denied her the opportunity to visit many of the historical sites in her town -- and that the only reason she has really seen the Plymouth Rock is because it is in the immediate vicinity of her home.

Ferioli, who was present at the recent banquet honoring his secretary, said he, in fact, bought out her previous employer "because he wanted to purchase the secretary." He attributes much of the progress of his company to her devoted contributions to his organization.

In her spare time, Dolores enjoys music [she has recently started taking lessons on the Wurlitzer organ], reading and bowling. She won't admit to her league average but does feel that bowling is a great way to release the tensions of a trying day at the office.

Her duties, which are, as she says, the usual secretarial routine, also entail very close communication with the customers and their many problems.

Dolores attended Salem State College after graduating from Plymouth High School in 1954. After two years at college, her choice of profession was changed and she went to work for Plymouth Cordage Company and with her shorthand and typing background and two years of liberal arts soon became secretary to the Marketing Manager.

When Plymouth Cordage went out of business she followed Mr. Scherff, her former boss, to National Braille Press, where she wore many caps. She was involved very closely with the inmates at various prisons who were volunteer readers or braille writers and spent many days visiting the prisons. Through her efforts, the South Shore Chapter volunteered their services for several years to assist with the printing of large type-face books for the partially blind.

As for educational requirements for a professional secretary, Dolores says:

"I truly believe that the high school student considering the secretarial profession should consider at least a well-recognized business college beyond high school, or even a four year college course, with extra courses in shorthand and typing.

"With the diversification now required of the secretary, a good well-rounded education is vitally important. The secretary is now considered more of an executive assistant and it is important that she be aware of everything going on around her.

"Of course," she added, "there are many girls who are capable of performing secretarial duties, following a good business course in high school if they will continue with education by taking various courses at the many night schools. A secretary should never, never allow herself to sit back and ignore the educational opportunities around her -- for before she knows it -- some younger and more capable girl is going to come along and bypass her."

In the past, Dolores has been known to devour a good book in one evening.

"But the past is long gone -- and with a full day at the office, the projects in which the South Shore Chapter is involved, the requirements of a chapter officer and an active member, and with my brother campaigning for one thing or another, and even with other members of the family becoming very politic-minded, I find it impossible to read even the comics in the daily newspapers."

To the future secretaries Dolores offers the following information and advice:

"Loyalty to your employer and your company is most important, for without it, you can never be a good secretary. When you find it impossible to remain loyal either to the company or your boss, then is the time to think of finding another more suitable job.

"Keep on with your education -- never stop learning, whether it is through study courses such as our Chapter sponsors, or established college courses. And, most important, try to learn all that you can about your own company and its activities, its products and its background.

"The secretarial profession is a most important one -- and without a good secretary, many a boss is lost. For example who finds his notes, important papers, reminds him of his appointments, and if need be makes his coffee to keep him going."

Roberta Carruthers Reports

NSA Members Like 'Big Sisters' To FSA Chapter

The South Shore Chapter installed a Future Secretaries Association Chapter at Braintree High School several years ago and since that time members of the NSA Chapter have served as "Big Sisters" to members of the FSA Chapter.

In June, 1972, Roberta Carruthers graduated from Braintree High School and immediately went to work for Gale Engineering Co., Inc. She was a member of the FSA Chapter for two years and served as its President during her senior year. She became a provisional member of the South Shore Chapter in September 1972.

But, let her tell the story in her own words:

"I took the Business Course in high school because I enjoyed typing and more especially because I wanted to become a secretary. At the time I started this course I didn't know whether I wanted to go on to business school or to gain some work experience in an office.

"During part of my high school years I was chosen to work in the high school office, thereby gaining some working knowledge of the business world. Near the end of my senior year I had an excellent job offer to work as a secretary in a two-girl office. After working on this job for a very short time I realized that this was the job I really wanted and I decided not to go on to school. However, I do intend to continue my education by taking evening courses at one of the local junior colleges.

"While I was in school I joined the Future Secretaries Association so that I could learn more about the secretarial profession. Each month we were fortunate to have guest speakers from many fields – the airlines, legal secretaries, the postal service, insurance and banking.

"Through the members of the South Shore Chapter we learned what the responsibilities of the secretary were, what a typical day was like in an office and what the secretaries in different fields encountered. Through our discussions we were better able to decide on the field we would like to enter.

"The National Secretaries Association [International] recently changed their membership requirements, thereby allowing a girl just beginning her secretarial profession to join a local chapter as a provisional member.

"I took advantage of this opportunity and joined the South Shore Chapter because I want to become a better secretary – and because I have met many secretaries who are members of the Association who are the typical and ideal of their profession. I enjoyed meeting members of the association from across the state when I was in FSA, by attending several of their programs and I do now as a member of their association.

"FSA helped me to know what could be expected when I went into the business world – since our discussions with secretaries offered us the benefits of their knowledge. With their help, we were aware, NSA membership has helped me beyond that, in that I have the opportunity to be with experienced secretaries, who through their years of experience in various fields, are well acquainted with most of the problems I face, or will face in the future.

S S Chapter Now Has 6 CPS's

The South Shore Chapter now boasts six CPS's–Certified Professional Secretaries.

Mrs. Susan Giguere of Milton employed at Eastco latest to pass the rigid examination.

Other members of the chapter who hold the proud and hard earned designation are:

Mrs. Helene Finnick, CPS, secretary to Bernard Grossman, Treasurer, Grossman Industrial Properties, Inc.

Miss Eleanor M. Fusoni, CPS, secretary to E. J. Tolle, President, IMass Inc.

Mrs. Winifred E. Jarvelin, CPS, secretary to James D. Asher, President of Television and Radio Broadcasting Corporation [WJDA].

Mrs. Edna Swain, CPS, secretary to Carl Freda, Project Manager, Raytheon.

Miss Ruth Davis, CPS, presently a full-time student at the University of Massachusetts.

All Filled, Over 300 Waiting

154- Unit Fenno House To Be Dedicated Sunday

FINAL DETAILS for Fenno House dedication are checked by Rev. Frank J. Bauer, pastor Wollaston Lutheran Church, and Thomas Osborne, project manager for Dickerman Construction Co., main contractor for the facility.

FENNO HOUSE, a 154-unit housing facility sponsored by Wollaston Lutheran Church will be dedicated Sunday.

Fenno House, a modern six-story 154-unit housing facility for the elderly, sponsored by Wollaston Lutheran Church, will be dedicated at noon Sunday.

Ceremonies will follow the 10:30 a.m. services at the church. The facility is located next door to the church on Hancock St., Wollaston.

The need for the facility is underlined by the fact that all 154 units are already taken and the church has more than 300 applicants on the waiting list.

Rev. Frank J. Bauer, pastor of Wollaston Lutheran Church, said the first tenants would start moving in within a few weeks.

Dr. Leslie F. Weber, executive secretary of the Board of Social Ministry for the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod will give the sermon at the church services.

Congressman James A. Burke will be the keynote speaker at the dedication ceremonies.

The event will climax a six-year dream for Rev. Bauer, the church and its board of directors.

The story goes back to Nov. 27, 1967 when six men met at the church to explore the possibility of the congregation becoming a sponsor of housing for the elderly on adjacent property partly owned by the church.

A little less than four years later, Oct. 31, 1971 - ground breaking ceremonies were conducted for the FHA 236 housing project.

Of the six men, four will be present for dedication: Pastor Frank J. Bauer, President Daniel W. Schluter, Mayor Walter J. Hannon Jr., and City Development Coordinator John J. Cheney.

Members of Wollaston Lutheran Church, advised of the great need for housing for the elderly commited themselves to the project in March of 1968 by directing members of the Church Council to incorporate themselves as Wollaston Lutheran Church Apartments and to begin negotiations with the Department of Housing and Urban Development [HUD].

Kenneth E. Strong was engaged as loan consultant, and he and Rev. Bauer had a pre-application conference at the HUD regional office in New York City the following month. They were advised to acquire additional land and to obtain the necessary permits from the City of Quincy to build.

It took one year to accomplish this, during which time Earl Ross was engaged as the architect and Michael R. Cappiello as counsel. In addition to the adjacent church-owned parcel of land which had been acquired to accommodate a building for the congregation's parochial school, subsequently closed, a small parcel of land was purchased from Quik-Mart and a large parcel, including a 17-room, 150-year-old house, from Mrs. Lillian Fenno. It was from her late husband, Thomas Fenno, that the congregation had purchased the land for the church and parsonage. The association with the Fenno family has always been most cordial, as evidenced by the fact that the family name is being perpetuated in the housing project.

Fenno House Dedication Sunday

In November of 1969, after having filed an application, architect's drawings, and feasibility study with the HUD regional office in New York City six-months before, the group was directed to re-submit all documents to the Federal Housing Administration [FHA] office in Boston under Section 236. Processing of this application, which required all new forms and all new drawings, took two years and was the most trying period for all involved.

It was during this period, too, that a $10,000 loan, since repaid, was obtained from the "Keys for Christ" funds administered by the Board of Social Ministry of the Lutheran Church-Missouri Synod. But, on Oct. 29, 1971, FHA Project Number 023-44802, FENNO HOUSE, had it's initial closing, ground was broken two days later, and the following day the Dickerman Construction Company of Canton began site preparation and excavation.

House Approves Delahunt Election Reform Bill

The Massachusetts House has approved an election reform bill drafted by Rep. William D. Delahunt [D-Quincy].

The bill provides for the issuance of certificates at polling places to voters whose names have been omitted from registration lists through error.

The present law requires a person to obtain a certificate from the election office at City Hall in order to vote.

Delahunt's proposal would eliminate the trip downtown and allow wardens at the polls to grant certificates if satisfied that the person is entitled to vote.

Delahunt received the assignment to draft the bill from Rep. George Keverian, chairman of the Joint Committee on Election Laws.

St. John's League Opens 23rd Season

St. John's Church Little League will open its 23rd baseball season Saturday and more than 200 youngsters aged 8 to 12 will be competing.

The league will again operate with two major divisions, American and National Leagues for those 9 to 12, and the Farm League, comprised mainly of eight-year olders with some 9 and 10 who are just learning the game.

In the American League Ernie Jeffarian's Angels, last year's champs, will be challenged by Jim Duggan's Yankees, Frank Killilea's Red Sox, Ray Connerty's White Sox and Bill Fleming's Tigers, The Tigers, last year's last place team, are the only ones to avoid major player turnovers and look like the club to beat.

In the National League the Cubs and Cardinals were hurt by player losses. But Bob Wiltshire's Cubs, defending champions, have a good nucleus and Fred Mariani's Cardinals also have high hopes.

The other entries are Tom Turnowicz's and Paul Beatrice's Giants, Fred Prizioso's Dodgers and Pat Borde's Braves.

In the Farm League, Tom Collins' Phillies, George Ross' Pirates, Paul Uraibel's Mets and the Indians, managed by Bill Donnelly and Bill Walsh, will battle it out for the pennant.

MIX YOUR OWN POISON

A conscientious housewife was not satisfied with the way her bathroom bowl cleaner was removing stains so she added a dash of household bleach. She was found on the bathroom floor - dead! An unsuspecting victim of deadly chlorine gas.

Mixing household cleaners can be dangerous. The deadliest mixture is the combination of chlorine bleach with an acid-producing substance, such as bathroom bowl cleaner or vinegar. The result will be chlorine gas.

One Medical Newsletter told of 20 persons in separate incidents being overcome by gases from the combination of chlorine bleach and ammonia. These occured in the kitchen, bathroom and in treating swimming pool water.

To be safe - never mix cleaning agents, expecially chlorine bleach. Make sure you read the directions and warnings on the labels of all cleaning products.

Castle fixing made easy

Ah, we all have to fix up our castles once in a while. A draw bridge goes bad here, a turret starts to crumble there. We may even decide to expand the court yard beyond the moat. It all costs dearly. At the Quincy Co-operative Bank, we're in the business of providing money to fix your castle.

If your castle, or home (or whatever you call it) needs repairs, drop into either our Hanover or Quincy offices. You'll be doing yourself a favor by keeping your home in tip top shape. Especially if and when you decide to put it up for sale ... and go searching for a new castle.

MONEY TALKS

Here's Another Myth that Keeps People from Saving

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-5 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

We have made an informal collection of the myths that people espouse to keep themselves from saving. One goes like this:

"We'll start later; we can't save now."

We heard this from a 28-year old man, who despite an $18,000 yearly salary, was having trouble keeping himself, his wife, and two children solvent. It reminded us of the story told by a black minister whose mother, despite abject poverty, had money to give each week to her church. She collected the eggs laid in her shanty, "God's eggs," and gave their proceeds to the church.

Nowadays, our economy is such as to encourage families into desperate situations. In the old days, a man who wanted to get anything out of life simply had to save for it. Everything required cash in hand, whether for a trip to the big city or for a new home. Today, on the other hand, there are temptations on every side to indulge in seductive new luxuries without concerning yourself immediately about the cost.

Advertisements woo you to Hawaii for that well-deserved vacation . . . they argue that your family deserves the comforts of a fully air-conditioned home . . . they suggest everything for the household from barbecue pits to stereophonic hi-fi with room controls—all without the expenditure, until later, of a dime.

As a result, families are often over-extended with commitments out of each pay check that run into the vague and indefinite future, commitments for which a sizable chunk goes simply for the "privilege" of buying now and paying later.

People in these circumstances who wistfully admit the importance and values of thrift but postpone any action in that direction until "later" will probably never reach the day when they are cleared of obligations sufficiently to start a savings program.

These are the people who would never be able to meet their Federal income tax obligations if the money were not being systematically withheld from their pay checks.

Perhaps they could take a cue from Uncle Sam (who gets there first for what is coming to him) by doing a little "withholding" in their own behalf each month. A regular pattern of putting something into savings each pay day and leaving it untouched, no matter what the temptation, is the only practical way for those who find nothing left for savings at the end of the pay period.

Those who say they will start later because they need too many things now should ask themselves what they need more than the sense of comfort, ease, and security that goes with substantial savings.

We don't claim that a savings account is the panacea for all personal ails, but we do believe that the habit of thrift is a long step in the direction of happy, contented living.

On The Labor Scene

90% Go To Polls

Earle Christian Local 5 Executive Secretary

Earle Christian of Weymouth was elected executive secretary of Shipbuilders Local 5 in elections at General Dynamics last week.

More than 90 percent of the 1,600 union members went to the polls to vote six new members to their board of officers and re-elect 11 incumbents.

Arthur E. Batson Jr. of Brockton garnered 883 votes to retain the presidency in a battle with Stanley Kyller with 552 votes.

Christian, machine shop steward since 1959, defeated incumbent Richard Brunco for executive secretary by an 831-593 margin.

As executive secretary, he will take a leave of absence from the yard to serve as the local's only salaried, full-time officer.

Brunco, defeated in his first elective bid for the post, had served two years of the term of Anthony Svezzerino, who was promoted to become regional director of Shipbuilding Workers International.

Vice President Arthur Z. Durand received 1,121 votes and was re-elected without opposition.

The race for treasurer saw Thomas Manning unseat incumbent Richard Picciuto 726-677.

Thomas Clancy retained his post as recording secretary, defeating Theodore Salvati 714-684.

Incumbents Emil Belanger, 458, and Giro Cardinal, 503, were replaced on the board of trustees by Thomas Laing with 751 votes and George McCall with 646.

Angelo Triantafelow was re-elected as the third member of that board with 623 votes.

Other candidates included Philip Salvagi, 470, Albert McNeil, 286, and Pasquale Cappola, 286.

Re-elected to the grievance committee were Joseph Duffy, 938; George O'Kane, 796; Richard Cirillo, 679; Michael Salvaggi, 699, and Theodore Salvati, 596.

George McCall, who received 690 votes in that race, was disqualified through a union rule that only one man from each department may serve on the grievance board.

McCall and O'Kane both work in the sheetmetal shop.

Rounding out the field were Francis Trubiano, 454; Richard Schaaf, 394; Donald Barbieri, 316, and Richard Haefner, 307.

North Seeks 4th Win

North Quincy's baseball team, fresh from a 3-1 win Monday over previously unbeaten Revere, Friday faces arch rival Quincy in a 10 a.m. game at Adams Field, hoping to run its Greater Boston League mark to 4-1.

Monday the Raiders play at Malden and Wednesday will be home to Medford at 3 o'clock at Adams Field.

Following its first loss of the year, Charlie Bunker's Quincy nine received a superb pitching performance from Sophomore Tim Clifford, who scattered six hits, struck out nine and walked only one for his second straight win.

"Tim has been outstanding," Bunker said. "He has two of our three league wins, both route jobs and has struck out 24 in the two games. His control has been terrific."

North scored twice in the second when Steve McLaughlin doubled home a run, then scored on Kevin Jago's single. A passed ball allowed the other Raider run in the eighth. Revere's lone run was unearned, coming on a dropped fly and a passed ball.

Jago probably saved the day for North when, with the tying run on, he made a great leaping catch at third and doubled up the runner.

North had six hits in the well-played game which consumed less than two hours. The others were by Mike Conroy, Dan Minton, Lee Watkins and Bill Berberan.

North's junior varsity, under new coach Lou Ioanilli, ran its GBL record to 4-0 and Friday faces an equally unbeaten Quincy team. North topped Revere 9-5, Monday.

Last Friday North's pitching took its lumps as Everett's Dan Marchese hit two home runs for six runs to spark an 11-8 victory over the Raiders.

Each home run came with two men on in the second and sixth innings.

Bunker used four pitchers, Bob Pierce, Bobby Morton, Billy Shea and Rich Befera in an unsuccessful attempt to stem the Everett batters.

Each team had 11 hits but all North's were singles.

Pierce had four hits to spark North, while Shea and Lee Watkins had two each.

Earlier in the week North had walloped Chelsea, 11-4, for its second straight GBL win.

Clifford pitched all the way for the Raiders, giving up six hits, striking out 15 and walking four. "His performance comes like a shot in the arm for us," Bunker said.

North salted the team away with a seven-run explosion in the fifth inning.

Shea sparked the North offensive with two doubles and a triple. Watkins had a home run and double, Jack Rabel two singles and Jim McCabe a double.

Nardone Wins No.-16

Goalie Paul Reinhardt recorded his seventh shutout of the season April 20 as Nardone Aluminum whipped Hannon Tire, 2-0, to run its Squirt House League record to 16 wins, one loss and one tie.

Dickie Reinhardt had a goal and an assist, Robbie McHugh a goal and Danny Boyle two assists in the victory.

The North Quincy Professional Building got four goals from Randy Parker in tying Dee Dee's, 5-5, and collecting its first point of the season. NQPB has 17 losses and a tie on its record.

Johnny Martin got the other goal and Chickie Milford was credited with an assist.

Matt Kenney had two goals and an assist and Kevin Keegan had a pair of goals for Dee Dee's.

The other goal came off the stick of John Lyons, who also had an assist. Other assists went to John Toland, Joe McKenna and Paul Connelly.

Jay Carroll was outstanding in the nets for NQPB.

Squirt A's Take 4 Straight In Playoffs

The Quincy Squirt "A" team moved into the second round of the Bay Colony Hockey Association playoffs last week by wiping out Scituate in four straight games.

After winning the opener, 5-1, the previous week, the Squirts captured the second game, 4-3, in overtime.

Scott Richardson got a pair of goals and Robbie Craig and Mark Veasey got one each. Assists were credited to Tommy Gerry [2], Mark Veasey, George Mackey and Mark Messina.

Robbie Craig, John Furey and Neil Shea each had a goal and an assist in Quincy's 5-2 decision in the third game.

Tommy Gerry and Robbie Zanardelli got the other goals and assists went to Scott Richardson, Mark Veasey, Chuckie Marshall and Tommy Mullen.

The Quincy lads wrapped it up in the finale with a 4-1 victory as Tommy Gerry got two goals and Jimmy Campbell stood out in the nets.

Robbie Craig had a goal and an assist, John Furey had two assists, Scott Richardson had a goal, and Mark Veasey and Sean Dennis each an assist.

Shea In Hat Trick As Nord Blanks Scituate

Jimmy Shea had the three-goal hat trick plus an assist and goalie Jeff Nord chalked up his seventh shutout of the season Saturday as the Quincy Bantam "B" team blanked Scituate, 7-0, in the final game of the Alamo Hockey League season.

Quincy won the regular season championship in the East Division with a record of 24 wins, six losses and two ties.

Dave Previte, Dave Perdios and Richie Troy each had a goal and an assist; Mark Kelly had a goal and Dennis Bertoni, Mike Smith and Rick Carnali had an assist apiece.

Nord, in goal for all but one of the club's 32 games, was beaten only 52 times during the season for a fine average of 1.68 goals per game. The team scored 170 goals, allowed 55.

The Bantams open the playoffs Sunday, April 29, at 10:45 a.m. against the second place team in the Alamo League's West Division.

Blackwood, Sun Tie For First Place

Jackie Cronin of the Quincy Sun and Dennis Rush of Blackwood Pharmacy were not among the leading scorers during the Bantam House League season but the goals they got Saturday, April 21, turned out to be the most significant of the year.

Cronin scored with less than a minute left to play to give the Sun a 3-3 tie with upset-minded Derringer's and a share of first place with Farina Kitchens.

Farina, however, gets the top spot for playoff purposes on the basis of having scored 12 goals to 11 for the Sun in the four games between the two clubs during the season.

Rush's goal with only 27 seconds left to play lifted Blackwood into a 3-3 tie with Farina and gave his club third place and an undisputed playoff position by a point over Bersani Brothers and Johnson Motor Parts.

Goals by Brad Harland and Jerry Smith enabled Bersani to whip Johnson, 2-1, and clinch the fourth and final playoff spot.

Both Bersani and Johnson finished with 18 points but Bersani won the playoff not on the basis of nine victories against eight for Johnson.

Mark Paolucci had the only goal for Johnson.

Ed DiRamio and Bob Carmody tallied the other goals for Blackwood and Bob Crews and Tom Wilkinson, the league's leading scorers, and Paul O'Brien found the net for Farina.

League playoffs will begin in about a week with the pairings as yet unannounced.

The denomination's Boston-area includes some 70 religious societies.

Meeting at Boston's First and Second Church will be "Church of the Presidents" delegates Mrs. Norman Gellatly, Miss Bernice Barrett and Mrs. Robert Imper. Also attending will be the minister and his wife, the Rev. and Mrs. John R. Graham.

Both Sides Ready Ammo For South Quincy MBTA Hearing

deadend the MBTA."

Meanwhile, the leader of one "small, but vocal, group," Pat DiStefano, president of the South Quincy Civic Association, branded as "scare tactics" predictions that the South Shore line would deadend at Quincy Center without the South Quincy station.

"It will eventually go to South Braintree and beyond regardless of what happens to the South Quincy Station," he said.

DiStefano described his group's petition drive as "very successful". He said the petitions probably will not be turned over to the MBTA at the hearing but will be continued in circulation for two months and then presented to Mayor Hannon, Gov. Sargent and Secretary Altshuler.

The SQCA on Monday began circulating 5,000 flyers "alerting residents of South Quincy to the detrimental effects" of the station and urging them to turn out at the hearing to oppose it.

Monday morning, representatives of the SQCA were in the State House to testify in favor of a bill, filed by Rep. Joseph E. Brett [D-Quincy] and co-sponsored by the Quincy delegation on the Hill, that would direct the MBTA to move the proposed station from South Quincy to South Braintree.

Earlier, the legislature's joint committee on transportation reported unfavorably on a bill that would have prohibited construction of the station in South Quincy. The committee said it did not want to handcuff the MBTA in its selection of locations.

The Quincy Taxpayer's Association, also on Monday, announced that its board of directors had gone on record in favor of the South Quincy and South Braintree stations as a "forward step to expand the tax base in the city of Quincy and adjoining communities."

The association said it feels that "it is vital for the city of Quincy to have both the South Quincy station and the South Braintree station in order to keep MBTA costs to a minimum and to get state and federal funds for the construction of ramps and the Upland Road Extension.

"The state has made it quite clear that ramps in the Capen's Bridge area will only be constructed if a South Quincy station is constructed and they have also made it quite clear that they will never go directly to South Braintree without a station in the South Quincy area."

On the other hand, City Councillor Joseph LaRaia said he feels that the business community and other supporters of the station might be placing too much emphasis on the North-South Artery and the Expressway connections.

"I wonder if they're not in danger of cutting off the nose to spite the face," he said.

"There seems to be a feeling that the roads will be the cure-all for the economic problems of downtown Quincy. They may be getting hypnotized by those ramps."

LaRaia shrugged off reports that new pressure is being exerted on the City Council to change its stand against the station.

"It is possible that some councillors may have changed their minds," he said. "I know I haven't."

Midget B's Come From Behind To Tie Easton

Quincy B Midgets came from behind to tie League leading Easton, April 20, 3-3.

Quincy was down by three goals at the halfway mark but superior goal tending from Rich Wilson and Mark Fanning kept Quincy in the game. Easton scored two quick goals at the beginning of the game while Quincy was short handed, and added another in second. Quincy came back strong scoring and out-playing the strong Easton team.

Quincy goals were scored by Mike McCully [3], which tied the game 3-3, Tim Pyne [4] and Nick Cyr [2].

Also playing well for Quincy were Frank Chruccheire, Bob Mewis, Joe Pistorino and Paul Lynch.

Quincy's record is now 20-8-4 in the league and 40-14-5 outside.

Squantum Boy Leads In Sun Contest With 34 New Customers

Cameron Porter of Wedgewood St., Squantum has taken over the lead in the race for the 10-speed bicycle being awarded as the top prize in the Quincy Sun Junior Salesman Circulation Contest.

Cameron has added 13 more customers to bring his total so far to 34 new subscribers.

But strongly challenging him is Eddie DiTullio of Curtis Ave., Quincy Point who has picked up 11 new customers to move up into second place with a total of 31 new subscribers.

Ricky McCarter of Morley Rd, Wollaston, the early leader, is now in third place with 30 new subscribers.

A new Space Pac Lightweight 10-speed bike from Colman's Sporting Goods Store, 1630 Hancock St., Quincy, will go to the newsboy or newsgirl with the most new customers when the contest ends May 3.

But everyone who gets at least five new customers wins a prize. And everyone who gets 10, 15 or 20 wins more prizes.

Here's how it works:

● Two tickets to the Strand, Wollaston or Lincoln Theater for five new customers.

● An RCA transistor radio from South Shore Television & Appliance, 1570 Hancock St. for 10 customers.

● Two tickets to a Red Sox game for 15 new customers.

● A $15 gift certificate to Colman's Sporting Goods Store or Jason's Music and Luggage Shop, 1514 Hancock St. for 20 new customers. If you get 20 customers--you get four prizes.

But time is running out. May 3 is the deadline. That's next Thursday!

Cameron Porter so far has won: two tickets to the Wollaston Theater, an RCA transistor radio, two tickets to a Red Sox game and a fishing rod [his $15 gift certificate] from Colman's Sporting Goods Store.

Eddie DiTullion, with his 31 customers, has won: two tickets to the Lincoln Theater, RCA transistor radio, two tickets to a Red Sox game and a $15 gift certificate from Colman's Sporting Goods Store.

Ricky McCarter also has won: two tickets to the Strand Theater, transistor radio from South Shore Television & Appliance, two tickets to a Red Sox game and a $15 gift certificate from Colman's Sporting Goods Store.

Kathy Norton of Campbell St., West Quincy, has 16 new customers to win two tickets to the Strand Theater, an RCA transistor radio and two tickets to a Red Sox game.

Many other boys and girls have won prizes or are close to winning prizes including:

There are other winners but their records have not yet been completed.

Newsboys and girls are urged to turn in the names of their new customers to the Quincy Sun office, 1601 Hancock St., in downtown Quincy so they can pick up their prizes.

Hurry! Time is rapidly running out. May 3 is the deadline. Last chance to win a prize.

GOING FISHING – Cameron Porter of Wedgewood St., Squantum, checks fishing rod at Colman's Sporting Goods Store, one of four prizes he has won so far in Quincy Sun Junior Salesman Contest. Cameron now has 34 new customers to take the lead in the race for the grand prize--a 10-speed bicycle.

are asking questions that Republicans had hoped never would be raised:

Was President Nixon personally implicated in the Watergate crimes? Could the President himself be involved in so sordid an episode?

We have sought the answer from the best available sources. They swear that the President was misled by two of his most trusted advisers, John Mitchell and John Dean. Both swore to his face that they had no advance knowledge of the Watergate bugging operation.

There were other aides who cautioned the President that Mitchell and Dean must have been aware of the break-in and bugging. But Nixon would just shrug helplessly and ask for proof. Then he would emphasize that he didn't want to behead innocent people.

Message to Liddy

Now the President is sorrowfully convinced that Mitchell and Dean lied to him. He is determined, therefore, to get to the bottom of the Watergate case. He ordered a message delivered to

South Quincy MBTA Station At Least 2 Years Away

By TOM HENSHAW

In the aftermath of last week's public hearing on the proposed South Quincy MBTA station two things, at least, are sure:

- Actual construction of the $15 million project will not begin for at least two years–if the station is approved.
- Direct confrontations between friend and foe of the proposal are over for at least a year.

HOW MANY WERE THERE? This photo was taken shortly after 8 p.m. during public hearing on the South Quincy MBTA station at Sterling Junior High School auditorium. Crowd estimates range from 400 to 700. Most of the empty seats shown here were occupied later. Some occupied here were empty later. [Quincy Sun Photo by Laban H. Whittaker]

The well-attended hearing at Sterling Junior High School on a rainy Thursday night was on an application by the MBTA to have the Urban Mass Transit Administration reserve the $10 million federal share in the cost of the track and station.

The application has been filed, an MBTA spokesman told the Quincy Sun.

The next step in preparation for construction of the facility will be a joint hearing by the MBTA and the Massachusetts DPW on the access roads proposed to connect the station with the Southeast Expressway.

That hearing is at least a year away, said the MBTA spokesman, to allow the DPW time to compile the required Environmental Impact Statement. It may even call for two hearings, the spokesman said.

It will be at least a year after that before construction could begin on the mile and a half of track extension that would culminate in the station at Penn and Centre Sts. 1,000 feet from the Braintree line.

Proponents and opponents both thought the hearing "went well". Both sides believe they got in their convincing points.

But meanwhile, the size of the crowd at the hearing has become a matter of controversy itself.

One published estimate set the crowd at 450–noting it was considerably smaller than the one that turned out at Braintree Town Hall when the MBTA wanted to put the station in North Braintree.

The Sterling auditorium was pretty much filled at various times during the marathon session that lasted nearly six hours.

A school official said the auditorium can seat 735. And, the MBTA itself, used the figure 700 referring to the size of the hall. The spokesman said "it was pretty much "filled" at the height of the hearing."

Burger King Withdraws Application

Burger King has withdrawn its application for a license to convert the old Hancock Bank in downtown Quincy into a family sit-in restaurant at a cost of $500,000 or more.

The application was withdrawn from the City Licensing Board by Atty. Stephen T. Keefe, Jr., representing the firm.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon, who opposed "a hamburg operation" at the location said that "somebody else is looking at it" for development.

There had been opposition to the restaurant from other businessmen in the area and from residents of apartments across the street.

Keefe said that if approval had been given, the facility would become a pilot program for Burger King as the first of its sit-in type family restaurants.

He noted that the building has become "unattractive during its idleness".

The Hancock Bank vacated the location two and a half years ago and remodeled the former Sheridan Store.

Mayor To Honor Board Members

Members of municipal boards and committees will be honored by Mayor and Mrs. Walter J. Hannon at a reception May 10.

The event will be from 7:30 p.m. to midnight at George F. Bryan VFW Post Hall, 24 Broad St., Quincy.

A buffet will be served. There will be music for dancing.

Hannon said in invitations now being sent out:

"This event is conducted in recognition of you and the Quincy residents who serve their city in a dedicated and devoted effort, volunteering countless hours and personal sacrifice to assist in forging the Quincy of today and tomorrow.

"I feel that your efforts are worthy of proper recognition by the Mayor and City Council for the assistance you have rendered to a grateful community".

New Move Underway To Name School For Dr. Charles Djerf

The Dr. Charles Djerf Community School is still a possibility.

School Committee Vice Chairman Paul C. Kelly said Tuesday he hopes to get the committee at its May 9 meeting to reconsider the vote that named the new Southwest Elementary School the Lincoln-Hancock Community School.

"I don't see any sense to continuing the tradition of naming schools after presidents who have long been deceased," said Kelly.

"There are memorials in every city, town and hamlet across the country bearing the name of Lincoln. There are streets, buildings, even insurance companies named for Hancock.

"We ought to have the school dedicated to someone from the contemporary period who made a contribution to the city. I'd like to see someone match the contributions made by Dr. Djerf."

The School Committee April 25 voted down a proposal to name the school the Dr. Charles Djerf Community School. The vote was 4-3 with Mayor Walter J. Hannon casting the deciding vote.

Later in the same meeting, the Committee voted to name the school Lincoln-Hancock, retaining the names of the two schools it replaced. That vote was 5-2 with Kelly and Charles T. Sweeny in opposition.

"We hope to get one of the affirmative votes–possibly Mayor Hannon or Daniel Raymondi–to join us in the move to reconsider," said Kelly.

Who Won? Only Time Will Tell

Both Sides Have Their Say On MBTA Station

By DICK MATTULINA

Both sides have strongly voiced their opinions about the proposed South Quincy MBTA station but only time will tell who won the Great Argument.

A crowd estimated between 400 to 700 persons braved last Thursday's heavy rain to attend a marathon public hearing which started at 7:30 p.m. and lasted until nearly 1 a.m. at Sterling Junior High School.

Proponents--consisting largely of businessmen, labor leaders and the City Planning Board--saw the proposed station as "essential" and spoke of the "revitalization" and economic "growth" it would bring to Quincy.

Opponents--including most elected officials and the majority of local residents, gave it such words as "abomination", "blackmail" and "scare tactics", or raised questions about flooding and traffic problems the station might bring.

Of the 73 persons who spoke at the hearing at Sterling Junior High School, 37 recorded themselves in favor of the proposal, 30 voiced opposition and six delivered statements which could be interpreted either way.

Hearing procedure called for preliminary presentations by panel members and statements from public officials, so that townspeople were not given the floor until after 10 p.m.

Stumbling blocks and considerations which concerned speakers included preliminary statements by MBTA and state officials that:

- The Commonwealth would not consider either a single station in South Braintree or relocating the South Quincy plan to North Braintree.
- Funds for completion of the Upland Road extension would not be approved unless the station is built in South Quincy.
- Results of an environmental study concerning flood problems related to the construction have not been completed.

The speakers, in virtually the order they appeared, had this to say.

Ward 3 Councillor Theophilus McLelland charged that the "rights of [his] constituents have been violated" by the dependency of the Upland Rd project on the station.

McLelland questioned the need for a hearing since "the Governor and Secretary [Alan] Altshuler have already decided to place the station in South Quincy."

He said he intended to consult with Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn and the American Civil Liberties Union to question the Constitutionality of the procedure.

Ward 2 Councillor-Rep. Clifford H. Marshall asked "How in God's name can anybody support the package when we are a year away from the results of the environmental impact study?"

Marshall said the tying together of the station and road may have "favorable probabilities" but "there is nobody in this room who can support the package without knowing the full impact."

Council President-Sen. Arthur H. Tobin said he did not "like to be given ultimatums" and could not "in good conscience, support something of this magnitude."

"There were no ultimatums given the people of Braintree" when plans for a North Braintree station were rejected at a public hearing two years ago, Tobin said.

Mayor Walter Hannon urged that the plans be toned down with a garage to house no more than 1,500 cars and a "firm commitment" to extend the line to South Braintree.

He urged that Penn and Centre Sts. not be dead-ended, as suggested, and that the flooding problem around Town Brook be solved.

Former Mayor James McIntyre, now Senate Counsel, said the line must be extended out of Quincy Center or traffic congestion will "slowly stultify our economic center."

He asked officials to make sure the station "enhances not only Quincy's economic future, but also our community."

Taking a harsher view of the project were Reps. Thomas F. Brownell, Joseph E. Brett and William D. Delahunt, and Councillors John J. Quinn, J. Vincent Smyth and Albert R. Barilaro.

The success of the South Shore line, according to Delahunt, has been "both our blessing and our crucifix."

The city, he said, "is being blackmailed into accepting a station that was intended to be in North Braintree."

Brett said he was "adamantly opposed" to the project and Brownell labeled it a "mistake" which will remove valuable land from the tax rolls.

Quinn called the dead-ending of Centre and Penn Sts. "an abomination" and asked that the flood problem be solved before taking further action.

Smyth said he felt "home rule is being chipped away from the cities and towns. The next station location should be in Braintree.

"I beg of you to think of the people," he said. "It is their city and it is their taxes."

Barilaro argued against the increased tax assessment to the city and urged that The South Quincy Civic Association present their petition to Cong. James A. Burke for action in blocking funds.

Pasquale S. DiStefano, president of the association, announced that his group has gathered some 11,820 signatures opposing a station either in South Quincy or North Braintree.

DiStefano charged that Secretary Altshuler's statement that the project could cause "minor disruption" was "ruthless and rash".

There are at least 11,820 people who don't think the disruption is so minor," he said.

Rep. William Spence of Hingham said the station is a necessity for the people of his area.

"My district has been poorly served" with transportation to Boston, he said, citing the Southwest Expressway which was never built and the recent halting of the "wrong-way" bus sytem.

Braintree Selectman Chairman Donald Laing said it was not his place to tell the citizens of Quincy whether or not they should have another station.

Rev. Bedros Baharian, chairman of the Quincy Planning Board, said the line must be extended, according to Delahunt, has been "both our blessing and our crucifix."

James T. Duggan of 57 Viden Rd accused the state of employing "scare tactics" in suggesting that the line might stop in Quincy Center if the South Quincy station is not built.

"If it is needed, it will go further south," he said.

Board, said the line must be extended out of Quincy Center to justify the $100 million already spent on the South Shore line and its accompanying overpasses and highways.

"This is not a wise investment if the line ends in Quincy," he said.

Carmen D'Olimpio, president of the Builders' Trade Union, said he favored the proposal because it would "generate about $50 million in new construction and assure completion" of the Upland Road project.

"If we don't extend the MBTA, we'll be hurting ourselves," he said. "Thus, the MBTA is the key."

Richard McMullen of the Metropolitan Area Planning Council said stations in South Quincy and South Braintree are "the essential minimal steps" to provide proper rapid transit service to the South Shore.

McMullen urged that the ramp system be designed "in such a way that little or no adverse conditions" be created.

Twelve of the 15 members of the Quincy business community who spoke at the hearing went on record in favor of the proposal.

Exceptions were John Stobo, vice president of Raytheon, and Francis J. Mitchell of Old Colony Crushed Stone. Both companies are in the immediate vicinity of the proposed station.

Stobo said the parking garage for the station would take or reduce the Centre St. plant's parking lot by half and "would jeopardize 800 jobs."

Mitchell said he could not take "an advocate's position" on the proposal because he was concerned about results of the environmental impact study.

Frank E. Remick, owner of Remick's of Quincy, said the station would ease traffic, bring tax benefits through development and open Boston job opportunities to South Shore residents.

Businessmen supporting the station included Eric Swider, executive vice president, South Shore Chamber of Commerce; John M. Kerrigan, Baskin-Robbins; Robert M. Faxon, Quincy businessman; Nathan Katz, Milton's of Quincy.

Also Ronald Mendler, executive director, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association; William Woskie, manager Sears Roebuck; Harold Slate, Chamber of Commerce; Mark S. Bertman, Roger's Jewelry Store.

William Kelley, president, and John Farmer, assistant treasurer, Hancock Bank and Theodore Johnson, Granite City Hardware.

John Hogan of Painters Local 38 was the only one of five union representatives speaking who opposed the plan.

Speaking in favor were Fred Hanson, Carpenters Local 762; Paul Madden, Plumbers Union; Richard Kelliher, Electrical Workers Local 103, and Harry Riley, Laborers Local 133.

Others in favor of the proposal included:

Dr. Donald McLeod, Dixwell Ave.; Planning Board Member George C. Smith Jr.; John E. Murray, 25 Morton St.; Earle P. MacLeod, 57 Quincy St.; Peter O'Connell, 1501 Furnace Brook Parkway.

John Blake, 480 Centre St.; Harry Roemer, Quincy Taxpayers Association; Virginia Seaman, 186 Kendrick Ave.; William S. O'Connell, Braintree; Leo MacDonald, 49 Pleasant St.; Paul Berrini, 43 Trafford St.

Paul Hurley Jr., 1249 Hancock St.; Ted Staples, 170 Summit Ave.; Robert Langlois; George Riley, Faxon Lane; Frank Vallier Jr., 39 Kent St., and Helen Grazioso.

Opposing the station were:

Jennie Vanelli, 184 Liberty St.; Sandra Massone, 76 West St.; Atty. Jeffrey LaPointe, 11 Hughes St.; Laurence J. Curtin, 56 Dale Ave.; James T. Duggan, 57 Viden Rd.

Mrs. D. Q. Murray, 6 Booth St.; Albert Conti, 292 Water St.; Richard Staples, 170 Summit Ave.; Calvin O. Joppru, 124 Brook Rd; William F. Hennessey, 24 Endicott St.

Peter P. Gacicia, 20 Stanley Circle; William Walsh, 282 Franklin St.; Maria Coffin, 4 Alton Rd; Florence Weeks, Water St.; Timothy Cargill, 68 Presidents Lane; Charles Lombardo, 62 Payne St.; Ernest Aristide, 156 Brook St.

MBTA Station At Least 2 Years Away

Meanwhile, Pat DiStefano, president of the South Quincy Civic Association, hinted at collusion between Mayor Walter J. Hannon and the MBTA "to minimize and localize the issue to South Quincy".

"Foreseeing the problem of insufficient space at Sterling," he said, "I publicly demanded at the second informational hearing at City Hall on March 20 that the Quincy Armory be utilized for the public hearing.

"My remarks officially requesting the Armory are on record...

"Mr. Graham of the MBTA Planning Staff later informed me that the Armory was definitely out, as was the North Quincy High Auditorium, the Vo-Tech, Quincy High and any other central location."

Mayor Hannon declined to comment on DiStefano's charges.

However, a spokesman for the MBTA said the Armory was considered but ruled out because "the acoustics are terrible." The spokesman said it then came down to a choice between North Quincy's auditorium and Sterling.

Sterling won out because of the higher capacity of the hall, 400 to 700, the spokesman said. And because "we didn't think it fair to ask South Quincy residents to go to North Quincy to be heard."

DiStefano served notice that, while the station may have survived the latest battle, the war is not over.

"I take great pleasure in informing them [proponents] that we consider the recent events as clear victories and we are now intensifying our efforts against the station.

"We will not tip our hands at this time but we do plan on coordinating some of our efforts with federal officials and the petition drive will be intensified to include upwards of 20,000 signatures, perhaps as many as 50,000.

"This first hearing by the MBTA is by no means the culmination of the issue. On the contrary, we envision at least three more hearings by other agencies and we shall plan action based on those hearings..."

The hearings, he said, will involve such things as "wetlands violations, etc."

Pitch Made To Bring 'Old Ironsides' To S.S.

A move is underway to bring "Old Ironsides" to Quincy or another South Shore coastal community if the famed vessel has to leave Boston.

John C. Nourse, Director of Development and Tourism for Norfolk County, made the pitch for the USS Constitution in a letter to Rear Admiral Richard E. Rumble, commandant of the First Naval District.

The possibility the ship may be moved from Boston is an aftermath of the ordered closing of the Boston Naval Shipyard. The Constitution is tied up there.

In his letter, Nourse said:

"The speculation about the USS Constitution, "Old Ironsides", leaving Boston because of a lack of money and personnel to care for it is very disturbing to those of us who feel that the future of this ship, a vital part of our national heritage, may be threatened.

"We believe that the Constitution belongs in the greater Boston area as it has been for the past 40 years.

"We are deeply concerned about the future of this vessel and if there are proposals to be considered for movement to another location or abandonment of it, we ask to be given an opportunity to be considered for a possible location of the ship in the [Quincy, Weymouth, Cohasset], South Shore area.

It would be appreciated if you would keep us informed of the status and future of this ship.

Delahunt Urges City Prepare For Community College, U-Mass

Rep. William D. Delahunt [D-Quincy] has urged Mayor Walter J. Hannon to start now to prepare the city of Quincy for the impact of the new UMass-Boston in South Boston and the proposed Community College at Broad Meadows.

He warned that the disruption of community life that has occured in some areas of Boston and Brookline due to an influx of students demanding housing can very well happen in Quincy, too.

He also suggested that Mayor Hannon be ready to take issue with Boston Mayor Kevin H. White's contention that Boston residents and businesses be given priority in employment and trade with the University at Columbia Point.

Rep. Delahunt's letter to Mayor Hannon said in part:

"The advent of the new University of Massachusetts branch at Columbia Point and the proposed Community College to be located at Broad Meadows in Quincy will clearly have a significant impact on the City of Quincy.

"I would respectfully submit that now is the time for Quincy to establish its own Educational Impact Committee to determine the effect that these two institutions will have on the city, especially in terms of housing, transportation, employment, recreational and educational benefit."

He enclosed an article from the Boston Globe summarizing Mayor White's concern about the impact of the new UMass on Boston.

"His major concern is that very high rents will result from increased demand by students with possible dislocation of local residents due to this rise in demand for housing.

"It is also important to note that Mayor White feels that a tie-in to the Quincy MBTA line will eventually be necessary. This suggestion should receive close scrutiny from any committee that you will hopefully establish.

"I would also ask you to take issue with his statement that Boston residents and businesses be given priority as to employment and trade with the University.

"Since state monies finance the entire construction and operation of this institution, this request by the Mayor of Boston seems inappropriate.

"However, since Quincy is directly affected by this new campus, I would hope that if priorities are established, the interests of Quincy residents and businesses are given equal consideration."

Rep. Delahunt also included in his letter some sections of a report by the Dorchester Columbia Point Task Force as they relate to Quincy.

The Task Force surveyed students at the current UMass-Boston campus in Park Square and found that 4 per cent live in the Near South [within 10 miles of Columbia Point] and 2 per cent live in Quincy.

However, 5 per cent of the students said they expect to live in the Near South when the Columbia Point campus is opened.

And, of the entering class of freshmen, 6 per cent told the Task Force that they expected to live in the Near South.

"As [current] students graduate and are replaced by others," the report said, "an increasing proportion can be expected to move nearer to Dorchester."

The Task Force noted that transportation services to Columbia Point "are, at the moment, poor to non-existent.

"The MBTA's Red Line stop at Columbia offers the best connection, if sufficient shuttle buses are run to the campus. But at least for the first years, these buses will have to cross six lanes of Morrissey Blvd.

"Furthermore, the Quincy line passes under Columbia Road but has no stop there. Students riding the train northbound will have to pass Columbia Station, go to Andrew and change for the Ashmont train, backtrack to Columbia and take the shuttle bus to the campus.

"One alternative solution to the transportation problem suggested by the Task Force is to run express buses from various nodes—one of which would be Quincy Center.

"If this takes place it could encourage the Center as a place of residence for students."

The Task Force recommended that, during the University's first year of operation, the MBTA should experiment with express bus service from such places as Forest Hills, Kenmore Square, Route 128 and Quincy Center."

Downtown Hancock St. Area To Get Improved Lighting

Hancock St. from the South Shore National Bank to the Firestone Store at School St., will have better lighting in about six to eight weeks.

Mass Electric has promised to begin a survey of current lighting conditions in a couple of weeks with installation of new lights probably completed a month after the survey.

The survey is being conducted at the behest of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

"New lights were installed at both ends of Hancock St.," said Joseph Shea, executive secretary to the Mayor, "but nothing was done about the middle. I guess nobody noticed it until both ends lit up.

"Mass Electric is a little behind in installations, mostly because of the strike. But we'll get the lights, all right. We have never had a request turned down."

Peggy Harvey: Anne Reid Is Trying To Locate You

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I was wondering of there is someway you could help me.

I came here from Scotland 8 years ago with my American husband and year old baby.

While I was still in School in Scotland I had a Pen Pal in America, her name was Peggy Harvey [Margaret] from "Quincy, Mass." Then she came to Greenock, Scotland to visit her Grandmother who lived in the "Westburn Building" and Peggy and I finished our last year together in the "Finnart Junior Secondry School". She had a cousin who played in a "Flute band" his name was Eddie Boyd and we used to march with them in the parades, after a while she left to go back to the states. At that time, about 16 or 17 years ago, my name was Anne Reid and I think Peggy said she met a boy on the "Liner" that she was going to marry, and I lost touch with her since then. I don't know her married name or her address.Her mother still lives in Quincy, Mass. Her name is Margaret Harvey, and that's all I know. I would dearly love to find her, as Philadelphia is a big city, but lonely.

I would be most gratefull if you could help me in anyway at all. Thank you.

'Does Maternity Leave Qualify As Sick Leave?'

The League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone was asked, "Does maternity leave qualify as sick leave?"

"Yes" reported the VIP phone, "Disabilities caused or contributed to be pregnancy, miscarriage, abortion, childbirth, and recovery therefrom are, for all job-related purposes, temporary disabilities and should be treated as such under any health or temporary disability insurance or sick leave plan available in connection with employment."

So read the regulations of the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination under Chapter 151B of the General Laws of Massachusetts.

The regulations go on to say: "Every full-time female employee is now entitled as a matter of law to at least eight weeks maternity leave if she complies with the following conditions: [1] She has completed an initial probationary period which does not exceed three months or has been employed for at least three consecutive months and [2] She gives two-weeks notice prior to the expected departure date.

"She is entitled to return to the same or a similar position without loss of employment benefits for which she was eligible on the date her leave commenced, if she terminates her maternity leave within eight weeks.

"Accrued sick leave benefits shall be provided for maternity leave purposes under the same terms and conditions which apply to other temporary disabilities."

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Quincy To Continue Amity Aide Program

Ellis J. Swartz, Coordinator of Foreign Languages for the Quincy School System, announces the Quincy School System will continue with its Amity Aide Program from January, 1974 to June 1974.

He said there will be three Spanish-speaking aides from Uruguay, Chile and Mexico; two German-speaking aides from Germany and Austria; and three French-speaking aides from Belgium and France.

These aides live with host families in the Quincy area. Applications are now being received from families who wish to have these aides live with them for periods of 10 or 20 weeks.

The Quincy School System has been a participant in the Amity Aide Program for the past three years. The aides teach conversation and culture to Quincy's Foreign Language students in the secondary schools and give cultural presentations to the elementary schools. They also participate in the International Festival.

Families interested in having an aide live with them during the next school year are asked to contact Mrs. Inez Silverstein, 399 Adams St., Quincy, [479-4310] chairman of Host Families, or Mr. Swarts at 471-0100, ext. 388.

Anderson: Nixon Didn't Know

G. Gordon Liddy, the Watergate ringleader, who is still refusing to identify the higher-ups in the Watergate conspiracy.

The presidential message was delivered by Assistant Attorney General Henry Petersen. It's Liddy's patriotic duty, the President sent word, to tell what he knows.

I am convinced after a thorough investigation that the President was never told about the extent of the Watergate conspiracy. He was aware, however, of an overall espionage-sabotage operation. He considered this to be what he calls "Dick Tuck activities." Dick Tuck is a Democratic political prankster who used to play harmless political tricks on Nixon.

The President was left with the impression that zealots simply had carried these "Dick Tuck activities" too far. It has come as a shock to him that some of his closest advisers were neck-deep in the scandal.

Democratic Casualty

Meanwhile, at least one Democrat has also been hurt by the Watergate affair. He is Spencer Oliver, who for several years has served as the Washington liaison for the Democratic State Chairman Association. It was Oliver whose phone was tapped by the Watergate bugging crew last May.

Now, a year later, Oliver finds himself caught in a political cross-fire between Republicans and Democrats. Democratic national chairman Bob Strauss, for example, is furious with Oliver for not playing along with his efforts to settle the Democrats' multimillion-dollar lawsuit against the President's campaign committee.

Oliver has told my office he was offered as much as $50,000 to be paid over two years, if he would agree to let Strauss settle the suit out of court. Oliver's cooperation was crucial — since it was his phone that was bugged. Oliver's lawyers advised him to settle, but he stubbornly refused. Instead, he announced he would file his own lawsuit if Strauss went ahead with a settlement.

Wants Own Man

In retaliation, Strauss has tried to purge Oliver from the Democratic payroll. Strauss has had several stormy sessions with Democratic state chairmen in which he has insisted that he wants his own man in Oliver's spot.

At the same time, Oliver has suddenly run into Republican opposition. He holds down a part-time job as chairman of the bipartisan American Council of Young Political Leaders. Earlier this month, Republicans came to a meeting en masse and nearly succeeded in purging Oliver from the job as well.

By the first anniversary of the Watergate break-in, the chief victim, Spencer Oliver, could be out of a job.

The Next War: President Nixon has ordered America's military forces geared to the space age. He has complained that generals have a habit of basing their military strategy on the last rather than the next war. There may not be time in the nuclear age, he has warned, to respond with weapons of the last war.

Nixon has asked the military-industrial complex, therefore, to put their inventive genius to work devising revolutionary new weapons and tactics.

They have already developed a vapor bomb, sort of an explosive cloud, which can seep into the most impenetrable structures and explode on the inside. This could be used, for example, to destroy underground missile silos. The Air Force has also developed bombs that can be guided by television or laser beams.

The Army is working on individual, jet-propelled platforms which foot soldiers can use for Buck Rogers-style attacks. A whole army will be able to swarm through the air, easily hurdling over obstacles, to attack a position.

The Navy is working on glass bubbles that will enable future marines to maneuver at great depths under the ocean. Porpoises and whales are also being trained to see if they can be used for military purposes.

Those futuristic space wars you have been seeing on television may be closer than you think.

Tobin Blocks Attempts To 'Bostonize' N. Quincy Precincts

By PAUL HAROLD

Senator Arthur Tobin has shot down attempts to make Squantum and one or two other North Quincy precincts part of two Boston senatorial districts.

The second part of the legislative re-districting plan was filed last Wednesday and while neighboring districts have a few changes, the Norfolk Senatorial District apparently will remain Quincy, Braintree and Holbrook.

State House sources report that when Senator Tobin learned of the plan to dismantle the northern part of the city, he let it be known in no uncertain terms that he was opposed to it. And he pointed out that as a matter of senatorial curtesy, the senator's home town is never infringed upon in this manner. The other senators explained their plight, but Tobin refused to budge.

At least two Boston senatorial districts, which are below the population norm of 138,500, had hoped to incorporate parts of Quincy into their districts, according to the sources. State law requires that the districts be contiguous [touching], a rule which put the South Boston district and the Dorchester-Neponset district in a tough position.

South Boston is in particular trouble since it needs to pick up 20,000 residents to meet the norm. It cannot go south into Dorchester, because that district itself is looking for additional residents. It could not go too far north, because that would take away home ground from former Senate Majority Leader Mario Umana, now a judge. And it didn't want to extend too much further into Roxbury, because then South Boston would lose its control [population wise] of the district.

South Boston's answer was to look across Boston Harbor to pick up needed population [contiguous by water]. One of the plans seriously considered was to take parts of North Quincy, precinct 4 in Ward Six [Squantum with 3,714 people] in particular.

The Dorchester district was also hoping to extend across the Neponset Bridge and pick up one or two precincts in North Quincy.

But under the proposed plan filed last week, South Boston incorporates Charlestown [contiguous by water] to pick up necessary population. The Dorchester district extends to Avon to pick up what it needed.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Summer vacations and summer jobs are about to begin for college students throughout the Commonwealth. Many students will take jobs as salespersons for encyclopedia companies.

Most of these companies are reputable--however, some unscrupulous companies train their salespersons to use illegal or unethical tactics to convince consumers to buy sets of encyclopedias that they really do not want or cannot afford.

Often, these salespersons tell the buyer that he has won a prize [which never materializes] or that he is being interviewed for a survey [which consists of questions intended to convince the consumer that he can afford an encyclopedia.

Once the salesperson is inside, the conversation rapidly switches to a high-pressure sales pitch. The salesperson may make claims of a "today-only low price" or a special bonus if the buyer signs the contract immediately. But consumers who investigate the claims may find that the prize and the bonus are part of every sale.

Comparison shopping is difficult for consumers who wish to buy a set of encyclopedias. Most are not marketed in the stores, and each dealer is granted rights to sell only one line of encyclopedia. Consequently, comparing the prices and characteristics of different sets requires extra effort by the consumer.

However, by calling dealers the consumer can compare quality and pricing on many encyclopedias and then choose the one that best suits their needs.

Consumers who get caught in a high pressure sale pitch have an option if they have signed up for a set of books and decide later that they do not want them or cannot afford them.

The "buyer's remorse" law gives buyers an opportunity to cancel certain contracts they sign in their homes. If the contract is for more than $25 or more than three installment payments, it may be cancelled by sending written notice to the company by midnight of the third business day after receiving a copy of the contract.

'Too Close To See The Jelly'

I sat at a counter restaurant recently for breakfast. A man to my left had ordered English muffins but when they arrived he just sat there not eating. At last he called to the busy counter girl angrily ... "Miss, I ordered English muffins and jelly ... where's the jelly?"

"Right in front of you" ... she said nicely half smiling as she pointed to the tray of grape jelly ... orange marmalade ... maple syrup.

This man wasn't blind ... yet he was blind to the very thing he wanted ... and already had right at his finger tips. That's what I'm concerned about right now ... blindness to that which is so very close to us. Look at some examples.

Mr. J.C. Dolle was so very busy running his business ... and entertaining business friends that he had no time to spend with his family. When John, his son, was found on a bad trip with L.S.D. Mr. J.C. blamed the police. The truth was that J.C. was blind to what was going on right in his own home.

Meddling parents into the home of their married children often fail to see the havoc that they are causing ... though they do not so intend at all ... just blind to what they're doing.

We might say that we have all contributed to the pollution of our earth and atmosphere ... by being unaware of the blight and destruction which our litter ... smoke ... and waste are producing. We're just blind to the damage that we personally are doing.

Husbands often destroy the happiness of their wives by not showing affection ... speaking no words of appreciation ... giving little cooperation in the operation of the home. Wives too often destroy the spirit of their husbands by degrading remarks ... refusal to give any encouragement ... even by not recognizing the man when he arrives home. One man said ... "If I could just hear when I arrive ... 'Hi Dear ... how'd your day go?'... that would mean everything to me. Instead she usually pays no more attention than if the dog had come in." Blind to the goodies at our very fingertips.

Why can't we see the jelly ... the goodness around us ... why can't we see how we often destroy these precious things by our blindness? One reason is the LACK OF AWARENESS. Many of us seem to be conditioned to be insensitive to other persons ... and "jellies" right in front of us. We fail to remark about the good meal ... the ironed shirts ... the good student project ... the good and timely diagnosis of the doctor. We need to train ourselves to be sensitive ... aware of the "jelly" right in front of us.

Secondly ... we need to STOP BEING SUCH BABIES ... if we open our eyes and look around we may not need to call the busy waitress ... or mommy ... or the supervisor. Too many people are still looking for a mommy in everyone ... still living out the child ... waiting for mommy to say ... "right in front of you, Darling." PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY is a mark of adult living ... I think we need a lot more of it. Then ... we could see the jelly better ... enjoy the goodies at our fingertips.

Buffet And Dance

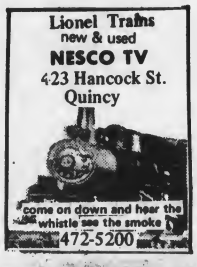
Junior Class Gives Seniors Farewell

Friday the 13th did not bring it's traditional bad luck, and it was not even raining. Instead, the evening of the 13th saw the first farewell party at North Quincy High School, given by one class for another.

The Junior Class represented by it's officers, Kathy Sheehan, Steve Orlando, Mary White and Debbie Mattson and their advisor, Mrs. Carolyn Howard planned a buffet dance to see the current senior class off.

The buffet which was put together by members of the Vocational Technical High School, included turkey, ham, cheeses, potatoe salad, chips, rolls, punch and an assortment of cupcakes and sweets.

In between sandwiches and desserts, the students danced to the music of Horizon, a band composed of North students. The band members include Gary Tassinary, Carl Leone, Jack O'Brien, Bill Donovan, Burt Bray and Joe Smongeski.



There were several hundred students enjoying this unique party in North Quincy High's gym from 8-11 p.m.

Debbie Mattson made the following comments. "The idea of the Buffet Dinner-Dance that was held in appreciation of the graduating seniors was given to the junior class by our advisor, Mrs. Carolyn Howard.

In order to allow the seniors one more memory of their High School days the first dance of it's kind was an enjoyable evening for all those who went. Unfortunately, not as many people attended as were expected."

The following students made these comments in regards to the affair.

Gail Doherty: "It was a change from the usual dances because first of all, everyone was dressed up, and second, there weren't that many kids. I thought it was a nice gesture on the part of the junior class to do this for the seniors, and as a result, we lost on it. Not enough kids went."

William Mulcahy: "I think the idea of the juniors hosting the seniors to a dance was a good idea. The buffet had good food and was excellent. The group "Horizon" played good. There was a good turnout of kids. The only part I didn't like was some of the boys did not wear ties and jackets, and the girls didn't wear dresses. At least we could show that some of the juniors and seniors at North really have class and have some pride and spirit."

Margaret Ardini: "It was really a nice thing to do for the seniors, and it turned out to be a pretty good time. It was a good thing to start in this school for future classes. The whole idea brought about a sense of unity between the juniors and seniors."

Senior Class

Dance Saturday

The senior class at North Quincy will sponsor its last dance of the year Saturday, May 5, from 8 p.m. to 11 p.m. in the gym.

Music will be by "Maze", a group which features several North Quincy High students. Proceeds from the dance will go to the senior class and possibly scholarships.

HOT WATER VAPORIZER DANGER

A family bought a hot water vaporizer advertised as tip-proof, foolproof and safe. They placed it on a stool, plugged it in and waited for the steam to rise. While it was steaming, their 3-year-old daughter caught herself in its electric cord. The vaporizer tipped and spilled scalding water onto the child. She will bear the scars all of her life.

The problem is that most hot water vaporizers bring the water temperature up to 212 degrees. Water will scald at 145 degrees and produce third-degree burns at 180. Following studies in this area, Underwriters' Laboratories, watchdog of electrical product safety, revised its standards so that effective July, 1972 the water temperature was reduced to 130 degrees maximum.

For what it's worth, medical authorities say that cool mist vaporizers - which do not rely on hot water, are quite as effective [and safer] than hot ones.

Rosenberg Espionage Case Emotion Packed

Do you sometimes speculate on the value of an old book in your possession?

Van Allen Bradley, one of America's foremost authorities on rare books presents a practical guide to the values of British and American books of the 19th and 20th centuries in a book new to our Reference Department shelves: THE BOOK COLLECTOR'S HANDBOOK OF VALUES. [Putnam. $17.50] Many readers will be astonished at the high values of certain books published within the last thirty or forty years, and will find Bradley's advice on buying and selling rare books most helpful. Pertinent descriptive information is given for all books listed, and the prices are remarkably accurate.

ADDICT, A DOCTOR'S ODYSSEY [Cowles. $6.95] is the frightening tale of Doctor James DeWitt who, after suffering a severe back injury while carrying a patient, developed an addiction to pain killing drugs. He was reduced to forging prescriptions and stealing drugs, lost his medical license, was divorced by his wife and ultimately became an alcoholic. Finally the tide turned and with the help of Alcoholics Anonymous he raised himself from the gutter. He now devotes his life to assisting young people who have drug and alcohol related problems.

Louis Nizer retells the emotion-charged story of the Rosenberg espionage case in THE IMPLOSION CONSPIRACY [Doubleday. $7.95] The Rosenbergs were accused of the passing of nuclear secrets to Soviet Russia. The major scene is the trial itself, where the reader becomes intimately involved with the defendants and learns of the heartbreak they suffer while awaiting the final verdict.

The love between Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, expressed in the letters between them while they are in the death house, the betrayal of Ethel by her younger brother David the heroism of their attorney - all these details add up to one of the most exciting spy thrillers of all time.

The years from 1770 to 1830 yielded some of the finest quality craftsmanship in all of American history. One of New England's leading antiques authorities, George Michael, covers all types of collectible from this period: furniture, ceramics, glass, clocks, pewter, and more, in GEORGE MICHAEL'S TREASURY OF FEDERAL ANTIQUES. [Hawthorne. $10] The illustrations and descriptions are excellent, and he adds many small, interesting historical details which make these period pieces a part of our American heritage.

The life story of Bessie Smith, "The Empress of the Blues", whose music was the primary inspiration to such artists as Billie Holiday and Janis Joplin is recorded in BESSIE by Chris Albertson [Stein. $7.95] This book penetrates the image of the dynamic performer to discover the real Bessie, and the strong willed, tough, intense woman who emerges will capture your interest to the very end - the day of her dramatic death on a desolate Mississippi road.

Remember the lovely china dolls we used to have? In DOLLS AND DOLLS HOUSES by Kay Desmonde [World. $5.95] you will find color photographs of dolls of all shapes, materials, sizes and costumes which make this book a delight to children as well as adults. Each doll has a history, and each gains a personality as you read about him or her. The final pages show the lovely furnishings and the exteriors of the most elegant of dolls houses, complete with their miniature inhabitants.

John Harrington Plans To Work For Justice Dept.

By LISA KOWILCIK
Northeastern University

Quincy's John Harrington plans to work for the U.S. Justice Department when he gets his co-op job next year.

John, 18, is a feshman in the economics course at Northeastern University in Boston.

Co-op at Northeastern University consists of placing a student on a job in his area of study for two quarters out of four. It starts in the students sophomore year.

The job in Washington would be in the statistics area of the Justice Department. "I will probably be a 'go-fer' which is someone who goes for this and goes for that. It is on the line of a messenger boy."

Pay would be $118 a week and would gradually increase as does the students experience.

There is university-supervised housing. The student receives a room along with another student and the room comes equipped with a bedroom and kitchen. The students may live in an apartment if interested, but it is advised to live in the dorm. It is less expensive since all you pay for is food.

John made the Dean's List at Northeastern for the first semester, but said, "As far as the job I'm planning for, marks don't mean that much." Later, getting a better paying job requires having good marks.

John lives with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Harrington, at 55 Division St., West Quincy. He commutes and finds that there are a lot of time difficulties involved in getting to school by public transportation.

John works for the A & P on Southern Artery in Quincy. It is a part-time job. John attends classes during the day.

$100,000 Approved For Scattered Site Housing

The state Department of Community Affairs [DCA] has approved a $100,000 contract of financial assistance with the Quincy Housing Authority for four units of scattered site housing, announces Commissioner Lewis S. W. Crampton.

Under the contract agreement, the state will provide the funds for purchase of scattered site family housing. Quincy will receive the money by June 13.

The funds are made available through Massachusetts Chapter 705 which authorizes DCA to provide funds for construction, acquisition, rehabilitation or leasing of existing housing dwellings, Commissioner Crampton explained.

Proponents of state-subsidized scattered site housing for large families of low income believe it is socially and economically advantageous to create economically mixed neighborhoods, rather than large developments with high concentrations of persons with low incomes, Crampton noted.

Since 1971 some 748 units of scattered site housing have been obtained in 20 Commonwealth municipalities. Approved funds for operation and acquisition now totals $19,174,000.

INTERNATIONAL FESTIVAL

For International Festival Week, April 9-12, this year Squantum Elementary School featured Italy and Poland. Twenty-five 6th grade students got together and put on a puppet show written by an Italian named Carlo Collodi. It was called Pinocchio. It was about a poor wood carver who made a wooden boy puppet who desperately wants to become a real boy.

The students made their own puppets and scenery. Other students in the school presented the art, foods and music of Italy and Poland.

R.S.V.P. May Be Established Here

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

Something very exciting happened to me, recently, I participated in a conference at which representatives from most of the social service agencies of the city were in attendance.

I not only participated in it, I ran it, and let me tell you, run is exactly what I did. Of course, I had help. Something like this doesn't happen without it. Mary Bamford and Clarence Edwards, members of the Council on Aging, were invaluable.

My staff from the office shouldered a big load. Bella Kevvitz and Lynn Mattson handled so many of the details. Marion Pearson, Mary Fisher, Libby Long and Mel Christian of the Hot Lunch Program, put together the luncheon and Angie DeRosa and Frank Minden took care of bringing it to the Voc-Tech School.

I also received complete cooperation from the school custodians. I don't know their names but I do know I couldn't have made it without their help. School Department staff members Bruce McLain and Bob Gardiner were of great assistance in setting up the conference facilities.

This conference resulted from discussions Mayor Hannon and I have had about the needs of all our elderly citizens and about the reduction in funds, both private and governmental, through which services could be provided. You know, it's not only city departments who are feeling the financial crunch, many of our private service agencies are also pressed for funds.

As a result of these discussions the Mayor and I felt that one realistic approach to this problem was use of volunteers; volunteers who could assist in providing services to the elderly and of equal importance, the use of senior citizens in volunteer activities which could provide services to the whole community.

Sound familiar? It should. I have been hinting at this kind of activity for sometime. And what has been encouraging, many senior citizens have already responded to these hints, asking how they might give some of their time.

Out of the Mayor's conference, "Voluntarism, The Immediate Realism", in which some 70 representatives from 34 service agencies came together, we determined that there is a need for an effective volunteer program. Agencies who have traditionally used volunteers, indicated interest in expanding their programs. Of even greater significance, agencies which to date have used paid staff exclusively, indicated interest in enlisting volunteer assistance.

With this kind of encouragement, we are now investigating the possibilities of bringing R.S.V.P. to Quincy [Retired Senior Volunteer Program]. This program enables a community to establish a comprehensive volunteer program which brings together those agencies who need assistance and senior citizens who have time and talents to offer. In addition, it can provide participants with reimbursement for travel and lunches so that the volunteer does not incur expense for his or her efforts.

Now, I realize that not every one will be interested and please don't let "talent" scare you off. When I mention talent, I mean being able to do something that might be of help or that might be of interest not only to an agency but also to another person.

Right now, we're making a start. When the time comes, respond.

'Right And Need Of Every Citizen To Become Involved' Says Mrs. Sargent

How can community service agencies maintain or expand programs in an era of diminishing public and private funds?

This was the question asked of some 70 agency representatives by Mayor Walter J. Hannon in his welcoming remarks, opening a one-day conference on voluntarism.

He proposed consideration of volunteers as an effective means of dealing with this problem and recommended all agencies, particularly those providing service to the elderly and those who might use older talent to service the community, give serious thought to the proposition.

The program's principle speaker, Mrs. Francis W. Sargent, pointed out, in her remarks, that it is the right and need of every citizen to become involved in the solution of community problems.

The governor's wife, head of the Governor's Commission on Citizen Participation stressed the use of volunteer assistance in providing for the needs of those returning to the community under the growing effort to de-institutionalize many of the patients currently living in state facilities.

Other speakers included Ms. Rosemary Whiting, representing United Community Services, who provided insights into a variety of successful volunteer activities, Mrs. Ernest Kraus of the Executive Office of Elder Affairs, who stressed the need for effective training programs for both staff and volunteers, Ms. Sally Ward, representing R.S.V.P. [Retired Senior Volunteers Program], who offered this approach as one way of initiating a community effort and Putnam S. Borden, executive director of the Quincy Council on Aging who suggested voluntarism as an avenue by which our isolated senior citizens can be returned to active community life. Borden also coordinated the conference for the Mayor.

The conference was attended by some 70 representatives from 34 agencies public and private.

Seven Wollaston, North Quincy Churches To Observe FISH Sunday

Seven churches in the Wollaston-North Quincy area will jointly sponsor through the Inter-Church Council FISH Sunday May 6.

The churches are Atlantic Methodist, Atlantic Memorial Congregational, First Church of Squantum, Union Congregational, St. Chrysostom's Episcopal, Sacred Heart Roman Catholic and Wollaston Nazarene.

Each church will be responsible for the details of its own program but each is designed to recruit members from the churches for the FISH program.

FISH is a volunteer organization designed to help people in the community with unspecialized kinds of assistance: babysitting, driving, companionship, cooking, and so forth, all on an emergency basis. Volunteers receive no special training other than a simple set of guide rules, take no payment for any services, do not buy or administer drugs, etc. Volunteers are ready to provide any kind of emergency assistance a friendly neighbor could be expected to do.

FISH was organized in England, but has become especially active in the United States. It is particularly helpful in urban areas to help in emergencies.

'Thomas Jefferson-A Reliable Religion Series Topic At First Parish Church

How religious ideas influence the lives of leaders is the theme of a new series of Sunday morning addresses at United First Parish Church [Unitarian], Quincy Sq.

Beginning May 6 at 10:45 a.m., Rev. John R. Graham, minister, will discuss the role which religion played in forming the thinking of two Presidents of the United States, Thomas Jefferson and John Quincy Adams; the abolitionist clergyman, Rev. Theodore Parker; and the first minister of the Quincy church, Rev. John Wheelwright.

The series opens May 6 with "Thomas Jefferson - A Reliable Religion".

In discussing this series of four sermons, Rev. Mr. Graham said, "Perhaps we can learn something important for our own living from the effect which religious ideas have had on such men as Jefferson and Adams. It's clear their thinking about themselves as people with a purpose grew out of their religion.

"Perhaps our lack of direction and deep-felt alienation stems from having cut off our religious roots."

In addition to the church service, church school classes and nursery care are provided.

Cancer Crusade Underway In South Shore Area

Norfolk County Register of Deeds, Barry T. Hannon, South Shore Area Chairman of the 1973 Cancer Crusade, has issued a plea for "cooperation and generosity", during the door-to-door solicitations now underway.

"The 1973 goal is the highest in history and early responses indicate that it will be achieved and exceeded by a handsome margin", Hannon said. "The cure for this dread disease has not yet been discovered. However, breakthroughs, developments, discoveries, and advancements are occuring more frequently and are of a greater magnitude then they were last year and in all previous years.

"The 1973 Crusade Slogan 'A cure within your lifetime' seems to be a realistic goal, however, there is no way that this goal can be achieved without the generosity of each of our citizens. Please make donations to the 1973 Cancer Crusade and, if you are able, make a generous donation."

Quincy Hosts Medford Friday

Quincy's baseball team, flying high after losing its first two Greater Boston League games, Tuesday sought its fourth win in a row when it faced North Quincy in a game rained out last week.

The Presidents Wednesday played at Malden, Friday will host Medford at Adams Field as the second half of the league schedule gets underway, Monday will play at Revere and Wednesday will go to Chelsea.

Monday Quincy hung on for a 7-6 win over Everett at Adams Field as third baseman Frank DiSalvio saved the day with an outstanding play in the ninth.

Everett had the tying run on first with no outs when DiSalvio made a great catch of a line drive which seemed headed for at least a double and he doubled the runner off first. Gary Bugdon then struck out the final batter.

Quincy scored five runs in the first two innings and had a 5-1 lead after three innings. Everett then exploded for four runs in the top of the fourth with two successive errors helping it along.

The Presidents tied the score in the bottom of the fourth and won it in the seventh on a fine individual effort by Mark Dwyer. Dwyer was on second and another runner on first with one out. On a grounder Everett tried for a double play but missed the runner at first and Dwyer, with a burst of speed, scored from second.

Bugdon pitched all the way and hurled fine ball. He gave up seven hits, struck out six and also walked six.

Quincy had eight hits, three by leadoff batter Bob Benn, who has been hitting at a fine clip. He had a two-run single in the second. Mike Marvelle had two hits including a long run-scoring double off the fence in the fourth to tie the score. George French, Mike Varrasso and Tom Perry had the other hits. DiSalvio walked all four times he came to bat.

Quincy had a runner on third base with no outs in the third but failed to score.

Quincy's junior varsity won, 10-5, to run its record to 5-0 and Tuesday faced North Quincy, which had the same record.

After dropping its first two Greater Boston League games, Quincy rebounded with two wins in a row, the latest a 13-6 seven-inning romp at Somerville.

Gary Budgon was the starting pitcher but ran into trouble and gave way to Paul Craig with the bases loaded in the sixth. Craig pitched out of trouble and breezed through the seventh.

The Presidents, who scored six times in the third and four times in the fifth, collected 12 hits, two each by Bob Benn, Mike Varrasso, and Frank DiSalvio, who had a long triple, and one apiece by George French, Mike Marvelle, Mike DePolo, Mark Dwyer, Tom Perry and Bugdon.

Benn was moved up the leadoff spot and responded with a 5 for 5 day including a double and two runs batted in.

The Presidents collected 16 hits which also included a double and two singles by Mike DePaulo, two singles by Perry, a three-run triple by Varrasso and a double by Dwyer.

Quincy scored in every inning but the seventh and had three runs in each of the first, second, third and fifth.

Earlier in the week Quincy lost to Revere, 5-3, with errors again proving costly just as they did in the opening league loss to Medford.

Dwyer started on the mound for the Presidents and breezed until the seventh, holding a 2-1 lead. Then the Patriots exploded for four runs with three errors of commission and two of omission accounting for three unearned runs.

George French had two singles and Marvelle a double but it was the performance of Perry behind the plate which drew Mosher's plaudits. "He looked good and threw the ball with authority to catch two runners trying to steal," Bud said.

Tom McHugh, Red Furey and Bobby Bolster got the goals for Hannon Tire, assisted by Tom Hannon, Brian Ofria and Bob Larsen.

Nardone also bowed to the North Quincy Professional Building in its final game of the regular season Friday [April 27] by a score of 3-1.

Quincy, Rockland Bantam B's In 1-1 Alamo Playoff Tie

The Bantam "B" teams from Quincy and Rockland are going to have to do it all over again as a result of their 1-1 tie Saturday in the opening round of the Alamo Hockey League playoffs.

Under league rules, there is no overtime and tie games have to be replayed from the start.

Matt Dillon, from Larry Cally, scored the Quincy goal in the first period but Rockland tied it up with about two minutes to play in the game.

The next game in the best of three series will be played tonight [Thursday] at 9:45 p.m. on Rink A, Hingham Arena.

The Quincy team, which finished its schedule the week before, was forced to play a makeup game Wednesday [April 25] and beat St. Joseph's of Hyde Park, 4-1, with Dave Perdios contributing two goals and an assist.

The game was supposed to have been played earlier in the season but Quincy was playing in a tournament in Natick on the same day. However, a makeup game was needed to decide a playoff position.

Richie Troy and Dennis Bertoni got the other Quincy goals while Mike Smith had two assists and Frank Penzo one.

Lucier Paces Cox In Tiffany Rout

Rich Lucier scored two goals and assisted on two others as Cox Rambler routed Tiffany Realty, 6-3, in the opening game of the Midget House League playoffs.

Cox Rambler leads 1-0 in the best of three series.

Steve Neville had a goal and two assists and Bob Megnia had a goal and an assist in the game.

Jack DiRico and Kevin Pitts also scored goals and Dan Cahalan, Sean Morgan and Joe Megnia were credited with assists.

● Bantam House

Bersani, Upsets Farina, Sun Wins, 4-0

Mike Marks fired the winning goal and then put an insurance tally into an empty net Saturday as Bersani Brothers came from far behind to upset Farina Kitchens, 5-3, in the opening round of the Bantam House League playoffs.

The Quincy Sun got two goals from Paul Doran, three assists from Jackie Cronin and perfect goaltending from Joe Cullen in wiping out Blackwood Pharmacy, 4-0, in the other first round game.

Bersani meets the Sun for the playoff title Saturday at 8:15 a.m. on Rink A, Hingham Arena.

John Fitzgerald, assisted by Johnny Fair, and Dave Peters, assisted by Paul Lindenfelzer, gave Farina a 2-0 first period lead over Bersani, which barely qualified for the playoffs in fourth place.

Bob Page, from Kevin Doyle, got another for Farina in the second period but it was matched by Jim LaBerge's score, from John Fornasaro, for Bersani to make the count read Farina 3, Bersani 1 going into the finale.

Jerry Smith, assisted by Brad Harland and Paul Andrews, got one back for Bersani and then Harland, from Smith, tied it up.

With little time remaining, Marks took a pass from Jim McAuliffe to net what proved to be the winning score. His empty net goal was unassisted.

The Sun, which finished the season in a tie with Farina for place, but relegated to second place in the playoffs on the basis of goals scored against each other, had a comparatively easy time with Blackwood.

Paul Doran scored the first Sun goal, assisted by Jackie Cronin and Paul Flanders.

Flanders got the second score, assisted by Cronin, and Doran netted the third with help from Cronin and Bob Fitzpatrick.

Kevin Whelan wound up the scoring with an assist from Mike Wilson.

Brian Bertoni and Brian Jolley got the Quincy goals in the first game with an assist going to Jim Fitzpatrick.

Veterans, Newcomers Balance North Girls Softball

Cheryl Manoli, who took over a year ago as North Quincy High girls' softball coach, has high hopes for this season with a good nucleus of veterans and a good crop of younger players.

The returning players include Tri-Captains Kathy Collins, Diane Smith and Donna Zenker, all seniors; Denis Bereszniewicz, Kathy Conroy and Lynne Tabor, juniors.

Cheryl Walsh and Nancy Willard are newcomers in the infield, Roxanne Evanchek looks good in centerfield and Terry Fitzgerald, another newcomer, shows promise as a pitcher.

"Although we dropped our first game to Weymouth South, 12-8, a non-league game, I think we have good potential," Cheryl said.

Friday the Raiderettes will play Quincy at Faxon Field, will host Everett Wednesday at Welcome Young Field and next Thursday will be home to Fontbonne Academy. Quincy and Everett are Greater Boston league games.

Quincy, incidentally, this year is coached by Barbara Webster, who took over for the highly successful Mary Pratt, who led the First Ladies to outstanding seasons. Miss Webster piloted the North Quincy girls' basketball team to second place in the GBL last winter.

The 'Bike Boom'

Bicyle Sales Zoom As 'Way To Health And Fun'

Nearly one million more bicycles than new cars were sold in the United States last year.

Bicycle sales reached 11.5 million in 1972, with nearly half of that number intended for adult use.

Cardiologist Dr. Paul Dudley White and the bicycle industry have awakened a need for exercise in the American public and brought about a "bike boom" with an estimated 80 million cyclists on the road.

Dr. White has advocated cycling as the proper form of exercise – one that can be sustained for at least an hour and vigorous enough to produce a mild sweat.

Bicycles come in all shapes, sizes and designs to serve a wide variety of needs.

"The Guinness Book of World Records" lists the longest bike at 35 feet 4 inches. It was built in England, weighed 1,000 pounds and carried 20 passengers.

The tallest one was a 32-foot unicycle ridden in Seattle in 1969.

Basic categories of bicycles are the high-riser, middleweight and English racer.

The high-riser, particularly popular with preteens, is an offshoot of the motorcycle generation and sports long handlebars, 20-inch wheels and a long "banana" seat.

The middleweight is a relatively inexpensive bike featuring balloon tires, cantilever frames and coaster brakes, with which you pedal backwards to stop.

Rapidly growing in popularity is the lightweight English racer, which is in fact neither British nor a racing bike.

The "racer" features three-speed hub gears, caliper hand brakes and flat, upright handlebars. Wheels are usually 26 inches with narrow tires and frames ranging from 18 to 22 inches.

•Protecting Your Home

IT CAN HAPPEN TO YOU!

The next time a burglar crawls through a back window, it might be that of your own home. Why not minimize the chances of that happening by taking some simple precautions? The rules for protecting your home are basic and simple, and they work effectively - if you remember them and use them.

KNOW YOUR NEIGHBORS

It is one of the most important ways of protecting your home.

- Make them aware of your family's living habits - who comes and goes to your house. Get to know theirs equally well. When you are familiar with regular visitors, strangers in the neighborhood are easy to spot.
- If you are going away, tell your neighbors and ask them to keep an eye on things. If possible, leave a telephone number where you can be reached if necessary.

ELIMINATE THOSE INVITATIONS TO BURGLARY

When going out for short period of time:

Follow these simple rules:

- Lock all outside doors and windows.
- At night, leave one or more lights on, preferably in locations not visible from open windows. These can be set automatically with electric timers.
- Leave a radio playing.
- Do not leave notes indicating you are not at home.
- Shut and lock the garage doors.
- Do not leave extra keys in obvious hiding places such as the mailbox, over the doorway, or under flower pots [it is easier to buy extra keys for the whole family than to replace stolen goods!!].
- Remember that the home with an "at-home" look is one that a burglar will want to skip.

When going away on vacation:

Follow these points and enjoy your vacation with a sense of security.

- Notify the Police Department of the period of time you will be away.
- Notify milk, newspaper, and other delivery services to stop delivering during your absence. The post office will hold your mail or forward it if requested.
- Arrange for friendly neighbors or relatives to check your home periodically, pick up the mail and other advertising circulars from the premises, and vary both lights and the position of drapes.
- Arrange for lawn care if you are going to be away for a long time.
- Leave the house looking as it usually does; avoid any "closed down" appearance such as drawing all the draperies and shades.
- Do not publicize your vacation trips in the local newspaper.
- Make sure you have properly locked all doors and windows.

Prepare a security checklist and run through it before leaving.

Thursday Final Day For Quincy Sun Contest

Today [Thursday] is the final day of the Quincy Sun Junior Salesman Circulation Contest.

All newsboys and girls must turn in the names and addresses of their new customers to the Quincy Sun Office, 1601 Hancock St. to win their prizes.

Top prize is a new Space Pac Lightweight 10-speed bike from Colman's Sporting Goods Store, 1630 Hancock St. The one who gets the most new customers will be riding that bike shortly.

But there are many other prizes.

Everyone who gets at least five new customers wins a prize. And everyone who gets 10, 15 or 20 wins more prizes.

Many newsboys and girls have already won prizes; and are shooting for more.

But Thursday, May 3 is the final day.

Names and addresses of new subscribers must be turned in by then or they won't count in the contest.

Bring Your Old Newspapers, Cans, Glass To Recycling Center

Quincy Girl Scouts, the League of Women Voters and Public Works Commissioner James J. Ricciuti are planning a one-day project Sunday from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at the Recycling Center in the Quincy Dump.

The project is designed chiefly to call attention to the fact that Quincy does have a Recycling Center and it is open daily from 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Dump just off Ricciuti Drive in West Quincy.

The girl scouts and the league request Quincy residents to bring in the following items for recycling:

- Waste paper - Tie newspapers, junk mail and magazines in bundles or stuff them in grocery bags and stack them as high as possible in the trailer at the dump's landfill.
- Glass - Wash glass containers free of food or drink, take off the lids or caps, snip off any metal rings and, above all, do not smash the glass.
- Cans and other metal containers - Wash and remove the labels, then flatten.
- Tree branches - Cut into lengths of three feet and, please, no branches more than three inches in diameter.

Squantum, Quincy Point Boys Win New Bikes In Sun Circulation Contest

Cameron Porter of Wedgewood St., Squantum, and Eddie DiTullio of Curtis Ave., Quincy Point, are delivering their Quincy Suns on new 10-speed bikes this week.

Cameron and Eddie are the first prize winners in the Quincy Sun Junior Salesman Circulation Contest which ended May 3.

Actually, Cameron won the first prize for signing up a phenomenal 52 new customers in the five-week contest.

But we didn't have the heart to let Eddie keep walking his route to deliver papers to 51 new customers.

Not when he was so close to being No. 1.

So each received a new Space Pac Lightweight bike from Colman's Sporting Goods Store, 1630 Hancock St. in addition to:

Two movie tickets, RCA transistor radios, two tickets to a Red Sox game and a $15 gift certificate from Colman's.

Twenty newsboys and girls received two tickets each to the Wollaston, Strand or Lincoln Theaters for recruiting five or more customers.

Nine transistor radios from South Shore Television and Appliance, 1570 Hancock St., were presented to those who

Police Ask Residents To Help In Fight Against Drugs Pushers

Arrests for narcotics offenses are going down in Quincy but the situation is still serious – and the decline in numbers may be due to only a technicality, anyway.

The problem remains serious enough so that the Quincy Police Department today urged residents to become involved in the fight to combat the illegal sale of drugs.

The Quincy police made 311 arrests for narcotics violations in 1972, which represented a 16 per cent drop from the 368 arrested in the previous year.

They have arrested 63 persons on narcotics offenses up to the end of April, 1973, a decline of 20 percent from the 79 arrested during the same four months in 1972.

But the figures can be misleading.

For instance, a new law that removes "being present" where narcotics are found from the list of offenses has probably cut down the number arrested in big drug raids.

And many of the narcotics arrests now are being made in big raids so that one raid more or less can make the yearly arrest figure deceptive.

Narcotics arrests were not a significant factor in the annual reports of the Quincy Police until 1968.

There were no arrests in either 1963 or 1964. There were two in 1965 and 11 each in 1966 and 1967.

The figure jumped to 93 in 1968, to 77 in 1969 and then ballooned to 197 in 1970 when police strategy shifted from single arrests to big raids.

It skyrocketed to 368 in 1971, many of them coming in two big raids, before the decline last year.

Meanwhile the Quincy Police Department urged residents to help them to help push the drug

2 Heroic Firefighters To Be Honored

Firefighters Thomas Field and Robert Craig will be honored with Rolls of Merit at the Quincy Firemen's Ball Friday at 8 p.m. at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

Field and Craig were selected for their heroic actions in rescuing Agnes Hurd from her burning apartment on Dorchester Avenue in Boston Nov. 30, 1972 while giving mutual aid to the Boston Fire Department.

The two Quincy firefighters found the woman unconscious and badly burned in her second floor apartment, carried her out, administered mouth-to-mouth resusitation and heart message, and saw her off to the hospital.

The award ceremonies will be followed by dancing to the music of Jimmy McHale's Orchestra from 9 p.m. to midnight.

The ticket committee is headed by Lt. Joseph Malvesti assisted by Richard Fennelly, James Kelley III and John Bille.

The advertising committee is chaired by Joseph Lemieux with the help of Albert Schatzl, Robert Curtin and Robert Batson.

The reception committee is made up of Chief Edward F. Barry; four officers of the Quincy Firemen's Relief Association, President Americo Speranzo, Vice President Joseph A. Lemieux, Treasurer Joseph P. Malvesti and Secretary John M. Bille, and Fire Department Chaplains, the Rev. Chester Porteus and the Rev. David Delaney.

Dennis Harrington Ward 6 Candidate

Atty. Dennis E. Harrington of 211 Billings St., North Quincy Wednesday announced his candidacy for the Ward 6 City Council seat. He is the first to announce for that post.

Harrington, who has law offices at 339 Hancock St., has been an Assistant District Attorney in Norfolk County since June, 1968. He is currently, as Coordinator, in charge of the introduction of Assistant District Attorneys into the Criminal Justice System of five district courts throughout Norfolk County.

In announcing his candidacy, he said:

To Get A Degree

At Age 80, Judge Halloran Is 'Going Back To School'

At the age of 80, Judge Gertrude Ryan Halloran of Wollaston is going back to college to get another degree.

Among 21 retired judges honored by the Boston University School of Law recently at a dinner at the Copley Plaza Hotel, Judge Halloran served as special justice at Quincy District Court from 1938 until she left the bench early this year under the mandatory law setting 70 as the maximum age for a judge.

Just now, Judge Halloran is taking it easy at her modest home at 102 Wilson Ave., Wollaston where she has lived for 45 years. Recently,

JUDGE GERTRUDE HALLORAN

however, she announced, "I think I'll go back to school."

Judge Halloran started going to college more than 50 years ago while she was working at the Boston Navy Yard. She had enlisted in the Navy as a chief yeoman during World War I and stayed on after the war. She decided she wanted to be a lawyer, and by going to night school she got a degree from Portia Law School in 1925.

Two years later she married another lawyer, Leo J. Halloran [now deceased 20 years], with whom she then shared an office. In 1932 she started working for a bachelor of arts degree at pusher right out of business.

"A few minutes of a citizen's time could be enough to put a drug pusher out of business," says Chief Francis X. Finn.

The Police Department doesn't mean citizens should investigate suspicious activities or persons.

What it does mean is that citizens can help by reporting any occurence or person of suspicious nature to the Police Department.

Like, for example:

If you notice that an unusual number of people are constantly entering an apartment or home in your neighborhood and only remaining for relatively short periods of time you should report this abnormal activity to the Police Department. It may be a Drug Operation.

A drug pusher may be very transient. He may rent an apartment for a short period of time and then move on to a new location, therefore, should you notice suspicious activity in a particular residence which is later vacated by the occupant, the information may still be valuable to the Police Department.

If you have seen illegal drugs being sold, or know where a drug pusher is operating, you can help end this dangerous traffic with a simple call or a letter to the Police Department.

If you do not wish to identify yourself, you may remain anonymous. Put down everything you know about the suspected pusher - such details as name, nickname, age, size, sex, color, place of operation, time of day usually observed, and year, make, model, and license number of any car used in his operation.

You may either send the letter to Lt. Walter Lynch, Quincy Police Department, Quincy, or telephone him at 479-1212, Ext. 348. Since the police might have questions pertaining to your information, a telephone call may be more helpful to them in their investigation.

It is important that you Do Not get involved in investigating any suspicious activity yourself. LET THE POLICE DO THE POLICING. They will take proper action on all information they receive and keep the information confidential.

Boston University, which she attained, along with a Phi Beta Kappa key, some two decades later.

Meanwhile, she had been appointed to the bench; but she wasn't satisfied with her knowledge of law. She entered the Boston University School of Law as a graduate student and won a master's degree in 1948.

Judge Halloran then started working for a master's degree in liberal arts. By 1955 she had completed nearly all of her courses at Boston University and went to the University of Lausanne in Switzerland for a summer of final study.

"I thought I had enough points for a degree," Judge Halloran laughs. "But it turned out that credits for a course in German I had at Lausanne could not be accepted at Boston University because of similar work I'd already done in Boston. So I still lacked two points toward getting the master's degree. I hope to study for those this summer at Boston University."

For five years after she was appointed a special justice, Judge Halloran continued to practice law, but she gave that up eventually to avoid the possibility of conflict of interest. She averaged five days a week on the bench and estimates that she presided in 50,000 cases.

She spends a good deal of her time now in reading, chiefly law books. "There's always law to learn," she says.

What does she think of the women's liberation movement?

"I never felt I needed liberation."

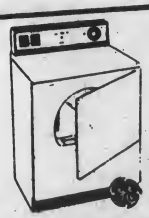
Joseph Maddalena 3-Gallon Red Cross Blood Donor

Joseph Maddalena, of Quincy Ave., Quincy, a 30-year veteran employee and assistant supervisor of custodians for the Quincy Public School Department, has been awarded a three-gallon blood donor pin and citation by the Quincy Chapter of the American Red Cross.

He is the first recipient of such an award in the Quincy school system according to records of supervisor of nurses for Quincy schools, Miss Alice Gray who is chairman for the school blood program.

A man of slight stature and an avid ice skater, Maddalena skates almost year round weekly at local South Shore rinks and in Natick.



Giving blood at regular intervals has not slowed him down a bit. He believes in being active, regular physical check-ups and good health habits.

Maddalena has generously donated personally the "gift of life" to some of his co-workers and associates in a very humble and modest manner.

SOME GOOD NEWS TOO

"If you are a born worrier, you were born at the right time," a cynic might say in speaking of modern times. But whatever anyone may think of world or economic conditions in this decade, it has also brought us some good news in the health front. Especially in the research area of preventing deadly diseases.

For example, medical research has paid off recently in the development of a drug that lowers fat levels in the blood of sufferers with coronary heart disease. Although the drug, clofibrate, did not affect the death rate from heart attacks, it reduced the non-fatal heart attack rate by more than two-thirds in a study of more than 3,000 individuals.

According to the American Heart Association, there are an estimated one and a quarter million cases of heart attacks annually. Life insurance statistics indicate that heart disease is, in fact, the most frequent cause of death today.

When the City Council was considering raising the Mayor's salary from $10,000 to $25,000, one of the reasons given for the raise was that it would attract more qualified people to the job. Well the salary is now $25,000, but where are the people?

The city preliminary election is only four months away and so far the only definite candidate for mayor is the incumbent, Walter Hannon. And even he hasn't announced. Last election year [1971] there were already four announced candidates before the end of May. James McCormick, Joseph Brett, Walter Hannon and Rita Anderson.

WITH THE ANNOUNCEMENT this week that Atty. Dennis Harrington is a candidate for the Ward 6 council seat, the north end of the city is shifting into first gear for September's election.

Incumbent Vincent Smyth is expected to announce for re-election shortly, as is James Vey of Montclair, who already has bumper stickers out.

AND SPEAKING of the Hancock School, when built in 1886, it was labelled by School Committeeman Henry H. Faxon as too "extravagant", because it was built of brick. It was the first brick schoolhouse in the city,

The school was originally built to relieve the overcrowded Adams and Willard Schools where students were attending on split sessions. Total cost for construction was $35,000. School Committeeman Theophilus King [founder of what is today the South Shore National Bank] was unsuccessful in his push for a wooden building, which would have saved the city $10,000.

In 1889 an evening school for Swedish people was opened at the school.

SPEAKER DAVID BARTLEY at first refused to recognize Rep. William Delahunt of Wollaston at Monday afternoon's session, because there was a roll call vote being taken. And that was exactly why Delahunt wanted to be recognized: his automatic voting machine was jammed and was asking the Speaker to be recognized for an oral vote.

Total membership for the society now stands at 626, but O'Connell hopes to reach 800 by Christmas. Last month, he reported 48 new members.

- Nixon's Nightmare
- Siberia, U.S. Style
- Martha's Friend Steve

WASHINGTON — Late at night, President Nixon occasionally has a peculiar experience. He once told a friend: "I have a feeling that I have something to tell the President. Then I suddenly shake myself awake and realize I am the President."

Lately, the President has been trying to shake himself awake from a nightmare. He has to pinch himself to make sure the Watergate fiasco isn't all a bad dream.

Typically, he retreated into his turtle shell to find the solution. As he told a friend, "You can't confide in anyone about your personal feelings." After agonizing with himself for a weekend, he finally made the painful decision to oust his two most trusted advisers, H.R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman. This was one of the most painful things he has ever had to do.

For Haldeman and Ehrlichman thought they were carrying out the President's wishes. Nixon grew up in the Murray Chotiner school of politics. He has referred to early campaigns as rock 'em, sock 'em campaigns. He believes that in politics, as in war, the best strategy is an offense. And he relishes political intrigue.

On His Orders

He, therefore, ordered the overall intelligence operation against the Democrats. Certainly, he never intended that his subordinates should violate the law. But he didn't mind getting in his licks against the liberals who have always fought him.

Most Americans are eager to blame the whole Watergate mess upon the President's underlings. Yet the disagreeable truth is that the President, while innocent of any law violations, was responsible for the decisions and the developments that led to Watergate.

Meanwhile, the heads now rolling in the White House are causing anxious stirrings throughout the federal government. Bureaucrats are worried that departing White House aides, who have been tarnished but not implicated in the Watergate case, will soon be invading their agencies and taking over their jobs.

Already, of course, the President has stacked federal agencies with Republican friends who devoted themselves to his re-election campaign. Now, however, with the dismissal of H.R. Haldeman, John Ehrlichman and John Dean from the White House, the President must decide what to do with the dozens of staffers who worked under these men. Some, doubtless, will stay close to the President. But many will seek refuge in the bureaucracy's vast hinterland outside the White House.

Bureaucracy's Siberia

For those seeking total anonymity, the President can recommend the Siberia of the bureaucracy, the Agriculture Department. This is the home of numerous controversial Republicans including Steve King, formerly a top security official for the Republican party. It was King, you may recall, who allegedly helped stick a needle into Martha Mitchell's bottom to quiet her down last summer.

At the time, Martha was howling about dirty little deeds in the White House. King, we assume, now has less sensitive chores as Assistant to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

For those who would prefer some quick cash for little work, there is the appropriately named Office of Economic Opportunity. This used to be the nation's anti-poverty agency. Now, it functions as a haven for ultra-conservatives, many of whom are getting rich dismantling poverty programs. Until July 1, scores of so-called consultants will earn as much as $100 a day for their services. Some of these, not surprisingly, already include ex-White House aides.

For many leaving the White House, therefore, the President's spring cleaning will not be so painful as the public might expect. Banishment from the White House won't be reflected in their fat paychecks.

Strategy Stalemate: Secret intelligence reports claim North Vietnam's leaders are torn over what their strategy should be. They have suddenly become remote and inaccessible in Hanoi. This is the outward evidence that they are locked in deep debate. The intelligence reports suggest they are trying to decide whether to mount a propaganda offensive to win political converts or a guerrilla offensive to win military victories.

The intelligence reports claim, in fact, that the North Vietnamese have built up enough strength in the South since the cease-fire to mount a major offensive. They not only have an estimated 150,000 combat troops but more than 350 tanks and armored vehicles in the South. Hundreds of antiaircraft weapons have also been moved across the demilitarized zone.

An offensive, however, would almost certainly bring massive American retaliation. The North Vietnamese, therefore, have been holding their main force in reserve and supporting limited guerrilla attacks. But North Vietnam's negotiators in Paris seem genuinely interested in American aid to rebuild their country. This won't be available until there is a genuine cease-fire.

The leaders in Hanoi reportedly are debating whether to cooperate in bringing peace and stability to Vietnam. A period of peace, at least, would give time for American strategic interests to cool down. This would reduce the likelihood of American retaliation if Hanoi should decide upon a military showdown far enough in the future.

Meanwhile, Hanoi is preparing simultaneously for both a political and military struggle — whichever may best advance its goal in Indochina.

The Meanest Mother

Editor's Note: The following annonymous article first appeared in the Quincy Sun two years ago and from time to time since then we have had requests from readers to reprint it.

Because Sunday is Mother's Day we feel it is quite appropriate this week to pay this tribute to all the "mean" mothers everywhere.

I had the meanest Mother in the whole world.

While other kids ate candy for breakfast, I had to have cereal, eggs or toast. When others had cokes and candy for lunch, I had to eat a sandwich. As you guessed, my supper was different from the other kids too.

But at least I wasn't alone in my suffering. My sisters and two brothers had the same mean Mother as I did.

My Mother insisted upon knowing where we were at all times. You'd think we were on a chain gang. She had to know who our friends were and what we were doing. She insisted if we said we'd be gone one hour that we be gone one hour or less--not one hour and one minute.

I am nearly ashamed to admit it, but she actually struck us. Not once but each time we did as we pleased. Can you imagine someone actually hitting a child just because he disobeyed. Now you can begin to see now mean she really was.

The worst is yet to come. We had to be in bed by nine each night and up early the next morning. We couldn't sleep till noon like our friends. So while they slept my Mother actually had the nerve to break the child labor law. She made us work. We had to wash dishes, make beds, learn to cook and all sorts of cruel things. I believe she laid awake at night thinking up mean things to do to us.

She always insisted upon our telling the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, even if it killed us--it nearly did.

By the time we were teenagers, she was much wiser and our life became even more unbearable. None of this tooting the horn of a car for us to come running. She embarrassed us to no end by making our dates and friends come to the door to get us.

I forgot to mention, while my friends were dating at the mature age of 12 and 13, my old fashioned Mother refused to let me date until the age of 15 and 18. Fifteen that is, if you dated only to go to a school function, and that was only once or twice a year.

My Mother was a complete failure as a Mother. None of us has ever been arrested, divorced or beaten by his mate. Each of my brothers served his time in the service of this country.

And whom do we have to blame for this terrible way we turned out? You're right. Our mean Mother.

Look at all the things that we missed. We never got to march in a protest parade, nor to take part in a riot, burn draft cards, and a million and one things that our friends did. She forced us to grow into God-fearing, educated, honest adults.

Using this as a background, I am trying to raise my three children. I stand a little taller and I am filled with pride when my children call me mean.

Because, you see, I thank God. He gave me the meanest Mother in the whole world.

'How Much Money Spent On Lottery Tickets?'

The League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone heard from a recent winner in the Massachusetts State Lottery who was interested in knowing how much money has been spent by the public on lottery tickets and how that money is used.

The Voter Information Phone reported that the law establishing the lottery designated that monies collected be distributed according to a set formula - 45% for prizes, 40% to the cities and towns, and no more than 15% for administrative purposes.

As of December 1972, $55 million in gross revenue had been collected from ticket sales. Approximately $28 million had been given out in prizes, and $22 million had gone back to cities and towns on an equalizing basis to be spent as they determined. Approximately $4 million had been used for administrative expenses to run the lottery. The first drawing took place April 6, 1972 so the lottery just recently celebrated its first anniversary.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters' Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Each year especially in the spring the Consumer protection Division of my office received complaints from brides and grooms-to-be who have called off their wedding plans after giving deposits for wedding arrangements.

In many instances, consumers have been unable to obtain refunds from caterers, dressmakers, florists, tuxedo rentals, or limousine dispatchers.

In some cases a person is not entitled to a refund. Often the deposits have been made after signing a legal contract or retail installment sales agreement. Before signing any contract, consumers should be certain they fully understand the terms. Even if wedding plans change, a consumer is still obligated to hold up his end of the agreement.

For example, at the last minute a bride-to-be decides to call off her wedding and cancels her arrangements for the reception hall. This eleventh hour cancellation will greatly inconvenience the hall's proprietors. At this time of year the halls operate on such a tight schedule that the owners may be unable to re-rent the facilities and will suffer a financial loss for that day. In most cases the hall is entitled to keep the deposit.

When a bridegroom-to-be purchases an engagement or wedding ring, he should make sure he learns the jeweler's return policy. Merchants and jewelers should display this policy in a conspicuous manner. Often a bridegroom wishing to return a ring finds he is unable to do so. Return policy is up to the individual store--some may refuse returns, others may give credit, and still others may refund.

Before making wedding plans, consumers should be aware of cancellation and refund policies should their plans be terminated or changed.

'Your Right Mental Attitude'

I heard a baseball scout describe a "bonus baby" which he had signed at a high figure who failed miserably the very first season. "He had everything" ... the scout said ... "except a RIGHT MENTAL ATTITUDE". It put me to thinking that the same thing's true in a marriage. You can have everything ... but without RMA you'll fail miserably in a marriage.

Take Tony and Edna ... married 12 years ... two children ... he an accountant ... she a tennis player ... nice home ... swimming pool ... everything outwardly that our culture says indicates success. However ... these nice people were very unhappy with each other. That's why she played tennis so hard ... why he stayed so late at the office. This situation had been going on when I first saw them, for six years ... the tensions were rising ... put downs were increasing ... so were the ugly quarrels.

What was really wrong? Tony lacked a RIGHT MENTAL ATTITUDE toward Edna because he constantly sought her approval ... he had to have permission for most things he did. He just couldn't make decisions on his own ... could hardly make a statement without turning to Edna and saying ... "isn't that right, Dear?" Edna detested this ... had lost respect for him as a result. You guessed his problem ... his mother was a domineering parent who never encouraged Tony to think and act on his own. So he was afraid to cross his mother ... afraid of displeasing her ... afraid to make his own decisions without her approval. Now ... married to Edna ... he continues this same pattern of behavior ... because he didn't have a RIGHT MENTAL ATTITUDE toward women.

Edna ... on the other hand ... had become bitter ... she'd lost respect for Tony as a man ... thought of him as a mama's boy ... taunted him about it ... literally continued the psychological castration begun by his mother. Little wonder he was now impotent at age 34. Had Edna had a RIGHT MENTAL ATTITUDE toward her husband she could have helped him to see the nature of his "mother" problem and through study and conversation in a true companionship overcome the problem. This is what happened in therapy. If only they had both had a RIGHT MENTAL ATTITUDE ... they could have saved themselves years of misery and hostility.

How do we get this RIGHT MENTAL ATTITUDE? First ... by LOVING. It's still important to love the person to whom you're married. Be in his/her corner ... forgive weakness ... seek to lift up not put down ... support ... stroke ... comfort. That's love ... all the more important when there's a problem

Secondly ... by recognizing an emotional problem needs as much tenderness ... understanding ... proper treatment as if one had the flu ... or a broken leg. The victim ... if he/she is to overcome the emotional distress, must stop defending the distortion ... stop resisting the efforts of a partner to bring new health.

"Bonus baby" ... husband ... wife ... will succeed only with RIGHT MENTAL ATTITUDE.

Quincy Arts Alliance To Support Student Aesthetic Needs

Parent representatives from each Quincy school, together with other interested residents and school administrators, held the first organizational meeting of the Quincy Arts Alliance recently in the Arts/Humanities room, Quincy High School.

Mrs. Anneli Johnson, acting chairman, together with Mr. William Flavin, Mrs. Sally Hamburger, Mr. James McGurl, Mrs. Norma Skoler, Mrs. Rosemary Wahlberg, Mrs. Elizabeth Amyouny and Mrs. Betty Walsh, the interim planning committee, outlined to the group of more than 50 people their concerns that students find support for their aesthetic needs in the areas of music, dance, dramatics, visual arts, and photography.

A status report of their departments was given by Anthony Ferrante, Coordinator of Music Education; Kenneth Rickson, Coordinator of Health and Physical Education; and Carl Deyeso, Coordinator of Language Arts and Social Studies.

Walter Lunsman, Director of the Arts and Humanities department of the Quincy Schools described the relationship of the arts offerings to national goals and goals of the Quincy school system. He described how these serve to help young people channel their search for the value of life through an involvement in aesthetic experiences, helping to develop individual expression along with worthy use of leisure time.

Lunsman outlined the tendency of urban communities to become brutalized by their environment creating conditions where local resources are committed to accommodate the mechanics of living to the detriment of those human qualities that have historically provided people the means to improve the significance of their lives.

School Supt. Dr. Lawrence Creedon, offered his support to the Arts Alliance and assured the group he was receptive to their concerns. "For too long," he said, "we have not remembered the message of John Dewey who said the arts are not luxuries of education but emphatic expressions of that which makes any education worthwhile."

Following a 30-minute slide/tape show of arts activities in the schools, Flavin, a member of the New England Opera Company, reviewed a calendar of clippings which describe the many cultural opportunities available to students in the Quincy/Boston area.

The parent representatives present were:

Mrs. Anneli Johnson, Hancock; Mrs. Rosemary Wahlberg, Broad Meadows; Mrs. Patricia Ridlen, Broad Meadows; Mrs. Elizabeth Amyouny, Broad Meadows; Mrs. David Ezickson, Central; Mrs. John Krasinski, Central; Mrs. Madelyn Wallace, Quincy Point; Mrs. Betty Walsh, Adams; Mrs. Joseph Connelly, Adams; Mrs. Barbara Lynch, Atherton Hough; Mrs. Norma Skoler, Furnace Brook; Mrs. Alice Cutler, Furnace Brook; Mrs. Sally Hamburger, Furnace Brook; Mrs. Everett Bragdon, Gridley Bryant; Mrs. Yvonne Duncanson, Hancock; Mrs. Carol Campbell, Lincoln; Mrs. Alicia Colletti, Merrymount; Mrs. Barbara Wilkins, Montclair; Mrs. Mary Ann Mahoney, Myles Standish; Mrs. Lois Bassett, Parker; Mr. James McGurl, Squantum; Mrs. Joan Tuori, Willard; Mrs. Robert Hayes, Wollaston; Mrs. Eleanor Iacobucci, Adams; and Mr. William Flavin.

MEMBERS OF THE Quincy Arts Alliance planning committee include Walter Lunsman, Director of Arts/Humanities for the Quincy Schools; Mrs. Betty Walsh; Mrs. Anneli Johnson, chairwoman; William Flavin; Mrs. Sally Hamburger and Mrs. Norma Skoler.

20 Students Return Weary But With Fond Memories Of London

By RUSS RAND

An excited but weary group of students landed at Logan Airport last week from London, where they had explored the city and surrounding countryside.

While there, they delved deep into historical sights, museums, castles, and the theatre. There was not a moment to waste for there were many tours to go on and so much to see and learn about.

On Sunday all who did not mind the rain went to Petticoat Lane where one of the largest flea markets is held weekly.

Next came a full day trip to Canterbury where we were able to tour the 11th Century Cathedral with the shrine of St. Thomas A. Becket.

On Wednesday we were able to go on a tour of the west end of London to see Buckingham Palace and its famed changing of the guard as well as Westminster Abbey.

Thursday we departed for Shakespeare country where we visited Oxford, the famed University, Blenheim Palace, Warwick Castle, and naturally Stratford-on-Avon where we were treated to the Royal Shakespearean production of Richard II.

The boat ride up the Thames River to the Cutty Sark and the Greenwich Time Station, along with the tours of St. Paul's Cathedral, The British Museum and Madame Toussard's Wax Museum made this day one of the most exciting of the trip.

The Latin students were kept busy translating the inscriptions found in the churches and castles, and seeing the Roman ruins in the city and countryside.

On Friday we saw Windsor Castle and Hampton Court with its beautiful gardens.

Most of the group saw various plays in London, such as Sleuth, Private Lives and Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat.

Our last day was highlighted by a Tudor Banquet where all joined together for a great time.

The Quincy contingent consisted of:

Ellen Ellrick, Nancy Mills, Janette Pratt, Betsy Hamburger, Ken Tutenjian and myself.

Adult chaperones were Mrs. Pratt, Miss Kathy Smith, Mrs. Elaine Robinson and the three trip organizers Mrs. Katherine Myatt, Mr. Jack Harrington and Miss Lynne Birlem.

The last three individuals deserve a great deal of credit for the time and energy they put in to arrange the tours, tickets, and banquets which insured a great time for all of us.

CHANGING of the guard at Buckingham Palace was one of the highlights of the London trip for the Quincy students. [Pat Desmond]

TOWER BRIDGE, a world famous landmark, was a 'Must' for the Quincy group while in London. [Pat Desmond]

Art Show A Success

By JOE CURRY

The Quincy High Art Show was held last week in the Art Dept., and from the art teachers' point of view, it was a success.

The show, held annually now, is a chance for parents and other students to view the year's best work in painting, sculpture, pottery, weaving, and photography.

There were workshops in pottery and weaving, as well as a small studio set up where visitors could get their pictures taken with their heads sticking out of a painted Tarzan and Jane scene. There was also a nice slide show. Refreshments were available to all visitors.

Crime Syndicate Gets into Planned Bankruptcies

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-4 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

In previous articles we have noted the alarming increase in personal bankruptcy as a means of escaping financial responsibilities.

The crime syndicate has moved into the bankruptcy business, a leading national magazine notes, taking advantage of legal openings in the nation's bankruptcy laws.

"Planned bankruptcies may today be the underworld organization's largest single racket," this magazine reports. It states that the Justice Department has found that syndicate criminals engineer more than 250 bankruptcies per year, each averaging $200,000 per job in profits. And there are absolutely no visible assets for creditors when the syndicate has finished its work.

This costs all of us, according to the executive officer of the national credit management association. "There's only one way that a wholesaler robbed by bankruptcy gangs can cover losses. He must raise his prices. The retailer must then meet costs by increasing consumer prices. So the more planned bankruptcies there are, the more everybody pays."

Some retailers find a special market in bankrupts, realizing that they cannot plead bankrupcty again for six years. This means that in case of default, they can garnishee salaries or repossess purchases without the danger of frustration by a new bankruptcy action and fractional settlement (an average 7.1 cents on the dollar).

Such retailers flood bankrupts with form letters offering twenty-five dollars down for an auto, a ten-dollar gift certificate toward a jewelry purchase, or cash loans as high as $7,000 with one-day service, no co-signers, no collateral, and free parking.

This kind of thing infects all levels of our society. "Someone, somewhere, somehow is feeding poison into the minds of our youth," says Robert D. Cowin, a credit bureau manager.

Lecturing to high-school senior and junior groups each year on the beneficial influences of credit upon our economy and our standard of living, Mr. Cowin has been disturbed by the increasing flood of questions concerning the "benefits" of bankruptcy.

"How in heaven's name can we instill a true sense of responsibility if these young people are being brainwashed into believing that 'bankruptcy' and 'voluntary garnishments' are the best and easiest route to follow?" Mr. Cowin believes that influences outside the school—in the home and on the street — are at work.

Fortunately, people who save with us and pay cash when they buy know the satisfaction that financial security brings and the joy of adding substantially to their hard-earned income by avoiding high credit costs.

And people who borrow from us are the kind whose credit rating is irreproachable. We lend money only to those who are capable of paying it back and who have a solid past performance of doing so.

Such savers and borrowers are the backbone of America.

Quincy Youths To Walk 25 Miles For Hunger June 3

More than 7,000 residents of the Quincy area, mostly teenagers from the local junior and senior high schools and colleges, are expected to participate in the 25-mile fourth Walk For Development Sunday, June 3.

The Walk will start and end at Veteran's Memorial Stadium. Purpose of the walk is to bring to the attention of the public, the hunger that exists in the world today. Money raised will be used to combat this problem.

Walks similar to this one have been held in other cities throughout the United States and about $1,000,000 has been raised with the support of individuals and business firms.

During the coming weeks, students and residents will be contacting people in Quincy to ask for sponsor pledges. Sponsors offer an amount of money for each one of the 25 miles the walker walks. For example: at 15 cents a mile if the walker walks the full 25 miles, a total of $3.75 would be collected. With about 7,000 persons walking, the money collected should be a substantial amount.

Walkers are urged to seek as many sponsors as possible. A person may sponsor as many people as he or she wishes and the pledges may be of any amount.

Of the money collected, 40 percent will go to a local project, 40 percent to an overseas project, and 20 percent will go to the American Freedom From Hunger Foundation [AFFHF] to help organize the Walk in other cities throughout the United States and to aid its educational program on pollution, hunger and over population.

A. & T., Barry's Rack Up Wins

Defending champion A & T Movers and Barry's Ship Haven were the winners Monday night as the Quincy Softball League opened its third season at Welcome Young Park.

A & T pulverized Marcel Corp., 21-3. Bob Wertz started the onslaught with a two-run triple in the first inning.

In the second Gerry Connolly drove home two more runs and the parade of runs continued from there.

The big blow for Marcel was a home run by Rich Bopps in the third inning but Eddie Miller answered this with a three-run homer for the winners in the fifth.

Wells overtook Ship Haven in the sixth inning of a well-played game to pull out a 5-3 win.

Ship Haven led, 3-2, in the sixth but Bob Swirbalus and Gary McGrath led off Wells' half of the inning with singles and Bob Pettlinelli drove them home with a clutch double.

The Ships Haven offensive was led by Ted Stevenson with three for three including a double, Fred Azar with two doubles and Tony Camillo with a home run.

The league plays every Monday through Thursday at Welcome Young and Rotary Field.

The popular league comprises 20 teams. The American League East includes Marcel, Pagies, B & B Health Spa, Mr. Kelly's and Howard Johnson. The American West has A & T, Beau's Place, The Hofbrau, Palmer Pub and McInnis Corp.

In the National League East are Wells, Dee Dee's, St. Catherine's, Barry's Deli and China Lido. Going in the National West are Barry's Ships Haven, Alumni Cafe, County Line, Jonathan's and Walsh's Restaurant.

Donaghue Tosses No-Hitter, Belts 2 Homers For Gino's

Harry Donaghue threw a no-hitter and helped his cause by belting two home runs as Gino's walloped Houghs Neck Legion, 7-0, Sunday in the opening day feature of the Quincy Junior Baseball League.

Jim Deitsch banged out a triple and a single in leading Sears Roebuck to a 5-3 win over Boston Gear in a game that went two extra innings beyond the regulation six. Rick Travers took the mound in the seventh to get credit for the win.

Gary Earle also threw a shutout and Bob Howlett drove in both runs in the Elks 2-0 win over Kiwanis.

Dave King hurled a three-hitter and his Keohane's teammates came from behind with three runs in the fourth to beat Rotary, 9-4. King also went three for three at the plate, including a home run.

In Monday action:

Don Murray stroked a two run homer and Bob Lindenfelzer contributed a pair of singles in Bryan Post's wild 9-5 victory over Colonial Federal. Gordon Spencer was the winning pitcher.

Burgin-Platner got one-hit pitching from Paul Duggan but the insurance kids really didn't need it as they blasted out a 13-1 win over Remicks.

QJC Sure Of Playoff Berth

Winning its last four games, including three on successive days over the weekend, Coach Dave Burke's Quincy Junior College baseball team not only assured itself of another playoff berth in the Mass. Jr. College Conference, but propelled itself into a first place tie.

The spree gave QJC a 7-2 league record and an 8-3 overall mark.

Tuesday the Collejuns played at Grahm Jr. College in the final regular season game for the regular season championship, which they just missed a year ago. The playoffs between the first four teams will get underway Saturday. QJC won the playoffs last spring. Grahm topped Quincy, 8-2, two weeks ago.

Quincy received outstanding pitching in its four straight wins.

Sunday it climaxed its drive by blanking Bryant and Stratton, 10-0, with Quincy's Skip Haddix having an amazing day as he pitched the shutout and collected three hits himself, including a home run and double.

Saturday QJC shut out East Coast Aerotech, 3-0, with North Quincy's Paul Vickers pitching the shutout and John Caprio driving in all three runs.

Friday Newton Jr. College, one of two league rivals to defeat QJC, was the victim, 2-1, as Jim Stenman pitched five-hit ball, struck out eight and didn't issue a walk.

Quincy won it in the last inning when Frank Niles singled, stole second and scored the game winner on a single by North Quincy's Jack Flaherty.

Earlier last week QJC belted Wentworth, 14-3, pounding out 16 hits including a two-run homer by Steve Bartlett of Marshfield. Caprio cleared the bases with a long triple and three former North Quincy High teammates, Tim Flynn, Flaherty and Tony Alibrandi, had three hits each. Flynn, the regular second baseman, gained his first pitching victory, scattering seven hits, after having lost his first start.

Flaherty is batting over .500 and earlier this year belted a tremendous homer over the right field fence at O'Rourke Field, believed the first ever hit in that spot. The clout was all the more amazing considering he is a right-handed batter.

Quincy Midget B's In Comeback To Make Alamo Finals

The Quincy Midget "B" team came back from the brink of defeat with a pair of victories over Abington 6-1 and 4-3 in overtime, during the weekend to move into the finals of the Alamo Hockey League playoffs.

Then, on Sunday, the tired Quincy club, playing its third game in three nights, fell before powerful Easton, 5-1, in the opening game of the final round series.

Mike McAuley and Dave Noonan were the big guns for Quincy, which went into the weekend trailing Abington by a game in the best of three elimination series.

McAuley took a pass from Noonan and broke in alone on the Abington goalies to score the winner after 10 seconds of overtime in the deciding game of the series on Saturday.

It was McAuley's second goal and Noonan's third assist of the game.

McAuley, Jim Connelly and Gary Delorio scored goals to give Quincy a 3-1 lead at the end of the second period but Abington came back in the finale to tie the game with a minute left to play.

Noonan had two assists, and McAuley, Delorio, Mike Conti and Jeff Murphy one apiece in the early scoring.

McAuley, Noonan, Connelly, Tim Pyne, Nick Cyr and Fred Murray scored for Quincy in Friday's game as they ran up a 6-0 lead before Abington spoiled the shutout bid with a third period goal.

Pyne, McAuley and Delorio had two assists each and Murray, Noonan, Conti and Frank Chiaccheri had one apiece.

It was a tired Quincy team that bowed to Easton Sunday, 5-1, with Connelly getting the only goal for the losers, assisted by Noonan and Miles O'Malley.

The Connelly goal knotted the game at 1-1 midway through the first period but Easton, which finished in first place during the regular season, replied with four power play goals to clinch the verdict.

Quincy meets Easton tonight [Thursday] at 10 p.m. at Hingham Arena in the second game of the series.

Quincy Pee Wee A's Win 4 For Title

Brian Bertoni scored a goal a game and a hat trick in the finale as the Quincy Pee Wee "A" team swept its last four games with Brockton to win the Bay Colony Hockey Association championship, four games to two.

The Quincy boys spotted Brockton the first two victories in the series, then started the long road back on April 29 with a 4-3 win on goals by Bertoni, Mark Giordani, Jim Triglia and Neal Sullivan.

Bobby Hayes had a pair of assists and Dave Lewis and Jim Fitzpatrick had one apiece.

Quincy tied the series Thursday [May 3] with a 3-1 decision as Giordani collected two goals and Bertoni one. Ed Kane and Hayes each had an assist.

Triglia was the big gun Saturday [May 5] as Quincy went one up in games with a 4-1 decision. Triglia had two goals, Bertoni and Hayes one each.

Paul McDermott, Dave Lewis, Jim Fitzgerald and Kane had assists.

Bertoni notched his three goal hat trick and assisted on another goal Sunday [May 6] as Quincy wrapped it up with a 5-3 victory.

Lewis and John Kelly got the other goals and single assists went to Triglia, Giordani, Brian Jolley and Mike Furey.

Quincy Bantam B's Meet Weymouth In Finals

The Quincy Bantam "B" team advanced to the finals of the Alamo Hockey League playoffs with a pair of 5-1 victories over Rockland that brought them back from the brink of elimination.

Quincy meets Weymouth tonight [Thursday] at 8:30 p.m. in the opening game of the best of three final series. The second game will be Saturday at 1:45 p.m.

Dave Perdios scored a pair of goals in the final 5-1 victory Monday [May 7] and Jeff Nord was a standout in the Quincy nets.

Dennis Bertoni had a goal and an assist, Richie Troy and Rick Carnali had goals and Frank Penzo, Dave Previte, Mike Smith and Matt Dillon had assists.

Bertoni tallied four goals and Smith was credited with four assists Sunday as Quincy won 5-1 to tie the series at one win, one loss and two ties.

Dillon got the other goal and Previte and Troy got assists.

The first two games in the best of three series were 1-1 ties with Perdios' unassisted tally the lone Quincy goal in the second deadlock Wednesday [May 2].

Rockland took the lead in the series Saturday [May 5] with a 5-2 win.

Smith and Larry Calley scored for Quincy with an assist going to Perdios.

Raiders Good Tourney Bet

First place in the Greater Boston League may be out of reach for the North Quincy baseball team, with Medford rolling merrily along, but the Raiders remain in the thick of the running for second place and a long-awaited state tourney berth for Coach Charlie Bunker.

North ran its record to 6-3 Monday with a 9-1 romp at Chelsea to stay in a tie for the runnerup position. Medford hiked its mark to 8-1 with a 14-8 win over Malden.

Wednesday the Raiders hosted Everett, Friday plays at Revere and next Wednesday will be home to Quincy.

"We have five games left and I figure if we win three of them we can make second place," Bunker said. The North coach just missed tourney qualification the past two years and has yet to make it.

Bobby Pierce, ace of last year's pitching staff, had been having his troubles this year but finally clicked Monday. He scattered eight hits, struck out eight and walked only one, giving up only an unearned run.

"If Bobby can continue pitching like that and Tim Clifford and Bobby Morton can continue their good work, we will be in good shape," Bunker added.

Steve McLaughlin, whose grand slam home run in the 14th inning gave North a win over Quincy and who had three for four last Friday against Somerville, continued his torrid hitting with three for three and five runs batted in. Mike Conroy, who has been coming along fast, also had three for three and Pierce, whose batting had surpassed his pitching, added a double and single.

Last Friday North opened the second half of its GBL schedule by defeating Somerville for the second time, 9-5, at Somerville.

The Raiders erupted for five runs in the third and three in the sixth as Lee Watkins, Bob Pierce and Steve McLaughlin combined to drive in six runs and Tim Clifford, big sophomore, had only one bad inning, the fourth, as he pitched his third route-going victory.

McLaughlin had a triple and two singles, Pierce and Watkins two hits each.

Earlier in the week the Raiders bowed to league-leading Medford, 5-1, as they were held to five hits. Medford scored three in the fifth to sew up the win, its sixth in seven games.

Pierce had a double, Jack Rabel, Bob Morton, Mike Conroy and Mark Jago a single apiece for North.

In their previous game, rained out a week before, the Raiders topped Quincy in a 14-inning marathon, 10-5.

Brian Sullivan and Chris Dunn had assists.

UCT Blanks Keohane's For Pee Wee House Title

Kevin McGrath took a pass from Brian Duane and fired the only goal of the game as United Commercial Travelers edged Keohane's, 1-0, to win the Pee Wee House League title.

McGrath's goal broke up a tense goaltending duel between UCT's Jim McHugh and Jim Scanlan of Keohane's.

Squirt B's Bow Out, 4-2

The Quincy Squirt "B" team bowed out of the Alamo Hockey League playoffs, losing to Easton, 4-2, for the second straight time.

Yankees, Cardinals, Braves Only Undefeated

The ranks of the unbeaten teams in St. John's Little League were trimmed to three last week.

The Yankees were on top in the American League after a 16-9 win over the Angels in their season's opener Thursday [May 3] and a 10-9 squeaker over the Red Sox Saturday, May 5.

Rick Miller and Steve Kozlowski led the hitting barrage against the Angels while Jay Baker belted a home run for the Red Sox as they almost caught the Yanks in the late innings.

Ed Tinney worked the shutout as the Cardinals blanked the Giants, 7-0, to remain undefeated in the National League.

The Braves won two, 7-4 over the White Sox and 12-7 over the Dodgers, to keep pace with the Cardinals.

Jeff Marcel wielded the big bat for the Braves in the come from behind win over the White Sox and Bob Ciardi went four for four with two runs batted in against the Dodgers.

Rick McGillvray survived a shaky start and pitched the route as the Angels rallied to beat the Red Sox, 11-8.

Brian Buchanan belted a pair of homers in the Cubs' 8-2 victory over the Dodgers.

The McDonald brothers, Craig and Scott, paced the Dodgers to their first win of the season, 10-5, over the Tigers.

The Red Sox handed the Cubs their first defeat of the season, 9-3, behind the big bat of Jay Baker

Lady Luck Jilts Gary Bugdon

Quincy's Gary Bugdon must be wondering just what he has to do to win a game after dropping his second successive heartbreaker Monday.

The rangy southpaw, who lost a 1-0 decision to Medford's Great Boston League leaders on an unearned run last Friday, turned in another brilliant performance Monday only to lose, 3-1, to Revere. Revere's Tony Mattera hit a three-run triple for the only Revere runs but only one was earned.

"It was a shame that Gary had to lose those two games, both were really outstanding efforts," Coach Bud Mosher said. "We had been hitting well but in those last two games our batters were handcuffed, unfortunately for Bugdon.

Quincy, whose record fell to 4-5, yesterday played at Chelsea, Friday hosts Somerville at Adams Field and next Wednesday will face North Quincy at Adams.

Last Friday the Quincy batters, who had been doing some lusty hitting, were stymied and an outstanding pitching performance by Gary Bugdon went for naught as Medford squeezed out a 1-0 win on an unearned run to run its GBL record to 7-1 as the second half of the league schedule started.

Bugdon gave up seven hits but his mates were held to five, a double by Mike DePolo and singles by Bob Benn, Mike Varrasso, Ron Smith and Mike Long.

Earlier in the week Quincy had walloped Malden, 12-6, featuring a six-run third inning as Paul Craig came up with an outstanding relief performance.

Craig came on in relief of Frank DeSalvio, the regular third baseman in the third inning, and held Malden to one run while striking out 11. He blanked the losers until the ninth.

DePolo had three hits, Benn, Mark Dwyer, and Smith two each to spark a 14-hit attack for the Presidents.

In their previous game the Presidents lost to North Quincy in a 14-inning marathon, 10-5, with a grand slam home run by Steve McLaughlin following a walk with the bases loaded sewing up the decision.

Quincy took an early 4-0 lead but North went ahead, 5-4, in the fifth and the Presidents tied it at 5-5 in the same inning. That was that for the next eight innings before the Raiders' explosion.

North Tennis Team Wins

Bill Willoughby's North Quincy tennis team got off to a fast start with a 4-1 win over Weymouth North but dropped a 3-2 squeaker to Abp. Williams in its Independence League opener.

Playing singles for the Raiders were Larry Dyer, Paul O'Malley and Earl Rudkin. Teaming up in the doubles were Bob Grazer and Eddie Cutts, Dan Lewis and Dan Finn.

North today plays at Xaverian, will be home to Catholic Memorial Tuesday and will play at B.C. High next Thursday, all league matches.

councillor is one that can and must be a direct and open line of communication by which the citizen may reach all the departments of city government.

"It is crucial that city government respond to the needs of the people as expressed by them. The citizens of Ward 6 must, through their input, structure and mold the policy decisions that are to be made with regard to their neighborhoods. It is therefore essential that the Ward 6 city councillor be the voice of the citizens he represents at City Hall."

Harrington cited the plight of the elderly, the overtaxed homeowner, re-evaluation, community schools, the proper planning of development, and the protection and improvement of residential neghborhoods "as areas of great concern which must and can be controlled by the citizens through their elected representatives."

A graduate of St. Peter's School and Christopher Columbus High School, Harrington received his A.B. degree from Boston College before earning his Doctor of Jurisprudence degree from Boston University. He has continued actively in furthering his education and that of Boston University law students as courtroom instructor at the Dedham Superior Court.

He was appointed a Special Assistant Attorney General by the then Attorney General Elliot Richardson and is presently an Assistant Attorney General under Robert H. Quinn.

He said his realization of drug abuse in this area and his concern led to his becoming a Founding Director of and legal counsel to The Massachusetts Drug Advisory Council.

Harrington is a member of the Quincy and Massachusetts Bar Associations, Massachusetts District Attorney's Association, Quincy Lodge of Elks, North Quincy Knights of Columbus, Montclair Men's Club and the Quincy Citizen's Association. He is an elected member of the Ward 6 Democratic Committee and the Democratic City Committee; and has also been elected a member of the Parish Council of Sacred Heart Church, North Quincy. He is currently serving as a high school CCD instructor at Sacred Heart.

He is married to the former Ellen Boyd of North Quincy and they have six children: Dennis, 10; Pamela, 9; Christopher, 7; Patrick, 4; Elizabeth, 3; and Sarah, 2.

Burglaries Down But Police Step Up Anti-Crime Battle

Reported burglaries declined significantly in Quincy during the first four months of this year, leaving Quincy police happy but far from satisfied.

There were 527 reported burglaries in the city from January through April, 1972 and 372 for the same period this year.

Last year's total reported burglaries numbered 1,272.

"This decrease, although significant, cannot be considered sufficient," said the police, who are in the process of developing crime prevention programs for the city's residents and businessmen.

The burglary rate can be cut further, police said, if they receive cooperation from the community during the summer months in their residential security programs.

The first step is citizen involvement in "Operation Identification", in which the police make available to citizens electric engraving equipment to engrave social security numbers

S. Quincy Assn. Seeks More Supervision At Faxon Park

The South Quincy Civic Association has called for increased supervision at Faxon Park in the aftermath of a recent incident in which three young boys were attacked by older youths.

In a letter to Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Police Chief Francis X. Finn, the association urged the addition of another daytime park attendant and the assignment of an extra duty police officer to the park in the evening.

The Faxon Park problem was one of three major items dealt with at the recent monthly meeting of the association.

The group also voted to oppose the sale of some 19 acres of city-owned land on Quarry Street after Mrs. Annilee Johnson spoke out on the value of retaining the land as open space.

The location has been mentioned as the possible site of a future Quincy Elks home.

The association also voted to oppose not only the proposed South Quincy MBTA station but the planned access ramps to the Southeast Expressway and the extension of the North-South Artery as well.

The action was taken after it was discovered that the association was on record only as opposing the station.

Mayor's Dinner 'Fantastic Learning' Event For Students

By TOM HENSHAW

To the Quincy School Department it was "a fantastic learning experience for the students of the Culinary Arts Department of Quincy Vocational-Technical School."

To Mayor Walter J. Hannon it was an inexpensive way to salute a group of people without whom "the city of Quincy couldn't function as well as it does, especially financially."

To some critics of municipal spending it was just another ripoff of the overburdened taxpayer.

All three were viewing the same event – the party that Mayor Hannon threw for some 800 unpaid members of various city boards and their guests last Thursday at the George F. Bryan VFW Post.

After a weekend of flak-taking, spokesmen for the Mayor's office and the School Department Tuesday stoutly defended the affair as not really costly to the taxpayer at all.

The School Department spokesman said it cost about $2,000 to feed 800 people, an average of $2.50 each. The food was prepared by 70 students from Voc-Tech School.

"The $2,000 was already in the operating budget for the Culinary Arts Department and so did not cost the taxpayers any additional money," the spokesman said.

"The money was there to be used for the purchase of food and if it were not used for this affair it would have been used for some other affair or simply spent for food to be used in the classroom.

"In the School Department's view it was a unique opportunity for students to be involved in an event of such magnitude.

"It gave students a tremendous opportunity to do something they normally could not do in the classroom and to get the actual experience they will need when they go out into the food management and processing fields."

A spokesman for the Mayor's office said the band was paid for by Mayor Hannon himself and what liquor was consumed was paid for by the users.

"The Mayor has a party like this every year," the spokesman said. "It's just that this one was a little larger than the others. Remember, these people [board members] give the city a lot of

Seven Council Candidates

Student Takes Out Papers For Mayor

Quincy's election picture grew larger but not much clearer this week as a total of eight candidates have either announced or taken out papers for mayor and city council.

The lone candidate for mayor thus far is George H. Manuelian of 72 Gardner Rd, a 20-year-old student.

Rep. Joseph Brett, who ran against Mayor Walter J. Hannon in 1971, has chosen not to run again.

Ronald N. Halter of 119 Federal Ave., a typewriter mechanic, has taken out nomination papers for the Ward 3 Council seat.

Thomas Hughes of 30 Cross St., director of the Drug Abuse Prevention and Education Unit in the District Attorney's office and Herbert Reppucci of 62 Shirley St., Wollaston, a hairdresser, both announced their candidacies for the Ward 4 Council seat Wednesday.

John J. Lydon Jr. of 468 Beale St., funeral director and chairman of the Capital Improvement Committee; Warren A. Powers of 3 Grand View Terrace, an assistant district attorney, and Michael J. Peatridge of 64 Ellington Rd, a self-employed advertising man, have announced their candidacies for the Ward 5 seat.

Dennis Harrington of 211 Billings Rd, an assistant district attorney, is an announced candidate for the Ward 6 seat.

Nomination papers must be returned to the City Election Department by Aug. 14 with at least 50 signatures.

on all items of value in their homes.

Police also provide window stickers for citizens taking part in the program so that would-be burglars know what they are up against if they enter an Operation Identification home.

The burglar knows he would find it difficult to sell stolen merchandise that has been engraved and that it would be evidence against him if it were found in his possession.

The engravers are currently available at Police Headquarters but the police are looking for interested citizens or organizations to serve as distribution centers.

In addition to Operation Identification, police are also offering a detailed program on how a citizen can secure his or her home against entry by burglars.

Also available from the police is a movie on residential security, a police officer to speak to groups on the problems of burglary in the city, and a demonstration of various types of locks, both good and useless.

The department is filling requests by citizens to show the film and demonstrate the locks in private homes if a few neighbors are interested in attending the meeting.

If you want to learn how to prevent a burglary in your home you may contact the Quincy Police Department, Planning and Research Division, Tel. 479-1212, Ext. 378 or 379.

hours without being paid for them."

The menu, served buffet style, included shrimp, turkey, Swedish meat balls, cold cuts, anchovies, egg rolls, stuffed eggs, marinated mushrooms, cheeses and salads.

The centerpiece on the buffet table featured a shrimp boat, a dolphin and a swan, each carved from a 300-pound block of ice by two Culinary Arts students, Timothy Hanley and Joseph Marks. They worked an hour and a half on each.

In brief remarks, Mayor Hannon observed that "without these members of unpaid municipal boards the city would come to a virtual standstill. These people are giving valuable free time working for the city of Quincy."

Timothy Cardwell, chairman of the Quincy Taxpayers Revolt claimed the reception "was political".

He called attention to the "timing" noting it came just before nomination papers were available.

Eavesdropping on the political opposition is nothing new in Washington. As a matter of fact, our own John Quincy Adams used a bugging of sorts when he sat in the House of Representatives. [After being defeated for re-election as President, J.Q. served in Congress from 1830 till his death in 1848].

In Statuary Hall, the Old House Chamber, there is a brass plate in the floor, marking the place of J.Q. Adams' seat. Because of the semi circular shape of the chamber and its domed ceiling, sounds from across the room can be heard from that spot. And while J.Q. Adams' political opponents on the opposite side of the chamber were planning strategy, Adams could hear them. For years the opposition could not figure out how Adams could always anticipate their moves, until he finally revealed his secret.

On the Capitol tour, visitors stand at the spot of J.Q. Adams' seat, while the guide crosses the room and whispers, "John Quincy Adams can you hear me". [And back it comes to the visitors].

NOMINATION PAPERS FOR the Municipal preliminary election are now available. Ruth Pabst, Director of the Elections Department, sends us this information: anyone registered to vote in Quincy is eligible to run for city office; number of signatures required on nomination papers is 50 [for all offices, Mayor, Councillor-at large, Ward Councillor or School Committee]. Papers must be returned by Aug. 14. Preliminary election is Sept. 18 and the final election is Nov. 6.

MOST CITY EMPLOYEES were noticeably happier than usual last week, as they finally received their pay raise [retroactive from January].

ADAMS SHORE RESIDENT John Munn is getting his garden ready this week for an unusual crop - BEES.

Munn recently completed a course [with 150 other people] at the Norfolk Agricultural School on bee keeping. He starts out next week on his own with three pounds of bees [That's bees not beans].

TODAY'S THOUGHT via the Quincy Kiwanis Club Newsletter: "Opportunity may knock only once, but temptation keeps banging for years."

Jack Anderson

1972 Pulitzer Prize Winner for National Reporting, and Syndicated Columnist for The Quincy Sun

- Russia-China War Likely
- The Watergate Victims
- Nixon V.S. The Press

WASHINGTON — The possibility of war between Russia and China is increasing ominously. Some strategists on the National Security Council rate the likelihood better than 50-50. The secret intelligence reports, meanwhile, tell of rising tensions between the two Communist behemoths.

The Kremlin has moved 41 of its best divisions to the Chinese frontier. These troops are backed by dozens of huge, mobile nuclear missiles. Hundreds more could be launched against China from permanent Soviet sites.

The Chinese have installed less than 50 nuclear-tipped missiles of their own. U.S. military experts say the Russians could knock out all of them with the first nuclear broadside. But in another two years, the Chinese should have enough missiles deployed to deter a Soviet attack. They have also developed a fantastic new radar, called phased array radar, which could immediately detect a Soviet missile launching. This new radar should also be installed in another two years.

This means the Russians must knock out China as a nuclear power in the next two years or face a new Chinese nuclear menace. The intelligence reports note that the Kremlin has abandoned hope of improving relations with Peking — at least as long as Mao Tse-tung and Chou En-lai remain in power.

President Nixon, meanwhile, is deeply concerned. Not only would a Chinese-Russian war threaten world peace but the prevailing winds would carry the nuclear fallout over the United States.

The Watergate Victims: The Watergate scandal has its poignant human side. It has become a personal tragedy for everyone caught in the Watergate web. White House friends have suddenly turned into bitter enemies. The once powerful John Mitchell now has only Martha still standing by him. And President Nixon, in the privacy he cherishes, has been crushed by the developments.

Hundreds of thousands of dollars in unaudited cash was spent on the Watergate fiasco. The defendants were offered monthly payments in return for keeping their mouths shut. But the money isn't reaching the families of the four Cubans who were arrested inside Democratic headquarters.

The four were recruited by Howard Hunt who led them to believe they would be engaged in a mission for the Central Intelligence Agency. Now both Hunt and the CIA have abandoned them. Some of their wives tell us they go to church to pray for the return of their men.

There are also the children who cannot help but be touched by the scandal. Watergate wiretapper James McCord, for example, has worked hard to shield his young daughter Nancy from the imbroglio. Nancy has continued quietly to attend a special school for retarded children in Washington.

The deposed White House chief of staff, Bob Haldeman, has also been worrying about one of his sons. The troubled boy recently left a private high school before the end of the term.

The ugly Watergate headlines can be cruel to the innocent victims.

Nixon vs. the Press: As an olive branch to the press, a contrite President Nixon told newsmen: "Continue to give me hell when you think I'm wrong. I hope I'm worthy of your trust." Yet only two days later, his representative urged the Senate Judiciary Committee to pass a censorship law that would prevent newspapers from exposing any future Watergate scandals.

The President's spokesman, Deputy Assistant Attorney General Kevin Maroney, said the law was needed to protect the nation's secrets. But under the President's proposal, the bill would give the government the power to jail any reporter who uncovers fraud, waste or anything else the government chooses to classify.

A reporter could be sent to prison even if he could prove that the government had misclassified the information and that its release couldn't possibly harm the national security. In effect, the bill would empower the President to stop the publication of anything he didn't want the public to know.

This censorship provision is buried in two bills introduced by Sens. John McClellan of Arkansas and Roman Hruska of Nebraska. The bills would establish peacetime censorship, which this country has never tolerated even in time of war.

Phinney To Present Guidance Program

William L. Phinney, assistant superintendent, Quincy Public Schools, will present a special program at the 11th annual conference of the Massachusetts School Counselors Association at Bentley College, Waltham, May 18-19.

The presentation, "Guidance: Another Point of View", was originally developed for the series of guidance workshops offered to the guidance staff of the Quincy schools. Phinney will discuss how a school administrator with responsibility for instruction views the role of the school counselor.

Another Quincy participant will be Miss Louise B. Forsyth of the guidance staff who will be presenting her final report as executive secretary of the MSCA at the annual meeting to be held Friday at 7:30 p.m. She has resigned from a leadership role in MSCA after nine years in a number of offices.

The week of May 13-19 has been declared Massachusetts School Counselors Week by Governor Francis W. Sargent. To highlight the role of the school counselor, Miss Forsyth; Francis X. O'Regan of King Philip Regional School District, Wrentham, President of the MSCA; and Theodore M. Molongoski of the Braintree Public Schools discussed the work of school counseling in a broadcast with H. Winslow Bettinson of WJDA Wednesday.

The Mayor's Party

Mayor Walter Hannon has been taking some flak for the reception he hosted last week for members of unpaid municipal boards and their guests.

The natural first-glance reaction is to level criticism for "spending taxpayers money for a party".

The food served at the buffet style reception cost $2,000 and included such tasty tidbits as shrimp, turkey, egg rolls, stuffed eggs, marinated mushrooms, anchovies, Swedish meat balls, cheeses and salads.

A critic could easily get himself worked up over "blowing money like that".

But we would like to think of it as an investment in Quincy's future.

First of all, the food was whipped up by members of the Culinary Arts Department at the Quincy Vocational Technical School. Some 70 students participated.

A School Department spokesman termed it "a fantastic learning experience for the students." It gave them, he said, a "tremendous opportunity" to prepare an event of this size including shaping a 300 pound block of ice into table centerpieces.

An experience, he stressed, they could not get in the classroom alone.

And, he noted, the $2,000 was not an additional allocation. The money was already in the culinary arts department's operating budget to buy food for classroom instruction. And, the money would have been spent whether the Mayor gave a party or not.

The $2,000 sum seems pretty small actually when you consider the talents so many men and women give so freely and generously to the city of Quincy.

Think how much it would cost the city if these civic-minded persons were receiving salaries for their efforts.

It would cost many, many times over the $2,000.

Of course, a cynic at this point might note that other people would be happy to serve freely. And he might add that this was a nice way for the Mayor to launch his campaign for re-election.

But we still look at it as an investment in Quincy's future. We don't think there is anything wrong in a mayor or city saying "thank you" to a lot of dedicated people.

It's nice to be appreciated. And it encourages others to serve when they are called.

Sun Reunites Peggy And Anne

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I wish to thank the person on your staff who took the time out of his busy schedule to read my letter which I wrote last week. I asked for help in trying to locate a girl-friend of mine I knew in Scotland a long time ago and had lost touch with her.

Thanks to him and the "Quincy Sun" I got a phone call today from Massachusetts, from the girl I haven't seen in 11 years, Peggy Harvey, who is now "Mrs. Mackinnon" from Norton, Mass. Her girlfriend saw the letter in the paper and called her up.

You have no idea how happy you have made a lonely girl from a big city feel. All week I've been bugging my mailman, looking for a letter from your newspaper. I never expected results like I got. I was really shocked and very, very greatful.

My husband and I are going to start saving for a visit with Peggy. Once again, my sincere thanks to a "great paper" the "Sun" and the people who run it.

Thank you very much.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Bills of sale for leased cars must state that the vehicles have been "leased", according to a bill sponsored by the Consumer Protection Division recently enacted by the Massachusetts Legislature.

This law strengthens an existing statute requiring anyone selling automobiles which have been used as taxicabs, police cars, or rented cars to disclose this on the bill of sale.

In the past the Consumer Protection Division has received many complaints from consumers who thought they were buying a second hand car which had received normal use and later ended up spending money on frequent repairs. Upon investigating these complaints, the division found that many of these cars had been leased or rented or had been used as taxicabs or police cars.

Because these receive hard and constant use, consumers should know what they are buying.

Anyone who sells one of these cars without disclosing its former use on the bill of sale is subject to a fine of up to $500. In addition anyone selling a police car for other than police purposes must remove all ensignias and must paint the exterior a solid color.

The law also provides that bills of sale must state that a car's engine or electrical parts have been submerged if they have been.

Anyone who fails to remove all evidence that the car had been previously used by a police force or that a car's electrical parts or engine had been submerged is subject to a fine of up to $500.

Fifth Grader Wins Ecology Poem Award

Paul Anastas, a grade five pupil at the Quincy Elementary School, has received an award for "outstanding achievement" in the elementary education ecology poem and poster program of the Environmental Protection Agency.

Paul received the award for a poem he wrote and a poster he drew concerning the marsh near his home on Ash St.

Following is the poem he wrote:

THE MARSH NEAR MY HOUSE
By Paul Anastas

The marsh got ruined near my home.
Now the ducks have no place to roam.
They knocked down my favorite tree.
This is progress, now I see.
A duck that was born here came back for a swim.
You can't explain progress to him.
They dug up all the ground.
They caused pollution to our air, water and sound.
The marsh used to be green and gay.
Now it is a dark, dull gray.
I have one thing left to say,
Plants don't grow,
Where bulldozers go.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

'Winning Back A Separated Partner'

"My wife has left me ... and I'm terribly disturbed" ... the man was saying on the telephone. "You've got to help me get her back." We talked briefly ... made an appointment and began to study the situation.

Joe and May had been married 14 years ... stormy all the way for reasons which you'll see in a moment. Both claimed to love each other ... both had been disappointed. The separation had to take place. Reason dictated it. What had been going on was too demoralizing to both of them and to their three children ... 12 ... 9 ... 5. It's often a big question ... "do you stay for the children's sake?" May decided not to stay.

May had been gone three weeks. Joe wanted her back desperately. "What can I do to get her back?" ... he kept saying to me. I remembered the rich young man who came to Jesus asking ... "What can I do to inherit eternal life?" After citing all his goody-goody things, Jesus said to him ... "One thing thou lackest." It only takes one thing to lose one's soul ... or a wife ... or husband. Joe wondered if buying May a mink cape would do it. Said he'd thought of getting her father to talk with her ... or her girl friend. Joe had always got what Joe wanted ... even used people to get it. Now he'd turned to the counselor ... "late" ... he admitted ... "but maybe not too late."

We began by asking Joe to remember what she'd been saying of late about their relationship. "What did she complain about?" I asked.

"Same thing she always complained about ... that I DIDN'T TALK with her." I pointed out that that "one thing" was enough to ruin any marriage. Joe said he was always too tired ... or wanted to wtach TV. Remember, Joe did what Joe wanted to do ... without much consideration for other persons.

"Well ... Joe, that's one thing that will have to change. You couldn't buy May enough mink to take the place of a COMMUNICATION PARTNER. What else?

"She said (notice Joe always called her "she" ... never personal ... by her name) that I was a poor lover ... didn't take time ... said I was selfish ... got satisfied myself and ignored her sexual satisfaction." He paused. "I guess she was right." I tried to help Joe to understand the sexual needs of a woman ... and that being a taker all the time finally drains the partner so that she quits giving. Lots of men are poor lovers ... cheating both their wives and themselves.

"Joe ... what is your attitude toward women?" I asked. "What do you mean?" ... he said. "How do you FEEL toward women?"

He was confused by the question ... "I don't know ... they're o.k. I guess ... women have their place ... in the home ... raising the kids ... never thought much about it." In the world of FEELINGS Joe was lost.

Joe's problem was ATTITUDE. It began in childhood. He had had a cold, indifferent father ... and an embittered mother. He never had had opportunity to see how a man and woman relate to each other in healthy ... happy ways. He was treating May as his father had greated his mother ... with silence ... selfish sex ... insensitively. "No modern woman can accept that kind of treatment" ... I explained to Joe. "A woman's soul must be fed by her man companion ... she must be treated as an equal ... not a servant." Joe had to change his attitude toward women to get May back.

Joe was willing to STOP ... LOOK ... LISTEN ... AND TO CHANGE. Are you?

Alan Young To Lecture Monday At First Church Of Christ, Scientist

ALAN YOUNG

Former actor Alan Young, C.S., of Newport Beach, Calif., will deliver a public lecture on Christian Science in Quincy Monday Evening, May 21.

Young will speak at 8 p.m. in First Church of Christ, Scientist, 20 Greenleaf St., Quincy Center.

Young left a successful career in television and films several years ago to devote his full time to the healing ministry of Christian Science.

In 1969 he established and organized the Film and Broadcasting Department of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. He was recently named to The Christian Science Board of Lectureship.

"Can You Simply Trust?" is the title of Young's local lecture. The public is invited to attend without charge. Child care will be provided.

Personal experiences in applying spiritual trust and understanding of God to guidance, health, and other everyday problems will be shared in the lecture.

A native of England, Young moved to Vancouver, B.C., Canada, as a child and with his family began the study of Christian Science. While in his early teens, he was a performer in public as a monologuist. Later he had his own radio programs in Vancouver, Toronto, New York, and Hollywood where "The Alan Young Show" on CBS-TV won two Emmy Awards. In 1960, he began the "Mr. Ed" comedy series which ran for six seasons on CBS and was televised in 28 countries.

Young entered the full time practice of Christian Science in 1967. He produced a number of outstanding films for The Mother Church and developed the radio series "The Truth that Heals" while serving as Manager of the church's Film and Broadcasting department. He became a Christian Science lecturer in 1971.

Should I Go To The Funeral? What Do I Say?

Do people really prefer to be alone in their grief? No! Being alone following a loss makes the pain harder to bear. That is why you should go to the funeral of relatives and friends and make a condolence or sympathy visit, too.

Don't worry about what to say. Just make it genuine, simple, sincere. And be a good listener. By your very presence you tell the bereaved they are not alone in their grief.

This is not just custom or etiquette. It is important for the mourners to grieve and share their sorrow if they are eventually to return to the mainstream of life. An enlightening brochure on the condolence or sympathy visit, points this out. It is available from the National Funeral Directors Association. It will start you thinking.

Five other NFDA brochures discuss: thoughts about the funeral, arranging a funeral, funeral costs, the presence of the body, and children and death. You will find them all most helpful because they are based on experience, research and knowledge.

Send for your FREE copies today. You will be glad you did.

AVOID BICYCLE FATALITIES

Last year there were about 800 fatalities and 38,000 injuries resulting from collisions between bicycles and motor vehicles. Many of these tragedies are avoidable. Here's some advice from the experts.

Don't buy a bike that is too big for a child and then provide blocks for the pedals. Children riding bikes too big for them are involved in far more accidents - due to falls - than children on correct-size bikes.

When riding a bicycle in traffic, ride on the right side of the road, WITH the traffic, not on the left against the traffic. Walk your bike across heavily-traveled intersections. If you ride in a group, travel single file. And, if riding at night, have a white front lamp and a red rear light in good working order. Reflective tape and light-colored clothing are also recommended.

WOLLASTON

Wentworth Dedication To Honor Memory Of Wollaston Man

Dedication exercises for the new $400,000 Science & Technology Building of Wentworth College of Technology today [Thursday] will highlight the observance of "Russ Beatty Day".

"Russ Beatty Day" was initiated last year in honor of the late Dr. H. Beatty of Bishop St., Wollaston, who was responsible for the founding of Wentworth College of Technology in 1970 and retired on June 30, 1972. The student senate voted to make the third Thursday in May annually as "Russ Beatty Day". Dr. Beatty died in Sept. 1972.

Today's program will begin at 2 p.m. in front of Beatty Hall on Wentworth Institute campus. Speakers will include John F. Rich, Boston, chairman of Wentworth board of trustees and president, New England Gas & Electric Assn.; Dr. Edward T. Kirkpatrick, Weston, president of the college; Dean Henry R. Poydar, Wayland; and Keith R. Blackey, Ayer, president, student senate.

Following the talks, a tree will be planted in the school's quadrangle.

Ceremonies for the dedication of the new science and technology building will be held at 2:45 p.m. on Huntington Ave., in front of the new structure. Benjamin Conviser of Conviser Construction Co. in Brookline, the builder, will present the keys to the new building to Dr. Kirkpatrick.

FISH Casting For Volunteers

FISH is casting for volunteers in Quincy.

In fact, you might say FISH will flounder if it doesn't get them.

Once you get through saying it, it boils down to this:

Parishioners of St. Chrysostom's Church in Wollaston are forming a Quincy chapter of FISH, a community service staffed by ordinary people who are available for a few hours a day, once a month, to help someone in need.

It might be driving someone to the hospital to visit a sick friend, or baby-sitting for someone in an emergency, or cooking a meal for someone who lives alone and is unable to do it for themselves.

No special skill is needed, only a phone call to Michael McCann, curate of St. Chrysostom's, at 472-0737.

Capt. Thomas F. Wilson Squadron School Graduate

Air Force Capt. Thomas F. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Wilson of 125 Highland Ave., Wollaston, has graduated from the Air University's Squadron Officer School at Maxwell AFB, Ala.

Capt. Wilson was specially selected for the 14-week professional officer course which covers communicative skills, leadership, human relations, national security, management resources and international relations.

He is assigned at Kirtland AFB, N.M., as a staff development engineer with a unit of the Air Force Systems Command which manages research and development for Air Force aerospace systems.

Capt. Wilson, a 1962 graduate of North Quincy High School, received his B.S. degree in mechanical engineering in 1967 from Northeastern University. He was commissioned in 1968 upon completion of Officer Training School at Lackland AFB, Tex.

His wife, Nancy, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas P. O'Brien of Grayson St., Boston.

Recovered Stolen Or Lost Bikes At Wollaston Fire Station

Stolen or lost bicycles recovered by the Quincy Police Department are now being stored at the Wollaston Fire Station under control of the Police Department.

The bicycles will be shown to the public every Saturday between 9 a.m. and 11 a.m. This is the only time they can be seen.

However, the public may call the Police Station during the week to report or inquire about a lost or stolen bike.

Montclair School To Hold May Festival Saturday

The Montclair School will hold its annual May Festival Saturday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on the school grounds.

Proceeds from the rides, games, contests and snack bar will go toward buying supplemental educational materials – books, tapes and visual aids – for the school's media center.

There will also be a white elephant table.

Wollaston Theater Now In 49th Year Under Sears Family

The Wollaston Theater is now in its 49th consecutive year and continuing its tradition of bringing first class entertainment–live and on film–to the area.

The 1,150-seat theater on Beale St. has been owned by the Edward H. Sears family since he built it in 1924.

Today, it is controlled and operated by Mrs. Harriet W. Sears who is president and treasurer.

Earle MacLeod, a well known Quincy native, is now general manager. And Robert Tobin, member of a well known Quincy family, is assistant manager. John Doherty is also an assistant manager.

The theater was the home stage during the 1920's and 1930's for the Wollaston Community Players.

It dates back to the era of the silent movies and the days of Charlie Chaplin, Rudolph Valentino, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks Sr., Theda Bara, Lon Chaney, etc.

In more recent years, on-stage shows have ranged from George Jessel and Tiny Tim to The Boys Town Choir, and the International Rock Opera Company in "Jesus Christ Superstar".

The quick booking of new movies and a $1 admission price has started the theater off on a new era of popularity.

HAPPY BIRTHDAY – Mrs. Mary Gallagher, traffic supervisor at the Wollaston School, got a pleasant surprise when pupils at the school, who know her as "Mrs. G.", presented her with a bouquet of flowers on her birthday.

Youngsters Holding MD Carnival

Some concerned Wollaston youngsters are staging a carnival to raise funds to fight Muscular Dystrophy on Saturday, May 26 from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at 100 Hamilton St., Wollaston.

There will be refreshments and "maybe a real clown for you to see," say publicity chairmen Kathy O'Brien and Mary Fasano.

A Way To Improve Status Of All Seniors

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

On May 8, Governor Sargent and Secretary of Elder Affairs, Jack Leff unveiled their proposed reorganization plan to the legislature and the public.

All in all, it was an impressive performance. The Governor was at his dramatic best in his appeal for passage to the committee and Mr. Leff seemed to have his facts in hand, as he responded effectively to a barrage of questions.

This is far reaching legislation of importance to every elderly person in the Commonwealth. Through it, the Executive Office of Elderly Affairs, now to be called the Department of Elderly Affairs, will attempt to first; provide a more effective means of delivering direct services to older citizens and second; to become an effective advocate in other areas of state government, in matters of concern to the elderly.

I attended the recent hearing to gain information. Arriving slightly after the starting hour I was able to hear a good part of the Governor's address and as I have already mentioned, he was at his rhetorical best. A standing room only crowd, composed primarily of senior citizens from all parts of the Commonwealth registered their complete approval at the conclusion of his remarks, only to be gently admonished by the committee chairman who pointed out that time and custom dictated no applause or demonstrations at hearings of this sort.

Secretary Leff then outlined his proposed changes. He first pointed out that under reorganization, two programs directly involving senior citizens and now administered by other departments, would be brought into his jurisdiction, the Commonwealth Service Corps., a program providing part-time work opportunities for senior citizens, now to be called the Elder Service Corps., and the Hot Meals Program currently a part of the Department of Education.

He also stressed that, in terms of state aided services, priority would be given to the establishment of Home Care Corporations; programs designed to assist senior citizens in avoiding institutionalization, through provision of supportive services at home. Establishment of this concept as the priority program; attempting to provide the means by which an elderly person, who though not ill, may be unable to function at home because of a physical disability preventing performance of simple tasks such as cooking, housecleaning or taking a bath, has to be a significant progressive step.

In addition, Secretary Leff's proposal includes placement of Department of Elder Affairs representatives on all regulatory boards impacting upon health and welfare of the elderly. It also requires participation by his department in programs for older citizens administered by other state offices; programs such as housing, transportation, education, services to the handicapped, recreation and consumer protection.

On the whole, this reorganization proposal seems to me to be well conceived and of appropriate direction. Unfortunately, we all must still be concerned with its actual administration and implementation. Will they now be able to effectively deliver real services to the elderly or will the actual dollar appropriations be dissipated in the maze of bureaucracy. Only time will tell.

The Senior Scene

Social Security Helps Keep Older Americans Active And Involved

"Older Americans in Action" will be the theme as the Nation observes Senior Citizens Month in May, notes Frank G. Culkin, social security district manager in Quincy.

In proclaiming Senior Citizens Month, President Nixon said the theme "points our attention to the basic fact that most older people are not mere onlookers in our society–nor are they society's wards. They remain vital, versatile, and highly valued contributors to the quality of American life."

"Social security is active in helping older Americans remain active and involved," Culkin said.

According to him, social security now pays over $2½ billion a month in retirement benefits to about 18 million people. "Payments have increased more than 50 percent since 1969," he said. "Recent changes in the social security law have increased payments to widows 62 and over and to workers who delay retirement past 65."

In the future, social security payments will generally increase automatically with the cost of living, according to Culkin. "And nearly everyone 65 and over can get Medicare," he noted.

The President said Senior Citizens Month must be "a time for strengthening those human bonds which will ensure older Americans an active and honored place in our families, our communities, and our Nation".

"If senior citizens have suggestions or questions about social security," Culkin said, "we invite them to call, write, or visit any social security office.

The Quincy social security office is located at 1431 Hancock St., The telephone number is 471-3500.

Quincy Savings Bank Executive Attends New York Conference

Leonard T. Kantola Executive Vice President and Treasurer of the Quincy Savings Bank has returned from the 53rd annual Conference of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks in New York City.

A highlight of the conference was a commemoration of the savings bank industry's passing a growth milestone this year – $100 billion in assets.

Government and banking leaders participating in the conference program and in the salute to the $100 billion savings bank industry included:

Deputy Under Secretary of the Treasury James E. Smith, Governor George W. Mitchell of the Federal Reserve Board and Senator Wallace F. Bennett of Utah, ranking Republican member of the Senate Finance Committee.

Also addressing the conference were Edwin Newman, NBC News Correspondent, and well-known environmentalist Barry Commoner, Director of Washington University's Center for the Biology of Natural Systems.

The theme adopted by the industry to commemorate passing the $100 billion growth landmark is "$100 Billion Strong – Mutual Savings Banks at Work Helping People Prosper".

The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks is the single, national-level trade organization for the savings bank industry. NAMSB's membership consists of all but four U.S. mutuals; the total assets of NAMBS member savings banks is in excess of 99% of total industry assets.

General Dynamics Earnings Up

General Dynamics Corporation reports its 1973 first quarter earnings were 44 percent higher than last year's.

David S. Lewis, Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, said earnings for 1973's first quarter ending March 31 were $7,366,000 on sales of $398,033,000, equal to 70 cents per common share. This compares with 1972 first quarter earnings of $5,104,000, or 48 cents per share, on sales of $382,288,000.

Shareholders at the company's annual meeting here elected Robert F. Ellsworth to the Board of Directors, succeeding Stanley deJ. Osborne, who retired from the board after serving since 1970.

Ellsworth is president and chief executive officer of Lazard [N.Y.] International and a general partner of Lazard Freres and Co. of New York.

Lewis told the shareholders "we expect that 1973 as a whole will be a much improved year for General Dynamics."

One of the company's major goals, he said, has been "to harness our talents and abilities to go after and win new programs, so vital if we are to grow."

Commercial sales increased to $543 million in 1972, he said, and the company expects "that our commercial business will equal our government business in a very few years as our sales in both areas are increased."

He pointed out that counting only commercial sales, "General Dynamics would stand as number 223 on the most recent Fortune 500 listing."

Clinic Planned For Quincy

Whalers' Rick Ley Camp To Teach Hockey On Plastic Ice

The Quincy Center Business and Professional Association is hoping to sponsor a hockey clinic for young players in the Quincy Center area.

Plans are for the clinic to be held on the slick [synthetic] ice surface used by Bob Sylvia, a Quincy High hockey coach, at his Camelot Day Camp in Hanover. Sylvia, who has the only slick ice arena in the world, has a supply of the portable vinyl plastic surface which he can install anywhere.

Bob Colman, president of the Quincy Center Association, says he would like to have the clinic prior to the opening of the Rick Ley Pro Hockey Day Camp which will be held at Sylvia's Camelot in Hanover from June 25 through Aug. 21.

"The big problem is to find a suitable site for the clinic in the Quincy Center area," Colman said.

The clinic will be conducted by Ley, New England Whalers star and a former player for the Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League for four years.

Ley will be assisted by Whaler Coach Jack Kelley and other members of the World Hockey Association champions at the day camp. Sylvia is the camp director and is delighted at the prospect of youngsters receiving instructions from outstanding pro players and coaches.

Tom Williams and Brad Selwood will be at the camp for a week apiece and among the guest instructors will be Kelley, Ted Green, Tom Webster, Jim Dorey and goalie Al Smith.

Sylvia explained that the boys will be drilled on both the camp's synthetic ice, which is endorsed by the National Hockey League players, pro figure skaters and now Ley, and on regular ice at the Hingham Arena.

"The boys will be drilled in fundamentals on the slick surface and will hold scrimmages on the ice in Hingham," Sylvia pointed out. "We feel a boy getting six hours instruction a day will get much more out of the camp than one receiving only two hours instruction at the many hockey schools being run in the area."

Ley explained that he not only will work with the boys on the ice, but will join them in weight lifting, jogging and other activities.

Sylvia praised youth hockey officials for their work with younger players but feels that the youngsters need the teaching of pro players.

"When I got the idea for this hockey camp, I went to Jack Kelley, the Whaler's coach, and told him I was interested in getting a man who is dedicated and works well with youngsters," Sylvia said. "He told me he had just the man in Rick Ley and he certainly was right. I am very impressed with the way he works with kids. And the important thing is he is now living in Beverly [he is a native of Oriollia, Ont.] and will be on hand for every session of the camp. He plans to stay around this area."

Ley, a fine defenseman, played 67 games for the Maple Leafs a year ago, 76 games the year before, 48 games in 1969-70 and in 38 games his first year in 1968-69. He previously played with the Niagara Falls Flyers, being drafted by the Leafs in 1968.

Ley feels the first season for the new World Hockey Association was a success and "it will continue to get better all the time." He said he expects several more NHL players to join the WHA next year and sees a merger between the two leagues within four or five years.

"If there is no merger, I don't see how the National League can avoid us and refuse to play the champion of our league in a few years," Rick said. "We don't have the brawls the National League games feature and play good, clean hockey. I think a young player will learn more watching us play than a National League team." Sylvia echoed these sentiments and said he would much rather have his Quincy High players watch the Whalers.

Ley also feels the Whalers' crowds will improve considerably next year with all 39 home games at the Garden. This year they had to play many of their games at the inadequate Arena.

Incidentally, in addition to the hockey the boys will learn at the day camp, they will enjoy such activities as swimming, horseback riding and others.

● St. John's Little League

Cardinals, Yankees, Mets League Pacers

By PUTNAM BORDEN

The Cardinals rolled along unbeaten atop the National League with a pair of victories in St. John's Little League play last week while the Yankees suffered their first defeat but managed to retain the American League lead.

Monday [May 7]:

Jeff McGrail threw a one-hitter, striking out eight batters, and went four for four at the plate as the Cardinals walloped the Angels, 19-0. Jim Belmonte also went four for four and Ed Tinney had three hits.

Kevin Lindsay came up with a pair of brilliant plays at second base to choke off late inning rallies as the Cubs outlasted the Yankees, 12-8. Tim Mullarky fanned five in going the route. Brian Buchanan was three for four.

Tuesday [May 8]:

Bob Dunn belted a grand slam home run and Rich Miller threw out the tying run at the plate in the fifth inning to give the Yankees an 11-10 decision over the White Sox. John Norton's three-inning relief job was the winner.

Jay Baker struck out eight and allowed only four hits in turning back the Braves for the Red Sox, 4-3. John Nicholas hit a two-run homer for the Red Sox and Mark Hajjar returned the compliment with a two-run round tripper for the Braves.

Thursday [May 10]:

Jeff Marcell came in with one out in the first inning and pitched 5 2/3 innings of shutout ball in relief, allowing four hits and whiffing nine, to secure the Braves' 7-4 win over the Tigers. Charlie Thorley was three for three for the losers.

Jeff Connerty got four hits in four trips, including a grand slam home run and two doubles, and batted in eight runs as the White Sox powered past the Red Sox, 11-8.

Saturday [May 12]:

Ed Tinney of the Cardinals and Joe Weeks of the Tigers hooked up in a pitching duel with Tinney fanning eight and Weeks striking out 15 before the Cards emerged 4-3 victors. Bob Kennelly's triple drove in the winning run.

The Red Sox made it look like batting practice as they caught the Angels on an off-day in the field, on the pitching mound and at the plate and walked away with a 28-3 victory.

In Farm League action, the winless Phillies lost a pair of close ones.

John O'Malley's bat and Paul Leonard's glove proved to be the difference as the Pirates won, 2-1, despite a three for four day by the Phils' John Kozlowski.

Triples by Bob Bates and Billy Walsh were the big blows as the Indians polished off the Phillies, 4-0. The Indians' Steve Turynowicz turned in the catch of the day in the outfield.

QJC Takes Conference Title

For the second year in a row the Quincy Junior College baseball team, after finishing a close second in regular season play, has won the Mass. Jr. College Conference championship by sweeping the playoffs in straight games.

Coach Dave Burke's collejuns, after ousting Newton Junior College in the semifinals, took two in a row from Wentworth in the finals to cop the crown again.

In the clincher Monday at Newton, Quincy bombed Wentworth, 8-1, as Frank Niles, a regular outfielder, pitched a six-hitter and struck out six.

Niles also had two four at the plate, Tim Flynn hit a tape measure home run and a single, Tony Alibrandi had three hits and Jack Flaherty added a double.

With games piling up as a result of postponements, Burke got fine pitching performances from outfielder Niles and second baseman Flynn, who was a North Quincy High teammate of Alibrandi and Flaherty.

The Collejuns opened the playoffs last Saturday with a 4-3 win over Newton Junior College as Jim Stenman pitched a three-hitter and Jack Flaherty, the team's leading hitter, drove in the winning run in the last inning.

John Caprio doubled and scored on Flaherty's line single.

Tony Alibrandi had two runs batted in and Tim Flynn had the other.

Sunday QJC nipped Wentworth, 2-1, in the opening of the three-game playoff finals. Wentworth, which had finished third behind Quincy in the regular season, had upset first place Grahm Saturday.

Flynn, regular second baseman, who has pitched fine ball since being called upon when the games began to pile up due to rainouts, hurled a four-hitter.

A Wentworth home run gave it a 1-0 lead in the top of the fifth but QJC won it with two runs in its half of the inning.

Caprio walked, Flaherty singled and Alibrandi's single scored Caprio. Flaherty advanced to third on a fielder's choice and scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

The Quincy nine had lost to Grahm earlier in the week, 4-2, in the game that decided first place. The rivals were tied going into the game.

Flynn gave up a two-run homer in the first inning and Quincy never could catch up. The Collejuns scored once in the third but Grahm came back with one in its half. The winners scored again in the fifth and Quincy scored another run in the seventh.

Flynn's single drove in Frank Niles with the third inning run and Flaherty's sacrifice fly following three walks accounted for the other.

Hilltoppers Banquet

The Hilltopper Bowling League of Quincy will hold its annual "banquet" tonight [Thursday] at the Chateau de Ville in Randolph.

High average honor went to Eleanor Mulroy with 98.65, high three to Marie Calarese with 334, and high single to Martha Curran with 137.

Marge Clark's winning team included Martha Curran, Helene McPeck, Jenny Lutfy, and Charlene Murphy.

Janet Mattie's runners-up comprised Helen Price, Bertha Sarruda, Helen Kelly and Eileen Baillie.

Officers for the league's 1973-74 season are Jenny Lutfy, Chairman; Martha Curran, Secretary and Agnes O'Brien, Treasurer.

Quincy Bantam B's League Champs

Goalie Jeff Nord blanked the opposition twice and Dave Perdios fired four goals as the Quincy Bantam "B" team won the Alamo Hockey League title with 5-0 and 4-0 victories over Weymouth on consecutive nights last week.

The sweep of the best of three series came unexpectedly easy for Quincy which had to battle through five games with Rockland to reach the finals while Weymouth was waltzing through two straight wins over West Bridgewater.

Each team finished first in its respective division during the regular season.

Perdios had a pair of goals and an assist Wednesday [May 9] as Quincy opened with a 5-0 victory.

Jack Cronin, Mike Smith and Jim McConville had the other goals with assists credited to Jeff Gavin, Frank Penzo, Richie Troy and Mike Smith.

The victory cost Quincy the services of Mark Kelly, who suffered a broken collarbone. But he provided the inspiration for the win in the second contest.

Perdios fired two more goals and Jim Shea and Dennis Bertoni got one each Thursday [May 10] in a 4-0 victory that was dedicated to the injured Kelly.

Troy had two assists and Paul Higgins, Dave Previte and Bertoni one each as Quincy scored two goals in each of the second and third periods.

Kelly led the club in the traditional hand shake line with the losing Weymouth team after the game and he received the first trophy.

The Bantam "B" team is sponsored by Noonan Press.

Wells Grille, A&T Movers, Alumni Cafe Off To Fast Starts

After the first week of play the favored teams are rolling along in the Quincy Softball League.

Alumni Cafe won its first two games during the past week to lead the National League West with a 2-0 record.

Alumni out-slugged Barry's Deli, 9-6, and followed up with a 6-2 decision over Dee-Dee's.

Top batter for the always tough Alumni nine was Charlie McDonald with long doubles and triples while newcomer Jimmy Cameron was two for two against Barry's and stood out in the field against Dee Dee's.

Barry's didn't go down without a fight as Jim McGue and Gerry Connolly did some good hitting and Dee Dee's was paced by Jack Bryant. Vin Stasium sparkled for Alumni in the field.

Beau's Place joined A & T Movers at the top of the American League West with a 2-0 record as it topped Paige's in a game featured by defensive gems.

Ralph Rowe made two brilliant plays as he turned hard line drives into double plays while Tommy Colclough and Mike Shaheen led the attack. Bill East, as usual, was a stickout defensively.

Wells Grille, which had opened its season with a win over Barry's Ships Haven, made its record 2-0 in the National East as it walloped Johathan's, 16-5.

Gary McGrath hit two tremendous home runs and Bob Swirbalus had two more hits. Wally Hendricks pitched an excellent game, nearly equaling Dick Taylor's fine opening night performance in the win over Ships Haven.

North Hopes Dimmed

Chances of the North Quincy baseball team making the state tournament were dimmed considerably Monday when the Raiders were nipped by Revere, 2-1, to drop their Greater Boston League record to 6-5.

Last week North, trailing Everett, 7-0, nearly pulled it out with a fine rally but lost, 9-6.

"Our only chance now of finally making the tourney is to win all three remaining games [Quincy yesterday, Malden Friday and Medford Monday]," Coach Charlie Bunker said. Malden is a home game at Adams Field and the finale at Medford, which leads the league.

Monday's game was a heartbreaker for Tim Clifford, sophomore pitcher, who allowed Revere only three hits and both Revere runs were unearned. North collected seven hits but seven batters struck out, four of them called.

In the fifth North had the bases loaded with no outs but failed to score.

"It was a shame Clifford had to lose, he pitched another beauty," Bunker said. "In our first game with Revere, he beat them 3-1, with a fine six-hitter, their first defeat. Today he struck out nine and walked three."

Finkel, Kuberski Teach At Y

Classes will consist of daily lectures, drills, individual and group instruction, movies, scrimmages, swimming, games and awards.

Tuition for YMCA members is $50 and for non-members $55, which includes a $5 social membership.

Quincy Title Bound North Breezes

Quincy's unbeaten track team all but wrapped up its third straight Greater Boston League championship with its fourth and fifth straight league wins last week.

Tuesday the Presidents, who brought in a string of 19 successive league wins [25 of their last 26 league meets] hosted Everett at Veterans Memorial Stadium in a meet rained out earlier, and today [Thursday] face North Quincy. At this writing the site of the Quincy-North meet was undecided.

Tom Hall's Quincy team had its closest meet of the year as it got by previously undefeated Malden, 68-63, as Malden gave the Presidents their closest competition in the field events, Quincy's strength this year.

John Johnson won the low hurdles and Sophomore Art DiLoreto took the high hurdles. This pair also tied for first in the high jump, giving the Presidents some valuable points.

Dave Sten won the discus, Fred Donahue the shot put in which he is unbeaten, and Kevin Cox the long jump. Marty Swirko had an important second in the half mile and Steve Burke a big second in the high hurdles. Steve Nolan and Steve Player were two-three in the mile, their personal highs. Malden won the 100, 220, 440, half-mile, mile and two-mile as well as the relay.

Earlier in the week Quincy had defeated Medford, 78-53.

The Presidents had a huge 26-1 edge in the weight events as they again dominated the field events. Sophomore Pres Carroll won the low hurdles in fine time, 21.8 seconds; junior John MacFarlane won the triple jump to stay unbeaten at the time [he lost two days later to Malden], Nolan the mile, Cox the long jump, in which he is still unbeaten; Mark MacLeod the half mile, DiLoreto the high hurdles, Donahue the shot, Sten the discus and Mike Priscella the javelin.

"My assistant coach, Joe Wessling, handles most of the field events and has done a tremendous job," Hall lauded. "He is responsible for the rapid progress of Priscella, who never threw the javelin until about two weeks ago."

Bob Gentry's luckless North Quincy team, which had been coming close but not close enough, finally got its first league win as it breezed past Everett, 94-33, winning 13 of the 15 events and sweeping three. The Raiders had lost to Malden earlier in the week.

Bob McCormack and sophomore Paul O'Donnell were double winners, McCormack taking the triple jump and 440 and O'Donnell the javelin and 220.

Other North winners were Burt Bray in the shot put, Joe Marinelli in the discus, Mark Canavan, high jump; Art Barrett, two-mile; Dick Malloy, mile, and Jack Pomerole, 100.

North faced Chelsea Tuesday at the stadium and winds up its league season today against Quincy.

Kiwanis Blanked Bounce Back

The Elks blanked Kiwanis, 2-0, in Sunday's Quincy Junior Baseball League action as Karl Earl pitched a five-hitter and struck out six.

Don Perdios lost a heartbreaker as he gave the winners only one hit and struck out eight but two costly errors and a double by Bob Howlett foiled his outstanding effort.

Monday Kiwanis came back to defeat Rotary, 7-2, as Bob Ceurvels pitched three-hit ball and fanned eight.

Losing pitcher was Bill Murphy.

Ed Marrella was three for three for Kiwanis, while Perdios, Bob Nolan, Gary Stack and Bill O'Connell also hit well.

Mosher Institutes Fines To Keep Team 'On Ball'

Art [Bud] Mosher, new baseball coach at Quincy High, has instituted a system of small fines to keep his players alert and probably save a few games.

Mosher will fine a player for 15 common errors:

Called third strike, failure to sacrifice a runner, failure to swing on hit and run, failure to protect runner on a suicide squeeze, failure to slide when the situation warrants, missing a signal, getting picked off base.

Also failure to throw to or be in the proper relay or cut-off position, failure to back up the play when applicable, throwing equipment, arguing with umpires, not knowing the situation [count on batter, outs, etc.], loafing, missing base while running, resulting in an appeal play and generally any conduct not becoming a dedicated player.

The fines for getting picked off base vary. A player is fined 10 cents for getting picked off by a southpaw, 15 cents by a right-hander and Mosher himself pays a 25 cent fine for a player picked off second or third. Mosher also pays the fine if a runner misses third base.

"I feel this system keeps the boys alert and in the game at all times," the new coach said. "In our league opener at Medford the only fine was for a called third strike, which I thought was very good."

On The Screen

By Vincent Puleo

After weeks of fierce $$$ bidding between NBC, CBS, and ABC, NBC-TV has it – "THIS IS NOEL COWARD", a 90-minute telefilm shot independently last year by Englishman CHARLES CASTLE. Narrated by Sir JOHN GIELGUD, and with the late playwright-actor himself appearing, the death of this illustrious showman cued fresh interest in this special... RICHARD BURTON, DAME EDITH EVANS, TERENCE RATTIGAN and the late MAURICE CHEVALIER, among others, will be seen in this all-star, celebrity tribute to a truly remarkable man who more than left his imprint as an achiever in the world of entertainment...

The local film scene right now is no place for someone with a sibilant "s" – that speech affectation that causes the letter "s" to hiss and whistle when pronounced. No less than eight major productions are making the rounds beginning with the 19th letter of the alphabet... These include: "SLITHER", "SLEUTH", "SOYLENT GREEN", "SISTERS", "SOUND OF MUSIC", "SOUNDER", "SCORPIO", and "SCARECROW"... And beginning with a "b" "BROTHER SUN, SISTER MOON", a title with sibilance of its own...

Dull? Boring? Make-believe pornography? So said Maryland film censors DAVID J. PRELLER, MARY AVARA and MARGERY SHRIVER after seeing "THE LAST TANGO IN PARIS"... On the other side of the ocean, actor KLAUS BIEDERSTAEDT, one of the top voice dubbers in Germany, felt "TANGO" was "a really fine film." BIEDERSTAEDT elaborated, "...when I did BRANDO'S long monolog when he looks at the body of his wife who had just committed suicide, it moved us so much that some of the actors at the dubbing actually cried. You couldn't help it"...

WARREN OATES and LOU GOSSETT are chillingly toplined in the action-adventure "THE WHITE DAWN". Shooting begins in a few weeks in the "chill" of the Arctic... CLINT EASTWOOD hits the cinema bullseye in his latest box office winner "HIGH PLAINS DRIFTER"... Playing a hunch that "EMPEROR OF THE NORTH POLE" is one of the big hits of '73. Starring LEE MARVIN and ERNEST BORGNINE, the 20th Century-Fox release is slated for release July 4th, where I predict it will be red hot at the box office...

Gotta hand it to the U.S. Defense Dept. They generally know how to botch up things... The bigwigs in the Pentagon place a higher priority on "tooth decay" than "syphillis and gonorrhea"... During the period 1971-72, the Defense Dept. made 12 movies dealing with one subject - "HOW TO BRUSH YOUR TEETH", and 2 less, 10 movies, on the subject of venereal problems... Well, maybe the Defense Dept. considers tooth decay a bigger threat to our armed service personnel than venereal disease. Tho with all the Crest toothpast ads on TV one would think the opposite... For after all, everyone knows about proper tooth care...

Some dream of living a double life. Others live it, as is the situation with JAMES CAAN... Daredevil rodeo rider JIMMY CAAN of Columbia Falls, Montana, who has thrilled fans at Las Vegas, Los Angeles' Forum and numerous other big western professional rodeos is also JAMES CAAN, one of Tinseltown's brightest and most acclaimed young stars...

'The Music Man' Comes To North

By TOM GOSLIN

Friday, Saturday and Monday evenings will see the culmination of two and a half months of hard work and united effort that went into the production of Meredith Wilson's "The Music Man".

Under the direction of Miss Ellen Byrne, Drama Club Advisor, and Maurice Carbonneau, Concert Choir Director, North Quincy High's students will present their most lavish and complex production in some time at 7:30 p.m. on those three evenings at the North Quincy High School auditorium.

The play, which was an enormous success on Broadway in 1957, starred Robert Preston who also starred in the movie version along with Shirley Jones.

The play has music, dancing, singing, humor and some fine acting. In short, it has everything that makes for a fine evening of entertainment.

Several of the roles are being shared by two students in order to give more people a chance to perform. For instance, Paul Goslin and Richard Meredith are both playing the male lead in different performances. Jill Casey will be playing the female lead to Paul's Harold while Brenda Kelly will be acting with Richard.

This excellent production is a result of the effort and cooperation of many people. Robert Laing of the Industrial Arts Department and his students built the sets which were designed by Henry Pelletier of the Art Department. Miss Maureen McKay and Mrs. Margaret Mahoney of the Home Economics Department have helped with costumes and staging while Paul Farrell, English Dept. Chairman, has been directing a publicity campaign. David Watson, Band Director, has been working with the band and Henry Dillon, head custodian, and his staff have helped with props and staging.

Realtors President Warns

Trying To Sell Your Own Home Risky Business

Selling your own home can be pretty risky business, warns Frank R. Damigella, President Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors.

He lists some of the problems you can run into:

You might get lucky and save a buck or two.

A lot of folks have tried to sell their own homes and succeeded. A lot more have just tried.

Most people realize that selling your own home can be a costly, time-consuming, even risky affair. And unless you're just naturally lucky, you need the help of a professional Realtor. He can save you a lot of time and headaches. For a lot of good reasons.

If you're thinking about selling your own home, maybe you should consider some of them.

What's your price?

The first thing a Realtor can do for you is recommend a fair and reasonable asking price.

Do it yourself and you will probably ask too much or too little. Either way, you lose.

And don't be fooled by the belief you know pretty well what your home is worth. Market demand, seasonality of sales, location and many other variables often alter your home's value.

A skilled Realtor knows all about these things. Most important, he knows people.

Don't talk to strangers.

If you love talking to strange people at strange hours, by all means sell your home yourself. That "For Sale by Owner" sign in your front yard means you're fair game for everyone—even those passers-by who "just kinda wanted to see what the place looked like."

That sign may not get all the prospects you want, either. You may have to advertise. And that means phone calls at all hours.

A Realtor can solve these problems. First of all, he will screen the prospects. He'll know their needs, desires and financial situation. And he'll know who is seriously looking for a new home and who is just looking.

Best of all, he'll show your house only when its convenient for you.

That beautiful art.

Okay, tiger. You're selling your own home. You know the needs and desires of your prospective buyers. And you know what to say, how to present your home to convince them. Right?

Wrong.

Realtors are trained in the art of salesmanship. (And believe us, it is an art.) His study of sales techniques has shown him how to get the indecisive buyer to make up his mind; how to close the sale. In fact, he's gone to school to find out.

After all, selling is what it's all about.

Formal negotiations.

What happens when a prospective buyer makes you an offer—one that's well below your asking price?

You're going to argue. And that's the worst thing you could do.

As a principal, you'll discover it's pretty hard to bargain with a buyer—to negotiate about such things as price, terms and possessions. Misunderstandings may crop up. And those small disagreements can spoil a sale.

When a Realtor helps sell your home, he takes on the difficult task of negotiation. He's sort of a go-between and advisor. And he's objective. He'll tell you when the buyer is right. And he'll tell you when to stick to your guns.

He's usually a heck of a nice guy, too. He knows how to smooth over, or completely avoid, those sale-killing misunderstandings.

How to shop for money.

Many prospective buyers don't know much about financing—how or where to get a mortgage.

Sell your home yourself, and there's not much you can do to help him.

A Realtor knows just about all there is to know about financing. He works very closely with all kinds of financial institutions. He knows their methods and requirements.

Very simply, he can help your buyer find the money he needs to buy your house.

Red tape.

Selling a house involves many details. Paperwork, title searches, finance arrangements. There are a hundred little things to be done.

Unless you have a mind like a computer, you'll need a Realtor to get everything done and keep it straight. He and your attorney will guide you through the tangle of details as painlessly and safely as possible.

Be it ever so humble.

Crowded closets may make a home look lived in, but it doesn't do much for a prospective buyer. Neither does a dripping faucet, unkempt lawn or loose doorknob.

There are dozens of little things you can do to make your house more saleable. A Realtor can show them to you. (Some of them would never have occurred to you.)

Showmanship is all it's cracked up to be.

In conclusion.

If you want professional results, call the Professional In Real Estate - Call a Realtor.

Mr. Damigella Says! -

Come In And Have A Cup Of Coffee.

We Love PEOPLE AND WE LOVE REAL ESTATE

This was the way the Damigella Realtors started in 1967. Some 4 years before Frank R. Damigella and his wife Marion worked with various realtors in the area.

Their present office located at 158 Bridge St., was their first home, that is a location owned by them. From the first it blossomed into one of the busiest offices in the South Shore. Covering, Residential Sales, Commercial Industrial Real Estate, M.L. Damigella Insurance and Tax Associates, an income tax consulting firm.

Mr. Damigella is now serving as the president of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors, and was chosen by his fellow realtors as the Realtor of the Year for 1972-1973. He is a member of the National Associations of Realtors & Massachusetts Association of Realtors, of which he is a director. He was the Multiple Listing Service chairman last year for the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors and under his direction the new listing system [Book Form] that is used by all area realtors was introduced. Mr. Damigella has also held the offices of treasurer and secretary of the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors. He has taken GRI and appraisal courses offered by the Massachusetts Association. He has been instrumental in the area of reciprocal agreements between the Quincy & South Shore Board of Realtors and the Plymouth and Brockton Boards of Realtors, keeping the 3 boards running smoothly together. He resides at 55 Jaffrey St., Weymouth, Mass., with his wife Marion, and their four children, Gayle, Robert, Antoinette and Tracey.

With all of this background come and spend 15 minutes with us, and we will save you 15 hours of needless house hunting. We have over 500 listings which you may look at right in our office. 'The Old Timer' To Be Presented At Salem Lutheran

Harold Hilstrom, a retired Army colonel, will play the title role in the tableau "The Old Timer" to be presented by the LYFE group of Salem and Trinity Lutheran Church June 1 at 8 p.m. at Salem Lutheran Church.

The tableau was written about 25 years ago by B. Bernard Turnquist of Quincy and was performed at that time at the Salem Lutheran Church.

LYFE stands for Lutheran Youth For Each Other.

Brett Eliminates Self As Candidate

Rep. Joseph E. Brett has eliminated himself as a mayoralty candidate this year.

Brett ran two years ago against present incumbent Walter J. Hannon for the seat vacated by James R. McIntyre.

The Democratic legislator cited "pressure of time and effort" given to his state representative duties as the main reason for not running for mayor.

He added as another reason, fact "my wife doesn't want me to."

In a prepared statement he declared:

"As the season for political campaigning is about to get underway for the city elections next fall, I feel it is about time for me to clear the air by formally announcing I do not intend at this time to be a candidate for the office of mayor or any other municipal office this year.

"Although I have been subjected to considerable urging to run again for the office of mayor, I have decided against doing so this year.

"My reasons for not planning to be a candidate this year are principally due to the pressures of time and effort I already have to put into my duties as state representative, along with a part-time job as secretary of the Quincy Elks Lodge and other civic and personal obligations.

"I would like at this time to express my deep appreciation to the many citizens who have supported me in my political campaigns in the past and to those who have been urging me to again seek the office of mayor. I hope to continue serving the citizens of Quincy to the best of my abilities in the future as I have in the past.

"As a postscript, I might add that another reason for my not planning to run for mayor this year is that my wife doesn't want me to."

Thomas P. Hughes Ward 4 Candidate

Thomas P. Hughes, 34, of 30 Cross St., West Quincy, Director of the Drug Abuse Prevention and Education Unit of the Norfolk County District Attorney's Office, Wednesday announced his candidacy for the Ward 4 city council seat.

Hughes is the fifth candidate to toss his hat into this year's municipal political ring, and the first in Ward 4.

Other candidates: John Lydon, Warren Powers and Michael Peatridge for the Ward 5 seat and Dennis Harrington, Ward 6.

In his announcement, Hughes reiterated his concern over the general economic and tax situation within the City and the need for close budgetary control by the City Council.

Speaking directly of Ward 4, Hughes cited what he called the apparent caretaker attitude the City has taken toward the ward stating that "through effective leadership and communication, the City of Quincy must be made to realize that Ward 4 deserves the same consideration and quality of service as the rest of the City."

"The residents of Ward 4," he continued, "must have as their representative, one who can communicate both with the residents of Ward 4 and the officials at City Hall."

Hughes, a member of the City of Quincy Youth Commission and the Quincy District Court Drug Evaluation Board, is a lifelong resident of West Quincy and a graduate of Quincy Schools and Boston State College.

An Army veteran, Hughes is the son of the late Quincy Police Chief Joseph F. Hughes and grandson of the late Ward 4 City Councillor William P. Hughes.

'Death Row' Or 'Berlin Wall'?

Council Urges Better Southern Artery Median Plan

By TOM HENSHAW

The City Council trod the controversial median strip between safety and prosperity Monday night – and came out in favor of both.

The Council voted to request State Public – Works Commissioner Bruce Campbell to halt construction of the proposed median strip on Southern Artery until a better plan can be worked out.

The planned 33-inch high concrete divider, running from McGrath Highway to River St., has drawn the opposition of Southern Artery businessmen who fear it would mean a critical loss of business.

The strip is proposed to cut the number of accidents – 136 in the past two years including some fatal ones – on the highway that City Planner Geoffrey A. Davidson calls "Quincy's death row".

The median would cost about $550,000, paid for 50 per cent by the state and 50 per cent by the federal government.

Until the businessmen rose in their wrath last week and communicated their fears to the City Council, construction of the median was tentatively scheduled to begin next fall.

"It's a Berlin Wall. It would absolutely put me out of business," said David Reinstein, owner of Howdy Beefburger, acting as spokesman for the Veterans will also speak at Quincy Schools this week.

The parade will assemble at 9:30 a.m. at School St. and Charles A. Ross Parkingway.

Four More Candidates

Smyth, Anderson Take Out Nomination Papers

Four more candidates, including two whose names are familiar around the corridors of City Hall, have taken out papers for the City Council in the fall elections.

J. Vincent Smyth is the first incumbent to file for re-election. He represents Ward 6.

Carl W. Johnson of 11 River St., who was the dean of the City Council when he retired in 1963 after some 20 years, has filed for an at-large post.

Other newcomers to the Council election lists are Richard P. Ward of 120 Putnam St., in Ward 1 and Ronald T. Johnson of 34 Elm Ave., in Ward 5.

It brings to 11 the total number of candidates with nomination papers. All are council contenders.

Papers, with at least 50 signatures, are due back Aug. 14. Preliminary election is Sept. 18 and the final is Nov. 6.

Police 'Easing' Into No Parking Enforcement

Quincy police plan to "ease into" enforcement of the new parking ban on the west side of Hancock Street, according to Capt. Roy Cavicchi of the Traffic Bureau.

The 30-day trial ban on any parking from Granite St. to Kincaide's and on all but five parking from Kincaide's to School St. went into effect Monday.

"We want to educate the public first before we start strict enforcement," said Capt. Cavicchi. "Strict enforcement will come shortly."

Eventually, 30-minute metered parking will be placed in effect on the east side of Hancock Street for the benefit of motorists who plan a quick shopping trip in and out of the city.

The new parking regulations have the approval of the board of directors of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association.

Mayor Walter J. Hannon told a recent meeting of the association that once parked cars have been removed efforts will be made to beautify the downtown area, including flower pots hung from utility poles.

S.W. School Planning Group To Meet With Officials

The Southwest Quincy Community School Planning Group has scheduled an informal meeting May 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the Hancock School to discuss community school programs.

Invited to the meeting are members of the School Committee and the City Council and School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon.

The new elementary school on Water Street, tentatively named the Lincoln-Hancock School, is the first community school in Quincy. Part of it is expected to be opened in September.

The planning group will show a film, "To Touch a Child" and will answer questions concerning its present and future planning program.

Old Squantum Air Base 'Disaster' Area June 10

If you see a score of apparent accident victims being taken out of the old Squantum Air Base on Sunday afternoon, June 10, pay attention but don't panic.

It'll be the Quincy Public Safety Departments holding a simulated disaster exercise under the supervision of CD Director Edward Roberts.

About 20 simulated casualties from an aircraft accident will be treated on the scene and transported to Quincy, Milton and South Shore Hospitals.

New Southern Artery Median Plan Urged

businessmen's ad hoc committee.

The businessmen met with the City Council, sitting as a Public Safety Committee of the whole, last week amid indications that some of the councillors at least had never heard of the median.

"It came out at the meeting," said Council President Arthur H. Tobin, "that there was a proposed median strip that was going to be built in the middle of Southern Artery.

"The businessmen gave us some pretty good arguments against it.

"For instance, Quincy Oil Company said that the way the wall would be set up its trucks headed for the Expressway would have to turn right toward the police station, then go through Quincy Square.

"That would mean rerouting about 600 trucks through Quincy Square.

"Another businessman told us he had been on the Artery for 19 years, watching his taxes go up, up, up, and now the median would put him out of business."

Tobin said about 35 businessmen showed up for the meeting with the City Council. All were opposed, he said.

"We asked Davidson why the City Council was not informed of the median and he said since the city was not asked to appropriate any money he did not see any need to disturb the councillors.

"Well, I was disturbed to find out about it just as it was to go to bid in June."

The Council resolution, sponsored by Tobin and Councillor Albert R. Barilaro, asked Campbell to halt the median until city officials, the planning commission and businessmen could work out alternative plans.

"Southern Artery is a high tax-producing area," said Tobin. "If business is driven away from there it will just mean a bigger tax burden on the home owners of Quincy."

Both sides in the controversy, Planner Davidson and the businessmen, are in favor of a safer highway: And both are in favor of prosperity along the way.

"We're all in favor of doing something to make the Artery safer," said Reinstein. "More traffic lights or maybe a modified median strip."

Louis J. Tanguso, owner of the property that houses Santoro's Sub Shop, favors more traffic lights.

"Or maybe they could put some speed limit signs on the Artery," he said. "Do you know there's not one to be seen there?.

"A median strip is not the answer."

"I think the businessmen have a legitimate concern," says Davidson. "But if people are getting killed, I think we have to do something about it."

Incumbent city officials believe in keeping everyone guessing. So far, the only incumbent to take out nomination papers is Ward 6 Councillor Vincent Smyth.

REPRESENTATIVE-COUNCILLOR Clifford Marshall has let it be known that he's definitely a candidate for Norfolk County Sheriff next year. Besides his regular duties in Quincy and at the State House, Marshall has been working over-time criss-crossing the county. The last couple of weeks, he has made stops at the Democratic Town Committees in Randolph, Weymouth and Milton.

Marshall is a candidate for re-election as Ward Two Councillor this year, but he'll have to vacate his representative seat in 1974 when he makes his bid for Sheriff.

PAUL ANDERSON, campaign manager for Joseph LaRaia in his campaigns for Councillor-at-large and county treasurer, recently married Kim Bertoni. They met during LaRaia's 1971 council campaign.

AND ANOTHER COUPLE who met in politics is Northampton Mayor Sean Dunphy and Quincy's Ann Rosenthal. They met while they were active in College Young Democrats. While a student at B.U. Law, Dunphy was elected state chairman, and Ann was vice chairman.

The latest rumor out of Northampton is that Dunphy may go the route of his prececessor, Calvin Coolidge. Dunphy has been mentioned recently as a strong candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

ANOTHER DEMOCRAT being mentioned for Lieutenant Governor is -- guess who -- Quincy's Senator Arthur Tobin.

HAROLD [BOOTS] CHAPMAN of Wollaston, former scout and player for the Boston Braves baseball farm team, stopped by Richard Koch's office [Park Department] last week to see what was new with Little League baseball in the city. Chapman helped organize the original Quincy Little League in 1951 and at age 81 is still active and interested in sports.

Koch points out that it was Chapman who suggested the original plans for Adams Field, which were the dimensions of the old Braves Field. While visiting the Park Department, Chapman had a chance to say hello to another former Braves player, Ray Cattaneo of West Quincy.

THE MERRY-SHORE SENIOR Citizen's Club's table [Merrymount and Adams Shore] at last week's Senior Citizen's May Festival appropriately enough was decorated like a Maypole. And the attendants around the table were costumed as Indians, reminiscent of Thomas Morton's infamous Maypole of 1627. As a matter of fact, that section of the city got its name because of the merry times that were had on the hill or mount. The Puritans tried to change the name to Mount Dagon, but the name Merrymount has stuck since 1627.

Featured on the Merry-Shore club's table was a hand decorated cake by Mary Grant which depicted the original Merrymount Maypole.

SUPER SALESMEN for the Montclair School PTA May Festival included Diane Pickwick [137 tickets], Kathy Lamberti [100 tickets] and Steven Lamberti [88 tickets].

MICHAEL CORNWELL of North Quincy received special recognition at Saturday's Cerebral Palsy Building Fund cocktail party. He sold 355 books of raffle tickets this year and 610 last year, for an estimated total of $1,600.

WILLIAM O'CONNELL, first vice president of the Quincy Historical Society, reports the newest member of the society recruited: 12 members of the original Quincy Granite Manufacturer's Association. - More Than Smiles Needed
- The Citizen's Junket
- Warning Signals Of Dishonesty

WASHINGTON — Thirty-seven years ago, Richard Nixon was known to his Duke Law School classmates as "Gloomy Gus." They gave him the nickname because of his brooding nature and his tendency to pull into his tortoise shell during times of stress.

During Nixon's second year at Duke, for example, Nixon began to slip in his studies. Gloomy Gus got gloomier. In desperation, he and two roommates broke into the dean's office to find out their academic standing.

Today, President Nixon is worried about far more serious break-ins. As he agonizes over the Watergate scandal, the President has turned to his most trusted managers at the Office of Management and Budget. OMB staffers have been asked to suggest what the President can do to take the people's mind off Watergate.

One suggestion the President has taken to heart is to keep smiling. Old Gloomy Gus is rarely seen in public these days without a grin on his face. Whether he's meeting Willy Brandt or pinning a medal on a boy scout, the President has tried to appear buoyant and fresh.

But smiles alone won't make the Watergate go away. Nixon is counting heavily on the forthcoming visit by Russia's Leonid Brezhnev to divert public attention from the Watergate scandal. Nixon is also considering turning his White House reception for POWs into a television spectacular. This again would remind the public of what Nixon regards as his greatest achievement: bringing the boys home.

Meanwhile, we have talked to the President's old roommates who remember Nixon as a loner but never a quitter in his college days. Often, he would get up early and study before his first class. Seldom would he miss a class. In the afternoon, he worked in the library to pay expenses. After dinner, he would hit the books again, often studying late into the night.

Although his law grades dropped his second year at Duke, Nixon didn't lose his scholarship. During his last year, he worked his way back up and graduated third in his class. In the same way today he is working his way out of the Watergate slump.

The Citizen's Junket: We often report on the junkets taken by congressmen and bureaucrats, who charge their vacations to the taxpayers. Thousands of private citizens also galavant around the globe largely at the taxpayers' expense. Here's how it works:

Professional, business and trade organizations set up conventions in vacation spots around the world. Just enough "business" is arranged to make the trips appear legitimate. Most of the cost, therefore, is tax deductible.

Some travel agencies specialize in arranging vacations in the guise of business trips. Typical is a St. Louis firm called "Intrav." This agency recently arranged a Scandanavian adventure for a group of doctors.

For the record, the medicine men went to the land of the Vikings to attend a series of professional seminars. In Stockholm, they were supposed to learn about "sexual freedom in Sweden." In Copenhagen, they were supposed to watch a film called "The Next Witness."

This made the trip tax deductible, which means the taxpayers who stayed home had to help pay for it indirectly. The seminars were carefully arranged, however, so they wouldn't interfere with sightseeing. A generous luggage allowance was provided for golf clubs and the travel agency also promised tennis, fishing and sailing.

A spokesman described the tax-deductible excursion as an "incentive trip," combining business and pleasure. But he candidly admitted to us that the emphasis was on pleasure.

Internal Dishonesty: The Loss Prevention Institute, an industrial security outfit, prides itself for being able to root out employes who might rob companies. To aid business executives in spotting potential thieves, the institute publishes a booklet called "Early Warning Signals of Internal Dishonesty."

The guide instructs businessmen to suspect employes who engage in "doubletalk" or who have a fear of security personnel. A worker should also be watched, says the institute, if he "never takes time off for vacation." Companies are told to look out for workers, too, who arrive early and leave late.

An employe may be spied upon, in other words, simply because he's conscientious.

Burke Accepting Academy Applications

Congressman James A. Burke announces he is accepting applications from young persons who are interested in attending the Naval, Military, Merchant Marine or Air Force Academy.

The congressman's exam for the academies will be held some time between Sept. 20 and Oct. 3.

All applicants are urged to contact Congressman Burke no later than June 15, by writing his Washington Office: U.S. House of Representatives, Room 241, Cannon Building, Washington, D.C. 20515.

● QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What Meetings Open To The Public ?

A caller to the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone said that he had recently moved to Massachusetts and was interested in attending the meetings of the Planning Board and Conservation Commission in his town.

He wanted to know if meetings of town boards are open to the public. The Voter Information Phone informed him that all meetings must be open to the public and encouraged him to go to as many as possible.

The Voter Information Phone reported that the meetings of all official boards, commissions and authorities must be open to the public unless they themselves vote to go into executive session. They may go into closed session only to discuss "those matters which if made public might adversely affect public security, financial interest of the community or the reputation of any person..."

Open meetings are also required for state boards, commissions and authorities such as the Port Authority, Alcoholic Beverages Commission, Board of Education, etc. and the same rules for going into a closed session on the local level apply on the state and county levels. The open meeting laws do not apply to legislative committees of the General Court or to the Judicial Branch.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Defends Reception For Unpaid Board Members

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Think positive by rolling up your sleeves and pitching in to reduce the tax rate by an active participation in City Government and the services necessary to run it.

Those that criticize usually do without a complete understanding of the situation with which they are finding fault. Negative critics of the volunteer's reception seek to undermine and discourage those dedicated servants of our City which has been one of the reasons we have such a fine City to live in.

The Mayor, City Council, unpaid boards, Civil Defense volunteers, city employees and many other unselfish citizens, have set an example of giving of their time and talents above and beyond the basic requirements of their position.

One only has to be closely associated with them and be active in the city to understand how far this dedication goes in public service to make this a better community to live in. A chance to say thank you and an opportunity for them to get to know each other better so as to work as an efficient team should not be ridiculed especially when done so economically.

I have devoted 15 active years to Civil Defense and Vocational-Technical Occupational Education as Committee Chairman and as a president and director in both organizations. I have nothing but the highest regard for all those who have been active in these organizations. The Vocational-Technical High School Culinary Arts Department has done a superb job on many occasions for me. Food expended in doing practical work is the same thing as text books and papers for academic departments. State regulations require that their teaching methods be practical and on the job, not just wasteful practice work.

I invite any critics of our volunteer organization to join us and help us to improve our volunteer services where and when needed. We usually work under the most adverse conditions and a man's character is tested and sharpened to the nth degree.

Edward H. Roberts, Director
Quincy Civil Defense.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

All contracts signed in the home or in a location other than the seller's place of business may be cancelled within three days according to a Massachusetts statute enacted in 1972.

Recently the Consumer Protection Division obtained the first conviction under this law against a contractor who failed to include a three-day notice for cancellation clause in a home improvement contract.

The Consumer Protection Division of my office reminds consumers what they may do if they have signed an agreement for goods and services costing more than $25.

According to the law, consumers have until midnight of the third business day after signing a contract to cancel an agreement. The notice of cancellation should be in writing – either letter or telegram. The Consumer Protection Division suggests that use of registered mail provides consumers with proof that a seller has received the cancellation notice.

In the event of cancellation a seller must refund all deposits and any copies of the agreement indicating that it has been cancelled. If a buyer has received any goods under the terms of the contract, he must return them to the seller.

Violation of this statute provides for a fine of up to $500 or imprisonment of up to six months or both.

The Consumer Protection Division urges Massachusetts consumers to read contracts carefully before signing them and to make sure that the three-day cancellation clause is included.

Poet's Corner

Memorial Day

Marching proudly through the streets,
Every soldier and citizen alike
Merge together in one common cause;
Over the memorial honor of the departed war-heroes,
Resting in God's Acre, where flying flags
Indicate their particular monumental plots.

All stand in position, as officials dedicate their military salute; while Lingering memories touch the throng's heart.

Decoration Day makes
All of us realize the Value of Peace,
Youth, men-power collectively,
And the world we live in can be saved from annihilation if "Peace Pre-dominates."

'The Toll Of Indecision'

A disease is stalking our land and taking its toll in masses ... I refer to the disease of decidophobia. It means "the fear of making decisions". It lays low business men ... marriages ... persons ... perhaps it is ruining a Washington administration.

Here's the business man I know who has been losing money for the past three years ... he just can't decide to "sell out" the family business which he inherited from his father. Decidophobia.

Here's the marriage which has for a long time ceased to benefit either partner ... in fact is destroying each of them. She suffers from colitis and headaches ... he's nervous and is drinking to excess. The children are each misbehaving in various ways. Neither the husband nor the wife can bring themselves to the decision to terminate the relationship. Decidophobia.

There are various strategies for avoiding decisions. One can fall back on his ACCEPTED CODES OF CONDUCT ... some outside authority ... "it would hurt my parents" ... papal pronouncements ... Bible by literal interpretation.

Another evasion of decision is just to REFUSE TO MAKE ANY COMMITMENT ... this is the strategy of many politicians ... talk but not say anything which commits oneself. Husbands and wives play this game at home ... until they can no longer stand the results of their decidophobia.

One of the strategies used by many people is becoming ABSORBED WITH TRIVIA ... the dinky little mechanics of living ... thus avoiding the major decisions. I know a couple who quarrel daily about their clutter in the home ... which is so filled with valuable antiques that they are just able to squeeze through their rooms. Neither will decide to sell a single piece. They dust them ... repair them ... love them ... but their relationship is being destroyed by their decidophobia to sell.

The result as you can see of decidophobia can be the destruction of what is most precious to us. If ... for example ... two people love each other ... and their relationship has top priority, then it seems to me that everything else has to rate below that top priority. But many a divorced woman is living alone because she couldn't decide between giving herself to her HUSBAND ... his interests ... his time ... his goals which he wanted to share with her ... and her FATHER who wouldn't let go of her and whom she feared to put second in her life. Decidophobia cost her her husband.

The business man finally lost his business ... and in his early sixties is having a hard time to get started in anything else.

The way to avoid decidophobia is with REASON ... getting the facts together ... thinking ... then deciding to take action. Anyone can do it ... with a little practice. "What do you think?" is good training for parents to give children. If you didn't get it as a child, start now with ... "What do I think?" You can avoid decidophobia.

Stuffed Zucchini, Anyone ?

Quincy Woman's Club Juniors Publish Book Of Tasty Recipes

Have you ever yearned for stuffed zucchini like Regina Fruzetti bakes them or New England clam fritters the way Carol Wilder fries them?

You can make them in our own kitchen now, thanks to the Quincy Woman's Club Juniors.

Regina's stuffed zucchini and Carol's clam fritters are among the recipes contained in a slim new cookbook published by the Juniors.

The recipes were submitted by club members and collected by Mrs. Judy Curtis, who put them into book form.

The idea was conceived by Mrs. Linda Gordon.

The cookbooks are available for $2 each from the Quincy Woman's Club Juniors, 148 Presidents Lane, Quincy.

If you can't wait, here's the way Regina Fruzetti makes her stuffed zucchini:

STUFFED ZUCCHINI

3 med. size zucchini
3 tbsp. olive oil
1 lb. hamburger
1 small onion, chopped
1 tbsp. parsley
1/2 cup canned tomatoes
1/2 cup bread crumbs
salt & pepper

Wash, do not peel zucchini, cut into halves, scoop out and mash. Saute pulp, hamburger, onion in the oil until meat is brown. Add parsley and tomatoes and cook until liquid is absorbed, stirring occasionally. Add crumbs, salt and pepper. Put zucchini shells in shallow greased baking dish and stuff with filling. Sprinkle 2 tablespoons olive oil over each shell and bake in 350 oven until tender. Serve hot. Serves 6.

And Carol Wilder turns out her New England clam fritters like this:

NEW ENGLAND CLAM FRITTERS

1 pint clams
2 cups sifted flour
1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 egg, beaten
1 cup milk

Remove soft parts from clams, mince hard sections and combine. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Combine egg and clams and add to flour enough milk to make a thick batter. Drop by teaspoon into hot deep fat [360 degrees] or saute until brown. Serves 6.

How about some of Mrs. Jack Buonopane's graham cracker brownies:

GRAHAM CRACKER BROWNIES

25 single graham crackers
1 pkg. chocolate chips
1 can condensed milk
1/2 cup chopped nuts
1/2 tsp. vanilla

Crush graham crackers very fine with rolling pin and put into a large mixing bowl. Add all the rest of ingredients and mix thoroughly. In an 8 x 8 inch greased and floured brownie pan pour mixture and bake in 375 oven for 30 minutes. Wait until cool to cut. Makes about 2 dozen brownies.

Or some of Edith Zanolli's frankfort relish:

FRANKFORT RELISH

2 qts. green tomatoes [after they are ground]
2 qts. ripe tomatoes [after they are ground]
6 med. sized onions [ground]
1 small bunch celery
3 small red hot peppers
3 green sweet peppers

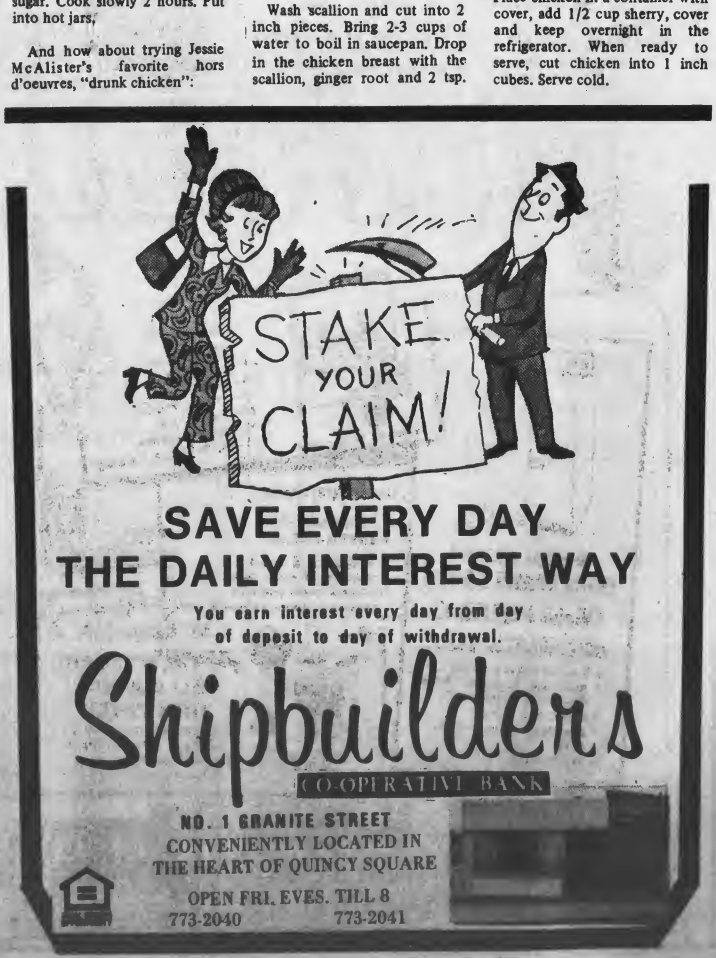
Grind all together, sprinkle 1/2 cup salt over relish, let stand overnight. Drain in the morning and add 1 pint vinegar and 2 lbs sugar. Cook slowly 2 hours. Put into hot jars.

And how about trying Jessie McAlister's favorite hors d'oeuvres, "drunk chicken":

DRUNK CHICKEN

1 whole uncooked chicken breast
1 slice fresh ginger root
1 scallion
1 tbsp. salt
1/ cup dry sherry

Wash scallion and cut into 2 inch pieces. Bring 2-3 cups of water to boil in saucepan. Drop in the chicken breast with the scallion, ginger root and 2 tsp. salt. Bring again to a boil. Continue boiling 10 minutes. Turn off flame but let the chicken remain soaking in the water for 10 more minutes. Remove chicken to plate and discard skin and bones while still warm. Sprinkle with 1 tsp. salt. Place chicken in a container with cover, add 1/2 cup sherry, cover and keep overnight in the refrigerator. When ready to serve, cut chicken into 1 inch cubes. Serve cold.



RECIPES READY – The Quincy Woman's Club Juniors Cookbook is displayed by Mrs. Linda Gordon, education chairman; Mrs. Lynn Hornstra, president; and Mrs. Judy Curtis, chairman in charge of collecting the recipes.

'Not Shoved Aside'

Council Confirms D'Olimpio After Meeting With Pagnano

The City Council Monday night confirmed the appointment of Carmine D'Olimpio to the Housing Authority – but only after the men he replaced personally assured Councillors that no one twisted his arm to get him to quit.

The confirmation came on a motion by Councillor Joseph LaRaia that one vote be cast by the council confirming the appointment.

D'Olimpio's appointment was rejected by the Council a month ago on grounds of conflict of interest but Council President Arthur H. Tobin said the Council did not regard Monday's vote as a reconsideration but as a brand new nomination by the Mayor.

D'Olimpio is president of the Builders' Trade Union.

Mayor Walter Hannon resubmitted D'Olimpio's name to the Council with the notation that he also had in hand the resignation of 83-year-old Constanzo Pagnano, the member of the Housing Authority whom D'Olimpio was slated to replace.

Tobin then led a delegation of members of the City Council and the Housing Authority to Pagnano's home to, said Tobin, "make sure that he was not being shoved aside."

"Mr. Pagnano told us he had a nice talk with the Mayor and he realized that the Mayor had a right to pick the man he wanted to appoint to the authority," said Tobin. "He said he was willing to resign."

Tobin said Pagnano praised D'Olimpio as "a fine man with a fine family. I have known him since he was a youngster."

Armed with his predecessor's imprimateur, D'Olimpio huddled privately with the City Council and, said Tobin, "we all shook hands and pledged to work together in the best interests of the city."

The suggestion of conflict of interest that blocked the D'Olimpio appointment the first time around apparently was cleared up when the Mayor included with the nomination background material on the nominee's expertise in the housing field.

"The first time we did not get that," said Tobin.

But Pagnano, who had served 17 years, isn't really out in the cold after all.

Plans are to make him a lifelong honorary member of the Housing Authority. The Pagnano Towers in Quincy Point is named in his honor.

Members of the joint council-authority expeditionary force that trekked to Pagnano's house for his approval included:

Councillors Tobin, Clifford Marshall, William Delahunt and Theophilus McLelland; Chairman Francis X. McCauley, executive director Clement O'Brien, Hugo Saluti and the Rev. Peter Corea of the Housing Authority; and John Cattaneo, assistant to O'Brien.

'Farewell Evening' For Hancock, Lincoln Schools

The public is invited to attend a "farewell evening" to mark the closing of the Hancock and Lincoln schools to students and the opening of the new community school from 7:30 to 10 p.m. tonight [Thursday] at the Lincoln School, 100 Brooks Ave. and at the Hancock School, 12 Gordon St.

All former alumni of the two schools along with former teachers and administrators are invited to attend the farewell evening events at either or both schools.

Display tables, marking the history of each school, will be set up for viewing by guests who will also have an opportunity to tour classrooms within each school, according to Morrie Hibbard, principal of the Lincoln and Hancock Schools.

Grade six students at each school will serve as hosts and hostesses during the farewell evening activities.

The new community school, which will service students from both the Lincoln and Hancock Schools, is scheduled to open next September.

The new school will feature some 103,000 square feet of open space over its three stories. The site of the new school encompasses some 7.5 acres adjacent to and including the site of the old Hancock School which was Quincy's first brick schoolhouse.

When the Hancock School was first opened in 1886 it cost the city of Quincy some $35,000 to build. It's replacement will cost over $5 million. Among the up-to-date features it offered to the children of that era were:

* Steam heating by indirect radiation.

* Large rooms, lighted only from the South, with a capacity of fifty seats facing the West so that every scholar could get the light over his left shoulder.

* Large playrooms in the basement, one for boys and one for girls.

Quincy Bay Race Week Beauty Pageant July 21

The annual Miss Quincy Bay Race Week beauty pageant will be held July 21.

Contestants will compete for more than $1,000 in prizes and the honor of reigning over this year's Quincy Bay Race Week in August.

Last year's winner was Regina Smith, 18, of Milton.

Registration forms will be available next week at member stores and businesses of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, and at local yacht clubs.

We know a lady who wouldn't think of throwing leftovers away. If there are not enough to put them into a container, she neatly wraps them in foil and stores them in her refrigerator. Then, when the time comes to review the refrigerator's contents, out go the containers and the foil-wrapped food. They are no longer edible, you see, and our friend can throw them away with a clear conscience.

Do you have a pet economy? You probably do, and we'd guess it's just as frivolous. There is a theory that each of us must do something —like saving string or reading the morning paper that others leave on the bus—to satisfy ourselves that we are "thrifty, money-wise" persons.

If you are like other Americans, your home finances are run pretty much on a catch-as-catch-can basis. Specialists in the field of home management get desperate about this picture of the average American household. "No business could succeed," says one, "if it were operated in the planless, unbudgeted way that American families handle their personal finances."

When you consider that a man making, say, an average $10,000 actually handles a half-million dollars over his working lifetime, you are amazed that so little of it has stuck to his fingers by the time he reaches retirement. It seems almost as difficult for the $15,000-a-year man or the $20,000-a-year man who have up to a million dollars going in, and out, of their pockets during their working lives.

It's fantastic how we all seem to come out barely even after a lifetime escapade with money.

The only planning most people do is to figure out whether a new car or vacuum cleaner will boost the monthly level of installment payments beyond their reach. This has become our way of "budgeting"—to the extent that many families don't care about the price of a new TV set or household appliance. They simply want to know what it will cost per week or month.

Doing business this way is expensive. One newspaper columnist reports on a lumber yard that opened on a cash-and-carry basis, with no end-of-the month billings and no delivery of materials. The owners are giving other dealers a rough time, he notes, since they are selling at about 30% below other prices—and doing a huge business.

"I think if the thrifty ever get well organized, we might revolutionize merchandising," he comments.

Police Step Up Wilson Ave. Patrols

Quincy police are making more frequent patrols on Wilson Avenue, Wollaston, and better street lighting is being sought in an effort to combat a rising crime problem in the area.

Residents of the area lodged their complaint through State Rep. Joseph E. Brett.

The people who live there, Brett wrote to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, "are concerned over an increasing number of breaks and attempted breaks and other frightening episodes in the area.

"One of the points of their concern is the inadequate street lighting in the neighborhood which gives encouragement to hoodlums and other criminally inclined persons".

Mayor Hannon's office said it has requested Mass Electric for a lighting survey of the area but, because of a backlog of similar requests, it may take four to six weeks to get around to it.

Meanwhile, police protection has been stepped up.

Seniors Register May 29 For MBTA Reduced Fare Cards

An MBTA team will be at Woodward School for Girls from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 29 to register senior citizens who are eligible for a reduced fare identification card.

The card costs 50 cents and is good for life.

Prospective registrants should bring with them some proof of age, such as a driver's license or a birth certificate, and some proof of residency in the MBTA district, such as a driver's license or a library card.

MBTA officials pointed out that those senior citizens who already have cards need not register again since what appears to be an expiration date on the card is used merely for internal control purposes.

The permanent registration office in the MBTA's Government Center Station in Boston will continue to be open daily from 9 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Dr. Lester Brackley Heads M.C. O. Fund Drive

Dr. Lester Brackley of Quincy will head the Class of 1968 effort to raise funds for Massachusetts College of Optometry [M.C.O.] in Boston.

On The Screen

By Vincent Puleo

Film Fads Come And Go

Film Fads - different eras, different taste. But each with the common denominator of action and super heroics which add up to box office coin... During the past 13 years there have been four separate klondike fads-of-the-moment... The late 50's and early 60's saw the rise in preeminence of the JOSEPH E. LEVINE produced, STEVES REEVES starring musclemen epics which spawned scores of historical imitations. With the backdrops of ancient Greece and Rome actors with 50 inch chest ruled the screens, captured the heart and fancy of the buff and also the dollar...

All good things must come to an end, and the viewer tired of men in loin cloth saving beautiful blond heroines from the clutches of beedy-eyed, bearded tyrants... The mid to late 60's was a combination of two-Fad eras-in-one... Blasting its way from the hills of sunny Italy came the gore, violence and anti-heroism of the CLINT EASTWOOD "spaghetti" westerns. The Man with No Name, Cold blooded. Deadly. Unscrupulous, with money as his primary motivation for doing away with the screen heavy, the CLINT EASTWOOD flicks, and its imitators, had the public queuing to the box office for more. And more...

Approximately two years before the EASTWOOD rush, two men in a London office ignited the James Bond Boom... ALBERT BROCCOLI and partner HARRY SALTZMAN sprung actor SEAN CONNERY loose and 007 could do no wrong. "DR. NO", "FROM RUSSIA WITH LOVE", and the box office winner "GOLDFINGER" paved the way for instant viewer reaction and identification... Men identified with the suave brashness, cool calculating mind, quick fisted, in and out of bed super heroics of the greatest super agent the screen has yet seen. Women flocked to theatres to see the handsomely physiqued CONNERY do away with sundry villains and yet another day save the world from the menacing clutches of Spectre...

Film Fads. They come. They go... It is as if by some preordained magic that just when one Fad has seen its better days, another sprouts up to take its place... So it is with the current screen epidemic, KUNG FU... By way of sword and karate chop, the copylined "eastern western" is an international bonanza. World wide the KUNG FU tide is flowing unabated... One such KUNG FU star WANG YU is so big a celebrity in the West Indies, that they named a recent outbreak of the Asian flu after him, WANG YU flu...

The big topic of conversation Stateside is the KUNG FU bonanza "FIVE FINGERS OF DEATH". Only five weeks out and already the picture has hauled in a hefty $2.5 million... And King of the Hill is the onetime Cato of "GREEN HORNET" TV fame. BRUCE LEE. At the moment BRUCE LEE would have to rate serious consideration as the hottest thing in show business today... From the Mid East to South America, from Malaysia to Germany, BRUCE LEE registers torrid box office excitement...

How long will this newest Film Fad continue to ignite viewer electricity? Difficult to judge... In the Orient KUNG FU has been number one for years. Europe, and in particular Italy, has been overwhelmingly exposed for a few months... Here at home the public is just "catching on" to the bravura, excitement, and daredevil heroism which is uniquely KUNG FU...

"FIVE FINGERS OF DEATH" with LO LIEH in the starring role has been the big icebreaker in the United States. Sort of a warmup for those pictures which are following on its coattails. A warmup for bigger and better cinema action to follow... And coming they are. The internationally heralded BRUCE LEE starrer "BIG BOSS" will premiere Stateside shortly. And "LADY KUNG FU", "WAY OF THE DRAGON", "A MAN CALLED TIGER", and "BLACK ALLEY PRINCESS", to single out a choice few, are ticketed for American theatres...

Whatever its duration in the hearts of buffs, KUNG FU has rightly established its place as a legitimate, solid entry in its niche termed Film Fadism. These pictures aren't one shot, once around deals... Nurtured as the brainchild of the SHAW BROS., KUNG FU films are being marketed with all the astute professionalism as Madison Avenues' "selling" to the public of next years new automobile. The SHAW BROS. have turned an Oriental Saturday night at the movies into a global goldmine...

And they're making their films with the utmost care, polish, craftsmanship - with an accurate eye towards detail. KUNG FU film fare is not flim flam slick. Rather the pictures are sleek as silk... That in itself explains why these motion pictures have had, and will continue to receive, at least until the Fad crest, such wide fan appeal from one end of the globe to the other...

Giving credit where credit is due, 8 men deserve recognition as "Big Time" motion picture Producers... SIDNEY BECKERMAN, ALBERT BROCCOLI, M. J. FRANKOVICH, ARTHUR P. JACOBS, HOWARD W. KOCH, RONALD MILLER, HAL B. WALLIS and BILL WALSH. Each of the aforementioned have made at least three of the 170 top grossers in the past five years...

Still maintaining his reputation as part of the film jet set, HENRY KISSINGER will be an awards presenter at the news and documentary ceremonies of the National Academy of TV Arts & Sciences Emmy ceremonies on May 22...

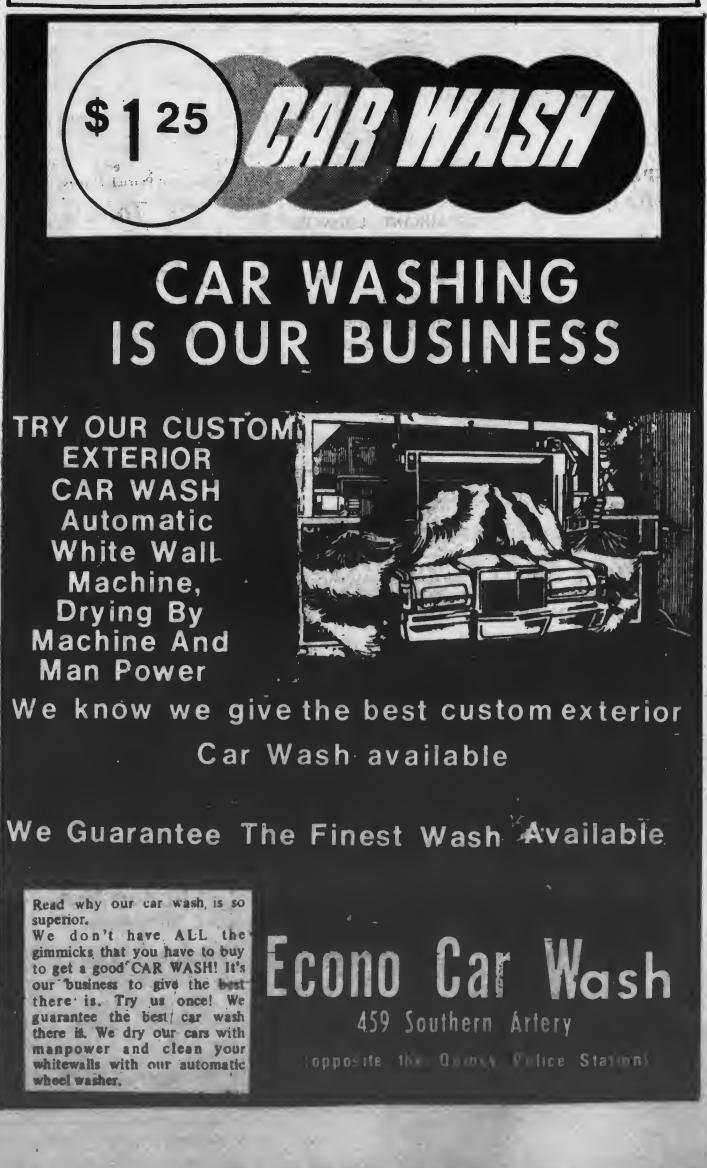
Smyth Seeks New 'Operation Pride'

Councillor J. Vincent Smyth has asked Mayor Walter Hannon to have the city sponsor another "Operation Pride" to rid the homes and yards of debris.

Smyth, chairman of the council's Public Works Committee, noted that many residents have inquired about the program.



Smyth said it has been a success in the past.

In a letter to the Mayor he said:

"This program has certainly met with enthusiasm by the taxpayers and residents of our City. It gives everyone an opportunity to clean not only their homes, but their yards and surrounding areas as well.

"I sincerely hope your office and the office of the Commissioner of Public Works can see their way clear to once again sponsor this program during the month of June."

BATH TUB RISKIER THAN SPACE

John Glenn, our first astronaut to orbit in space, was almost killed in a bathtub fall. Yes, a lot more people have been killed each year from falling in the bathtub than have been lost in the unknown dangers of the space program. It's an inglorious way to go - so let's see what we can do to prevent it.

All bathtubs should have a nonskid bottom. An inexpensive mat with a slightly abrasive top and an adhesive backing takes a minute to install. Or strips of non-skid material can be stuck in a pattern on the bottom of the tub. Rubber mats with suction cups on the underside will work too.

Sturdy grab-bars along tub and shower walls are a good investment for anyone, but a must for the elderly. You may find out eventually, that towel racks are not strong enough to support your weight - so don't depend on them. Persons have been known to grab them and come tumbling down, towel rack and all.

Granite Co-operative Bank Marks 20th Anniversary With Staff Party

The Granite Co-operative Bank of Quincy held a staff party at the Sheraton Tara Hotel, Braintree, Wednesday to celebrate the bank's 20th anniversary.

Founded in 1963 as the North Quincy Co-operative Bank, the institution today boasts assets in excess of $12 million.

Nissie Grossman, chairman of the board, told the gathering:

"Today we mark 20 years of pride in serving the people of the South Shore.

"We have grown from a small neighborhood bank into a significant financial institution. We look to the future with great optimism while continuing to reflect on the past two decades of friendliness and a spirit of service to our depositors."

Grossman is also chairman of the board of Grossman's [division of Evans Products] the nationally known building materials dealers.

The Granite Co-op maintains its main office at 440 Hancock St., North Quincy. It also has a branch opened in 1965 at 120 Granite St., Quincy Center.

NISSIE GROSSMAN

Other officers of the bank are:

Bernard C. Cohen, president; Nathan T. Belt and Henry G. Berry, vice presidents; Mary E. Homes, treasurer; Julia F. Mulvoy, assistant treasurer; Atty. Melvin M. Prague, clerk of the corporation and directors Sidney W. Grossman, Gerald R. Curtis and Albert Dockser.

Granite Co-op has listed many banking firsts in the Quincy area. It was the first bank in Quincy to be open Saturday which was a move later followed by other banks in the city. Granite was also the first co-operative bank in Quincy to pay interest every day of the year. It also has maintained the policy of paying the highest rates allowed by law to its depositors.

Today it advertises: "No bank in Massachusetts pays higher interest than Granite Co-operative Bank".

At the anniversary party Bernard Cohen, Granite president, remarked that the bank will continue to pioneer inovative savings and loan programs unique in financial circles.

According to the treasurer, Mrs. Holmes, the bank is a major mortgage lender in the area.

"We contribute to the growth and economy of each town in which we provide a mortgage", she said. "We are very proud of the fact that no co-operative bank in the state has ever lost a cent of its depositors money."

South Shore MBTA Revenue Up

MBTA General Manager Joseph C. Kelly announces the latest revenue figures for the T's South Shore Extension are up.

"These figures covering the first 95 days of 1973 from Jan. 1 through April 6 show a remarkable 7.75 percent over the corresponding period of 1972," he said. Revenue was up $43,075 in 1973 from the $555,924 collected during the first 95 days of 1972.

"This increase," Kelly said, "shows how important rapid transit has become to the residents of the South Shore. The MBTA feels that the success of this line is an excellent barometer in proving that if good, clean, efficient and economical transportation is offered to a community, it will be successful."

Quincy Girls Good But Lack Runners

If Peter Gallagher, coach of the Quincy High girls' track team, could find some runners, the First Ladies would be up among the tops in Eastern Massachusetts.

They have shown tremendous strength in the field events this spring but have been outclassed in the running events. As a result they are still looking for their first victory.

The Quincy girls go to Norwell Friday, host Burke High School Tuesday at Veterans Memorial Stadium and entertain Canton next Thursday at the stadium. They will compete in the state meet on May 26 at Blue Hill Regional.

Gallagher had an excellent turnout this year in Quincy's third year of girls' track. The squad is led by Co-Captains Cathy Ilacqua and Sue Higgins.

Others on the team are Kristin Poole, Susan Craig, Carole Beliveau, Joanna Venturelli, Lisa Lee, Alice Norton, Jean D'Angelo, Kathy Keating, Ginger Denver, Donna Stangel, Mary Jane Schuerch, Joan Wiedemann, Judy Foley, Mary Ilacqua.

Also, Mary Ann McCarthy, Regina Norton, Anne Fornaro, Enid Braveman, Nancy Allen, Barbara King, Jill Seamens, Judy Peterson, Rosey Wolforth, Gertrude McManus, Joyce Flynn, Rory Nolan, Donna Allen, Janice Kelly, Paula Chamberlain, Laurel McDonald, Renee DeGust, Susan Drew, Joyce Kennedy, Beth Higgins, Joan Lotti, Karen Mitchell, Chris O'Rourke, Sophia Sarruda, Arlenne White, Ruth Widman, Terri Finnegan, Tracy DiBona, Denise Quintiliani, Kelly Tobin, Tracy Tobin, Lisa Downey and Karen MacDonald.

Quincy lost its first meet to Brookline, 67-49. The First Ladies, as usual, scored heavily in the field events but were weak in the running events.

Cathy Ilacqua was a triple winner, taking the javelin with a toss of 79 feet, 8 inches, the shot put at 28 feet, 10 3/4 inches, and the 50-yard hurdles in record breaking time of 8 seconds.

Miss Seamens won the half mile in 2:41, Sue Higgins was second in the javelin, Miss Schuerch second in the high jump, Miss Chamberlain second in the 440 and the relay team of Miss Peterson, Miss McCarthy, Mary Ilacqua and Miss Chamberlain was edged but set a school record of 58.7 seconds.

"Janice Kelly is our most promising sprinter and was fourth in both the 50 and 100-yard dashes," Gallagher said. "She is a fine prospect."

Quincy met Dedham and Norwell in its second meet and scored 34 points. Dedham won with 62 points and Norwell scored 54.

"We came out of the field events with a 10-point lead but we failed to score in the 50, 100, 220, 440, half mile and mile," the Quincy coach added.

Cathy Ilacqua was again Quincy's top performer as she broke the school record in the javelin with a winning throw of 95 feet, 11 inches.

She also won the shot with a throw of 32 feet, 1 inch and was second in the hurdles, only the second time in three years she has lost in the hurdles in dual meet competition.

Sue Higgins won the discus at 80 feet, 1/4 inch, and was fourth in the javelin with a toss of 73 feet, 1 1/2 inches. Linda Robinson was second in the high jump with a jump of 4 feet, 7 inches, a school record, and Miss Schuerch was third at 4 feet, 4 inches.

The Quincy girls entered the Falmouth invitational meet with 20 teams from Southeastern Mass. Against outstanding competition Cathy Ilacqua was fifth in the hurdles and sixth in the shot put and Miss Seamens was eighth in the half mile.

Quincy Turns Back North For 21st Meet Win In Row

It beings to look as though the Quincy High spring track team will never lose another Greater Boston League meet.

When Tom Hall's Presidents topped arch rival North Quincy, 76-55, last week, they completed their third straight undefeated league season and won their 21st successive league meet.

They have won 27 of their last 28 league outings, the only loss over the four-year period being to North, which was undefeated GBL champion in 1970.

And Quincy's winning ways appear to be far from over. Hall this spring had many sophomores and juniors who scored well throughout the season. So, although the popular coach loses several fine seniors, he has much to look forward to.

North Coach Bob Gentry, whose Raiders gave it all they had, had two surprise starters in baseball players Lee Watkins and Bobby Morton, while Quincy had also a baseball star, Mike Varraso.

Watkins, whose brother, Layne, runs for Quincy, won the 100 and Morton, throwing the javelin for the first time, placed third.

Varraso took third in the shot put.

"There used to be a rule here in Quincy that if an athlete took part in one sport he couldn't take part in another during the same season," Hall explained. "We went to Carl Leone [Quincy's athletic director] to have the rule changed because we were finding in our dual meets that other league teams were using baseball players and we were at a disadvantage."

This year for the first time Quincy was weak in the running events but the Presidents were unusually strong in the field events and they carried them to wins on several occasions.

Quincy winners in the final meet were Marty Swirko in the 440, Steve Player, mile; Steve Nolan, two-mile; sophomore Pres Carroll in the low hurdles; sophomore Art DiLoreto, high hurdles [also second in the high jump]; Kevin Cox, long jump [second in the 100]; Dave DiBona, triple jump [third in the 440]; Dave Sten, discus and Phil Iovanna, javelin. The relay team of Cox, Steve Oriola, Ray Lawyer and Carroll also won. John Johnson took second in the low hurdles and third in the high jump.

North winners were Watkins in the 100, Jack Pomerole, 220; Bob McCormack, half mile [also second in the triple jump]; sophomore Mark Canavan, high jump [second in the mile]; and Burt Bray, shot put. Jack Reynolds was second in the 440 and third in the long jump.

Earlier in the week Quincy overwhelmed Everett, 114-17, while North, which wound up 2-5 in the league, romped to its second win, 81-50, over Everett.

Hall received some fine performances from sophomores and juniors with sophs Player winning the mile, Tim Kane the two-mile, DiLoreto the high hurdles, Carroll the low hurdles, and Jim Johnson the javelin. Winning juniors were Fred Donahue, shot put; Sten, discus; John MacFarlane, triple jump, and John Johnson, high jump.

The other winners were Cox, 100; Lawyer, 220; Mark MacLeod, 440; Swirko, half mile, and the relay team of Lawyer, Oriola, Paul Riggs and Cox. Everett's lone win came in the long jump and Quincy swept the 220, 440, mile, high jump, shot put and javelin.

Three North performers were double winners as sophomore Paul O'Donnell took the 220 and javelin, soph Canavan the half mile and high jump and Reynolds the long jump and low hurdles.

Other Raider winners were Pomerole, 100; Dick Coughlin, 440; McCormack, triple jump; Bray, shot put and Mark Mulvaney, discus. North swept the 100. –TOM SULLIVAN

Tight defense and the goaltending of Joe Cullen were the chief ingredients in the Quincy Sun's march to the championship of the Quincy Bantam House League.

The Sun scored the fewest goals of any team in the league [46] but also allowed the fewest [45], according to the final statistics compiled by Bantam Commissioner Henry Previte.

Bob Crews of Farina Kitchens won the league's scoring title by a single point over teammate Tom Wilkinson.

Dave Hurley of Blackwood Pharmacy had the most goals [18] and Wilkinson and Bob Carmody of Blackwood tied for most assists [17].

Farina and Blackwood skaters made up the top seven scorers in the league.

Alumni Cafe Wins 4th Straight, Barry's Blasts Dee-Dees, 12-6

The rain and lighting problems at Welcome Young Park hit the Quincy Softball League schedule during the past week with several games postponed.

The Alumni Cafe, National League West leader, ran its record to 4-0 by handing Wells Grille its first loss, 18-9.

Frank Casey went five for five for the winners and Jack Daniels was outstanding on defense. For Welles Eddy Hutchins was the top batter.

Barry's Ships Haven topped Dee Dee's, 12-6, despite the heavy hitting of Phil Leithi and Paul Erler and a shaky second inning in the field for Ships Haven.

Tony Camillo continued his slugging with a two-run triple and played excellent ball at shortstop. Other Barry standouts were Bob Kelley and Dave Brean both at bat and in the field. Leo Montgomery allowed five runs in the first two innings, then pitched shutout ball the rest of the way.

A-N Wins 5th Straight, Point Outslugs BM

By BEVERLY RILEY

The Atlantic-North baseball team continues to roll merrily along in the Quincy Junior High League and Monday improved its record to 5-0 with a 4-1 win over Central.

Pete Fallon pitched one-hit ball, struck out eight and retired the first 19 batters in a row. Jack Hatfield had an infield hit, the only Central safety, stole second and scored all the way from second on a ground ball. Mike Holleran had two hits for the winners and Fallon also drove in a run.

Point outslugged Broad Meadows, 12-10, with Point pitcher Steve Infacelli having three hits. Mike Carloni also had three hits including two doubles. Ed Daley doubled with the bases loaded.

BM was trailing, 12-4, after three innings and just missed pulling it out with four runs in the fourth and two in the sixth. Lou Fishman was the losing pitcher.

Last week Atlantic-North rolled over Broad Meadows, 15-0. Cooper Jordan pitched a two-hitter, including a double by Fishman in the final inning. Kevin Donovan was the starter for BM and was replaced by Dave Raftery.

Second place Sterling made its record 4-1 when it defeated Central, 15-5. Mark DeLuca was the winning pitcher and also had two hits. Bob Marcucci and Gary Prezioso each had two hits and Eric Carrera, who walked five times, scored four runs.

Quincy Team At .500 Pace

Bill Mitchell, who has had good success as Quincy High tennis coach, has a young team this year but the Presidents have rebounded from a dismal 2-12 1972 season and are playing at a .500 pace.

Although he has only two returnees, Capt. Wayne Chatterton, and Bill Powers, both seniors, was heartened by a turnout of 30 boys, the largest in recent years, and has pared his squad to 15, five seniors, a junior and eight sophomores.

"The sophomores are symbolic of the upswing of tennis in Quincy," the veteran coach said. "This group of eight represents the largest and most advanced group of sophomores that have ever qualified for a Quincy team in the last 10 years. They had to compete with many seniors and juniors for that honor.

"They offer much hope for the teams of the future and some of the sophomores who will play this year are going to give their opponents trouble. In a scrimmage, two sophomores, John Rice and Bill Cosgrove, defeated an experienced senior doubles team from Hingham."

Another sophomore, Kevin Sullivan, has been defeating juniors and seniors in scrimmages and shows much promise, winning a berth in the singles lineup.

Chatterton is the number one singles player and, according to Mitchell, is a dedicated player. "If he can't play because of rain, he will run two to four miles to keep in condition," he explained.

"There is a lot of ofine competition for the second and third singles spots between Powers and newcomers Joe Haefner, Mike Walton and Dave Rosen, all seniors and Sullivan.

Competing for the three doubles teams are seven sophomores, Steve Feldman, brothers Joe and John Rice, Mike Menconi. John Pagnano, Steve Dansak and Cosgrove, and junior Charlie Pearson.

Quincy had scrimmages with Hingham and Weymouth South. Mitchell pointed out that they are among the top teams on the South Shore and, with many experienced players, should qualify for the state team championships.

"We have no superstars but have good depth, balance and some very promising sophomores," Mitchell concluded.

A-N Trackmen Roll By Point

The Atlantic-North track team rolled to its second Quincy Junior High League win last week, bulldozing Point, 114-36.

Chris McIntyre and Peter Johnston tied for first place in the seventh grade high jump, Jim Rose took first in the long jump for Point's ninth grade team, with a fine jump of 16 feet, 10 inches, Tom Butler of North was second and Gary Wilkins of North third.

Atlantic's eighth grade team had a first and third also, with John White and Kenny Johnson.

It was the same with the seventh grade with Jim Hanrahan first and Bobby Doyle third.

A-N had squeezed by Broad Meadows in its first meet, winning the relay. The teams were tied going into the relays.

Quincy Girls Tennis Team Wins 4th Straight

Coach Alberta Murray's Quincy girls' tennis team is rolling merrily along.

A 3-2 comeback win over North Quincy last week made the First Ladies' record 4-1. It was their fourth win in a row.

North took two of the three singles matches as Debbie Mattson defeated Nancy Bernstein, 6-4, 6-0, and Annett Lawlor defeated Sue Greene, 6-2, 6-1. Quincy's Sally Rickson had swept the first singles, 6-0, 6-0, over Robyn Chiminello.

Quincy bounced back and took both doubles matches to pull out the win. Cathy Ilacqua and Marilyn Silverstein topped Amy Pearlstein and Leslie Brennan to tie the match and in the second doubles Sara Kane and Kathy Bennett defeated Judy Quinn and Lorin Chiminello in a hard fought match, 8-6, 6-4.

WEDNESDAY, May 16:

Johnny Norton of the Yankees and Scott McDonald of the Dodgers hooked up in an eight-inning duel before the Yankees prevailed, 6-5. Norton struck out 16, McDonald 10. Fran Duggan's two-run double and Bob Dunn's two-run homer were the big blows for the Yankees.

Bill Chiavaroli doubled with the bases loaded to give the Cubs a 3-1 victory over the White Sox and break up a pitching battle between the Cubs Eddie Linehan and the Sox' Tim Daley.

Dan Fitzgerald blanked the Red Sox for the Giants, 10-0, striking out six and walking six. A triple by George O'Kane and a double by Nick Seppa were the big hits for the winners.

THURSDAY, May 17:

Rick Ryan's three-run homer and Tony Chiocchio's three hits in five trips highlighted the Tigers' free swinging 16-11 decision over the Angels.

Danny Flannery batted in six runs, including three with a homer and two with a triple in pacing the Cardinals to a 7-4 win over the White Sox. Jeff Connerty homered for the losers.

FRIDAY, May 18:

Pitcher Ron Prezioso hit a two-run homer to win his duel with Jeff McGrail as the Dodgers edged the Cardinals, 5-4. McGrail had a triple and two doubles in three trips but they were not enough.

SATURDAY, May 19:

SUNDAY, May 20:

Mike Fantasia struck out 14 and George Cirillo and Bob Graham each had three hits in four trips in the Giants 14-2 bombing of the Angels. John O'Leary of the Angels contributed the play of the day with a diving stop at short and tag of second to force a runner.

Anti-Litter Anti-Vandalism Campaigns In Schools

Raymond C. Cattaneo, the Quincy Park and Recreation Board's environmental specialist, was scheduled to visit the Squantum School Wednesday in the first stop on an anti-litter, anti-vandalism campaign.

Eventually, Cattaneo will speak in all elementary and junior high schools, public and parochial, in the city's drive to keep parks, playgrounds and beaches free of litter and vandalism this summer.

School kids are asked to use the little barrels at park, playground and beach areas. Extra barrels are being placed at those locations this summer.

The youngsters are requested to report to police all acts of vandalism they see. The city spends about $5,000 a year to repair park vandalism, money that could be better spent for new playground equipment.

They are also urged to take the conservation pledge and observe the conservation guidelines.

CONSERVATION PLEDGE

"I give my pledge as an American to save and faithfully defend from waste the natural resources of my country - its soil and minerals, its forests, waters and wildlife."

CONSERVATION GUIDELINES

TREES - Do not cut the bark of trees or bushes as this spoils their beauty and eventually kills them.

Do not swing on young trees. Give them a chance to grow because they make your streets beautiful, give you shade in the summer, and manufacture oxygen to help keep the air clean.

FLOWERS - Do not pick flowers without permission. Enjoy the beautiful City plantings of plants, flowers and shrubs with your eyes, not your fingers. Take care not to walk on or disturb flowers or ornamental bushes.

GRASS - Give newly planted grass a chance to grow by keeping off until it is well established. This keeps down the dust and dirt and manufactures oxygen too. Do not take short cuts across the grass as this kills it. Walk on sidewalks and around corners not across them.

PLANTS - Learn about simple gardening; plant some seeds and watch them grow. Help keep your yard clean and pretty. Anyone can do it.

BIRDS - Learn about the birds who help control weeds and insects. Provide nesting and feeding places for them.

NATIONAL REALTOR WEEK

MAY 20-26

MLS Offers Advantages To House Buyer, Seller

The Quincy and South Shore Board of Realtors are conducting special programs in recognition of National Realtor Week, May 20-26.

During this time, Realtors across the nation will focus their attention on a number of issues currently shaping the real estate business and influencing local real estate markets–which should be of interest to all South Shore residents.

The Quincy and South Board of Realtors which has a Multiple Listing Service reminds prospective home buyers and sellers of the advantages of MLS. Main advantages include:

•IF YOU ARE BUYING

You will save many hours of time since every Realtor member of M.L.S. will have all of the listings in the territory in which you are interested. You will no longer have to travel from one office to another, day after day, mile after mile, rain or shine, trying to cover all the possible properties on the market. You will be able to compare many well listed properties as to price, location, etc. at one sitting and without confusion caused by fatigue or pressure.

•IF YOU ARE SELLING

Large estate, small home, or any other type of Real Estate, call a Realtor member of M.L.S. who will make an appointment with you to explain how M.L.S. works. He will then make a thorough listing of your property on the uniform listing contract and arrange to have your property carefully photographed. Then all listing information and photographs will be sent to the Multiple Listing Service headquarters.

•ONE CALL . . . THAT'S ALL!

When you call a member of the Multiple Listing Service, ask for information on M.L.S. You'll be pleased to learn that the M.L.S. will save you hours of time, much effort and concern. Multiple Listing Service assures you of the most up-to-date Real Estate Service . . . a service geared to our times.

Survival, Inc. New Board Members

In an effort to broaden the base of Survival's Board of Directors to reflect representation of more South Shore towns, President Frank Vallier announces the recent addition of a number of persons to the Survival Board.

Since the clientele of the large drug rehabilitation program comes from Quincy and all of the surrounding towns, it was felt that the addition of a number of persons involved in youth and drug related programs would benefit the program's services.

A special Board committee to handle special events was also formed and new members appointed to this body as well.

New board members include: John W. Mahoney, Social Health Coordinator for the Quincy Schools; David Ezickson, Daniel Webster School, Quincy; Alwyn Marston, Coordinator of Health Education, Weymouth South High School; Ted Pina, Milton Youth Coordinator; John Grant, Coordinator of Health Education, Hingham School Department; Joseph Grant, Assistant Director of Sociobiology Department, Braintree School Department; Arnold Levine, Supervisor of Health Education, Randolph Public Schools and Aldo Lombardi, Sociobiology Director, Canton Public Schools.

New board members appointed to the special events committee are Ruth Clarke, Lois Munson and Sabina Stenberg of Quincy, and Lucia Hotton of Weymouth. This group plans a variety of activities geared to provide financial support to the non-profit agency.

Work continues at the 1230 Hancock St., Redirection Residence of Survival which should be operational within the next six weeks. Any person willing to donate goods or services geared towards helping to open the "House" is urged to get in touch with Robert Hassey at Survivals' administrative office.

Hancock St. Parking Ban 'Going Well'

The trial ban on parking on the west side of Hancock St. is "going very well", says Capt. Roy Cavicchi head of the Quincy Police Department Traffic Bureau.

"We are enforcing the ban strictly", said Capt. Cavicchi, "There aren't many drivers parking there and those that do don't park twice."

The parking ban began May 21 for a 30-day trial period.

All parking is prohibited from Granite Street to Kincaide's and all but live parking is forbidden from Kincaide's to School Street.

800 Expected To Be Cut

Shipyard Work Force Seen Down To 500 In Next Few Weeks

By TOM HENSHAW

General Dynamics Quincy Shipyard, which was humming along with some 5,800 workers two years ago, will be down to about 500 production employees in a couple of weeks.

This would be a drop of about 800 from the current 1,300 production workers.

The estimate come from Arthur Batson, president of Local 5, Shipbuilders Union [AFL-CIO].

The last contract, a Navy Oiler [AOR], is scheduled to be finished about June 16, leaving the yard empty of ship work until sometime in July when the keel will be laid for the first liquified natural gas carrier.

Between ships, said Batson, there will be work on submarine cylinders for yards at Newport News, Va., and Groton, Conn., and some machine shop work for an outside contractor.

"The cylinders and the machine shop will account for about 280 jobs," said Batson. "Add a couple of hundred more for maintenance of the yard and there'll be about 500 production workers in all.

"Some ship fitters, welders, chippers and burners may be hired back to work on the cylinders but we'll lose electricians, machinists, pipefitters, sheet metal workers and possibly some painters."

Batson said the steel for the first LNG tanker has already arrived in the yard.

"Probably eight or ten workers will be rehired starting in July and the rate will pick up after that," said Batson. "If work remains stable in other areas I would estimate that between 800 and 1,000 production workers will be working at the end of the year.

Hannon Appoints City Salary Review Committee

Mayor Walter J. Hannon has appointed a five-member committee – two from management, two from labor and one public – to review the salaries of city employees not covered by collective bargaining agreements.

The public member, John J. Sullivan Sr., of 23 Marion St., a commissioner of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, will act as chairman.

Management members of the committee are Quentin E. Bloomer of 15 Moffat Rd, personnel manager of the Fish Division of A & P, and Joseph F. McConville Jr., of 29 Chickatabut, personnel manager of Boston Gear Works.

Labor members are Joseph A. Sullivan of 44 Lurton St., president of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO, and Clifton A. Sommers of 86 Sachem St., field representative of the United Steelworkers of America AFL-CIO.

Mayor Hannon also named Joseph P. McParland, city labor negotiator, and William S. Grindlay, city budget director, ex-officio members of the

Trades Union New Minimum Wage $8.40

The Building and Construction Trades Council has negotiated a new contract with four employers' groups giving building trades workers a 30 cent hourly increase.

The contract, retroactive to May 1, will go into effect as soon as it is approved by the Federal Craft Industry Stabilization Committee.

The wage hike brings the minimum wage in the trades to $8.40 an hour.

The new contract also calls for a 10 cent hourly increase in health and welfare fund [to 55 cents an hour] and a 10 cent hourly hike in pension fund [to 50 cents an hour].

Employers' groups included in the contract are the Associated General Contractors of Massachusetts, the Building Trades Employers Association, the Mason Contractors Association, and the Master Plasterers Association.

State Street Bank Moves Into New Quincy Complex

BIGGEST MOVE - Some of the 50,000 pieces of furniture and equipment are moved into the State Street Bank and Trust Co.'s new computer and operations center off Newport Avenue in North Quincy. The move, accomplished by 50 vans making 2,000 trips in three days last weekend, was said by the movers, Casey and Hayes, to be the largest ever made in the United States in such a period of time.

Quincy's newest resident moved into its new home over the holiday weekend bringing 50,000 pieces of furniture, equipment and accessories in a shuttle of 50 moving vans.

The mover, Casey and Hayes of Boston, said it may be the largest move in American history in such a brief time period, Friday night through Monday afternoon.

The new resident is the State Street Bank and Trust Co., which moved in with 2,000 of its employees and all its computer equipment that had been scattered in five Boston locations.

The equipment came in 2,000 van loads on the Southeast Expressway to 145 Newport Ave., North Quincy, where the new center occupies 22 of the 80 acres in the State Street South complex.

The radio-equipped vans were accompanied by five emergency vehicles which were on hand in case any of the trucks experienced mechanical difficulty.

Bank employees, who left their desks at the Boston offices at 4:45 p.m., Friday, were back at work in Quincy at 8:30 a.m. Tuesday without missing a stroke of the pen.

State Street divisions now in Quincy are:

Automated customer service, personal trust, trust operations, organization and personnel, computer services, auditing, installment loan, Bank Americard, mutual funds and central services.

Previously they were located at 53 State St., 18 Tremont St., 150 Causeway St., 93 Purchase St., and 225 Franklin St., all in Boston.

Parent cure for bugging

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

Since the tides of Watergate have been lapping precariously at the heels of Washington big-wigs, I call attention daily — here at home — to the importance of strong moral fiber.

Before Watergate, I put up with all sorts of invasions of privacy, bugging and just plain hanky-panky. But no more.

"Listen," I said to my kids just last week, "when I get a phone call, don't pick up the extension and breathe over it. I know you're there, and I'll have your allowance the next time I catch you at it."

They looked at me with new respect. "We didn't mean anything," said the youngest. "We just wonder who would be calling you."

It has long been a source of bewilderment to my kids that anyone, not forced by biological necessity, would hold a conversation with me. "Well, it's none of your business. It's privileged information."

They were silent before me and for a minute I thought they were going to salute.

"And another thing," I said, with righteous parental authority coursing through my veins, "your father and I don't like it when one of you is sent to your room and you slam the door to make us think you went in, and then you sneak down the hall to eavesdrop. We hate it when you've heard our discussion on your prepubescent emotional development. It's bad for our pre-middle-aged emotional development. So quit it."

"Okay, mom," they said in unison — the shortest agreeable exchange we've had since Watergate.

Things are shaping up alright; they are realizing their fundamental responsibilities as forthright family members. Not only that, but they are putting their dirty socks in the laundry hamper instead of under their beds. I wonder if Martha Mitchell has noticed that much improvement in John.

- Arab- Israeli Crisis
- Secret Service Collusion
- The Giveaway Game

WASHINGTON — The White House has been bombarded with urgent intelligence reports from the Middle East and from Ambassador John Scali at the United Nations that the Arab-Israeli crisis could erupt at any time.

The reports from Cairo warn that Egypt's President Sadat is planning military action against Israel. An intelligence analysis suggests he will make a carefully restricted military move — enough to cause worldwide alarm but not enough to reopen the war between Egypt and Israel.

His objective, according to the analysis, would be to force President Nixon and Soviet leader Leonid Brezhnev to give the Middle East first priority at their summit meeting in Washington next month.

From Paris, meanwhile, Henry Kissinger recently sent back a dismayed, secret report that Le Duc Tho, the North Vietnamese negotiator, brought up the Watergate scandal early in their private talks.

Tho apparently was friendly enough. But he let Kissinger know Hanoi is aware that the President has been weakened by Watergate and that Nixon is too preoccupied with his domestic troubles to become deeply involved in Vietnam again.

The wily North Vietnamese, it appears, are using Watergate as a bargaining chip.

Secret Service Collusion: One by one, the FBI, CIA, the Justice Department, the Defense Department and the National Security Council have been implicated in the abuse of power by the White House. Now the Secret Service has been added to the list.

Secret Service agents have been charged with supplying the Nixon campaign with reports about the activities of at least one Democratic presidential candidate they were supposed to be guarding. Here are other incidents I have uncovered of Secret Service collusion with the Nixon campaign:

- The Secret Service refused to put through a call from a high federal official to Sen. George McGovern, unless the official revealed the contents of the call.
- A Philadelphia police officer has sworn that he was acting under Secret Service orders when he illegally denied McGovern supporters access to a Nixon appearance.
- In Atlanta, an armed agent, recruited by the Secret Service, helped shovel confetti in front of a giant fan showering down a tickertape welcome upon the President.
- At the same Atlanta appearance, the Secret Service cordoned off McGovern supporters, so Nixon recruits could be bused to the front of the crowd to cheer for the TV cameras.

Of course, the Secret Service was a victim of pressure from White House aides. Above all else, the Watergate scandal validates the old adage about what happens when little men gain a lot of power. They abuse it.

The Giveaway Game: There's a great giveaway game in Washington called "R & D," which stands for research and development. For example, the Pentagon once sponsored a study of facial expressions. And a Chilean scientist got defense dollars to study the nervous system of the Chilean squid.

Crusty old Admiral Hyman Rickover tells the story of a Navy study "of the psychological differences between sailors who had been tattooed once, sailors who had been tattooed more than once, sailors who had never been tattooed but wished they had, and sailors who hadn't been tattooed and didn't want to be." The psychologists solemnly concluded this was a "very complex subject requiring more study."

The National Science Foundation is also generous with government grants. Many of them, of course, are worthwhile. But I just learned about a grant that was awarded to study the "Psychophysiology of sleep and dreaming in Antartica." A student in Arkansas recently got $13,000 to study "The mobile home syndrome." Another got $4,000 to contemplate "The feasibility of studying the introduction of television in South Africa."

Taxpayers may rightly wonder what use these studies will be to the American taxpayers who have to pay for them. But they don't compare to a tax-funded study discovered a few years ago. Researchers, we learned, were paid thousands of dollars to take the temperatures at the southern ends of northbound Alaskan sled dogs.

IRS Crackdown Brewing: The Internal Revenue Service has a notorious reputation for going after the small taxpayers, while ignoring affluent citizens who skip out of paying taxes.

This year, however, the IRS appears to be more serious about cracking down on the rich tax dodgers. It has compiled a secret list, we have learned, of all those who made more than $100,000 but paid less than $1,000 in taxes. It also has a list of over 200 wealthy persons who paid no taxes at all. An investigation has been launched into exactly how these people managed to avoid paying Uncle Sam.

More Soviet Trade: The Soviet trading agency is back in the American commodity market shopping for more grain. Last year, the Soviet Communists skinned the American capitalists by some of the foxiest trading in international commerce. The Soviets kept their purchases down and hinted they could take their business elsewhere until the Americans woke up to the fact that the Soviets had bought a full year's supply of grain at more favorable prices than are available to America's own consumers. The amount of the purchase was far greater than the Soviets could have found anywhere else. They simply turned out to be better traders than the Americans. Now the Soviet grain traders are back for more.

Councillor Joseph LaRaia had his fund raiser last Thursday at the New England Aquarium, but the long awaited announcement never came.

LaRaia's supporters have been urging him to run for Mayor this year, but it looks like he'll seek re-election to the council at-large.

One indication that LaRaia will pass up a bid for Mayor this year is that Pat DiStefano of South Quincy, one of LaRaia's biggest boosters, says he's considering a run for Mayor. DiStefano says that LaRaia won't run for Mayor at this late date.

MEANWHILE, ONE OF those attending LaRaia's time was Mayor Walter Hannon.

WARD 1 COUNCILLOR Edward Graham made official last week what insiders had expected all along - he'll not seek re-election.

--Candidates for Ward 1 Councillor have been at the starting gate for the last few months and Graham's announcement is not expected to change the field, that much.

Atty. Richard Ward and Robert Denvir have already taken out nomination papers for Ward 1. Leo Kelly is also a sure candidate. Mentioned as contenders are Rosemary Wahlberg of Germantown, David Crowley Jr. [son of former Councillor David Crowley] and William Dwyer of Adams Shore, with a second candidate from Adams Shore waiting in the wings.

Two previously mentioned potential candidates, Geraldine Pleshaw and Atty. Matthew McDonnell of Merrymount, right now don't look like they'll get in.

Without a doubt, the race in Ward One promises to be one of the liveliest in the city.

OVER IN WARD TWO the picture is just the opposite. It looks like Councillor Clifford Marshall will get a free ride again this year.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Recently my Consumer Protection Division has received complaints concerning certain camper dealers who have persuaded people to purchase "motor homes" which they really cannot afford.

Some dealers induce them to make the purchase not only for camping but as a "good investment". These dealers promise the buyers that because camping is so popular they will rent the camper for the buyer--the rental of the vehicle would not only pay for it but would also bring the buyer additional income.

After the vehicle has been purchased, the buyer finds that the camper has not been rented as often as the dealer promised--or in many instances the camper has not been rented at all. Meanwhile the consumer is burdened by monthly payments.

In some instances the vehicle could not possible have been rented until needed repairs had been made--which the dealer promised but never did.

The division urges consumers to remember that even an honest dealer cannot absolutely guarantee the rental of camping vehicles.

The Consumer Protection Division urges consumers that whenever they are making major purchases to obtain any terms and conditions of an agreement or contract in writing.

The division also reminds consumers to purchase only what they can honestly afford.

If anyone has complaints concerning questionable "motor home" dealers, he should contact the Consumer protection division at the State House.

Someday A Thing Of The Past

Maybe someday we'll look on war as a thing of the past
And the world will have peace and love at last
No need for any bloodshed or tears and crying
But most of all - no need for useless dying.

Those little boys who are supposedly old enough
Are sent off from home to fight and get tough
And perhaps through these wars they'll lose their lives
And leave those they love suffering in their strifes.

Of course they were brave and loyal to their country
And we can all say, "I'm proud for what they've done me."
And on this day especially let them be in our prayers
And may we never forget them as we pass by the years.

Let us remember these boys who earned the right to be men
For those who live now and those who lived then
But most important, let us reach to get peace at last
And someday this remembrance will be a thing of the past.

'Walks That Talk'

There have been hundreds of "cures" for sick marriages proposed by professionals and lay people. In one of our therapy groups one couple has revealed that the most therapeutic thing they do is to WALK ... every night they WALK ... a mile ... maybe two. During these nightly walks they TALK ... of the day's events ... of the problems they have encountered ... of possible solutions ... of disagreements they feel with each other ... of how they can be resolved. Lil and Rod look forward to their WALKS THAT TALK.

Very often in couple counseling I seek to help people find something they can do together. So many people have lost contact with each other because they do NOTHING together. We think of bowling ... tennis ... golf ... dinners ... dancing ... movies ... visiting. But seldom do we mention just plain WALKING. Dr. Paul Dudley White believes in walking from the health standpoint ... he says it strengthens the large muscles of the legs and thighs. Their up-toning presses upon the blood vessels ... thus relieving the heart of the heavy load of pushing and pulling the blood through the circularatory system. Seldom however ... is the idea of WALKING suggested for the purpose of increasing the healthier relationship between a husband and wife. I'm suggesting it.

Look at the advantages ... you both go the SAME SPEED. If you were on bicycles that might not be true. You can stop ... look at each other ... at other interesting "things" ... become aware of the immediate world around you. You "get together... ... literally ... at the same speed ... slowly ... leisurely ... enjoying life ... and each other. No hurry ... walk and talk.

The second advantage is that you can TOUCH EACH OTHER ... hands ... arm in arm if you wish. One of the big complaints that I hear daily is ... "he/she never shows affection" ... only in bed does he/she ever show any affection". These victim wives and husbands of "no affection" aren't asking for public displays ... they're merely asking to be treated as persons who want to love and be loved. They want that feeling of companionship and closeness which marriage is supposed to give. TOUCH as you walk.

The advantage which Lil and Rod see as so important is that their WALKING TIME IS THEIR TALKING TIME. Lil said. "Whenever I have a problem that's come up I know that in the evening as we take our evening walk that we'll solve the problem. I don't know what I'd do without our "walks that talk".

When a couple walks ... they leave the telephone behind. They leave the kids behind ... kids can spoil a marriage ... many do. They may not even take the dog if he requires too much attention ... because WALK time is TALK time for JUST YOU TWO.

If your communication is down ... and your relationship is at a low ebb ... you may have difficulty at first finding something to talk about. Start out by talking of unpersonal things ... the beautiful full moon ... the stars ... the recently launched space laboratory ... the Watergate scandal ... the price of gold ... the Red Sox. Wives who are not working do well to read much so that they have things to talk about. Gradually move to the personal.

I'll guarantee that one week of night WALKS THAT TALK will significantly improve your marriage. Try it ... and let me know.

● QUESTION OF THE WEEK

How Are Legislators Appointed To Committees ?

Noting that legislative committees play a very important part in Massachusetts politics, a caller to the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone asked how state legislators are appointed to legislative committees?

The Voter Information Phone told the caller that legislators request their committee preferences but the actual appointments are made at the sole discretion of the majority party leadership.

All of the Legislative Joint Committees have twenty-one members. The Speaker of the House appoints all fifteen House members, including the House Chairman designating one to be House chairman; the President of the Senate appoints all six Senators, designating one to be Senate Chairman.

Those majority party leaders [Democrats] appoint both the majority and minority members to all committees, in contrast to Congress where each party assigns its own members to committees. Beginning in this legislative year House and Senate chairmen of all committees receive additional pay for performing that function.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

CALL ME MS:

Beauty's double standard

By AUDREY GELLIS
Copley News Service

Doctors (who are mostly male) have filled medical journals with learned dissertations on menopausal depression, blaming the condition alternately on loss of childbearing function and loss of hormones.

I have one question for these specialists: Would the phenomenon of menopausal depression exist if women at this time of life looked the same as they did at age 25?

Growing old in America is indeed pitiable, but growing old begins much earlier for women than it does for men. Does Playboy run Cosmopolitan type articles on "How to Get Married If You're Over Thirty?" Even MS. Magazine coverlined "Making Peace With Forty."

Men, too, must make peace with forty, but at 40, 50, 60 and even beyond, they frequently do so with a woman in her teens or twenties. Movie star Dean Martin, heart surgeon Dr. Christian Barnard, and Supreme Court justices Marshall and Douglas are all well past 50, but the sum total of the differences in age between them and their wives comes to 138 years.

These, of course, are famous men, but few women needed that Geritol TV commercial to remind them that middle-class husbands don't automatically "keep" their middle-aged wives.

Maturity, for a woman, can be a lonely, bitter experience and, if she's self-supporting, it probably includes poverty as well. Classified ads for even secretarial jobs generally include "yng; attract." before "typing & steno."

Some women, seeking to prolong what Madison Avenue calls their "vital years," have turned to cosmetic surgery, which, though it can't restore youth, can make a woman appear 10 or 15 years younger.

This is an option, however, which the government and the insurance industry have limited to rich women only. A face-lift, which costs from one to six thousand dollars, is not covered by most medical insurance, nor is it a deductible medical expense for tax purposes.

An Internal Revenue spokesman conceded that cosmetic surgery is the only recognized medical procedure not allowed as a tax deduction. According to IRS, cosmetic surgery (if not performed on the grossly disfigured) serves only vanity and is not related to physical or mental health.

One wonders how IRS came to this conclusion. Did they interview women who had cosmetic surgery? Women who didn't? Psychotherapists? Did they send a 50-plus woman out looking for a job ... or a husband?

Can the IRS computers print out the reason one third of all patients in public psychiatric hospitals are women over 65? Is the Service planning to give mental health medals to the legions of lonely widows and castoff wives who suffer silently outside asylum walls.

The medical insurance industry is equally schizophrenic in its attempts to deny that cosmetic surgery is indeed medical care. Blue Cross in most cases will pay the insured's hospital bills, but its sister organization Blue Shield will not pay surgeon's fees. And virtually no major medical policy includes coverage for any rejuvenating procedures. The argument here is that medical insurance is intended as protection against illness and accident, and that wrinkling is a normal condition caused by aging.

If this policy were applied consistently, then a teenager being treated for his acne would be denied insurance benefits and tax relief. Acne, after all, is a normal condition caused by adolescence.

And what about a middle-aged man seeking help at a Masters & Johnson-type clinic for what that pair taught us to call sexual dysfunction. Try telling him to grow old gracefully.

I know some of my more militant sisters think women shouldn't bother with plastic surgery at all, because we shouldn't be judged on appearance in the first place. I agree that beauty is not what women are about. But it will take at least a generation for attitudes to change, and if looking younger makes any woman happier in the meantime, I say "Right on."

It is not we women who created the cult of youth and beauty. If we were loved for our wisdom, we would be besieging universities, not plastic surgeons. If gray hairs brought happiness, Clairol would be out of business. How much longer will women accept the double standard of a society that celebrates Miss America but condemns her mother's quest for beauty as one of the seven deadly sins?

Fit out ideal figure from own closet

By JOYCE ROARK
Copley News Service

If you have ever seen the Venus de Milo, you'd know why this Greek work of art has influenced the concepts of beauty down thru the ages.

Beauty is in the eye of the beholder, but each culture — Japanese, African, etc. — has its own concept of what makes a woman beautiful. One idea that is universal is that beauty is not measured solely in inches. Personality and talent are as important as good "statistics" when judging beauty.

There is no such thing as a perfect figure. Each of us has our own ideas of what an ideal figure is. Our job is to improve our own figure through posture, properly fitted undergarments, or optical illusions in dress.

The best place to start "molding" our ideal figure is in our own closet. Our wardrobe is vitally important in creating a "picture" for others to behold.

The easiest way to coordinate a wardrobe is to use one color as the basic color. The simplest colors to use are brown, black, or navy blue. Other colors that can be used are more difficult to accessorize and combine.

The basic color should go well with most of the other colors in your wardrobe. It's also less expensive to have the color suitable to wear in summer and winter rather than having two colors, one for summer and one for winter.

You may want to choose black as the basic color for your wardrobe. It's a good color for larger people or for those with major figure problems. Black is not a color that goes out of style. If you wear your clothes longer than average (three years), you may prefer to have black as the basic color.

Black can set off facial features but without some soft color accent, it can be harsh. Not only does it show off jewelry, it also shows lint, powder, etc.

A young person may find black a bit too mature, but with the proper styling and appropriate accessories it needn't be.

It combines well with gray, clear tones of green, yellow, violet, beige, bright blue, aquamarine, red and pink.

A warm color that you might choose is brown. It looks good with beige, tan, green, rust, yellow, white, turquoise, or light medium blue. You can wear it with corals, copper tones, salmon-red, gold, cream, and orange. Brown, tan or natural colored accessories are necessary with any of these combinations.

Navy blue is cool color that is used in many wardrobes. It looks stunning with accents of light blue, green, white, gray, burgundy red, coral, fuchsia, pink, violet, or lime. Rust, orange, beige, or cream go well with navy. Tan leathers and brown furs are good accents.

Navy is more youthful than black which makes it a good choice for teenagers.

Beige is not as good a choice as the others but it does combine well with brown, cocoa, coral, black, green, blue, violet, red, yellow and other in-between shades.

Gray is a very difficult color for anyone to wear. I recommend you use it only as an accent and even then you should use it sparingly.

Connie Stockinger Receives Scout Thanks

Mrs. Connie Stokinger of 61 Young St., North Quincy, was awarded a Thanks Badge, the highest form of tribute to an adult in Scouting, at the recent annual meeting of the Blue Hill Girl Scout Council.

Mrs. Stokinger, who has been a troop leader, trainer, and consultant, was presented the Thanks Badge in recognition of her outstanding service to Scouting.

The Blue Hill Girl Scout Council includes 19 communities to the south and west of Boston. It serves over 11,000 girls and more than 2,000 adult volunteers.

An important outcome of the annual meeting was the defeat of a proposal to consider merging with two other nearby councils and the former Greater Boston Council to form a consolidated Metropolitan Boston council.

Although the other two councils, Mistick Side and Bay Path Colonial, had already approved the proposal, Blue Hill delegates defeated it by a vote of 74-48.

The delegates also elected the following women to serve a three-year term as officers of Blue Hill Council: Mrs. Ellen Powell of Scituate, president; Mrs. Barbara Carter of Dedham, first vice president; Mrs. Madeline Hawkins of Hingham, third vice president; and Mrs. Elizabeth Buccella of Weymouth, secretary.

The Quincy Historical Society now has 649 members, the largest in its history.

Peter J. Chrisom, acting principal of North Quincy High School since last September, has been appointed principal of the school by the Quincy School Committee.

Chrisom assumed the acting principalship of North Quincy High School in September of 1972 following the retirement of principal John Walsh. For two years prior to Walsh's retirement, Chrisom served with him as assistant principal of North Quincy High School.

During his term as acting principal Mr. Chrisom oversaw the construction of two facilities designed to temporarily alleviate the school's overcrowding problem. These structures now respectively house the school's mathematics and social studies departments.

A former social studies teacher at Quincy High School from 1962-1967, Chrisom was named head of that school's social studies department in 1967.

A 1948 graduate of North Quincy High School, he holds a bachelors degree and a masters degree in history from Boston College.

During his 11 years with the Quincy Public Schools, Chrisom has served on several educational committees including the Project Deep Advisory Council, four-year high school discipline committee, Modular Scheduling Committee, Project Able Committee, and the Eastern Nazarene College Project Committee.

Chrisom has also served as a building representative to the Quincy Education Association [QEA], an executive board member of the QEA, and is a member of the Massachusetts Teachers Association and the National Education Association.

4 Quincy Students Finalists In Poem Contest

Four Quincy students have been chosen as finalists in the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's Elementary Education Ecology Poem and Poster Program.

John A. S. McGlennon, Regional EPA Administrator, announced that Greta Gougian, Mike Furey and Jean Duddy of the Squantum School and Paul Anastas of the Quincy School, have been selected as finalists in the program which was carried on throughout the six New England states.

The program was initiated in February when the more than 4,000 elementary teachers who had registered to participate began a series of discussions and lectures relating to environmental matters. The students were then asked to prepare a poem, poster, or short story about the environment. The two best entries from each class were sent to EPA for judging.

A panel of judges representing various civic, social, cultural, and environmental groups reviewed the more than 6,000 entries and selected 300 finalists and 30 meritorious achievement award winners. Each finalist will be sent certificates of recognition and each meritorious achievement award winner will be presented with a placque at a ceremony later this spring.

McGlennon explained that the program was designed to bring about a greater awareness and concern for environmental problems at the elementary level.

Louise Forsyth Receives MSCA Leadership Award

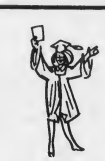
Miss Louise B. Forsyth of the guidance staff of the Quincy Public Schools was honored at the recent annual meeting of the Massachusetts School Counselors Association as the recipient of the MSCA Leadership Award "for outstanding work at local and state levels."

Miss Forsyth has resigned as executive secretary of the association after nine years of service in a number of leadership roles. Speakers credited her with much responsibility for the growth of the MSCA because of her powers of organization and communication.

The MSCA recognition was the culmination of a year of honors beginning when the American School Counselor Association named her Counselor of the Year, Guidance Administrator of the Year, and Professional Writer of the Year.

Miss Forsyth, first woman to hold the offices of president and executive secretary of the MSCA, resigned from the latter office in order to be able to devote more time to her role as moderator of Bethany Congregational Church in Quincy, another position in which she is the first woman to serve.

Coordinator of Guidance Information Services and Testing for the Quincy Public Schools, Miss Forsyth received the MSCA Leadership Award for her outstanding leadership work at the local and state levels.



She has provided leadership in the further development of existing guidance services; interpreted and communicated guidance programs to students, parents, and community; provided outstanding opportunities for professional growth of counselors; and initiated new programs that constructively affect the lives of a school system's staff.

Miss Forsyth has been especially active in the area of testing in Quincy. She publishes a monthly newsletter TEST TALK and has developed three testing aids: A Handbook for Using Test Results, Handbook: City Wide Testing Programs, and Handbook for the Test Resource Center. An initiator and a leader of large group programs, Miss Forsyth also functions as a guidance consultant on a city-wide basis. A forerunner in the area of career education long before the current national emphasis, she developed innovative career awareness programs that have received state and national recognition. Additionally, she has produced regular guidance oriented programs on radio station, WJDA.

Many local, state, and national guidance organizations have benefitted from Miss Forsyth's leadership. She has held all the elective offices in the Massachusetts Counselors Association and is presently serving as Executive Secretary.

4 More Candidates Bring Total To 16

Four more candidates moved into the Quincy city election picture this week, including a second college student with designs on the mayor's office.

This brings to 16 the number of candidates who have announced or taken out papers for mayor and for nine City Council seats.

No School Committee candidates had made an appearance by mid-week.

Latest candidate for mayor is Daniel S. Coughlin, 19, of 152 Holbrook Rd, a student at Fitchburg State College.

Earlier, George H. Manuelian, 20, of 72 Gardner Rd, also a student, took out papers for the office.

McCauley Proposed Amendments To Be Voted On By School Committee

The Quincy School Committee, at its June 13th meeting, will act on two proposed additions to the School Committee rules, proposed by Committeeman Francis X. McCauley.

The first addition would require:

"The Superintendent shall inform the School Committee of any proposed legislation which would enable School Department personnel to obtain permanent Civil Service status by any method other than a competitive examination."

The second addition would require:

"The Superintendent shall present to the School Committee for approval all inter-sectional transfers of funds in the salary expense and capital outlay accounts."

The first addition would prevent a recurrence of a situation that happened earlier this year when special legislation was filed, without School Committee knowledge or approval, to allow two school department employees to obtain Civil Service status by taking qualifying examination instead of competitive Civil Service examinations.

The second addition would provide the School Committee with better information in the area of School Department budgets versus actual expenditures.

● Junior High Baseball

A-N Wins City Title

By BEVERLY RILEY

Ron LaQuaglia coached North Junior High's basketball team to the city championship during the winter.

This spring he took over as coach of the Atlantic-North baseball team and last week won the city crown with a 1-0 win over Point to complete an undefeated season.

Cooper Jordan pitched a three-hitter. The winning run scored in the fourth inning when Mike Holleran walked, stole second and third and scored on Mike Nee's double. Steve Infacelli hurled brilliantly in defeat.

A-N earlier defeated Sterling, 6-3. It was 2-1 going into the final inning when the winners scored four times. Winning pitcher Mike Kelly, drove in the last two runs.

Sterling filled the bases in the last half of the inning with two outs but a line drive back to Kelly ended the game. Paul Vespeziani was the losing pitcher.

Central nipped Point, 4-3. Point scored single runs in each of the first three innings and led, 3-2, but Central scored twice in the fifth to win it.

Jack Hatfield started for Central and was relieved by Dan Duddy. Neil Dwyer pitched for Point and had three hits.

Sterling topped Broad Meadows, 9-5, as Don Poluzzi hit two home runs, one a grand slam, and drove in six runs. Vespeziani, Gary Prezioso and Paul Ramponi had two hits each.

The standings:

	W	L
Atlantic-North	7	0
Sterling	5	2
Point	2	4
Broad Meadows	1	5
Central	1	5

● St. John's Little League

Braves, Yanks, Mets Hold Division Leads

By PUTNAM BORDEN

The Braves and Cardinals remained 1-2 in the National League Division of St. John's Little League as each won two games during the past week.

The American League division resembles the Eastern Division of the American League in the big leagues as the Yankees lead with only a 5-5 record, half a game ahead of the White Sox, 5-6.

The action:

MONDAY, May 21:

Yankees edged the Angels, 10-9 on a last inning single by Anthony Falco. Steve Kozlowski was the winning pitcher in relief. Johnnie Norton hit a three-run triple for the winners and Brian Donnelly had a homer for the losers.

White Sox blanked the Dodgers, 8-0, as Ronnie James pitched two-hit ball with eight strikeouts and four walks and he also had two hits. Jeff Connerty and Mike O'Donnell had two hits each.

TUESDAY, May 22:

The Braves fell behind, 3-0, in the first inning but came back to defeat the Cubs, 7-3. Hits by Ed Linnehan and Jimmy Mullarkey gave the Cubs their lead but the Braves surged on a Mark Hajjar double, triples by Mike Romano, Gary Young and Johnny Mosley and a double and triple by Bob Ciardi. Young was the winning pitcher, striking out 11.

WEDNESDAY, May 23:

The resurgent Giants jumped to a quick 4-0 lead and defeated the Yankees, 4-1, while the Cubs defeated the Red Sox by the same score.

THURSDAY, May 24:

The Red Sox walloped the Dodgers, 10-4, as Jay Baker pitched well and had three for four. Bob MacKenzie, John Breen and Dan Killiea had two hits apiece and Jimmie McKenzie had a long triple.

The Braves edged the White Sox, 2-1, with Jeff Marcel outpitching Jeff Connerty in a great pitchers' duel. Mike Romano tripled and scored the first run and drove in the winner. Ronnie Jones had two hits for the White Sox.

FRIDAY, May 25:

The Cardinals thumped the Yankees, 13-3. Ed Tinney was the winning pitcher as Bob Hennelly had three for four, Jeff McGrail two triples and Dan Flannery a home run.

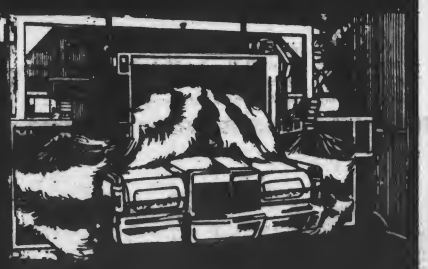
SATURDAY, May 26:

Rich Ryan singled home the only run in the Tigers' 1-0 win over the Giants. Charley Thorley pitched a one-hitter, striking out 16 and walking only one.

The Braves romped over the Yankees, 9-1, with Gary Young pitching a three-hitter and Paul Forbes hitting a three-run homer. Johnnie Mosley had two for three and Steve Kozlowski drove in the only Hank run with a triple.

The Cardinals ran over the Cubs, 10-1, as Jeff McGrail pitched a three-hitter, striking out 14 and walking only two and also had two for three. Dan Flannery and Bob Kennelly had three for three.

In a wild slugfest the Dodgers outlasted the White Sox, 16-15, in eight innings. Greg McDonald hit a grand slam homer while Jimmy Pranger, Steve Morrelli and John Connolly also hit well.



In Farm League action the undefeated Mets won two games, 4-2 over the Phillies and 2-0 over the Indians, while the Phillies nipped the Pirates, 1-0.

Paul Novin and Al Campbell again showed class on the mound for the Mets, while John O'Malley pitched well for the Pirates. Justin and Denny Obert hit homers for the Phils and the Indians' Sid Hajjar and George DiCesare starred at bat and Paul Gilbody sparkled defensively.

Alumni Cafe, A & T Remain Undefeated

Alumni Cafe and A & T Movers continued as the only unbeaten teams in the Quincy Softball League as the season entered its fourth week.

Alumni romped over Walsh's Restaurant, 22-11, and topped China Lido, 11-6, during the past week.

Bob Chute and Rich Goslin led the way for Alumni in the first game, Chute having three hits and driving in four runs while Goslin had a three-run homer. Ken Baker hit two home runs for Walsh's.

Against Lido, John Cleary pitched well for Alumni, which took advantage of some loose defensive play by Lido. Gino Schleicher had three hits for the losers.

Jonathan's thumped Lido, 20-8, as Bob Marsh continued his hot batting [.800 average] but dropped a 14-13 thriller to Walsh's. Dan Gilmartin was four for four and Fred Dearing three for four for Walsh's. Jim D'Nappoli pitched all the way for Walsh's, while Ed Siemers starred in the field.

Barry's Deli continued to be solid in the field but weak at the plate as it dropped a 5-1 decision to Wells Grill, leading the National League East with a 5-1 record.

Two brilliant plays by Noel St. Pierre at third base went for naught as Dick Taylor's pitching and Gary McGrath's bat pulled Wells through.

McGrath hit a bases loaded double to spark a 19-14 Wells win over County Line.

County Line, a fine defensive team trying to get untracted at the plate, lost a heartbreaker in the last inning to Barry's Ship Haven. County Line led most of the game but Matt Kennedy's double and hits by Paul Bregoli, Bob Meehan and Red Farrand won it for Barry's.

Dee Dee's finally broke into the win column with a 10-9 decision over St. Catherine's. The win, however, was costly, as outfielder Steve Daly was lost with a serious leg injury.

Marcel Corp. walloped Mr. Kelly's, 19-9, as the Arria Brothers starred at bat and in the field.

Beau's breezed past Howard Johnson's, 21-7, and edged McInnis Construction, 11-8, in extra innings. Jim Buhl drove in the winning runs.

Palmer Pub scored six runs in the last inning to defeat B & B Health Spa. Steve Goldrick and Chuck Walters sparked the winners, while Paul Nagle was four for four, Mike Flynn three for four and Dave Tabor two for two for B & B.

Paige's collected its first win with a 16-5 romp over B & B. Bill East, Terry Cullen and Matt McKeon led the way for Paige's.

Prescription Parents Meeting In Quincy

Prescription Parents, a group of parents of cleft lip and cleft palate children, founded five months ago to serve parents of children with these defects, now has a mini-group meeting in Quincy.

The group serves the Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth areas under the leadership of Mrs. David Campbell of 24 Hall Place, West Quincy.

Mrs. Campbell said that Prescription Parents began when several Chiefs of Staff at New England Medical Center Hospitals asked a Marshfield mother, Mrs. Donald C. Delaney, herself a mother of a year old son with cleft lip and palate, to create what has become an effective New England wide organization of parents of children with these defects.

New President, Veep

Local 90 Will Elect On June 5

Contests for president and vice-president will highlight the election of new officers when Local 90 [AFL-CIO] members go to the polls June 5.

Local 90, which just three years ago represented 1,100 clerical and technical workers at General Dynamics' Quincy Shipyard, now has only 228 members, reflecting the lack of contracts at the huge shipbuilding facility.

Members will cast their ballots at Jimmie's Cafe, Des Moines Rd., Quincy Point, from 6 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Presidency of the local is open due to the resignation of John Connors.

Charles M. Johnston of Weymouth, executive secretary for the past 13 years, is seeking to move up as president.

He is challenged by Peter Svirsky Jr., of Marshfield, a shop steward.

There is another opening for vice-president due to the resignation of Kenneth McVay who recently accepted a position with Stone & Webster in its labor relations department.

Two write-in candidates are after the vice-presidency: Bernard C. Doherty of Brockton and Arthur Fitzgerald of Weymouth, former president.

Charles E. Ford of Rockland is unopposed for the treasurer's job being vacated by Doherty to run for treasurer.

James David of Mashpee is unopposed for the executive secretary post being vacated by Johnston to seek the presidency. David is a past president.

Incumbent Thomas O'Brien of Braintree has no opposition for re-election as recording secretary.

Eight candidates seek three trustee posts.

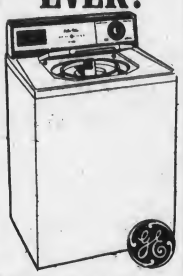
Incumbents Thomas Desmond, Quincy; Fred Murray, Weymouth and Richard T. Shea of Braintree are challenged by Ronald Carpeggiani, Plymouth; Paul Delmonico, Quincy; William Gallivan, Milton; Herbert Gray, Attleboro, David Jackson, Quincy.

Felice Daru Renominated Local 576 Vice-President

Felice Daru of 195 Centre St., Quincy, has been nominated without opposition for another term as vice-president of Local 576 Service Employees Union, AFL-CIO.

Marge Mahan was also nominated without opposition for another term on the executive board.

The local represents six bargaining units for approximately 400 city employees at the Library Department, City Clerk's Office, Veterans Services, City Hospital power plant, laboratory, maintenance and pharmacy departments.



Jaycees To Honor Richard Koch June 12

The Quincy Jaycees will present their eighth annual distinguished service award to Richard J. Koch, executive secretary of the Quincy Park and Recreation Board and founder of the Koch Club.

Koch will be honored for outstanding service to the city of Quincy at a banquet June 12 at the Morrisette Post.

Having A Good Time Only Interest?

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

I was told, recently, by a gentleman whose age and experience caused me to pay heed to his words, that most senior citizens are only interested in one thing; having a good time.

Now, this may be very true. It may well be that bus trips, dances, luncheons, card parties, beano, etc., are the activities foremost in the minds of our older citizens. It may be that these activities are seen as the reward for a lifetime of hard work.

If this is completely true, then the efforts of people like Mr. Frank Manning, who lashes out at the neglect, the lack of respect, the financial exploitation and the nationwide manifestations of agism accorded the elderly, are probably misdirected.

Instead of attempting to restore the dignity of age, we should be building upon those concepts that picture older people as crochety, infantile, and completely unable to fend for themselves or contribute to our community. We should recognize, perhaps, that at the mystical age of 65, the brain turns to jelly and the body falls apart.

I don't buy it!

I've seen too much worthwhile work being done by women in their 60's, 70's and even 80's. I've listened to many men express their bitterness at being consigned to the ash heap through compulsory retirement. Yes, maybe all senior citizens want is a "good time" but who is to define what "good time" means.

Isn't it possible that even though many do consider social activities the things of most importance, and certainly, no fault can be found with any individual who makes such a choice. This is a choice he or she has earned.

Isn't it possible that for many, many, others, if alternatives were available, a "good time" might prove to be something entirely different.

One alternative which every senior citizen in Quincy or any other city or town should consider well is that of community service. The concept of community service is traditional in this part of the country. It is also a basic tenant of the Christian-Judaic ethic; it is more blessed to give than to receive. May I suggest that everyone of us should give careful thought to playing a part in the effort to provide the multitude of needed services within our community.

How might one who sees community service as a means of "having a good time", become involved? First, do a little self analysis. Decide what it is you might like to do, what skills and talents you, as an individual have, how often and for how long, in terms of hours, you might wish to be involved and could you conveniently get back and forth from your home. This kind of information is important.

Where are these opportunities? Who wants or needs older people? Does anybody really care to use us? All honest, legitimate questions which, based upon the way our culture reacts to its older participants are not at all surprising. Well, there are opportunities. At the recent conference sponsored by Mayor Hannon, we found that better then two-thirds of the social service agencies in our community would welcome older volunteers, in fact in many cases desperately need your help. Agencies providing health care, education, and many other services have indicated a willingness to use senior citizens in a multitude of rolls.

The Senior Scene

R.S.V.P. Coming To Quincy Soon

R.S.V.P. [Retired Senior Volunteer Program], subject to approval of a proposal to be submitted in the immediate future, will be coming to Quincy.

The federally funded ACTION program, administered through the State Executive Office of Elder Affairs, provides enabling funds to establish a program through which, senior-citizens wishing to become involved in volunteer community service, can find such opportunities.

By establishing a focal point within the community, the program facilitates the bringing together of older people who have skills, talents, and a desire to serve their community with many social service agencies having work requirements.

A recent exploratory conference conducted by Mayor Walter J. Hannon and Putnam S. Borden, executive director, Quincy Council on Aging, revealed that many such opportunities are currently available. Of 34 participating service agencies, better than two-thirds have indicated a desire to have R.S.V.P. stations established within their organizations.

In addition to providing volunteer service opportunities to older citizens R.S.V.P. also permits reimbursing participants for travel and meal expenses incurred while on the job.

The proposal is currently being prepared by the Quincy Council on Aging and it is believed that if accepted, it will bring some $25,000-$35,000 to the South Shore area.

The scheduled program of issuing half-fare MBTA ID cards to Quincy's senior citizens suffered a last minute setback.

Publicized to take place May 29 at the Woodward School for Girls, the program was cancelled May 25 at 2:30 p.m.

Putnam S. Borden executive director of the Council on Aging who had coordinated the program at Mayor Hannon's request was advised at that time, the MBTA vehicle containing all the photographic equipment had been stolen and the program would have to be postponed indefinitely.

Borden said that as soon as a new date is scheduled, it would be made public and offered the City's apologies for any inconvenience caused older residents by the MBTA's cancellation.

FALLS FATAL TO OLDSTERS

The statistics concerning the rate of fatality from accidental falls by older people is shocking. Of the 20,000 persons killed last year by accidental home falls, almost 15,000 were over 65 years old. You can do something to prevent many of these needless tragedies.

Did you know that there are special aids for the elderly to compensate for failing muscle power and a tendency toward dizziness when stooping or getting up too fast?

For example, why not place a spring-held pole jack, with or without, the usual lamp attachment, next to the chair or bed so a person can grab it to pull himself up?

To prevent unnedessary bending to tie shoes, you can buy nylon elastic shoelaces and a long, 18 inch shoehorn.

Also on the market is an adjustable bathtub seat so that an elderly person can sit at a comfortable height while bathing without the fear of getting up with difficulty.

Southwest Council Opposes Quarry St. Land Sale

Further sale of city owned land on Quarry St. is opposed by the Southwest Community Council.

Council President Evelyn Crews reports that the group unanimously voted opposition at a recent meeting.

Members, she said, did so for three reasons:

- There is no land in southwest Quincy designated for open space.
- A portion proposed to be sold to the Quincy Elks "would cut the remaining land into two separate pieces...this would make the use of these portions less desirable.
- The City Council voted for a near half million dollar bond issue to purchase open space in Squantum and Germantown. It would be contradictory to sell the open space that the city still owns.

The Southwest Community Council thus joins with the Quincy Citizens Association and the South Quincy Civic Association in opposing the sale of Quarry St. land.

The Quincy Elks have offered the city $100,000 for a five-acre tract.

The Southwest Community Council plans to present petitions containing 1,200 names to the Planning Board today [Thursday] at a public hearing on the Elks proposed purchase.

The petitions oppose the sale of the Quarry St. land.

The hearing is scheduled for 3 p.m. at the Public Works Department conference room, Sea St.

Check the stakes

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: When playing cards with strangers, is it proper to ask what the stakes are? — Joan MacB.

Dear Joan: Of course. It's better to ask than be faced with a bill you're hard pressed to pay.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: I know my brother's wife is my sister-in-law but is she my husband's sister-in-law also? — Angie.

Dear Angie: Not technically, but generally she'd be considered so.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: Where does one put used paper guest towels. How about the linen kind? — Alberta T.

Dear Alberta: Used paper guest towels should be discarded in the wastebasket, if one is provided. Otherwise leave them rumpled at the edge of the basin, just as you would the linen ones.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: Let me add to your answer to Delores who never knew what to say to people at parties. I suffer from the same problem, and before I leave for the party I jot down two or three items of national, international and local interest. I've found you don't have to wait for an answer when you pose a question such as, "And what do you think of the oil depletion allowance?" The first group is still debating the question as I move on to ask another group!

Dear Mrs. Tobin: I want my father to give me away when I'm married. He and my mother have been divorced for 15 years, and she says she won't even attend if my father is there. She says my stepfather has been my real father for all these years, but I still feel my blood father should be with me on this special day. Mrs. Tobin, what should I do to make everyone happy? — Unhappy in Idaho.

Dear Unhappy: You can argue the points until everyone concerned is 100 years old without reaching a happy compromise. My suggestion is that you and your fiance have a quiet ceremony away from the battlefield. Afterwards you can have a pair of receptions, one to include your mother and stepfather and the second with your father and his friends. Yours is another example of the repercussions of divorce. Remember this when you have your own daughter!

'In Love With Life'

Graduates Reject 'Pied Piper Of Doom' Says Dr. Creedon

High School graduates of 1973 "have clearly rejected all of the doomsday sociology that has been so prevalent in our society in recent times," says Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon, superintendent of Quincy Schools.

In remarks prepared for delivery Wednesday night at the joint commencement of Quincy and North Quincy High School and Quincy Vocational Technical School, Dr. Creedon said:

"It is obvious to me that they are in love with life and are excited about the world of opportunities that are now within their grasp.

"They want to share in many of the wonderful things and experiences that their parents and grandparents have told them about.

"The American dream is an ideal they feel is within their grasp.

"In rejecting the pied pipers of doom and despair, tonight's graduates have lifted their heads and their hearts and like Jonathan Livingston Seagull have come to realize that:

" 'The gull sees the farthest who flies the highest.' "

Nearly 1,150 seniors were scheduled to graduate from the three city high schools – 500 from Quincy, 479 from North Quincy and 170 from the Vocational Technical School.

Quincy was the host school at the 6 p.m. ceremonies at Veterans Memorial Stadium.

Capt. Brudno Services Friday

It Appeared He Had Everything To Live For

It appeared he had everything to live for.

"We felt wonderful to be on American soil," Air Force Capt. James C. Brudno told his parents by telephone from Clark Air Force Base in the Philippines when he was released after 7½ years in a North Vietnam prison camp.

"We wept tears of joy as we heard the cheers of the crowds that lined the streets."

He had no problems, he told his parents, Dr. and Mrs. James Brudno of Buckingham Rd, Wollaston, in a strong, clear voice, and he added jokingly, "except for gray hair."

He couldn't describe his "fantastic excitement of being reborn" when he arrived at Westover Air Force Base in Chicopee in mid-February.

He and his wife, the former Deborah Gittenstein, who was a bride of seven months when his plane was shot down over North Vietnam on Oct. 18, 1965, were inseparable during his debriefing at Westover..

Seven and a half years of back pay removed immediate financial worries and he was talking enthusiastically about doing graduate work at MIT, where he received a bachelor's degree in aeronautics and astronautics in 1963.

He spoke, perhaps jokingly, of becoming an astronaut.

Then, last Sunday morning, the day before his 33rd birthday, he was dead, apparently by his own hand.

His body was found in a darkened room of his mother-in-law's home in the fashionable New York suburb of Harrison, a plastic bag over his head and a note by his side which read, in French:

"There is no sense to living any longer. My life is no longer worth living."

There was an air of mystery about his death but the biggest mystery of all was the question: Why?

Services for Capt. Brudno will be held Friday at 10 a.m. at Temple Beth El in Quincy. Burial will be in Sharon.

City Hall observers rate Rep. Thomas Brownell's taking of nomination papers for councillor-at-large the political surprise of the year [So far].

Speculation is now that a seat for councillor-at-large may open up, and indications point to Council President Arthur Tobin's. Tobin has indicated no decision one way or the other, but should he step down, a scramble for his council seat would be a highlight of this year's city elections.

Councillor-at-large Joseph LaRaia and John Quinn are expected to seek re-election.

COUNCILLOR Clifford Marshall greeted guests at his fund raiser at Fore River Club House on crutches. He broke a bone in his foot at the recent Quincy Youth Hockey Association cook out.

Marshall's father-in-law, John Caporale of Quincy Point estimated the turn out at 600.

ONE OF THOSE attending Marshall's time was Rep. Thomas O'Neill,3rd of Cambridge [son of U.S. House of Representatives, Majority Leader "Tip" O'Neill]. O'Neill sits next to Marshall in the Massachusetts House.

ASST. DIST. ATTY. Jeffrey LaPoint, has let it be known that if Marshall vacates the representative seat to run for county sheriff, he'll be a candidate for the position in 1974.

Incidentally, LaPointe lives in the same Hughes St. apartment once occupied by former Mayor Amelio DellaChiesa, who was also the last person from South Quincy to be elected to the state legislature.

AN ITEM THAT APPEARED two weeks ago still has the State House buzzing: that Senator Arthur Tobin is being mentioned as a candidate for Lieutenant Governor.

Besides his credentials, Tobin has the advantage of having a proven vote getting name, in Suffolk County as well as Norfolk. Tobin is being talked about more and more, and you can be certain that he is seriously considering the offer.

SMILE DEPT: from the Rotary Club newsletter: In an attempt to raise more money, Congress may slap a tax on girdles; probably will call it a width-holding tax.

- Envelopes Stuffed With Money
- Show Biz, Military Style
- The Favor Traders

WASHINGTON — Sources with access to the secret Watergate testimony have told us the details of how White House aides arranged the delivery of sealed envelopes stuffed with cash to the Watergate defendants, allegedly to buy their silence.

Ex-White House Counsel John Dean enlisted the President's personal attorney, Herb Kalmbach, to handle the money. The two men met, by prearrangement, on the street in front of Washington's Hay-Adams hotel so it would appear to be a chance meeting.

Kalmbach issued cashiers' checks to a New York undercoverman, named Antony Ulasewicz, who previously had been employed by the White House to dig up dirt on Sen. Ted Kennedy. Ulasewicz contacted Watergate ringleader E. Howard Hunt's wife, Dorothy, who had been instructed to wait by the telephone for the mysterious call.

Then Dorothy Hunt, using the code name "Chris," would call the Watergate defendants and arrange to slip them the cash.

All the phone calls, beginning with Kalmbach, would be made on pay phones.

In fairness to Kalmbach, he was disturbed about the cloak-and-dagger arrangements and went straight to White House aide John Ehrlichman to make sure the payments were proper. Ehrlichman reassured him it was in the national interest. White House aides, who arranged the payments, claim the money was intended to pay the legitimate living and legal expenses of the defendants.

Military Show Biz: Military recruiters are encountering problems signing up soldiers since the draft was phased out.

Investigators in Wisconsin found that the Army was accepting men who had been "permanently rejected" by the Selective Service. Some had failed the Army's basic intelligence test. Others had missing trigger fingers, deranged elbows, pins in their hips, heart disease and psychiatric problems.

In addition, the armed forces permit servicemen to serve in their home towns as assistants to the local recruiting officers. The theory is that the young soldiers and sailors will convince their buddies to sign up.

The Pentagon claims the program is "successful." We have received complaints from recruiting sergeants, however, that it isn't working. The young servicemen usually sign up one or two friends, then spend the rest of their time fetching coffee and doughnuts.

In Wooster, Ohio, the Navy wanted to catch the attention of local college students. A dramatic swearing-in ceremony was arranged 12,000 feet above the city before whirring TV cameras. The Navy brought an ultramodern $10 million, antisubmarine airplane all the way from Orlando, Fla., for the occasion, at a cost to the taxpayers of $88 per flying hour, not to mention the salaries of the eight-man crew.

The Favor Traders: Congressmen are constantly trading favors along with backslaps with lucrative lobbyists on Capitol Hill. Here are some of the latest favors talked about in congressional cloakrooms.

- Representative Burt Talcott, R-Calif., recently put the squeeze on the lobbyists to furnish the prizes for the annual congressional golf tournament. The gifts ranged from golf clubs and furniture to two gaily decorated toilet seats.
- Representative Richard Hanna, D-Calif., has inserted into the Congressional Record speeches which were laudatory of a Southern California homebuilding company. The firm has used the Congressional Record articles in its advertising and promotion. Not surprisingly, one of the founders of the company has contributed heavily to Hanna's campaigns. Recently, Hanna was named as an unpaid director of the construction company's parent firm.
- Representative Robert Jones, D-Ala., sits on a House committee which controls the highway trust fund. To the delight of the highway lobby, Jones is opposed to spending the funds for mass transit systems. Last month, he put his reasons in writing and the American Road Builders Association published them. Jones got $300 for his efforts. This is a very convenient fee. Had he received a penny more, he would have been required to report the extra income.

Mayor Proclaims Kiddie Kamp Week

Mayor Walter Hannon has proclaimed this week "Kiddie Kamp Week"

Kiddie Kamp is a summer camp in Sharon that provides needy and deserving boys from disadvantaged areas with an enriching camping experience.

Each summer, more than 1,000 underprivileged boys are given the opportunity to camp and swim at a 300 acre site on Lake Massapoag.

The children also learn how to relate to children of other races and religions, how to accept authority, communicate with peers and adults, accept group decisions and carry out responsibilities.

All of the funds required to operate the camp come from private donations. And the Knights of Pythias President's Lodge No. 62 of Quincy is currently sponsoring a campaign to help raise needed funds.

Donations may be sent to the lodge in care of David Silverman, 30 President Gardens Drive, Quincy, Mass. 02169 payable to: Kiddie Kamp.

Anyone interested in receiving applications to apply for Kiddie Kamp may write to: Kiddie Kamp, 121 Lakeview St., Sharon, Mass. 02067.

Jim Asher

Like most men, Jim Asher had his special dream.

Most men don't get to really see their dreams come true. But he did.

While doing graduate work at the Harvard University School of Business Administration, the young Kansas native became acquainted with the Boston area.

And in the late 1930's, he was a clothing salesman in Boston and here at a Quincy store.

He thought the Quincy area had good business potential. But instead of opening up a clothing store he decided to try a radio station.

He had a fascination for the No. 13. So on Sept. 13, 1947, WJDA went on the air--at 1300--on the dial.

"We had about $130 [that number again] in the bank and a lot of hope," he once recalled.

He didn't know much about radio. But he was willing to try.

And he ignored some of the so-called experts who were predicting WJDA wouldn't last six months. Quincy was too small and too close to Boston for a station of its own, they insisted.

What they didn't take into consideration was Jim's drive and determination. He made it. Today, the station that couldn't last is in its 26th year and one of the most successful in the nation.

Jim's dry wit and his homey broadcasting style made getting up early a must for many listeners in the area. During his "Breakfast With JDA" from 6:30 a.m. to 8 a.m. [until his illness in 1972] Jim's listeners got such inside low down on the latest cribbage match with John [Zep] Duane or what Freddy Lane in the control room was doing for excitement, or they chuckled over Belinda, the mooing cow, who sounded so real people wanted to know how much hay she ate.

Jim, people have said, was a success in life.

But he was much more than that. He was a success as a human being.

True, he was a sharp businessman who could be tough when needed. But he was a good family man, a square shooter who believed in fair play, and was always ready to offer a helping hand.

Jim, for an example, was an inspiration to us in founding the Quincy Sun.

Our decision to bring a community oriented weekly newspaper to Quincy was made with the realization that he had blazed the trail before us. He had proved there was room here for a radio station. We both thought there was now room here for a weekly newspaper, too.

Jim offered us encouragement before and after we started The Sun. He did this despite the fact that we were going to cut into the existing advertising dollar in the area.

That didn't bother him.

He went out of his way many times to "plug" The Sun on the air quoting excerpts or asking, "Did you see that item in The Sun? His frequent mentioning of us helped make many people aware of the fact that there was another newspaper in town.

We will always be grateful to Jim for his kindness to us. He was a good friend.

The Quincy-South Shore area has also lost a good friend. Both he and WJDA have been active in many civic causes.

Jim is gone, but he leaves his radio station as a legacy for us all.

The station's call letters WJDA, of course, are his initials--James Dudley Asher. Many people will remember him that way.

But having his own initials for call letters didn't impress him that much. In fact, it was only one of several submitted to the FCC for approval. They gave WJDA the green light.

What he was really proud of was what he once told us: "We're a family station."

Men like Jim Asher don't come this way very often. Quincy is indeed fortunate that he did.

So long, Jim.

● QUESTION OF THE WEEK

'How Do You Write The President ?'

"How do you write to the President?" ask many callers to the League of Women Voters' Voter Information Phone.

People want to express their views on foreign policy or pending legislation to the President and to their Congressmen and want to know exactly how to address their letters to these officials.

The Voter Information Phone reported that the forms of address vary slightly but the following general format will serve to reach elected officials in Washington:

The President
The White House
Washington, D.C. 20500

Dear Mr. President:

Senator:
The Honorable Jennifer Smith
United States Senate
Washington, D.C. 20510

Dear Senator Smith:

Representative:
The Honorable John Doe
House of Representatives
Washington, D.C. 20515

Dear Mr. Doe:

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters' Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP Phone Monday through Friday between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - I have just graduated from a private training school which promised me a high-salaried job after completion of the course. So far, I have been unable to find a job. I feel that this school has deceived me and wonder if such unrealistic claims are against the law?

A - Under the Consumer Protection regulations adopted in 1971, it is an unfair and deceptive practive for private business schools to make unrealistic, "earn up to" claims, promising their students top-salaried positions after graduation.

Q - My landlord recently raised my rent because of a property tax increase voted in my town. Do I have an obligation to pay his tax increase?

A - Most leases in the Boston area include a tax escalator clause which stipulates that any tax increase will be passed on to the tenant. But the tenant is obliged to pay only a proportionate share of the increase. If the yearly tax increase totalled $4,500 for a 15 unit building, each individual tenant would be required to pay an extra $25 a month to cover the increase.

If you feel you are paying more than your proportionate share, check with the local tax assessors office to determine the tax increase on your landlord's property. If the rent increase is, in fact, more than your fair share, contact the Consumer Protection Division of my office.

Q - I was recently forced to pay a $15 service charge to a repairman for fixing my washing machine at home. This was in addition to the actual cost of the repair. Isn't the serviceman obliged to tell me that a service charge will be imposed?

A - Yes. For "in home" service calls, the repairman must state before any work is done that a service charge will be levied over and above the actual cost of the repair.

Consumer questions should be sent to Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn, "Consumer Questions", Room 373, State House, Boston, Mass. 02133.

Leo Kelly Commends Councillor Graham

Editor, Quincy Sun:

Watergate, which has been dominating the news of late, is fast becoming synonimous with misguided political campaigning. It gives emphasis to those people who have always considered political campaigns to be dirty.

In the past city election, I was Ward-one Councilor Edward S. Graham's opponent. It was my first attempt at elected office, and I had some apprehension pertaining to campaigns, but Councilor Graham, at all times, conducted himself, as a gentleman. The campaign was conducted strictly on the issues, personalities did not enter into it.

Councilor Graham has officially stated because of demanding responsibilities of his job, as assistant superintendent of the Mass. Hospital for Handicapped Children in Canton, he will not seek re-election.

I wish Councilor Graham the best of luck, and thank him for a campaign that was completely above board.

German Pastor To Preach Sunday At Trinity Lutheran Church

Rev. Klaus Seidenstucker, pastor of St. Martini Church in Netphen, Germany, is visiting Trinity Lutheran Church, 65 Roberts St., Quincy.

Pastor Seidenstucker will preach, in English, the sermon on Pentecost, at Trinity Lutheran June 10 at 10 a.m. He will meet with Mayor Walter Hannon today [Thursday] and be made an honorary citizen of Quincy.

Pastor Seidenstucker is here on an exchange program sponsored by the Northeastern Association of Church and Society. He will be working with Pastor Kimmell within the life of the congregation to study the church situation in America and to make comparisons with the church situation in Germany.

Special emphasis will be placed on the voluntary aspect of the American church and the lay involvement here.

Pastor Seidenstucker did his theological training at Bethel, Bonn, Muenster, Berlin, Germany and was an ecumenical exchange student at Vanderbilt, Tenn. He is a member of the Evangelical Church of Westphalia, Germany. He is also the sixth generation of pastors in his family. The congregation at Nethpen was begun in the late 600's and the existing church was built in 1235. It was within this congregation that Pastor Kimmell served for a month last year.

200 Families Attend St. John's HNS Communion Breakfast

St. John Holy Name Society held its annual Family Communion Breakfast Sunday morning at the Sheraton-Tara Motel, Braintree.

Two hundred families heard Rev. John J. Tierney, pastor, speak about lessons that can be learned from the Bible. Fr. Tierney said "we should depend on God's help because he is anxious to assist us, but that we must have trust and confidence in Him or he can act vengefully as he did in the Old Testament when he made the Israelites wander for 40 years in the desert."

Society President Fred Fostello, who was toastmaster, presented gifts to Rev. Tierney, Richard Fettig and Miss Mary Steinkrauss, secretary of the Parish.

The committee included, in addition to Fostello, Vice President Arthur Davidson, Treasurer Anthony Quintiliani, Secretary Vincent Villard, Joseph Accolo, James Connell, Tony Constantino, Aldo Saluti and Frank Rusconi.

Among those attending with their families were Senator Arthur Tobin, Assistant Superintendent of Schools Maurice Daly and President of the South Shore District Holy Name Society Joseph Kahler.

Firefighters Memorial Services Sunday

The Quincy Firemen's Relief Association will hold annual memorial exercises for the city's deceased firefighters Sunday [June 10] at 10:30 a.m. at the Quincy Firemen's Memorial Monument in Mount Wollaston Cemetery.

The formal exercises, presided over by Fire Chief Edward F. Barry, will be preceded by a parade starting at 10 a.m. from the Central Fire Station and moving down Hancock Street and Coddington Street to the cemetery.

Also participating in the exercises will be officers of the Quincy Firemen's Relief Association, Americo Speranzo, president; Joseph Lemieux, vice president; Joseph Malvesti, treasurer; and John Bille, secretary.

In the event of rain, the program will be held in the United Spanish War Veterans Hall, 24 High School Ave.

Due to an unforseen delay, invitations to the ceremonies were mailed late, for which Association Secretary Bille extended apologies to the invited guests.

'Loneliness' Sermon At First Parish Church

Rev. John R. Graham will speak on "What To Do With Loneliness?" at 10:45 a.m. Sunday [June 10] at United First Parish Church.

It is the second in a series of Sunday sermons on the topic: "Questions Confronting Us."

Quincy Rotary: A Half- Century Of Dedication, Helping Others

By DICK MATTULINA

The Quincy Rotary Club has come a long way in its first 50 years, according to Rotarian John J. Quinn.

He is the club's fourth president and has been a member since 1923.

Quinn, outlined the history of the club at 50th anniversary festivities May 30 at the Sheraton Tara in Braintree.

"When the Quincy Club received its charter [in 1922] from Rotary International, it was in the years soon after World War I and the Rotary movement was relatively new," he said.

One of the first acts of the chapter was to sponsor the charter of the Braintree club which is also celebrating its 50th anniversary.

The first president of Quincy Rotary was Harry E. D. Gould, general superintendent of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Plant at Fore River.

"Harry was a dynamic person with a love and know-how of ships and shipbuilding that earned for him and the Fore River Yard national recognition and acclaim," Quinn said.

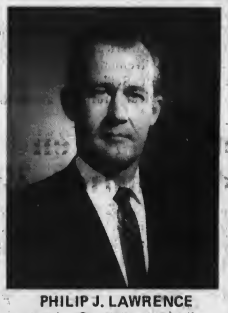
He said the late Robert Gaskill, executive director of the YMCA, "was a mighty force in organizing" the club as its first secretary and second president.

"Two of our charter members were clergymen ... Rev. Eric Lindh of Bethany Congregational Church and Rev. Michael J. Cuddihy of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church," he said.

Quinn recalled a time in the 1920's when members sang on the steps of the First Parish Church to inaugurate International Boys' Week, a youth project of Rotary International.

"Locations for our weekly luncheon meetings have been up and down before coming to the attractive Quincy Neighborhood Club," he said.

"The initial meetings were likely to have been in the YMCA, then on Washington St. near the Post Office.



"It was not long before members climbed up two flights to the Quincy Savings Bank building" and then headed back "down to the basement of the Elks Home on Hancock St."

The club's next move "was up to the top floor of the Cliveden Building on Hancock St. next to Remick's," where they established "Rotary Hall with kitchen, lounge and meeting facilities that were used by our club and at times by others."

Quincy Rotary launched a Rotary Student Loan Fund in 1924 to "start boys in college," Quinn said.

"Two years later girls were made eligible 'in any year that a qualified boy was not available,' " he said.

"Substantial help" was also given to handicapped students at the Massachusetts Hospital School for Crippled Children at Canton beginning in the 1920's.

"The big event each year was the caravan of members' cars from Canton to Nantasket, where rides and games at Paragon Park with goodies and lunch made each annual event memorable," he said.

Quinn said the club helped dedicate a swimming pool at the Norfolk County Hospital in Braintree Highlands "some years later."

"Later club projects have included the Rotary Field at the YMCA; self-help homes for Koreans; support for Family counseling; cerebral palsy; Massachusetts Bay United Fund and, at the suggestion of our late beloved Dr. Charles Djerf, a donation of furniture at Quincy Hospital Pediatrics Section.

"I am confident there are many others," he said.

"As we start a second half century, we might ask 'Are we going in the right direction?'

"Like the reply of the cat in Alice In Wonderland, when asked that question, 'That depends on where we want to go.'

"May the next 50 years of Rotary bring ever increasing benefits to all," Quinn said.

A Message From The President

Fifty men before me shared the privilege that this year is mine; namely, to serve as President of the Quincy Rotary Club.

Their achievements, distinctions and stature have brought to Quincy Rotary a position of pre-eminence in our community that is unsurpassed by any service club in our city, nation or world.

To chart the growth of the Quincy Rotary for the past fifty years is but to observe the growth of the City of Quincy. It would be difficult to find a civic, religious, charitable or non-profit organization that Quincy Rotary has not supported and in which Rotarians have not been deeply involved.

In an era when it is difficult to find men who dedicate their lives to God, country and community, Quincy Rotary is proud of its members who put "Service Above Self".

To the men who have served Quincy Rotary in the past, to those who serve it now, and who will continue to serve for centuries to come, ..Congratulations.

Rotarily,
Edward F. Percy

Greetings From The Mayor

I am pleased to have this opportunity to commend the Quincy Rotary Club on the celebration of fifty years service in the City of Quincy.

Fifty years ago, men from all walks of life organized together in Rotary for a single purpose: to serve. Today, Rotarians are still bound by that one end.

The success of the Quincy Rotary is the result of the enthusiasm of dedicated men who believed in the spirit of Rotary and wanted to see that influence expanded and strengthened, not only here in Quincy, but in the nation and world as well.

Through its facility for unselfish cooperation, Rotary has involved itself in serving the needs of the community, while at the same time, providing a ground for constructive leadership, a valuable asset to any community.

As Mayor, I would like to lead the citizens of Quincy in a salute to Rotary's Fiftieth Anniversary!

Rotary Club Born During Prohibition, Crystal Sets

The Quincy Rotary Club was born in an era of bathtub gin, jitney cabs and cat's whisker radios, according to John J. Quinn.

Quinn, a member of the club for almost all of its 50 years, recalled the days when Model A's, Maxwells, Pierce-Arrows, Franklins and Stutzes dotted Quincy streets.

There was "no TV or hi-fi" in those days, he said, and the only radios were self-assembled crystal sets "with stations located by a finder that was called a 'cat's whisker,'"

"We were nearing the end of trolley service, though you could still ride for 5 cents in some cities. We did have trolleys and some private jitneys in Quincy into the early 20's," Quinn said.

The club's public affairs committee urged members in 1923 to "secure the use of meadow lands adjourning the railroad for parking purposes," he said.

The land was known then as "Grossman Meadows" and is now the Charles A. Ross Parking Area.

"When Rotary came to Quincy, we did have – though not to our credit – prohibition, speak-easies, bathtub gin, rum runners and gangsters," he said.

"To our credit, we finally secured votes for women."

"Those were also the years when Walt Disney was making his first motion pictures and Amelia Earheart and other pioneers were flying from Dennison Airport in Squantum."

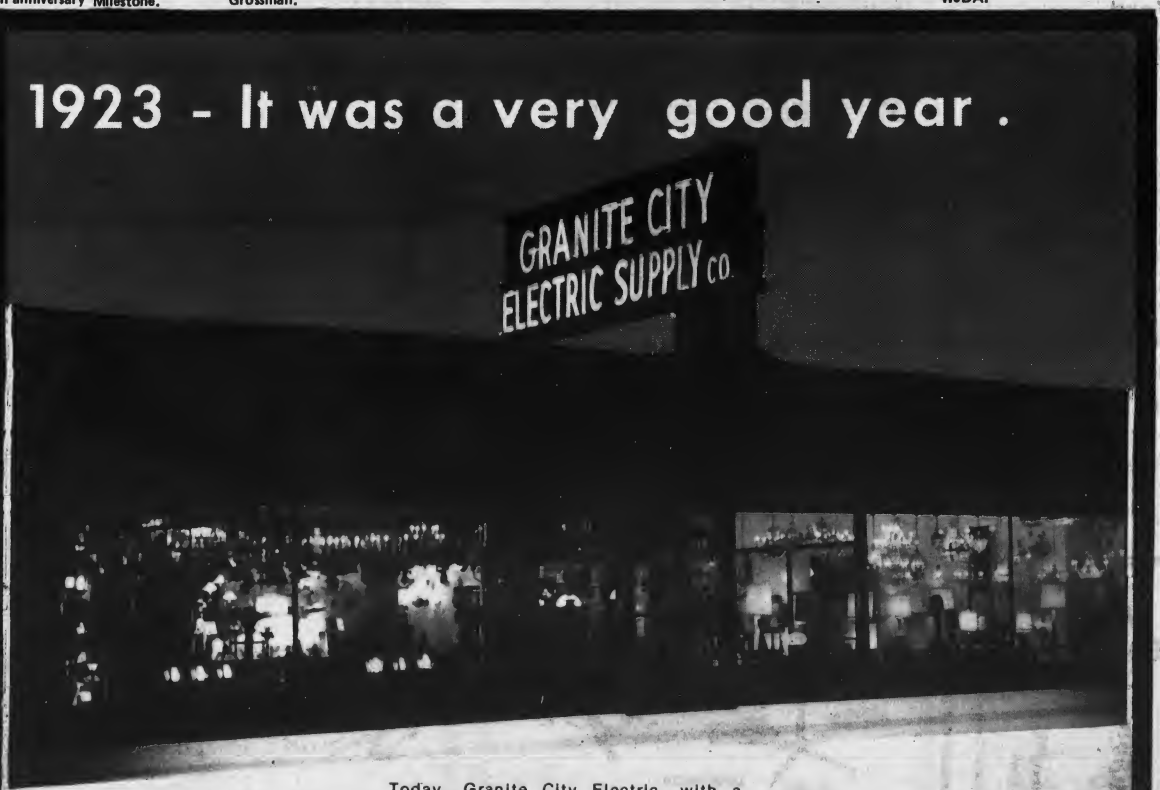
ON THE ANNIVERSARY

OF ITS

50th YEAR

DISTRICT GOVERNOR Edmond Demski a past president of Quincy Rotary, enjoys club's 50th anniversary Milestone.



ROTARY PENNANT and flags provide backdrop for headtable guests. From right to left: Past President John J. Quinn, Mrs. Percy Hodgson, Percy Hodgson, Mrs. Billye Demski, Mrs. Ann Percy, Edward Percy, Kenneth Fallon, Mayor and Mrs. Walter Hannon, Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Reilly, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph B. Grossman.

TOASTMASTER for the historic occasion was club member Kenneth P. Fallon, Jr., of WJDA.

1923 - It was a very good year.

It was a good year for starting the Quincy Rotary Club.-
And it was a good year for Nick Papani, who started Granite City Electric Supply Company — to better serve his fellow electrical contractors. Nick wasn't a charter member of the Quincy Rotary, but like the Rotary, his Granite City Electric grew and prospered through service to the community.

Today, Granite City Electric, with a warehouse branch on Cape Cod, serves electrical contractors all over Southeastern Massachusetts, with the largest inventory of electrical supplies in the region. A wide selection of lighting fixtures brightens up our showrooms on Quincy Avenue.
Granite City Electric salutes the Quincy Rotary's 50 years of service and hopes for another 50 as good as the first.

Quincy High-Voc. Tech NEWS

Written by members of the Quincy High School Journalism Class

STUDENTS line up to register to vote at Quincy Vocational Technical High School. More than 212 signed up.

212 Students Register To Vote

By RON IACOBUCCI

A voter registration session was conducted recently at QHVTS by City Clerk John Gillis. He came at the request of students at the school.

The visit by Mr. Gillis was a productive one: 24 new Democrats, 4 new Republicans, and 184 Independents. A total of 212 students registered in less than one hour's time.

The registration session enabled students, who were coordinating the event, to inform and encourage other students to participate and become involved in the democratic process. The turn-out of 212 students speaks for itself.

Quincy is fortunate to have a man such as John Gillis who was willing to accommodate the students.

Legislation is pending in the General Court that will give students the right to directly petition a registrar or election commissioner to conduct registration sessions in high schools or vocational schools. The "right" as exemplified by QHVTS students in this recent registration session is both justified and well deserved.

SENATOR Arthur H. Tobin and Ron Iacobucci are interviewed by Linda DiSalvio as they work out plans for the slide-tape presentation on how a bill becomes law.

Senate Bill No. 1546

Senator Tobin, Students Work To Increase Voter Registration

By LINDA DiSALVIO

A number of students of QHVTS have been working very closely with Senator Arthur H. Tobin on acquiring a knowledge of legislative matters and procedure.

This association began when a student at QHVTS, Ron Iacobucci, submitted a bill, as part of a social studies project, that would create the right for 18 year old voters to petition a registrar or election commissioner to conduct voter registration sessions at their high school or vocational school.

The bill, Senate No. 1546, has received widespread support from students at QHVTS and across the state.

A number of students took an active interest in following the progress of the bill. As participants in this project they encountered a learning experience a classroom was incapable of providing. The students attended committee hearings, conducted letter writing campaigns, and discussed legislative procedure with state legislators.

At present, Senate bill 1546 is waiting for Senate enactment so that it may be sent to the Governor for his consideration.

A slide-tape presentation is planned on the legislative process and how a bill becomes a law; using this bill as an example. The slide-tape presentation will be done in conjunction with Senator Tobin, the Social Studies Department at QHVTS and Iacobucci, a student at the school. The slide-tape presentation will trace the bill from its inception to the signature of Governor Sargent making it the law of the Commonwealth.

The slide-tape presentation will be a detailed account of how a bill becomes law; and will necessitate pictures and interviews of key people [ie, Senate President, Speaker, Committee members, clerks, etc.] who play a role in the legislative process.

One such person, who has been a tremendous asset to the students at QHVTS and a prime mover of the bill is Senator Tobin. He filed the bill, supported the bill, and has employed every means possible to urge it's passage.

Senator Tobin strongly feels that voter registration in high schools and vocational schools is an excellent idea. He believes that it will facilitate the process of voter registration and will enable students to participate in the democratic process in their schools.

Others who have played vital roles in the progress of Senate bill 1546 are; Representatives Clifford Marshall, William Delahunt, Thomas Brownell and Robert Cerasoli Administrative Assistant to Senator Tobin.

Dodgers Rack Up Wins Over Tigers, Sox

In the Quincy Farm League, the Dodgers topped the Red Sox, 5-3, sparked by Brian Sullivan, who had three for three and made a sensational play at shortstop. It was the Dodgers' sixth win in seven games.

Tom McHugh pitched for the Dodgers, striking out 14, giving up six hits and walking only three. The Dodgers trailed by a run going into the final inning but Phil Maloney led off with a single followed by Ernie Debeau's second hit and Bob Bolster and Sullivan also came up with hits to bring in three runs. Tom Canavan had a run-scoring hit and did some fine base running.

Sean Kelly pitched well for the Sox, giving up eight hits, striking out 13 and walking five.

Earlier the Dodgers walloped the Tigers, 9-3, as Sullivan pitched a strong game for five innings and his team came from behind in the sixth to tie the score at 3-3 and then exploded for six runs in the extra inning.

Canavan's double was the big hit. McHugh pitched well in relief, striking out five in two innings and allowing one hit. Phil Maloney, Bob Bolster, Scott Rafferty, Debeau and Sullivan also shone.

In their previous game the Dodgers had rolled over the Indians, 14-5.

Debeau, Sullivan and Maloney teamed up to do the pitching, giving up eight hits and three walks. Canavan went three for three, Rafferty two for four and Debeau two for three. Chip Servant, Paul Murphy and McHugh also had hits.

Morrisette Opens Season Sunday

The Morrisette Legion baseball team, with a familiar face missing, opens its quest for a 19th Zone 6 championship Sunday when it hosts Hingham in a 2 o'clock game at Adams Field.

Coach Ray Cattaneo, seeking his third crown in four years, faces a rebuilding job with his pitching staff but otherwise appears to have another outstanding club.

Missing from the scene this year is Nick Malvesti, long-time coach and athletic director, who piloted Morrisette to 11 zone titles. Nick, now retired, is living in Florida.

Morrisette last year made the finals of the state tourney for the sixth time but again was bridesmaid as it was ousted by Milford. It has never won the state crown.

Cattaneo a year ago had one of the strongest pitching staffs in the state which, in one stretch, turned in six successive shutouts.

However, all four pitchers involved in this amazing streak, Jimmy Walker, Len Pepe, Tony Knasas and Bobby Malvesti, are gone.

The lone returnee is Bob Lane, who saw only limited service last summer.

"I have some outstanding players back from last year, including big Jim Driscoll at first base, Artie Boyle at second, Dave Nelson catching for the fourth year, Mike Marvelle, Lee Watkins and John Warren in the outfield," Cattaneo said.

"These veterans should hold the club together and if our young pitchers come through and the other newcomers do as well as I expect they will, we should give any team in our league a real battle."

Driscoll, a real power hitter is a former North Quincy star playing this year at Cushing Academy; Boyle is from Quincy High playing at U. Mass.; Nelson, former North standout, is at Middlebury College; Marvelle played this year for Quincy, Watkins for North Quincy and Warren, from Quincy High, for Boston State.

Newcomers are Bobby Benn, excellent Quincy High shortstop; Jay Caron from Quincy Babe Ruth League who can play any position; Mark Dwyer, pitcher-second baseman from Quincy High; Warren Jordan, pitcher-infielder from North; Mike DePolo, Quincy High outfielder, and Mike Conroy, North outfielder.

"This year I picked up three boys who still had another year of Junior Babe Ruth League left, so I'll have them for four years," Cattaneo explained. "They are Dennis McGuire, an outfielder; Tim Clifford, a big pitcher, and Steve McKinnon, a fine catcher."

Clifford, only a sophomore, was North's best varsity pitcher this spring, while McGuire and McKinnon excelled for the Raiders' classy [16-1] junior varsity team.

Cattaneo, former Morrisette star himself who played in the Braves farm system, is again being assisted by Bill Corcoran, a former Morrisette pitcher.

Morrisette impressed in exhibition games with Needham, Brockton and Brookline, and looks ready to defend its crown.

Monday night, if Bridgewater-Raynham High is out of the state schoolboy tourney, Morrisette will face Bridgewater in an exhibition game at 8 under the new lights at Adams Field. Tuesday at 6 it will play at Braintree in a league game.

Quincy Legion, with Connie Carlozzi, veteran of many Legion seasons, again coaching, opens Sunday at Weymouth and Wednesday hosts Hingham at 6 at Adams Field.

KIDDY KILLERS

It is understandable how so many hunters can get killed when bullets are whizzing around the woods. But you are just as likely to be killed by a gun at home. About half of the 22,000 firearm fatalities per year happen at home. And about one third of the dead are youngsters under fourteen, who are often the luckless victims of a playmate.

To youngsters, a gun is primarily thought of as a plaything. For example, in California, a three-year-old boy climbed into bed with his mother one morning. Slipping his hand under the pillow, he felt a "toy gun" and pulled the trigger. It killed his mother.

If you keep a gun in the house and have young children, the only tolerable rule of safety is to keep the gun locked up - unloaded and uncocked. Another bonus precaution is to lock the ammunition in a separate place.

Quincy, North Finish With 7-7 Records

The Quincy baseball team, finishing fast after a slow start, and the North Quincy team, faltering late in the year after a strong start, wound up with identical 7-7 records in the Greater Boston League.

But with a little luck both may have been up with the league leaders.

Both teams lost some heartbreaking games. North won both its games with Quincy, the first a 14-inning 6-5 thriller and the second, a 5-4 squeaker. The Raiders lost some tough decisions, including a 4-3 10-inning verdict to Malden and 2-1 squeaker to Revere in which both Revere runs were unearned. And the Presidents also suffered some hard-to-take losses.

"I honestly feel both Quincy and North, man for man, were as good as any team in the league," Quincy's first-year coach, Bud Mosher said. "Both of us could have easily been up with the top teams."

Prospects for both teams are extremely bright for the next year.

Mosher had nine juniors, six of whom played regularly. In addition he is expecting help from several members of the junior varsity squad which, under first-year coach Rich Hutchison, had a 12-5 record.

The Presidents won their last three games of the season, two being pitched by Gary Bugdon, the top hurler, who won four games and lost a couple of well-pitched contests.

Bobby Lane, who did some pitching, was the leading batter with a .400 average, followed by Bob Benn, .359, and Mike Marvelle, .328.

Defensively, the top players were Marvelle in centerfield and George French, who improved tremendously as the season progressed and played well in left field. Benn, rated by Mosher as a real all-scholastic, also shone at shortstop.

"People are probably wondering what I did with the fines I collected from players taking third strikes, getting caught off base, missing signs and other things," Mosher said. "I took the top batters out for a steak dinner when the season was over."

Mosher will have his entire infield, his catcher and a fine pitcher, Mark Dwyer, coming back next year.

North again started fast and Coach Charlie Bunker had high hopes of making the state tourney for the first time. But, as happened the past two years, things got rougher and the Raiders again were eliminated.

Bunker lost his best pitcher, sophomore Tim Clifford, with several games to go and, despite improved pitching performances from Bob Pierce and Bobby Morton, the big youngster was missed down the stretch.

"In our final game against the league champion, Medford, I used many sophomores, including my pitcher," Bunker said.

Clifford pitched some brilliant games for North, while Pierce the ace of the 1972 staff, and Morton, the regular catcher, came fast over the last half of the season.

Pierce had an outstanding year at bat with a .480 average and at one time had seven straight hits, going five for five against Quincy and hitting safely his first two times up in the next game against Malden.

Mike Conroy also hit well with a solid .330 average.

Bunker considers Morton one of the top defensive catchers in the league and no team took many liberties with his strong arm. Another defensive standout was Kevin Jago, rated by his coach as the best defensive third baseman in the league.

Like Mosher, Bunker had a large number of juniors and some good sophomores on the squad and next year will have three-fourths of the infield [only third base will be open], a fine catcher in Mike Devine, backup to Morton, and two outfielders from the varsity, as well as Clifford.

"We had a tremendous junior varsity team, coached for the first time by Lou Ioanilli, which had a 15-1 record," Bunker said. "They lost only to Quincy, 0-9, in their first game. Some of them are really terrific.

Girls Basketball For Junior High

Girls' sports in the two Quincy high schools have progressed at a rapid rate, climaxed this winter with Quincy and North Quincy basketball teams finishing 1-2 in the Greater Boston League.

And, following Athletic Coordinator Carl Leone's promise to expand girls' sports in the schools, a basketball program for the junior high girls will be inaugurated next fall.

This program, needless to say, is good news to the high school coaches, Quincy's Gale Palmer and North's Barbara Webster.

"You need a good junior high program if you want successful high school teams," Miss Webster said. "In most other cities and towns there are fine junior high programs but here you get a girl in high school who has had little or no experience. A few of them may have played in YMCA league's or some similar league, but most of them have had no previous experience at all."

Leone explained that the basketball program for the junior high girls will be held in the fall for two reasons.

"First of all, there are at present no girls' sports in the fall and we can use the various gyms without conflicting with the boys' teams," he said.

"Secondly, it will give the high school coaches a chance to see the junior high girls play, which will be beneficial to them.

"We will appoint coaches in all the junior high schools and we plan to make this a major sport just as boys' basketball is. We have a fine program for the junior high boys and plan to make the girls' league just as good."

Leone went onto explain that girls' field hockey will be introduced in the high schools and, hopefully, in the junior high schools soon. This sport is played in the fall.

Leone is an avid supporter of girls' sports and was delighted with the success of the two high school girls' basketball teams this year.

"The high school teams should do even better in the future with a junior high program," he said. "I agree with the coaches that a good junior high program is essential for the success of the high school teams."

Other members of the staff and their positions are:

Robert Preble, Executive Officer; Victoria R. LoConte, Finance Officer; Arnold Howard, Administration Officer; Robert A. Schnitzlein, Personnel Officer; Earl G. Morse, Operations Officer; Jon Swanson, Information Officer; Peter J. O'Hare, Material Officer; Thomas McNamara, "A" Flight Commander; William Ferguson, "B" Flight Commander; Thomas Campbell, "C" Flight Commander; Paul Womble, Guidon Bearer.

McCauley Discusses Banking At Point Junior High

Francis McCauley, President-Treasurer of the Shipbuilders Cooperative Bank and member of the Quincy School Committee, gave an informative talk to the ninth grade class at Quincy Point Junior High School recently on banking as it relates to junior high mathematics.

McCauley answered a number of questions from students on mortgages, interest rates, bank regulations and services in general. He also discussed qualifications for bank employees, bonding workers and bank security measures which are required by law.

McCauley's talk was part of a unit done by Mrs. Louise Schofield's mathematics classes on bank procedures that students will need to function better as consumers and citizens of the community.

New DPW Transportation 'Fact Finder' Available

The State Department of Public Works has just completed for distribution a pocket-sized "Transportation Fact Finder for Massachusetts", believed to be the first of its kind in the country.

DPW Commissioner Bruce Campbell said the handy "Fact Finder", which folds to a convenient 3" by 4" in size, summarizes important statistics for all modes of transportation in the Commonwealth: highways, railroads, public transit, air and marine. Also included are Massachusetts socio-economic highlights as listed by the 1970 national census.

Commissioner Campbell said the compilation was made possible through the complete cooperation of the Massachusetts Bay Transportation Authority and the Massachusetts Port Authority. Present plans call for the annual publication of an updated edition of the pocket piece. In addition the DPW hopes soon to prepare a larger and more detailed Transportation Fact Book to serve the needs of all Federal, State regional and local planners.

In 1972 the DPW's annual road map became the nation's first official state Transportation Map through the addition of railroads and rapid transit lines to the highways, as well as marking the location of airports.

The new pocket "Fact Finder" is available at no charge to the public. A copy may be obtained by writing to Commissioner Campbell, Mass. DPW., 100 Nashua St., Boston, MA 02114

Turns Down Hope-Crosby

There's an old adage which says, "Be careful what you wish for, because you might get it"... In AL PACINO'S case, the sudden fame he diligently worked toward many difficult and lean years is slowly eroding away one of his treasured possessions-his anonymity... "I've always wanted to be an actor, since I was a kid in grammar school, but I never liked the spotlight away from the stage"...

"For a long time everything worked out fine, but since winning a few stage awards and being in "THE GODFATHER" I find that I'm slowly moving into a glass house"... PACINO is currently starred with award-winning actor GENE HACKMAN in "SCARECROW", a powerful new motion picture of a pair of drifters who form an unusually strong bond of friendship as they hitchhike and ride the rails across the country seeking a new life away from the jails and skid rows of America...

And how to keep one's privacy in the fish bowl world of being a star?" I figure," says PACINO, "that you don't have to be recognized unless you want to be. I like privacy and I get it by cooling all of that actorish flamboyance. I make a point of acting like I'm not an actor"... Home in Manhattan, PACINO dresses in Levis, pullover sweaters, and knitted caps, unconventional star garb, and still favors the subway over the limousines he can well afford these days...

Giving credit where credit is due, "LAST TANGO IN PARIS" director BERNARDO BERTOLUCCI has run up a great deal of creative mileage in his 31 years... All of his films have at one time or another been the recipients of critical acclaim. "THE GRIM REAPER", "BEFORE THE REVOLUTION", "PARTNERS", "THE SPIDER'S STRATEGEM", and "THE CONFORMIST" have all been shown at the New York and London Film Festivals, and variously at Cannes, Berlin, Venice and Edinburgh festivals...

"LAST TANGO IN PARIS" is told with the same energy and poetry that, at the age of 31, have made BERTOLUCCI the most exciting of the new Italian film directors... More to the point, the impact of this film monument has vaulted BERTOLUCCI into the forefront of international status amongst his peers. BERTOLUCCI combines the best of BERGMAN and KUBRICK... A story of destructive passion, linking an older American, a young Parisienne and her equally young filmmaker-fiance in contemporary Paris, "LAST TANGO IN PARIS" stamps BERTOLUCCI as a director of brilliance and greatness...

Actor-turned-producer DARREN McGAVIN is giving it his all in making his mark felt as a producer of importance. His Taurean Films, which has capitilization of more than $3 million, is planning a slate of six theatrical outings in the following 28 months... McGAVIN has already finished shooting "MOTHER'S DAY" in Nova Scotia and is now working on the post-production of this star-studded picture. Besides acting as the producer, McGAVIN also directed "MOTHER'S DAY" and had the support of talent in the persons of PATRICIA NEAL, RON HOWARD, CLORIS LEACHMAN, BOBBY DARIN, KATHIE BROWNE and SIMON OAKLAND...

NEIL SIMON has sold the film rights of his Broadway comedy hit "THE SUNSHINE BOYS" to RAY STARK [Raystar Productions] for a deal which may ultimately bring SIMON the payoff to the highest ever received on a film sale. Terms of the contract include NEIL SIMON receiving a percentage [undisclosed by either party] from the first dollar realized from the motion picture... Part of the deal includes an agreement that JACK ALBERTSON, who received an Antoinette Perry nomination as best actor of the Broadway season, be the film star of "THE SUNSHINE BOYS" in the role of the retired vaudeville comedian... ALBERTSON won Broadway critical raves for his performance in the stage production...

Prior to coming to terms with RAY STARK, SIMON turned down a $1 million plus percentage bid from a motion picture company which had planned to star BOB HOPE and BING CROSBY in the title roles. NEIL SIMON nixed this offer because he didn't want "THE SUNSHINE BOYS" to be run into the ground via another HOPE-CROSBY "ROAD TO MOROCCO", "ROAD TO SINGAPORE" "road-to-nowhere" fiasco... The film will be released by Columbia Pictures, and if it packs the same box office clout as the stage original, as I'm sure it will, the net $$$ return will make this the richest pact offered an author... When you spell SIMON make it with a capital $...

Needed: A Method to Make Savings Automatic

By Phillip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS
And Loan Association
of Quincy and Holbrook
8-4 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

What most of us seem to need is some way of enforcing savings upon ourselves. Unless the savings habit becomes an automatic thing, no great amount will ever be accumulated.

A widely read columnist made this point in a recently syndicated article in which she referred to an automatic payroll deduction for savings which was stopped when her husband changed jobs.

He thereby cut off a way of automatic saving that they had used for years. She pledged at the time: "Out of every paycheck that goes into our joint household account, I'll 'earmark' exactly the amount we have been previously putting into savings . . . You can trust me to do this."

She confessed she proceeded almost immediately to forget the whole thing. The extra money they had been saving so painlessly was not added to the account; its total was about the same as it was before her husband's paycheck deductions stopped. And they don't know where the money went. "We haven't done or bought anything unusual; our cost of living hasn't been advanced sharply upward. I can only admit that the money has been frittered away in dribs and drabs."

The heart of the program's value, she points out, "lies in the discipline of savings which a payroll savings program imposes on us—in the 'magic' way a few dollars saved regularly every week becomes hundreds of dollars saved over a year."

The vast majority of American families desire to save, but many find it a difficult goal to achieve. A study conducted by a survey research center revealed that only one-third of the families felt they had a regular savings plan.

Of those who were participating in the payroll savings plan for Treasury Department bonds, the survey found that 97% expressed unqualified approval of the plan as a systematic method of putting funds aside.

Some business and industrial firms cooperate with local financial institutions by authorizing savings programs set up by payroll deduction.

As with the Treasury bond program, employees express enthusiasm for a method that makes them save easily and regularly. Employers too are finding benefits from savings programs, in terms of less absenteeism and personnel turnover, fewer accidents and greater employee responsibility.

Where systematic saving through payroll deduction is not possible, the average person needs some other method that will provide a pattern of saving and the inducement to carry it through.

Veterans News

Q - Is the Veterans Administration cutting back the number of people operating its hospitals?

A - On the contrary, by the end of fiscal year 1973 [June 30], VA will have increased personnel in its hospital and medical care program to a record 154,000 - nearly 10,000 more than last fiscal year, and 20,000 above the fiscal year 1971 level.

Q - Can a veteran get VA help in dealing with his family and job problems even though he isn't sick?

A - Yes. Some of VA's veterans assistance centers are staffed with social workers [now called community service specialists] to help meet the veteran's total counseling needs. Specialists are on duty in Boston, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Detroit and other principal cities, and VA plans eventually to place them in all centers.

Quincy's New Neighbor

STATE STREET SOUTH MAKES PICTURESQUE NIGHTTIME SCENE.
[Quincy Sun Photo by Laban Whittaker]

STATE STREET SOUTH

MAYOR WALTER J. HANNON

Mayor's Message

'A Major Milestone'

The opening of the new State Street South complex marks a major milestone in the growth and economic revitalization of the City of Quincy.

State Street South and its neighboring Kemper Insurance building afford an attractive and impressive northern gateway to our city through its progressive architecture and extensive landscaping.

With a work force of some 2,000 employees the center has provided and, I am confident, will continue to provide much-needed job opportunities for Quincy-South Shore area residents.

And the complex represents the largest single boost to Quincy's tax base since the Jordan Marsh Warehouse came to Squantum.

But, more important, the State Street Bank has exhibited an exemplary vote of confidence in Quincy's future as a vital force in the economic growth of Massachusetts.

As Mayor, I have followed the construction of the new building with much interest. And I now look with pride at the beautiful modern facility.

It is my sincere belief that the confidence in Quincy expressed by State Street Bank and Trust Co., will encourage other members of the business community to locate in this City.

I would like to thank all the people who have been involved over the past few years in the planning and construction of the project for their cooperation, patience and understanding.

Dealing with the State Street family has been a very gratifying experience.

Therefore, to President George B. Rockwell and the employees of the State Street Bank, I extend, on behalf of the citizens of Quincy, our heartiest welcome and hopes that this spirit of cooperation will continue and that their business will prosper in the City of Quincy.

Profile Of a A Complex

Operations Center Occupies 22 Acres

By DICK MATTULINA

The State Street South operations center in North Quincy occupies 22 acres with 610,000 square feet of office space in five levels.

The $30-million facility also includes a two-level, environmentally controlled computer center with 140,000 square feet and a separate 17,500 square foot central power plant.

Design features include:

- Outside curtain walls of bronze-tinted, polished plate glass windows.
- Interior courtyard landscaped with grass, flowers, trees and shrubs with seating for more than 400 people.
- Cafe-style dining outdoors at tables surrounding a reflecting pool and fountain.
- Three main entrance lobbies and 24-hour security service.

State Street Bank spokesmen said the one-acre courtyard in the center of the building attests to "the fact that human and environmental consideration were given highest priority in the design."

The landscaping includes a "cascading waterfall, lagoon, trees and shrubs flanking a stage that is the focal point of this most unusual space.

"The courtyard will be the sight of concerts and theatre presentations as well as being simply a beautiful spot for employees to have lunch and relax," spokesmen said.

The project was developed by SSB Realty Inc., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the State Street Bank under plans drawn by Welton Becket and Associates, architects of New York.

Firms associated with construction include Joseph R. Loring and Associates, mechanical and electrical engineering; Wayman C. Wing, structural engineer; H. W. Moore and Associates, civil engineers; M. Paul Friedberg and Associates, landscape architects, and Gilbane Building Co., general contractor.

Soaring white columns topped by bold projecting cubes give the Operations Center the distinctive architectural design required for the central building of the State Street South project.

Located at the entrances and corners of the building, the columns rise 75 feet to the top of the eight-foot high cornice.

Solar glass walls flank the columns to give the high structure a light and airy overall appearance.

Computer operations are located in a windowless two-level wing of the building with a completely controlled environment to insure optimum data processing operations.

The State Street South master plan is based upon the most functional use of light, future expansion, accessibility and the ultimate impact on the surrounding area, spokesmen said.

One of the largest private data processing centers in the United States, the outside building dimensions are 570 feet by 400 feet.

STATE STREET BANK

GREAT CITY

A Multipurpose Development

It Will Be Twice Size Of Boston Common

By TOM HENSHAW

State Street South is only the beginning.

The huge [750,000 square feet of floor space] computer center that opened last week eventually will be the hub of a multi-purpose development twice the size of Boston Common.

By 1980, if all goes to plan, the 80-acre site in North Quincy will contain a carefully controlled motley of offices, apartments and stores housing a daytime population of up to 18,000.

And around its perimeter in Quincy, Milton and across the Neponset River in Dorchester new and largely residential developments will rise for people employed in the great complex.

Such is the vision of John N. Dwyer, executive vice president of State Street South Corp.

Dwyer, who lives in Weymouth, has been director of the project since its inception in 1968 and has been supervising construction since the first pile was driven in January, 1971.

"We plan a development of mixed retail stores, office buildings, residences and a recreation park," said Dwyer last week after the dust and exhilaration of Phase One had settled.

Phase One was the populating of some 650,000 square feet of office space with 1,650 employees and 50,000 pieces of furniture and equipment from five Boston offices – and all in one long weekend.

What comes next is more in Jack Dwyer's mind than down on paper.

"We don't know right now exactly what will be built," he said.

"We are striving for 450 to 750 living units for people with rather expensive tastes.

"There will be a maximum for 2½ million square feet of office space.

"If we had any more we would simply be duplicating the problems of the city – too many people and too many cars.

"The character of the retail stores will be decided by the demand of the people in residence and office."

OFFICIAL GREETINGS – Mayor Walter J. Hannon [right] brings a welcome from the city of Quincy to officials of State Street South. They are Executive Vice President John N. Dwyer [center] and Senior Vice President A. Edward Allinson.

State Street South Corp., a subsidiary of State Street Boston Financial Corp., has major developmental control over building in the Montclair-Atlantic area.

"We have fairly concrete plans to bring quality business here," said Dwyer. "We are not looking for the 'quick buck and scram' people.

"The only other building here now is owned by Kemper Insurance, a t company of quality and strength.

"I expect most of the buildings will be occupied by similar firms.

"We hope to have one or two major announcements on them in the fall."

Indications are that among the first of the new buildings will be a hotel. Negotiations are in progress now with several major hostelry chains.

"In the final run," said Dwyer, "we see more than just a service project.

"It will have nothing but a beneficial impact on Quincy.

"Eventually it will be twice the size of Boston Common. If it were moved to Boston it would cover an area bounded by Filene's to South Station and up Atlantic Avenue to State Street.

"By day the population will be 15,000 to 18,000 – the size of a small city.

"The original project was figured for 10 years. It was a realistic appraisal. We expect to complete it in seven years now."

Afterward, perhaps even while building is still in progress, the State Street South complex is expected to spur development of adjacent areas.

"I see a lot of perimeter building," said Dwyer. "The core is here and the land is available.

"It will certainly facilitate the development of Quincy.

"But we are a major part of Dorchester and Milton as well as Quincy. I expect one of the first developments will be the open area right across the river."

[The open area right across the river is the old Neponset dump, where Bill Veeck and Suffolk Downs wanted to build the stadium that eventually went to Foxboro].

Dwyer credits easy access by road and rail with playing a major role in the development.

"We wouldn't have the complex if there wasn't an MBTA," he said bluntly. "Big business cannot exist away from rapid transit.

"And, as I look around Boston and its environs, I find that here is the ultimate in transportation.

"The 'T' provides outstanding access. There is also the Southeast Expressway and the other roads that come to a point here – Route 128, Route 3A, to name two.

"There is also an outstanding labor market in the Quincy area plus outstanding fire and police departments.

"The Quincy Fire Department's level of technical proficiency is very high.

"I see them in meetings around the county and I'll put my money on Capt. Francis Daly's knowledge against any of them.

"Any time I have asked the police for assistance they have always been helpful.

"The fire and police departments are strict bur reasonable. It is a pleasure working with them."

1,000 Employees From Quincy Area In Next 5 Years

The full impact of State Street South upon the economy of Quincy will not be felt for another five years.

It will take that long – or that short, to be positive about it – before nearly half of its eventual 2,000 employees come from Quincy and the South Shore area.

The handsome and efficient new bank building on Newport Avenue in North Quincy brought 1,650 employees into the city when it opened last week.

All of them worked for the State Street Bank and Trust Co. in the five scattered Boston locations that were brought under one roof in Quincy.

About 15 per cent [some 250] of the employees are from Quincy, says John N. Dwyer, executive vice president of State Street South Corp.

"We expect that a large number of replacements will come from this area," says Dwyer.

"Eventually, Quincy, Braintree and Weymouth area will supply possibly 35 to 40 per cent of our work force. Right now we have 400 applications on file from Quincy people."

For the past few months, State Street South has been tailoring its recruiting toward the Quincy area.

"Job applicants have been told that the job will be in Quincy and we have advertised heavily for applicants from the South Shore," says Robert Mahoney, one of Dwyer's right hand men.

Given an average turnover rate of 20 per cent per year for clerical help and figuring on 2,000 eventual employees, State Street will have nearly 1,000 workers from the Quincy area in five years.

Dwyer estimates the current monthly payroll at State Street South at a minimum of $1 million.

On the basis of those figures, in five years the Quincy area share in the payroll will be more than $600,000 a month or close to $8 million a year.

"That could mean a lot of retail sales for the businessmen of Quincy," says Dwyer.

And it could mean quite a lot to all the people of Quincy and the South Shore, where the rising unemployment rate has reached 9 per cent.

Dwyer feels that the long run employment of Quincy people will have a much greater impact on the city's economy than the immediate influx of workers from outside the city.

The vision of the secretary heading downtown on a lunch hour shopping spree with her paycheck clutched in her hot little hand is a thing of the past.

"Our studies have shown that 75 per cent of shopping is done by people after they go home," says Dwyer.

"People spend a large proportion of what they earn where they live.

"Also, the trend is away from shopping on the lunch hour.

"In fact, lunch hours are growing shorter. Where it was once an hour, now it is more likely to be 45 minutes."

But with up to 40% of the work force expected to come from Quincy in the next five years, it should be good news for the local business community.

For 75% of their shopping should be down here "at home".

STREET SOUTH

Courtyard A Thing Of Beauty

"The courtyard will be finished June 8," Bob Mahoney said.

"There will be a reflecting pool and a fountain and a stage in the center for the performing arts.

"Over there will be a kiosk for dining, cafe-style."

He was standing at a fourth floor window of the new State Street South building looking out over the interior courtyard where workmen were scurrying about to meet the deadline.

"The courtyard covers an acre," he said. "The courtyard alone can accommodate the whole of our building at 225 Franklin St. in Boston."

Bob Mahoney is full of little items like that. He is usually the man referred to as the spokesman for State Street South. If you want to know anything about the building, ask him.

"The building was built completely with handicapped persons in mind," he said.

"For instance, computer rooms require an extra thickness of floor. Usually the floor is raised. This one was sunk 14 inches and made level with wheel chairs in mind."

The State Street South cafeteria is operated by Marriott, the outfit that has all those motels.

"The cafeteria seats 800 at a sitting now," said Mahoney. "It is in two sections, one for coffee breaks, the other for dining. At full operation, it will seat nearly 1,000.

"We also have an in-house theater, an employee lounge and extra conference rooms where we plan to invite local business groups to hold their meetings."

"And here," he added with a wave of his arm down a long blank-walled corridor, "we may have art shows to display the works of local artists."

Right now, there are 1,650 State Street employees working in the building, plus some 120 maintenance and light housekeeping people.

All operations of the State Street Bank and Trust Co. are now housed under two roofs – State Street South and the corporate headquarters at 225 Franklin St., Boston "We think of ourselves as being regional, not suburban," said Mahoney.

"Just think, in 1966 our bank building in Boston was the first high rise in the downtown area. Now we are the first to participate in regionalism.

"And this building is built to handle our expansion plans through 1990."

What happens then?

"Why, we will build a new building, of course," said Bob Mahoney.

South Shore's Largest Landscape Project

The State Street South complex boasts the largest landscape project on the South Shore and one of the largest in Massachusetts.

Old Colony Landscape Service, 151 Main St., of Weymouth is undertaking the project at the bank's new Operations Center in North Quincy.

Points of interest when completed, will include:

- Some 168 shade trees ranging from 20 to 25 feet tall.
- Two thousand Andorra Junipers.
- Fourteen thousand Baltic Ivy.
- Two acres of sod lawn areas and two acres of seeded lawn.

Kemper Praises State St. Foresight

Richard R. DeMark, Vice President and New England Division Manager of the Kemper Insurance Group, has added his congratulations and best wishes to George B. Rockwell, State Street Bank President, on the landmark opening of the bank's State Street South computer operations and computer center in North Quincy.

Said DeMark:

"I can appreciate the exciting and rewarding feeling that Mr. Rockwell and his State Street South team, led by Jack Dwyer, have on this eventful occasion. They are to be congratulated on their foresight, dedication, and accomplishment in making State Street South a reality. We at Kemper look forward to continuing our working relationship with State Street Bank as neighbors and business partners for the benefit of the citizens of Quincy.

"One of the major reasons we selected the Kemper New England headquarter's location adjacent to State Street South is that it provides us with ample space for future growth and makes possible the modern, convenient working environment for our employees in the largest planned community in the Boston area. The State Street South complex offers us the convenience of the center city in a modern suburban setting easily accessible via rapid transit and express highways.

"We are confident in the economic future of Quincy in this area and this event marks a significant step forward in Quincy's growth,"

The Kemper Group consists of stock and policyholder-owned insurance companies providing most forms of insurance and a publicly-held company, Kemperco, Inc., with 13 subsidiaries operating in such fields as insurance, reinsurance, mutual funds, consumer finance, banking, real estate and safety consulting.

The Kemper insurance companies rank as the 15th largest fire and casualty insurance organization in the United States. With more than 1.4 billion dollars in assets, they write every form of insurance for business, industry, the home and the individual.

"We are confident in the future of New England, Massachusetts and Quincy and we are firmly committed to the principles of corporate social responsibility.

"For example, Lumbermens Mutual Casualty Company, the flagship of the Kemper fleet of companies, earmarked almost $17.5 million dollars of assets for various Massachusetts state and municipal government bonds as of Dec. 31, 1972."

The Kemper Group also is very involved on many other social fronts - comprehensive behavioral programs dealing with alcoholism and drug rehabilitation; a public service film program; and sponsorship of a program in cooperation with the U.S. Department of Transportation to test roadside alcohol screening devices in an effort to reduce carnage on streets and highways and to get the drunk driver off the road.

"Kemper annually distributes more than a half million booklets on alcoholism and drug problems to educational, medical, social and civic groups.

"Kemper has always taken a strong position of leadership within our industry, business community and in the local communities where our offices are located," DeMark indicated.

"I know that the management and staff of the State Street Bank have an equally firm social commitment and we look forward to working with them, side by side, in serving the city of Quincy."

POWER PLANT at State Street South is geared to distribute as much power in one day as the entire town of Hingham uses in one month.

[Quincy Sun Photo by Laban Whittaker]

Complex Will Use More Power In Day Than Hingham Does In Month

State Street South has its own power plant.

It's a vital necessity, too, for when the building reaches peak operation it will use as much power in one day as the town of Hingham [pop. 19,497] uses in a month.

The huge amount of power is needed by the computers and the air conditioning system.

State Street South is the computer center of the State Street Bank and Trust Co. and computers require strict control of temperature and humidity.

The power is obtained from Mass Electric's Neponset substation by way of two 150,000-volt lines and distributed from the power plant.

The State Street South building currently is about 65 per cent occupied.

Gilbane Construction Manager

Construction manager for the State Street South complex was the Gilbane Building Company, one of the nation's oldest and largest building firms.

An international company headquartered in Providence, R.I., it has been in continuous and active operation for 100 years and is owned and operated by the third generation of the founder's family.

In the case of State Street South, however, Gilbane was the Construction Manager rather than General Contractor.

The concept of construction management is now new. The general contractor has traditionally been the manager of the construction process.

However, according to Thomas F. Gilbane, president of the firm, "the complexities of modern construction techniques and materials, the complexities of facilities, rapidly rising costs, and the ever increasing number of specialized sub-contractors, require new approaches to the management function of building."

This new approach, construction management, permits the owner and the architect-engineer to have available to them the services of the general contractor, not only during the construction phase but during the design phase as well. The three groups work together as a team to develop the best, yet most economical completion of the construction project.

Gilbane, which earlier was the general contractor for the State Street Bank Building in downtown Boston, was brought in early in the design phase to provide a wide range of pre-construction services. These services included detailed budget estimates as design information was supplied by the architects, Welton Becket and Associates; comparative cost studies of alternate structural, mechanical, and electrical systems; computer prepared construction schedules for the entire project, and complete reviews of plans, specifications and bids as they developed.

In addition, the Gilbane team supervised all the site preparation work, which included importing 300,000 cubic yards of fill surcharge to compress the organic fill in the swampy area, diverting the Neponset River, and building a culvert.

Much of the site preparation work was done before the final design of the complex was even completed, which resulted in greatly reduced construction time. This is one of the major advantages of construction management, according to Gilbane.

During the construction phase, Gilbane provided a full-time on-site construction team for coordination of all work done on the job. One of the major responsibilities of the team was handling all on-site purchasing. Because of the firm's strong purchasing power in the building industry, Gilbane said, substantial savings were effected and passed on to the owner.

Gilbane said the savings were due not only to his firm's ability to get the lowest bids, but also to its ability to purchase materials in advance before price rises.

Other construction phase responsibilities included inspecting all work as it was performed along with other representatives of the owner; developing a successful safety program, which also effected substantial savings in insurance premiums for the owner; labor relations; keeping job site records and the hundreds of other items that are involved in a complex undertaking.

S. S. Chamber Sees

'A Major Economic Impact'

The State Street South complex will "provide a major economic and leadership impact on the South Shore," according to South Shore Chamber of Commerce President John Blake.

Blake said his organization "actively participated in encouraging the State Street Bank to make a location decision here."

"And it is pleasing to us to see them now in business and contributing to the economic prosperity of our area," he said.

He said the Chamber pledges "a continuing effort to work with [the bank] to secure the realization of maximum utilization of their facility by continuing efforts to make the South Shore an economically viable region.

"We welcome State Street's employees and encourage them, if at all possible, to become 24-hour-a-day members of the South Shore community by living, shopping and recreating here," he said.

We covered State Street South with the beautiful enduring White Surface that makes this building a masterpiece. It is called Minerlite.

Mineralite was first produced as a European site-applied finish for concrete and brickwork in 1923 and rapidly gained a high reputation; its use extended even within the Arctic Circle. It was widely used along the West Coast of Scandinavia where climatic conditions are particularly severe. There are many buildings in Europe where MINERALITE has been in place for over 40 years without deterioration. MINERALITE is now exported from England to All parts of the world.

In recent years MINERALITE has been applied to numerous buildings in Central and Western Canada and the United States. It has also been used in the Middle East, Africa and Singapore. MINERALITE has been unaffected by extreme weather conditions in all these areas.

Repeat Performance

As Construction Managers for the State Street South complex, we worked closely with the owner and the architects, Welton Becket and Associates, from the early stages of the project providing both preconstruction and construction services. It was a repeat performance for us. A few years back, we were the General Contractors for the 34-story State Street Bank Building in downtown Boston and worked very closely then with the prime tenants. We were proud to be asked back by the people at State Street to repeat that performance here in Quincy. Then again, a lot of people have asked us back during the past 100 years... people at IBM, General Motors, Sylvania, General Electric, and Reynolds Metal Development Corporation, to name a few. We like repeating ourselves.

$9 Hike Without State St. South

1973 Tax Rate Will Drop 'About $ 1' Says Hannon

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy tax rate for 1973 will go down "about $1.", according to Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

It will be the first tax decrease since 1966, the second since 1953 and only the third in the last quarter of a century.

All that remains to make it official is passage of two money orders by the City Council and approval by the State Tax Commissioners.

The Council is expected to act on the orders Monday [June 18]. State approval also is expected next week.

The $1 tax drop will be announced officially the last week in June.

Mayor Hannon attributed the decrease to "careful spending" by his administration plus the advent of the new State Street South complex in North Quincy.

State Street South, he said, makes a difference of $10 in the tax rate. Without it, the rate would have gone up $9.

The Mayor was bubbling with enthusiasm Tuesday as he discussed the economics instituted since his inaugural in January, 1972.

"This is the fulfillment of my campaign commitment and the

The expected $1 drop in the Quincy tax rate will be only the third [with 1953 and 1966] such decrease in the past 25 years. Once [in 1956] it remained the same.

Brownell Asks Probe Of Raw Sewage

Rep. Thomas F. Brownell [D-Quincy] has asked the State Division of Water Pollution Control for an immediate investigation into reports that raw sewage is being discharged into Quincy Bay around Nut Island, Moon Head and Cow Pastures Islands.

"If our water pollution control laws are being violated and sewerage is discharged into the bay at any time, I want your department to take immediate action regardless of whom the offender may be," demanded Brownell.

Brownell said he was passing on the complaint of Quincy Public Health Commissioner Dr. Alfred Mahoney to Thomas C. McMahon, director of the Division of Water Pollution Control.

"As a representative of an area that has over 21 miles of coastline and beaches," he wrote, "obviously I am deeply concerned with the possibility that Quincy Bay is being polluted by sewerage discharges.

"Now with the swimming and boating season upon us, I want to be assured that the waters of Quincy Bay can be safely used by the public."

Your Chance To Get Rid Of That Old Sofa

By PAUL FELDMAN

Do you have an old sofa, or washing machine or desk or other bulky items that you have wanted to get rid of but couldn't because the rubbishman wouldn't remove it?

If so, you're in luck this summer because since Monday morning, the City of Quincy Highway Department has been picking up these unwanted items.

The schedule for the pickup, labelled Operation Pride, is as follows:

Today through Friday, Ward 2.
June 18 to 22, Ward 1.
June 25 to 29, Ward 3.
July 2 to 6, Ward 4.
July 19 to 13, Ward 5.
July 16 to 20, Ward 6.

All articles must be placed on the sidewalk before 7 a.m. on the FIRST day of your ward's pickup week [excluding holidays], or they will not be picked up during the week at all.

Trees, stumps and branches, and other types of lumber will not be included in this operation.

Remember that the law requires the removal of all doors from refrigerators or other appliances.

So go down into your cellars and out to your garages and take out your unwanted, unneeded items before they clutter up your houses for another unnecessary year.

O'Connell 4th Generation Joins Fire Dept

There has been an O'Connell on the Quincy Fire Department since it became a permanent part of the city establishment 55 years ago.

And now the Department has moved to extend the record another 30 years or so.

Paul E. O'Connell of 353 Franklin St., South Quincy, was sworn in Wednesday, the fourth generation of his family to serve as a Quincy firefighter. He'll be 23 Monday.

His father, Lt. Cornelius O'Connell of Ladder 4, has been a member of the department since 1947 and a lieutenant since 1955.

His grandfather, Timothy J. O'Connell, joined the department in 1920, made lieutenant in 1927 and captain in 1937. He died in 1945.

His great grandfather, Cornelius O'Connell, was a veteran of 20 years as a call fireman [going back to 1898] when he was among the first appointed to the permanent department when it was founded Aug. 1, 1918. He died in 1931.

And that's not all.

Uncle John F. O'Connell was a Quincy firefighter from 1925 until his retirement in 1966.

Uncle Edward T. O'Connell, a captain assigned to Engine B, is a veteran of 37 years on the Department.

Cousin Thomas E. O'Connell is also a firefighter on Engine B, having been appointed to the department in 1964.

The newest of the firefighting O'Connells has three years in the U.S. Marine Corps in his past and a lot of family tradition to live up to in the future.

Delayed Honesty

Penitent Thief Returns $6 Wrench

Ted Johnson of Granite City Hardware got two surprises in the mail last week.

One was a small socket wrench that had been stolen from the store.

The other was a note from the penitent thief who got religion in the meantime.

Said the note, written from New York City:

"If you have not already received it, you should shortly be receiving a package from me, containing a small socket wrench I stole from your store a few years ago.

"It has never been used, to the best of my knowledge, so it is still in excellent condition."

The note writer explained his change of heart.

"A little more than two years ago I became a Christian.

"That doesn't mean that I began to go to church or 'got religious', but it means that through confessing my hopelessly sinful condition to God and believing in the power of his son Jesus Christ to cleanse me, personally, from all guilt and sin, I entered into a personal relationship with God . . .

"I pray that if you do not also know his saving and transforming power and love, that you soon will. Enclosed is something to help."

The enclosure was a religious pamphlet.

Johnson said the wrench, worth about $6, was a brand that he discontinued a few years ago because more of them were stolen than sold.

"We'd put out six or eight on a Wednesday and by Monday they'd be gone and I didn't remember selling any of them," he said.

And the returned wrench?

"I may have it gold plated," he said.

'About $1' Drop In Tax Rate Says Mayor

promise I made in my inaugural," he said.

"It was difficult. The budget this year is for 18 months. No mayor was ever faced with that before. We had to guess at things like snow removal not only for next winter but for the winter after that.

"I realized the problems the city was faced with right from the start and I instituted every business-like economy as soon as I got into office. I'll admit I ruffled a few feathers but it was the only way to attack the problem.

"And, in spite of it all, no city service was curtailed.

"Quincy has a fulltime mayor for the first time in 19 years and it brought me closer to the problems at hand and to the department heads who deal with those problems day by day.

"We hired a full time purchasing agent for the school department and he was able to get a real handle on school expenses. We figure he was able to save the city $18,000 in the cost of replacing broken windows alone.

"We hired a budget director [William Grindlay], whose job was federally funded.

"Dick Newcomb, the city purchasing agent, instituted a lot of savings by using the methods of a small businessman.

"Grindlay, Newcomb and City Auditor Alex Smith went over the budget line by line and the result was tremendous savings for the city.

"We held the tax rate down while we accomplished all these things:

"We have a lower crime rate. We have probably the most sophisticated police department in the state. We put on 10 motorcycles that are able to cover areas the police never covered before.

"We have the best fire equipment in the state. We added five new pieces including the most elaborate rescue truck around. We added a fire station in Germantown, one that people there have been screaming for for 35 years.

"We have purchased new equipment for the Public Works Department, trucks, sweepers, snow fighters. We have five or six new sweepers running all night, giving people cleaner streets.

"More Equipment for health care has been purchased in the past two years than ever before. City employees have received their cost of living increases. We have reduced the city's bonded indebtedness by over $2 million.

"We have added to our parks and conservation lands–17 acres of Squaw Rock, 9.7 acres of Lower Germantown, 9.87 acres of Mound Street and the marshland behind LaBreque Field in Houghs Neck.

"Strict enforcement of parking regulations plus the new vandal-proof meters and the parking garage have boosted parking meter receipts from $47,000 in 1971 to an estimated $165,000 this year. The department is self-sustaining now.

"Our Faxon House was the first alcoholic detoxification center in the state. People come from all over the country, from as far away as Seattle and North Carolina to see it. It has serviced 600 people since it was opened last August.

"State Street South has provided us with $10 relief in the tax rate and it is still growing. It will mean more tax revenue in the future, plus the employment of more and more Quincy people."

The Mayor was almost beaming at this juncture.

In fact, it sounded very much like he was getting ready to run for another two-year term.

McLelland Seeks Ward 3 Floodlights

A request for a Massachusetts Electric Company survey of three Ward 3 areas that "are in dire need of new flood lights" has been made by Ward 3 Councillor Theophilus McLelland.

McLelland in a letter to the Mayor's office said that Viden Rd at the Abigail Adams Cairn, Taber Park on Taber St., and Kincaide Park on the Water St. and Roberts St. sides are all used heavily by residents and need new flood lights.

LET'S TALK

Sorry, father tells son

By REV. W. LEE TRUMAN
Copley News Service

Son, I'm sorry, but I have to say these things to you while you are asleep. Standing here beside your bed, I wonder where you are in your dream world. Listening to your breathing even and slow, your blankets all twisted, I hope that beneath that red hair you are running with Danny on a grassy slope somewhere.

I was downstairs just a few minutes ago reading the paper in the kitchen, and all of a sudden I felt so guilty I couldn't stand it. It was that guilt, son, that has brought me to your room and that is why I am standing here at your bedside.

Here is what has been troubling me, and no matter how I say it, it means that I have been a surly grouch. This morning I snapped at you while you were dressing for school. Why? Because you didn't hang up the towel after washing.

And I was upset. ... No, I was angry, and when I found some things that you had left on the stairs that I had asked you to put away the night before, I was mad!

At breakfast you gulped down your food, had your elbows on the table, and you put enough butter and jam on your toast for a week. When you started off to school, you turned and said, "Goodbye, Daddy," and I am sorry, son, but my only response was, "Hold your shoulders back."

This afternoon when I came home from work, I found you playing in the street. In front of the other boys I humiliated you by making you walk in front of me back to the house. I know that there was no traffic coming and that you can see the cars, but sometimes I become so careful for you that I do things that are right, but I do them the wrong way.

Do you remember this evening when you came in while I was trying to get ready for a speech, and I asked you, "What is it you want?" I think about it now, and I guess I really didn't ask but only showed my irritation. You didn't say anything, but you ran across the room and kissed me and then you were gone up the stairs.

Well, my boy, it was after that that I saw myself as I really am. Normally I can pick up my books and lose myself, but it was that kiss that made me see my selfishness and I frankly felt very sick of myself at that moment. All that I can say is that my selfishness is a habit, as is the habit of complaining, of finding fault, or of being so tired when I come home struggling with money problems and people problems that do not seem to have any answers. Son, what I am trying to say is that it isn't that I don't love you. I truly do, but until you have your own namesake, you won't know how much is in those three little words.

I can say for certain that you don't deserve the treatment you have gotten from someone who professes to love you. It is that I guess I expect too much of you. I keep measuring you by the yardstick of my years and not yours.

My hope is that tomorrow I will be a real daddy, and that somehow when you suffer I will suffer a little bit with you, and when you laugh I pray that I will take the time and have the wisdom to laugh too. I am asking for a large bit of Divine help to bite my tongue when impatient words come because I am a busy pastor and to remind myself often that "he is a very little boy."

- Nixon And The IRS
- Washington Post -$500 Per Copy

WASHINGTON — Both Russia's Leonid Brezhnev and China's Chou En-lai have a personal stake in the Watergate outcome. Secret intelligence reports suggest that both leaders took political risks to befriend President Nixon and ease tension with Washington.

Inside the Kremlin, Brezhnev encountered such stiff opposition over his placate-Nixon policy that it brought on a shake-up of the ruling politburo. He was compelled to elevate the military, according to the intelligence reports, in return for their support. But the grim Soviet high command is watching Brezhnev's moves with reservations.

Our experts believe Brezhnev's position in the Kremlin could be undermined if his overtures to Nixon falter. The weakening of Nixon by Watergate, therefore, must be causing Brezhnev some private anxiety.

In Peking, Chou En-lai also overcame bitter opposition before he was able to do business with President Nixon and Henry Kissinger. Chou won the showdown with Lin Piao, who was killed in an attempt to escape to Russia. Lin Piao's supporters have been silenced, meanwhile, but not suppressed.

This is indicated, according to the intelligence reports, by the attitude of wily, old Mao Tse-tung to the Chou En-lai leadership. The venerable Mao has been pleasant and proper in his relationship with Chou. But Mao has been cautious not to embrace Chou.

What does this mean? It means that in both Moscow and Peking there are still powerful factions which would rather restore the old Russian-Chinese alliance. The suspicion runs deep in both countries of the new detente with Washington.

Nixon and IRS: Tax experts are wondering about the million-dollar deal by which President Nixon acquired his San Clemente retreat. The house is located on a 26-acre tract, which the President purchased with the financial help of the aerosol king, Robert Abplanalp.

We have now learned the President and the First Lady signed personal notes, which Abplanalp later tore up, for $625,000. In return, he is supposed to own the bulk of the property around the housing compound.

The President got the deal approved by the local Internal Revenue Service office in California. But we spoke to Internal Revenue experts, who claim the President should have paid taxes on the $625,000. As they interpreted the law, the tearing up of Nixon's notes — in other words, the cancellation of the debt — makes the $625,000 taxable income.

These tax experts point out that the Nixons are using the entire 26 acres, that property records show no evidence the acreage has been legally divided, that the whole deal appears like a gimmick to benefit the Nixons.

A spokesman for the President assured us, on the other hand, that Abplanalp is the legal owner of the land around the Nixon compound, that the land is going up in value and that it will turn out to be a profitable deal for Abplanalp.

Nevertheless, if anyone but the President of the United States were involved, Internal Revenue would be investigating.

The Little Boondoggles! Most of the military boondoggles the public hears about are the big ones — the billion-dollar cost overruns, the helicopters that crash, the torpedos that miss their targets. But occasionally, my reporters take time out to investigate the small scandals, too. Here are some examples:

- An Army general, stationed in the Panama Canal Zone, wanted to keep up with the goings-on in Washington. So he ordered four copies of the Washington Post flown in daily at an annual cost to the taxpayers of $2,000.
- The 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell, Ky., heard that the President might drop by. The brass hats decided to pretty up the post for the Commander-in-Chief. In the end, they had to settle for Vice President Agnew. But they still managed to spend a quarter of a million dollars for paint, whitewash, rental cars and miscellaneous displays.
- At every military airlift terminal, the Air Force maintains a "distinguished visitors lounge" for the traveling VIPs. Most of them are retired officers, who have nothing better to do than bum around the country. Yet enlisted men are assigned to rush up to them and handle their luggage while the VIPs relax in carpeted lounges, sipping coffee and watching color television.

These are just a few reasons why one officer described his military experience as "Alice in Wasteland."

● QUESTION OF THE WEEK

What Is Order Of Succession If President Resigns ?

"What is the order of succession if the President of the United States dies while in office or resigns?" asked several callers to the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone.

Volunteers answering the Voter Information Phone reported that the order of succession is Vice President [Spiro T. Agnew], Speaker of the House [Carl Albert], President Pro Tem of the Senate [James Eastland]. If these officers are unable to serve, the succession continues with the members of the Cabinet starting with the Secretary of State, Secretary of Treasury, Secretary of Defense, Attorney General, etc.

This question is one of many now being received by the League of Women Voters Voter Information Phone. Individuals with any questions on government may call the VIP phone Monday through Friday between 10:00 a.m. and 2:00 p.m. The number in the Boston area is 357-5880.

The big political question in Quincy right now is: Will a big name step forward to challenge Mayor Walter Hannon for another term?

Time is running out. Aug. 14 is filing deadline for the city's preliminary election.

So far we have two students and George Trubiano as contenders.

But, no big name.

Not yet. But there could be one before the hands of the clock reach 5 p.m. in the City Clerk's office Aug. 14.

According to those who keep their ear close to the political ground, we could see a rematch between Hannon and former School Committee Vice-Chairman James F. McCormick.

Hannon, McCormick and Rep. Joseph Brett were the three main preliminary election contenders two years ago. McCormick finished third.

McCormick reportedly is seriously considering returning to battle if no other big name tosses his hat in.

Those close to McCormick say he's not going to let Hannon go unchallenged.

And, if no one else comes forward–the way they tell it–McCormick will run.

MEANWHILE, Arthur Tobin still has 'em guessing. The Speculation Corps figures he's not going to seek re-election to his council at-large seat. The fact that Rep. Thomas Brownell has taken out papers for at-large is the reason they think that way.

They're friends and it just doesn't seem as though Brownell would get into a contest against Tobin which theoretically at least he would be doing if Tobin ran again.

But how does this grab you? A few observers are wondering if Tobin might not step into the mayoralty ring.

Incidentally, he's being honored again at a testimonial in Braintree July 1.

HOT WEATHER NOTE: Add former Mayor James McIntyre to the swimming pool set. Has taken out a permit for an underground pool at his new Sturetevant Rd home.

WHICH REMINDS US: One of our other former mayor's has joined the hair set. Amelio Della Chiesa, now a Pembroke country squire, is sporting a thin white mustache. His wife, Evelyn, thinks its cute.

TRAVEL NOTE: Ward 6 Councillor Vincent Smyth has won a two-weeks all expenses paid trip for two to Ireland. His prize for winning a St. Patrick's Day merchandising display contest at his North Quincy business. He just got word he won.

DEMOCRAT Atty. Warren Powers made a hit with the Republican City Committee. Powers, who is running for the Ward 5 council seat, donated two tickets to a Red Sox game as a prize for the GOP's recent auction at the Wollaston Legion Post home.

NEW RESIDENT: Norton O'Brien, former state representative from Dorchester, has moved to North Quincy. His son, William, is president of the Quincy Citizens Association.

WELL, you'd have to say that Councillor John Quinn has a pretty clear crystal ball. Back on April 5, the council's Finance Committee chairman predicted "a little or no increase" in the 1973 tax rate.

Today, Mayor Walter Hannon confirms Quinn's forecast, announcing the rate will drop "about $1".

AND, with the tax rate dip this will be a big year for the incumbent to seek re-election. Challengers are going to have to find other ammo to fire at them.

HERE'S ONE: The Quincy Kiwanis newsletter carries a so-called survey by experts who claim these are the 10 reasons why a woman marches into a department store to buy a specific item.

[1] Because her husband says she can't have it. [2] Because her husband says she can have it. [3] It will make her look thinner. [4] It comes from Paris. [5] Her neighbors can't afford it. [6] Her neighbors can afford it. [7] Nobody has one. [8] Everybody has one. [9] It's different. [10] Just plain "because".

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - I recently bought a used car with an inspection sticker already on it. Do I have an obligation to have the car inspected again?

A - The new owner must have his car inspected upon registering it with the Registry of Motor Vehicles. Some unscrupulous dealers affix an inspection sticker on "lemons" in the hope that the new buyer will not have the car reinspected.

Q - What legal recourse do I have if the newly purchased car failed to pass inspection? Can I get a refund?

A - The buyer must act swiftly–within seven days–to get his money back. If the car fails inspection, take it to an independent garage for a repair estimate. If the cost of repairs necessary for the automobile to pass inspection is more than 10% of the original purchase price, the buyer should return the car to the dealer with a written estimate. Under the law, the dealer must refund the full purchase price. If the dealer refuses, leave the car in the lot, and retrieve the license plates. Then contact the Consumer Protection Division of my office.

Q - Some automobile repair shops have a reputation for doing unauthorized repairs. Is this legal?

A - An automobile repair shop must supply upon demand a written estimate of the expected cost and nature of the repair work. It must indicate when the repair work can reasonably be expected to be finished so that the owner may anticipate time and labor costs. The automobile repair shop must present an itemized bill when the job is completed. It cannot repair anything without authorization. Under Consumer Protection regulations adopted in 1971, it is an unfair and deceptive act to indulge in scare tactics by stating that a car is in dangerous condition when it is not.

Consumer questions should be sent to Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn, "Consumer Questions", Room 373, State House, Boston, Mass. 02133. Those questions with broadest interest will be answered in the column.

Living, Today

By Dr. William F. Knox
Personal Counselor

If you have not yet read "I'm O.K. ... You're O.K." you have a therapeutic treat in store for you. Dr. Harris has helped millions of people to overcome much of the "not O.K." feeling which most people suffer.

Among other help which Harris gives is the insight that your PAST LIMITATIONS DO NOT NEED TO VICTIMIZE YOU the rest of your life. For example ... here's James ... 47 ... married ... three children ... but with practically no relationship with any of them. He always stayed late at the factory ... he was purchasing agent ... and had to have things ready to start the next day. He became disgusted with the family through the years they talked of vacations ... fishing trips. Even a Sunday trip to the zoo caused him to explode with ... "it's just go ... go ... go ... all you ever think about is going some place. Why can't you be satisfied to be at home?"

Now in his middle years when he had everything at his finger tips to give happiness, he was a very unhappy man because his family was breaking up. The older son was into drugs. Judy, 16, had dropped out of school ... his wife was bringing a separate support action and was planning to take Celeste (9) with her to visit her aunt for the summer. Poor Jim ... all he had done ... he pointed out to me was just "work hard to give good support to his family".

What Jim hadn't realized was that his "past" had played a dirty trick on him. He had a "crushed child" in his past ... which NOW conformed to the early life training to "grow up" ... "obey" ... "work diligently" ... "no time to play". He had learned his lessons well.

There's hope for Jim ... and men like him. We helped him to see what this past "crushed down child" had done to his family ... to see how to reschedule his life so that WORK did not get its unfair share of his life. He literally had to be taught ... a major role of enlightened counseling ... especially when a person has grown up without good models in a father and mother. Jim learned to play ... bought a boat which became the pride of the whole family. "Best investment I ever made" ... Jim said at the end of last summer. "We pulled the family back together." It was NOW or NEVER for Jim.

Maybe it's NOW or NEVER for you. You do not need to be victim of your own past. Nor do you need to let the future rule you. I've been seeing a beautiful couple who at one point found that they just couldn't live together ... so great were their differences. As they continued to counsel however ... Sam and Lori began to make the very most of the NOW in their lives. They got back together. They went on ski trips during the winter ... a cruise in the summer during his vacation ... they went out to eat ... they danced ... they talked through their problems ... they had fun with their kids ... and with each other. Said Lori "we've kinda forgotten our dreamhouse of the FUTURE ... all this that we're doing NOW seems more important." NOW doesn't last very long. It may be later than you think!

She Urges Construction Of Median Strip For Safety Sake

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I am writing in regard to the article in the Quincy Sun by your reporter, Tom Henshaw, concerning the building of the Median Strip on the Southern Artery.

When I first read about all the businessmen on the S.A. being opposed to the "Strip" I understood, [I did not agree or admire] after all, it was hitting them where it hurts the most, in their pocketbooks; and to some, the almighty dollar is worth more then a human life, or in the case of the Southern Artery, many human lives.

But I cannot understand why the City Council appears to be bowing to the requests or demands of big business. I guess I'm foolish, I always thought the City Council would do what was best for the majority. Halting building of the Southern Artery Median Strip [as they have done] certainly is not looking out for the rights and safety of the citizens of Quincy.

One of the businessmen on the Southern Artery had a good idea – in place of building the median strip we should have more traffic lights, but the very best idea was for speed limit signs - now THAT'S really going to prevent accidents, isn't it?

And there won't be so very much business lost on the Artery, certainly old customers will return, and how have other businesses been able to thrive with a median strip in their area?

The point was brought up that if the business' on S. A. lose money their taxes paid will be lower, and perhaps we may have to pay extra money on our taxes to make up the loss [Scare tactics?] So what! Isn't a few extra pennies on our tax bill worth saving lives?

At the City Council meeting with the Southern Artery Business Men, 35 businessmen showed up and all were opposed to the building of the Southern Artery Median Strip.

In the past 2 years there have been 136 accidents on the Southern Artery; it was impossible for some of the victims of these accidents to voice their opinion. You see, they are dead!

But those who are still alive and wish to remain so, should let the City Council know that we want a median strip on the Southern Artery. This median strip should have been built years ago, and is desperately needed now. Remember the next fatality from Accident No. 137 could be you or your child.

We CAN "fight city hall". Let your councillor and representative know how you feel about the building of a median strip on the Southern Artery. "The life you save may be your own", or what is more important, your child's life.

'Pizza Principle' lets woman pay

By AUDREY GELLIS
Copley News Service

Women's Liberation has consistently counseled that women play the "dating game" by the same rules as men, taking the initiative in meeting, dating and forming relationships.

However, many women who admit they're tired of sitting by the phone are still afraid to pick it up. Suppose, they ask, men stop paying for dates.

Now I know that changing the dating rules before women earn as much money as men does pose problems. So I consulted my friend, Sheila the Select Swinger.

Way before Women's Lib, Sheila decided men controlled everything so she made a study of men. Sheila's research has yet to yield the rich husband she's looking for, but as she's quick to point out, no dust collects on her telephone.

"For a liberated woman I'm surprised at you," Sheila told me over a drink at her favorite singles bar. "Don't you realize it's a myth that the man always pays?"

"But," I insisted, "you know the man picks up the checks on dates. The few times I've suggested going Dutch, my dates reacted like I said Danish."

"The man does pay," Sheila replied, "but only in public. It's what I call the Pizza Principle. If the pizza comes from her freezer, she pays. If they go to a pizzeria, he pays.

"Let me illustrate further," Sheila continued. "What happens after a man takes a woman out once or twice?"

"She invites him to dinner."

"And how much does that cost?"

I mentally tabulated the latest price of steak and threw in the cost of wine, candles and other accessories to a romantic dinner for two. "Almost as much as dinner at an average restaurant. Not to mention the time spent preparing the food."

"Exactly," Sheila said. "Now let's say you develop a relationship. Are you going to be out on the town or will you be watching TV at your place, drinking your liquor and nibbling on the goodies in your fridge?"

"Then men don't mind if we pay, as long as they don't see us doing it."

"Right," she said. "However, the Pizza Principle can also get a single woman out of the catering business. For example, if I want to introduce a new man into my life, I buy two tickets to a play or movie, invite him and say my boss or a sick friend gave me the tickets."

"But that's too expensive for most women," I said.

"Not when you add it up my way. If I didn't have a date, I would buy one ticket and go with another woman, and then we'd stop for something afterwards. Which 'something afterwards' is almost the price of another ticket. Now if I buy two tickets and invite a man, he generally treats for the rest of the evening. And I'm dating a man I chose, not whoever happened to call me."

"But doesn't the man you invite ever guess you really bought the tickets?" I asked.

"Sure. But as long as I observe the Pizza Principle and don't let him see me put my hand in my pocketbook, his male ego will be undisturbed," Sheila said.

"But, Sheila, that's still being unequal. Don't you realize your whole Pizza Principle is based on the myth of male superiority?" I asked.

Sheila's gaze rested on a Burt Reynolds lookalike at the next table. "Are you liberated women planning to wait for the little boys being given nonsexist educations to grow up?"

"You do have a point. Suppose we talk this over with my consciousness - raising group," I said.

But Sheila wasn't listening. She was at the next table explaining how she won two tickets to a tennis match in a raffle.

CURVES AHEAD – Straps cross over keyhole cut to dip low, low down on one-piece tank suit by Cole of California.

THINK PRETTY

Swimsuits return to natural look

By PEGGY WALKER
Copley News Service

It's cucumber and cottage cheese time, that pre-summer, pre-swimsuit season when every woman wishes she had been more zealous about Lenten fasting.

But if you have fudged on calories, don't let it keep you off the beach, said Anne Cole, executive vice president of Cole of California, who believes swimsuits are to be enjoyed, not fretted over.

Judging by the new crop of teeny bikinis and unconstructed, body-conscious one-piece models, this will be a summer when calories do count.

But Anne Cole is quick to point out there are styles for every figure — the boy cut and skirted versions that serve as stand-bys whatever the fashion trends.

The fashion trend this year is the "naked" maillot or one-piece suit with no under-construction, according to the swimwear executive.

And the figure trend is back to body shapes, "away from those skirted and tunic styles that were popular last year.

"My feeling is those little skirts tend to make a woman look older," said Ms. Cole, although there are skirted versions on department racks this year.

When she says no construction, she means it — nothing but a pure stretch of nylon lurex in the newest "fashion" suits, that bends with the curves and turns.

One of the sexiest models — Ms. Cole named it "Deep Throat" — is a keyhole design with straps that crisscross in front and stretch down to a low, low backline.

"It's part of the return to the natural look. Women want support, but not an artificial, molded look that announces your bust before it announces you.

"They want darting and seaming — but they don't want artificiality," said Ms. Cole.

"Bikinis continue on in California. California women wear them and want novelty in the bikini.

"They're used to looking at themselves naked and aren't hung up about it," said the swimwear executive.

All of which further lead her to state that women who "think" they can't compete with the younger, bikini set should relax and stop worrying about it.

"Usually, a woman is her worst critic. I'd say 99 per cent of figure problems are more mental than physical. American women fret about their figures but European women are just happy being on the beach. They don't stop to think about who's watching them.

"With the trend back to body shapes," Ms. Cole said, "women should enjoy the way they look, big or little, large busted or flat chested. Thank goodness we've gotten away from that Marilyn Monroe syndrome."

Highpoints in the Cole collection include a "sweater" suit, a polyester, wool and rabbit hair knit with halter neck and matching cardigan. Ms. Cole called it the drop-dead suit, for the girl who wants to be the hit of the party.

Dad puts boyfriend through third degree

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have this boyfriend and I really like him. I've met his mother and father and they are the greatest. The only problem is my parents. Jack and I have dated for six months, but every time he comes to pick me up my father puts him through the third degree. Where are you going? Who will be there? Do you have enough gas in your car? By the way, when did you have the brakes relined? Have you had a ticket for speeding lately?

The cincher came last week when we were to drive about 30 miles to a party. Mom and Dad have friends in the town where the party was to be held. When Jack arrived, my father calmly said, "We are driving down with you. I don't want two teenagers on the road at night." With that, we all got into the car and away we went.

Jack was not too happy and I'll lose him if my parents keep up their surveillance. We get in on time and try to follow the rules. What can I say? We are both 17.

Cindy

Dear Cindy:

Tell Mom and Dad that Jack is on your "most wanted" list and to please give up the interrogation before each date. If you follow the house rules, Mom and Dad should relax theirs.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I work in a large office and have a problem. I am attracted to my boss. He is about 39 and looks 29. He is the kind of person everyone likes. Don't give me the advice that this attraction is one-sided because I happen to know it isn't. He likes me and has said so. I know if I gave him a chance I could have something going. The only thing is — he is married and has two children. I don't want to become involved in a hopeless affair. What should I do?

Age 21

Dear 21:

Your boss may be 39, looks 29, but acts 19. You might get something going, but you would probably be surprised how determined your boss would be to remain safely married. Resign and find a new job. You are too young to waste your time.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have been living with John for a year. We are both over 21 and have considered that this was strictly our business. My parents eventually discovered our arrangement and have been very vocal about their disapproval. John's parents feel that we are wrong and that someone is bound to be hurt.

We just don't feel that a person should have to sign a piece of paper to make it legal. Should we decide to separate, all we have to do is walk out. The divorce rate is at an all-time high and I don't want to be a statistic. I want John to be with me because he wants to be not because he has to.

How can I convince everyone that what we are doing is right for us? I haven't seen much to recommend marriage. Have you?

C.F.

Dear C.F.:

I must agree that the divorce rate is spiraling, but I do not agree that you have discovered the solution. If there is little to recommend marriage, then there is even less to recommend living together. Until someone comes up with a better answer, we'll have to stick with marriage. Living together without marrying is like chasing without catching.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

What can I do about a husband who goes bowling all the time — and I do mean all the time? He bowls with a certain group and they have reserved time at the bowling alley four nights a week. Then on the weekend there is some sort of competition or some other excuse to bowl.

I've sat in the bowling alley until I fear I'll go deaf. It's finally getting to me. I've never learned to bowl because I felt I would not enjoy it. What can I do?

Bowler's Wife

Dear Wife:

Learn to bowl! How do you know it isn't up your alley if you haven't tried it?

If you have a question, write: Pat and Marilyn Davis, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Longer skirts inch back

By BETH MOHR

Don't scream, but longer skirts are being introduced again. This time around, they are for fall and winter, 1973-74.

When French and Italian designers presented their new collections for the end of this year and the beginning of next, they included quite a few skirts at the same long lengths that women refused to wear and merchants blamed for sagging sales a little over a year ago.

Designers may expect a change of name to foster a change of luck. The new introductions are "big skirts," not "midis." The "big" is for fullness as well as length.

Most of the new designs are deeply flared, pleated or tiered separate skirts. For those who can remember, some of the tiered ones look like the "broomstick" skirts of the '40s.

Worn with softly feminine blouses or short, closely fitting sweaters, the entire look is a throwback to a generation ago.

The fashion rationalizers are saying that hemlines have been inching down a little at a time since the midi and that women will be more receptive to the "big skirt" than to the "midi."

Unless they have changed a lot since the midi, the women will make the decision.

'Nando Of Rome' Brings Styling Know-How From Italy

By PAUL FELDMAN

The Billings Road Beauty Salon has become a thriving business in a short time. And much of its success can be attributed to its owner, Fernando "Nando of Rome" Cristifoli.

Nando's styling ability can be summed up in three words: experience, imagination and professionalism. In his native Italy, Nando served a five-year apprenticeship before he was permitted to style his own first client. And the years of learning have paid off. Nando has been the personal stylist for Miss Massachusetts and many other beautiful girls.

But this ambitious young man is more than a talented hair stylist. In sunny Italy he developed a talent for gardening, and his home is a showplace of assorted cultivated floral splendor. A "do-it-yourself" enthusiast, Nando also has used his talented hands to remodel his playroom with built-ins and reconstructed his own driveway and retainer walls.

NANDO

This creativity extends into the darkness of his home-built photographic lab too. Nando develops and prints his own film.

Unlike most others, he does not have to rely on outside sources for entertainment. His gifted voice is known around the neighborhood and his most recent professional singing appearance was at the K of C Muscular Dystrophy rally. And his talents don't end there. For like many Italian men, Nando is exceptionally gifted in the kitchen.

But like most men he likes best to do the thing he does best. The multi-talented husband and father says, "I like to sing, especially in the salon, but I'd rather be a hair-stylist, besides, I always have a captive audience."

Quincy Symphony Orchestra To Hold Outdoor Pops

Future concerts are scheduled for July, August and September.

Peter Gacicia To Seek Ward 3 Seat

Peter P. Gacicia of 20 Stanley Circle, Quincy has announced his candidacy for Ward 3 Councillor.

He is a graduate of Boston University College of Business Administration and presently is in the Insurance and Equipment rental Business.

Gacicia is Vice President of the Southwest Community Council, a member of the Advisory Committee of the Southwest Federal Credit Union, Director of the South Quincy Civic Association, representative at large of the St. John's Parish Council, member of the Massachusetts Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers Association, member of Morrisette Legion Post, member of the Quincy Son's of Italy Lodge, member of the Lodge of Elks, and a member of the Quincy Historical Society.

Gacicia said, "Quincy is a city with complex financial and social problems. To cope with these problems requires new talent and new philosophies in city government. This view is substantiated by the unrest of its citizens over taxes, assessments, and the issue of an unwanted MBTA station."

Gacicia said his candidacy "will be free of any political commitments." His actions and decisions on every issue "will be dictated by the will of the people he represents for the enrichment of their lives and enhancement of their city," he said.

Clifford Marshall To Seek 5th Term

Ward 2 Councillor Clifford H. Marshall has announced his candidacy for a fifth term to the Quincy City Council.

Marshall has been the Public Works Chairman for six years, Chairman of the Ordinance Committee and has been chairman of the Veterans Services and Parks and Recreation Committees. He was the first Chairman of the Environmental Control Committee. He is a member of Finances and Ordinance, Federal Funds and Public Health and Hospital Committee.

Marshall said, "Citizen involvement has been one of the main assets in being able to bring government closer to the people and, in my opinion, the Ward Councillor is the closest elected official to the people. Therefore, it is my hope to continue to serve the Ward and the people of Quincy to the very best of my ability."

Marshall is a U.S. Marine Corps veteran and attended Quincy Public Schools, Quincy Junior College [Adult Drug Education Course] and Suffolk University.

He is married to the former Louise M. Caporale and is the father of four sons; Clifford III, 10; Michael J., 8; Paul S., 6, and Christopher J., age 4. The family lives at 64 Edison St., Quincy Point.

James Vey Council Candidate In Ward 6

James Vey of 11 Ruthven St., Montclair, has announced his candidacy for the Ward 6, City Council seat.

Vey, an MBTA office manager in the planning and construction division said:

"The escalating property taxes are destroying too much of the homeowners purchasing power. Halting the rise by a strong austerity program will help move the economy forward. This is my No. 1 priority.

"Secondly, a concerted effort by the city should be made to instill responsibility on the builders and developers in the city of Quincy. Each development, large or small, should encourage a conference between the builders and the residents and abutters in the area. An amicable resolution should result, or the plan rejected."

He said overcrowding at North Quincy High School must be reduced by adding rooms adjacent or near the present High School. He said the need for an expensive new high school is now questionable. However, the present facility should be brought up to date.

Vey called for open council meetings, and little or no executive sessions. These usually serve only to conceal a councillors feelings or actions from his constituents. Honesty and integrity must be returned to the council tables of our city, let the chips fall where they may."

Vey is married to the former Evelyn M. Donnelly. They have four boys, aged 10, 13, 16 and 18.

Vey is a member of the Montclair Mens Club, Ward 6 Democratic Committee of Quincy, member of the Business Mens Group of the YMCA, Vice-president of the Quincy Citizens Association, member Quincy Capitol Outlay Committee and a member of the George F. Bryan VFW Post.

Hughes Urges Support In Preserving Quarry St. Land

Ward 4 City Council candidate Thomas P. Hughes today urged city-wide support for attempts to preserve 20 acres of city-owned land on Quarry St. as undeveloped recreational land.

Hughes asked Quincy residents to "contact the Quincy Planning Department or their City Councillors to support the efforts of more than 1,200 South and West Quincy residents to have the area set aside as a natural park."

"At a time of high taxes the sale of this land may be particularly inviting," Hughes said.

He said however that "the long-range effects could very well be disastrous."

"With the completion of the planned multi-storied apartment complex on Quarry Street," Hughes said, "the land would offer a welcome respite to the thousands of people expected to move into the area. In addition the open space would continue to be a source of relaxation and recreation for all residents of the City."

Ronald Halter Announces For Ward 3 Council Seat

PREVENT THE DEADLIEST CHILD KILLER

More children die from accidents than from the next three causes of child deaths put together [cancer, congenital malformations and pneumonia]. Accidents just don't happen. They are caused - and nine out of ten are preventable.

Obviously, I can't go into the multitude of prevention methods in this space, but I think it would be helpful to know when they are most apt to take place.

ACCIDENTS HAPPEN MOST OFTEN ... when a child is tired or hungry ... when any hazard - a sharp knife, a busy street, a bottle of aspirin - is too accessible ... when parents judge a child to be hyperactive...when the mother is ill...when a child is in the care of a person unfamiliar with his routine...when there is no safe place to play...when the relationship between parents is continually tense...when surroundings change, often at moving or vacation time...when other members of the family are ill or the center of a mother's attention.

$80,000 Lights Dedicated At Adams Field

Night Baseball is now a reality in Quincy as the lights at Adams Field were dedicated

In a ceremony conducted by Park-Recreation Board Chairman Joseph E. Burke, the new lights were dedicated in honor of the late Mario L. Carloni, former Quincy firefighter and athletic officer of Morrisette Legion Post, who died in 1963.

The lights, which cost $80,000, were recommended by the Park-Recreation Board, approved in the 1972 city budget by Mayor Hannon, and appropriated by the City Council.

Installation of lights will lengthen the careers of many Quincy boys who work in the afternoon. The field will now be used for twice as many games each day.

Adams Field was constructed by the Works Progress Administration in 1937-1938. The dimensions of the field are identical to the old Boston Braves baseball field in Boston.

The first game under the lights, between the Morrisette Legion and the Senior Babe Ruth League All-Stars was held immediately after the dedication.

A&T, Ship Haven, Marcel Wells Division Leaders

A & T Movers continue to roll along unbeaten in the Quincy Softball League, leading the American League West with an 8-0 record.

Barry's Ship Haven moved into first place in the National League West with an 8-1 mark, Wells is still on top of the National League East with a 7-1 record and Marcel Corp. paces the American League East wfth a 6-1 figure.

A & T rolled over Mr. Kelly's, 17-5, in the fog, and edged Beau's, 4-2, thanks to the all-around performance of first baseman Bob Wirtz.

County Line, coming off a 22-7 romp over Dee Dee's, handed Alumni Cafe its first loss as Jimmy Hatfield singled with the bases loaded single in the seventh to win it. Errorless ball and outstanding plays by Jamie Williams, Chuck Boken and Mike Kelly helped set the stage for Hatfield's heroics. This win, plus a later Alumni loss to Ship Haven, thrust County Line into the thick of the playoff race.

Ship Haven moved into the N.L. West lead with three wins. After slipping by Barry's Deli, 8-5, and pounding Jonathan's, 15-3, the Haven staged a seventh inning rally to top Alumni on Bernie Giammalvo's game-winning triple. Bob Kelley went three for four and Johnny Oakes sparkled defensively for the winners.

It wasn't a completely lost week for Alumni as it edged St. Catherine's, 3-2, collecting five of its six hits in one inning. Two Vinny Cammeron fielding gems in the seventh saved Alumni, while George McCall's line shot over the left field fence accounted for the Saints' runs.

Later St. Catherine's survived a shaky second inning to top Walsh's, 14-6. Chuck Condos had three hits for the Saints and Tom Walsh, had six putouts in the outfield as pitcher Mike Parros one-hit Walsh's over the last five innings.

Wells Grille added two wins at the expense of St. Catherine's and China Lido. Gary McGrath belted two more home runs over the Rotary Field fence, one of them providing the win over St. Catherine's.

Barry's Deli slugged out a 17-12 win over China Lido sparked by Paul Clement, Ken Panaro and Jim McGue, with three hits apiece.

B & B Health Spa, aided by first inning back-to-back homers by Harry Daniels and Paul Nagel, defeated Beau's, 12-5.

Later three-hit performances by Gerry Pratt, Mike Flynn, Charlies Viola and Nagle powered B & B over McInnis, 10-3.

Howard Johnson defeated McInnis behind the hitting of Bill Gordon but later fell to Marcel, 8-4. Marcel then clubbed Palmer Pub, 27-7, and Hofbrau, 23-8. In the latter game injured pitcher Jimmy Watkins was pressed into action and picked up the victory.

The league players and officials wish a speedy recovery to Steve Daly, Dee Dee's fine outfielder, who suffered a serious leg injury.

2 N.Q. Youths Selected For Youth Yacht Championship

Two North Quincy youths have been selected to be contestants in the United States Youth Championship at the Sheridan Shore Yacht Club in Wilmette, Ill., from June 15-20.

They are Michael Morrissey, 19, sophomore and co-captain of the sailing team at the U. of Massachusetts in Amherst and sailing instructor for the City of Quincy, and his crew of the past four years, Michael Dorkin, 19, a sophomore at Stonehill College.

The Youth Championship is being held for the first time and is being sponsored by the North American Yacht Racing Union and the United States Olympic Yachting committee with the winner representing the United States at the World Youth Championship to be held at Troia, Portugal in August.

Selections of skippers and crew were made by the Olympic Committee, not only on the skipper's ability and past performance but with emphasis on the crew's performance also.

In 1971, Morrissey, along with Durkin as his crew, represented the United States sailing in the 420 World Championship Competition held in Cherbourg, France. This time, however, they will be sailing in 470's, the boat recently selected as an Olympic boat for 1976.

Along with the usual racing schedule and social activities, seminars are being given by Olympic Gold Medalist, Bill Bentsen, and Buddy Melges. Also, Dave Ullman, Dick Tillman, Peter Barrett, Bruce Goldsmith and Dick Stearns, chairman of the United States Olympic Yachting Committee.

For the past three years, Morrissey has been a sailing instructor for the City of Quincy Recreation Department at the Black's Creek Boat House where over a thousand participate each summer in a program of instruction in rowing and sailing open to residents of the City.

Starting July 5, a daily program from 9 - 4 will be held for youngsters. The Recreation Department also offers adult lessons nightly from 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. and family recreational boating and sailing on weekends, Saturday 10 - 4, and Sunday 12 - 6. Registration for the program is being held on July 2 and 3 at the Black's Creek Boat House.

North JV's Put Gleam In Bunker's Eye

North Quincy Baseball Coach Charlie Bunker can't be blamed for the gleam in his eye as he looks forward to next season.

For Charlie, this spring was another frustrating one with his team again starting off well only to falter and he has yet to win a Greater Boston League championship or gain a state tourney berth.

"We had a fantastic junior varsity team, coached by Lou Ioanilli, this year, and I drooled when I had them work out for me after our season was over," Bunker said. "The Jayvees had a 16-1 record and outscored the opposition, 135 to 40, and our freshman team, coached by Ron LaQuaglia, was the once-beaten city champion. When I look at the boys on both these teams, I just can't wait until next year comes.

"As this will be our last year in the Greater Boston League [North and Quincy move to the Suburban League the following year], it would be really nice to win the title."

Ioanilli, the Raiders' soccer coach, and LaQuaglia, highly successful ninth grade basketball coach, were making their bows this spring with the jayvees and freshmen.

"This was a great group of youngsters to work with and we had to come from behind many times to win," Ioanilli said. "Most junior varsity teams win on base stealing and the opponents' errors. This team lacked speed and won on their hitting and pitching, especially the hitting.

"Add these to good defense and you have the reasons for our good year. These boys will make the varsity strong in the next two years. We had 12 sophomores and five juniors."

John Lawlor was 5-0 pitching, Rich Befera 5-1, Rich Marino, Bill Driscoll and John McKinnon 2-0 each.

Lawlor not only was the top pitcher but the leading batter with a .478 average, playing first base when not pitching. He hit often and with power, according to his coach.

Dennis McGuire, an outfielder-first baseman, batted .367 and did his job as leadoff batter, seemingly always on base.

Catcher Steve McKinnon had a .333 average, coming through with many clutch hits, and excelled behind the plate.

Marino, pitcher-third baseman, hit .316 and was on base often. Outfielder Paul Rooney batted .313 and displayed power, Bob Newton, first base-second base, hit .290 and shone defensively; Outfielder Frank Micli, hit .282 and is a fine all-around player, and Shortstop Bob McMahon, an excellent fielder, hit .250.

Among the reserves who hit well were Don Cobban, outfield, .357; Befera .375, Driscoll, also an outfielder, .429; Larry McGue, catcher, .429, and John McKinnon, also a shortstop, .333.

Rounding out the championship squad were Paul Courtney, outfield-second base; Al Kelleher, third base-second base; Steve Marinelli, catcher-second base, and Steve Miller, second base-third base.

Managers were Mark Holliday and Bob Mewis.

Bunker admitted he liked the looks of most of the jayvees but was especially high on Lawlor, McGuire, Befera and John McKinnon.

LaQuaglia had an amazing coaching year, piloting his ninth grade basketball team to an undefeated city championship and the Atlantic-North baseball team to the title, losing only its final game.

"Some of the freshmen should make the varsity next year," Bunker said. "They were bigger than our varsity players and I'd hate to see them in a fight with my players. They have some outstanding prospects."

St. John's HNS Bowling League Presents Awards At Banquet

At the recent 24th annual banquet of the St. John's Holy Name Bowling League at the Adams Heights Club, Richie DiRamio received the Most Valuable Bowler trophy, one of the many awards presented during the evening.

DiRamio had the season's high average, 107.8, followed by Radar Sandonato, 106.8; Jim Mastrantonio, 106.1 and Earl Lauretto, 105.8.

Ed Grilli had the high single, 172, and John Darcy the high three, 397.

Richie's was the league champion, the members including Ron DiRamio, Frank Rusconi, John Franceschini, Dick Guerriero and Rich DiRamio. Second place team was Jim's, Aldo's was third and Joe's fourth.

Although Jim's had the high three of 1,614, John's received the trophy because Jim's qualified for another award. The same was true in the high single with Jim's first with 602, John's second with 580, Richie's and Joe's tied for third with 558. As each qualified for another award, the trophy went to Tom's, which had a 552 single.

In the rolloffs for the top spots, Richie's defeated Jim's, 1,494 to 1,442, and Aldo's defeated Joe's, 1,490 to 1,455.

Gifts were presented to the league officers, President Fred Fostello, Secretary Dick Guerriero and Treasurer Aldo Saluti.

Morrissey, Serafini Low Gross Winners

Mary Morrissey and Mario Serafini were winners with a low gross of 40 in a mixed Scotch Foursome at Furnace Brook Golf Club.

The low net of 30 was carded by Ginny McCann and George Hodges.

A two-way tie for second low net at 31 was between the teams of Isabelle Morrison and John Eramo, and Rose LaHive and Quentin McCaffrey.

Third at 32 were Rena Hodges and Hal Buzzell.

And fourth at 33, in another two-way tie were the teams of Alyce Pagnano and George Flate, and Eda Flate and Roy Christianson.

Morrisette Wins Opener Quincy Loses Squeaker

By TOM SULLIVAN

Morrisette Legion baseball team, seeking its 19th District 6 championship, its eighth in the last 11 years, opened defense of its crown on the right foot Sunday with a 5-1 win over Hingham at Adams Field.

Meanwhile, Quincy Legion lost a 7-4 squeaker at Weymouth Monday in it's opener. Quincy made its home bow last night under the lights at Adams Field against Hingham, will host Randolph Sunday afternoon at Adams and next Wednesday night at 8 will face Milton at Adams.

Bob Pierce pitched all the way for Quincy Monday and did well. Billy Shea hit a two-run homer and Steve Mele also had a homer.

All Morrisette and Quincy midweek home games this year are being played under the new lights, said to be among the best around, at Adams Field.

Morrisette's batting was a bit disappointing Sunday but, with Hingham's pitchers extremely wild, not much hitting was needed.

Cattaneo received a heartening pitching performance from Tim Clifford, 15-year old North Quincy sophomore, who, in his Legion debut, pitched a three-hitter and struck out 11. The youngster was a bit wild, walking eight, three of them in the opening inning.

"The kid showed a lot of poise and he should be all right," Cattaneo said. "Our pitching is the big question mark this year and if Tim and the other newcomers come through, we should be all right."

Morrisette scored three runs in the second inning on only one hit, a double by John Warren, and five bases on balls. The champs added a run in the seventh with no hits and scored another in the eighth on a walk and a single by Mark Dwyer on which the outfielder had a two-base error.

• Junior FARM LEAGUE

Orioles, Braves League Pacers

With the Quincy Junior Farm League entering the final two weeks of the season, it is apparent a tough job is ahead when it comes time to select players for the all-star game.

The Orioles defeated the Cubs, 7-4, as Kyle Morton, Steve Belcastro and Rob McHugh combined to do the Orioles' pitching. Steve Rullis had a double and single, Gene Kornse a two-run triple and McHugh a run-scoring triple.

The Orioles also topped the Tigers, 12-5, with McHugh and Morton doing the hurling. Danny Shea had a two-run homer, Rullis had a triple, double and single, and Kornse had two hits.

Kornse was making his last Farm League appearance as he has been picked up by the Colonial Federal team of the Junior League.

The Tigers evened their record at 5-5 with a 5-3 win over the Indians. The pitching of Dean Coletti and Mike Doherty kept the Indians at bay, while Mike Panico drove in the winning runs.

The Dodgers edged the Yankees, 4-2, as Phil Maloney had nine strikeouts. Bob Kenny's hit in the second inning provided the winning runs. Frank Levesque, Maloney and Bob Bolster paced the attack.

The Dodgers blanked the Braves, 4-0, with Tom McHugh striking out 12 batters. Tom Canavan's hit in the first drove in the first two runs and Bolster drove in the other two in the third. Scott Rafferty and Chip Servant hit well.

The Dodgers also shut out the Giants, 3-0, with Ernie DeBeau and Brian Sullivan sharing the pitching. Each had five strikeouts. Bolster and Canavan drove in three runs in the fifth with long flies by Rafferty and Sullivan also helping out. Steve Kallenberg and DeBeau were other hitters.

The Giants shut out the Indians, 6-0, with little Mike O'Toole pitching the season's first no-hit, no-run game. He faced only 20 batters and gave up two walks. Richie Hallberg tripled with the bases loaded in the first inning and in the fourth he drove in the other three runs with a double. Mike Hussey and Marc Picot turned in outstanding defensive plays.

The Giants outslugged the Pirates, 16-9, with Mike McNeice tripling home a run in the first and then hitting a grand slam homer in the fourth. Richie and Paul Rinehart, Richie Hallberg, Jay Priciotto, Albie Vasile, Dave Picot, Mike Hussey and Willie Dudley displayed fine hitting, fielding and base running. Buddy Cappola won his third straight game to even his record at 3-3. He is also batting an amazing .714 for the year.

The Braves, after eight wins in a row, suffered their first loss, 4-0, to the Dodgers, who moved into a first place tie in the National League with a 9-1 record. Danny Walsh pitched for the Braves and, despite 10 strikeouts, dropped his first decision in four outings. He also had two hits and Jack Brown, Danny Flynn and John Barrett also hit well.

The Braves came back to top the Red Sox, 5-1, with Glen Segalla pitching a three-hitter and striking out 11. He made his record 4-0. Danny Walsh had a triple and single and drove in a run and Pat King, Jack Brown and Danny Flynn also drove in runs.

In a race between two write-in candidates, Arthur L. Fitzgerald, a former president, edged Bernard C. Doherty, to become the local's vice president. The vote was 99 to 83.

In the only other contested race, incumbents Richard T. Three candidates ran unopposed. Charles E. Ford, 180 votes, was elected treasurer. The post was vacated by Doherty to run for the vice presidency.

Southwest School Planning Group Conducting Programs Survey

The Southwest Quincy Community School Planning Group will be conducting a survey in the next few weeks to determine what programs to offer at the new Lincoln-Hancock Community School this fall.

The new school, part of which is expected to be occupied by September, will have evening classes for adults, athletic and swimming activities and groups that will meet for informative reasons.

A "community school" is one committed to making the community an integral part of the school and the school an integral part of the community. These schools serve as centers for fulfilling many community needs besides the traditional role of primary education.

The planning group survey will span such areas as home improvement, personal improvement, work placement skills, home arts, crafts and hobbies, music and dance, and films to determine what activities the community wants offered at the new facility.

Members of the Planning Group are:

Diane Acorn, Phyllis Aimola, Ernest Aristide, Carol Campbell, Catherine Connolly, Evelyn Crews, Carolyn Goyette, Normand Goyette, Barbara Griffin, Anneli Johnson, Calvin Joppru, Irene Kilduff, Sally Kozlowski, Leo MacDonald, Joann Maze, Patricia Nee, Richard Rice, Frank Rusconi, Maureen Sevior, Domenic Silvestro, Judy Timberlake and Debra Zimmerman.

Maybe You'd Like To Be Foster Grandparents

By PUTNAM S. BORDEN
Executive Director
Quincy Council On Aging

Today, I'd like to talk with you about kids, in general, and specifically about a small group with whom I have regular dealings.

I hope not too many will be put off by my usage of "kids" in the context of young children, as opposed to young goats, as I feel much more comfortable with it. "Children" seems so very formal. And even though, one, in the past, when I made reference to kids and had the distinction pointed out to me [I already knew it], kids has a good conotation.

In any event, I want to tell you about some great kids. Just about a year ago, I became involved, for the first time, in Little League activity. It all started when I arrived late for the annual organization meeting. I had decided it would be fun to maybe help out with one of the teams and so, innocently, put my name in.

As I arrived at St. John's school, it became obvious that the meeting had ended. I knew this because all the lights were off, an instant deduction on my part. Noticing a small group standing on the side walk, I asked if it was too late to become involved and was immediately advised that, not only was it not too late but that I was appointed, on the spot, as manager of the St. John's Braves. And so it was that I came to the Braves and the Braves came to me.

St. John's Parish has, for some 23 years, sponsored a Little League, open to boys up to 12 years old. It is non-sectarian and available to any youngsters living within the general parish area. It is composed of 10 teams, with players aged 9-12 and four teams in a "farm" league for boys 8 and under. In total it offers organized baseball for over 200 kids each year. The Braves are one of the 10 major league teams.

In my first meeting with the Braves players, it became obvious, at the outset, that they were good kids and this initial perception was more than justified as the season went on. Last years season, in terms of won, lost records, was a disaster. We won 2 and lost 13. However, in terms of learning some very important things, it was a real success.

The boys learned, of course, to play more proficiently. In fact, they played quite well in most games. However, they consistantly had one bad inning and this usually made the difference. Most important, they learned to play as a team, supporting each other when mistakes were made and cheering each other on when things were going right. Throughout the disappointing season, they learned to lose like gentlemen, no temper tantrums, no poor sportsmanship, and no quitting.

This year, they came back to me, older, wiser, better, and still good kids. This year they've been a winning team, 12 wins, 1 loss so far, but they have continued to show all the good qualities of last year. They support each other, they cheer each other on, and having learned to lose gracefully, they have also been gracious winners. Being associated with these kids has given me real satisfaction.

And do you know, these kids aren't unique. They're like many, many others their same age, good kids learning how to grow up and live in our world. Have you ever thought about getting involved with these kids. You know, you might really enjoy it. It's easy. Do you like sports? Go to some of the games. They're more fun to watch than the pro's.

Not only will you enjoy yourself, if you're a sports fan, but the kids love to play to an audience. Not only that, if you're interested, these activities can always use some help. You might even find you enjoy it enough to become involved in the program.

Ladies, it doesn't have to be sports, either. I was in scouting for a while and found that the hardest thing is getting adult assistance. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Brownies, Blue Birds, etc.

There are lots of kids who want to belong but not enough adult help to go around. You all have talents; talents that could be important to kids.

You also have something that many youngsters lack, exposure to age, maturity and wisdom.

One of the tragedies today, with families relocating all over the country, is that many kids never get to know their grandparents.

Maybe some of you could become and enjoy being foster-grandparents.

Tourist, Historical Sites Questionnaire Sent Out By Chamber

A questionnaire is being mailed to tourist attractions and historical locations in the 14 town area of the South Shore Chamber announces Rev. John Graham, Quincy, Chairman of the Chamber's Tourist and Convention Committee.

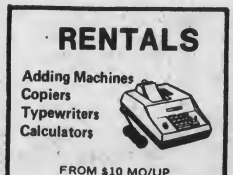
This questionnaire, noted Graham, was developed by Committeeman John Hutchins, Milton, to obtain valuable information for the Chamber's Tourist information service, and also prepare the Chamber for the 1976 Bi-Centennial referral.

"Once this information is compiled," continued Chairman Graham, "we will be culling it into a South Shore brochure for distribution to interested parties."

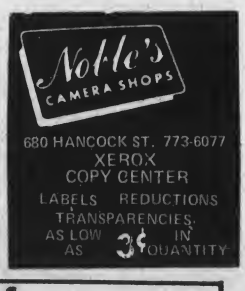
Chairman Graham also announced that his committee is considering conducting a live survey of tourists at Shopping Centers, Toll booths, etc., to determine why tourists are visiting the South Shore area, or why they are by-passing it.

The program will be headed by Wayne Ferry, a member of Reverend Graham's Committee.

Cowin To Address Kemper Political Action Committee



Secretary of Administration William I. Cowin will address members of the New England Kemper Political Action Committee, at its monthly forum, Thursday June 21, at 3:15 p.m. at Kemper Insurance Regional Headquarters, 150 Newport Ave., North Quincy.



As featured speaker, the Secretary will key his remarks to Governor Sargent's proposed reorganization of Massachusetts state government as well as highlights of the controversial reorganization budget filed with the legislature for Fiscal Year 1974.

Named by Sargent to his post as Secretary of the Executive Office of Administration and Finance to steer the passage of reorganization's Phase II, Secretary Cowin is responsible for establishing and coordinating management, personnel, and fiscal policies within state government.

Terming Secretary Cowin's agency the "centerpiece" of comprehensive modernization and reorganization as it "assists and controls the operation of all other state agencies", Sargent recently said that the "success of everything the state seeks to accomplish" depends on Administration and Finance's "efficiency, responsiveness and flexibility".

Judge Grants Continuance

Revaluation Delayed Year, Tax Rate May Drop $1.45

By TOM HENSHAW

The Quincy tax rate for 1973 may go down as much as $1.45 instead of the $1 forecast last week by Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

The City Council Monday night turned down an opportunity to buy for $112,000 from the Quincy Historical Society a tract of land adjacent to Quincy City Hospital.

Based on the rule of thumb that every $250,000 in the budget means $1 in the tax rate, removal of $112,000 from the budget would mean a reduction in the tax rate of about 45 cents.

At the same time, the City Council approved another budget item, $58,000 to pay an architect for plans for the school physical education and administration building that have been junked.

Tuesday, Judge Eileen Griffin cleared another obstacle out of the way of the official tax rate when she granted Quincy a one year continuance of a 1968 court order directing the city to

Smyth Asks MDC Police Step Up QSD Patrols

More and more cars going faster and faster may soon bring stricter traffic controls to Quincy Shore Drive.

Recently, the section of highway along Wollaston Beach from the Neponset Bridge to Sea St. in Merrymount has been the scene of several bad accidents and one fatality.

City Councillor J. Vincent Smyth has written to MDC Commissioner John Sears asking an immediate increase in police patrols and a study of traffic lights to control the flow of vehicles in the area.

Wrote Smyth:

"Automobiles have been observed using excessive speed in this area and with the summer bathing season at hand, it become imperative that the MDC take immediate steps to increase police patrols until at least the middle of September.

"May I suggest that your office study the feasibility of making the present various pedestrian lights full working traffic lights, both to control the speed and flow of vehicular traffic on the boulevard.

"I know the residents of North Quincy, Wollaston and Merrymount would appreciate this condition being rectified as soon as possible."

Draft Board Moves To Needham

Eighteen-year-olds from Quincy will have to go to Needham now to register for the draft.

Quincy Selective Service Board 27 moved to 992 Great Plain Ave., Needham, Tuesday as part of an economy move to consolidate the functions of many boards in one place.

About two months ago, Quincy had three draft boards, No. 27, No. 122 and No. 123, but they were consolidated into one board headquartered in the old Adams Academy building on Adams Street.

Selective Service is now in the process of selecting a new chairman for the combined boards. H. Maurice Hughes was the last chairman of No. 27.

Meanwhile, Selective Service Headquarters in Washington reminded young men about to turn 18 that they are still required to register for the draft even though that section of the law authorizing the President to draft men expired June 30.

As many as 12 per cent of those eligible have failed to register this year, a spokesman for the draft said, and the figure may be much higher in New England.

Only 1 New Candidate Takes Out Papers

Election fever has subsided at least briefly in Quincy as only one new candidate took out nomination papers to run for municipal office in next fall's election.

The expected $1 cut in the tax rate is believed to be holding challengers back.

The new hopeful is Patrick J. Faherty of 47 Faxon Park Rd, running for the City Council in Ward 3.

The full list of candidates to date includes:

Mayor - George H. Manuelian, Daniel S. Coughlin Jr., George A. Trubiano.

City Council:

Ward 1 - Richard P. Ward, Robert Denvir, Ronald Greenwald. Incumbent Edward S. Graham is not seeking re-election.

Ward 2 - Clifford H. Marshall, the incumbent seeking re-election.

Ward 3 - Ronald L. Halter, Peter P. Gacicia, Patrick J. Faherty. Incumbent is Theophilus McLelland III.

Ward 4 - Thomas P. Hughes, Herbert Reppucci, James A. Sheets. Incumbent is Albert R. Barilaro.

Ward 5 - John J. Lydon Jr., Warren A. Powers, Michael J. Peatridge, Ronald T. Johnson, Stephen I. Marini. Incumbent is William Delahunt.

Ward 6 - Dennis Harrington, James J. Vey, J. Vincent Smyth, incumbent seeking re-election.

At Large - Carl W. Anderson, Adeline Pompeo, Thomas F. Brownell. Incumbents are Arthur H. Tobin, John J. Quinn and Joseph LaRaia.

School Committee - Bryant L. Carter Jr., Frank Anselmo, an incumbent seeking re-election.

$200 Fine To Litter Streets?

It's going to be more expensive to litter the streets of Quincy if City Councillor J. Vincent Smyth has his way.

Smyth introduced an ordinance in Monday's Council meeting providing for a fine of up to $200 for littering the streets, tipping over rubbish barrels or placing such barrels on the sidewalk prior to 8 p.m. the day before pickup.

Smyth's proposal was sent to the Council's Ordinance Committee for action.

Brudno Scholarship Established

Congressman James A. Burke [D-Milton] has established a scholarship at Quincy Junior College in memory of Capt. Edward A. Brudno, the former prisoner of war from Quincy who died less than four months after his release from a Vietnamese prison.

The scholarship and Burke's contribution were made possible by the Quincy School Committee which set up the Annual Scholarship Fund last month to help capable students who are in dire economic straits.

Each award is for $100 and is good for one year.

Five scholarships recently were awarded at an honors convivium, including one each from former Mayor James R. McIntyre and Mayor Walter J. Hannon.

Southern Artery Median Strip Would Aggravate Safety Problems, Says Brett

The controversial plan to install a median strip along the Southern Artery has been challenged for safety reasons by Rep. Joseph E. Brett.

In a letter to DPW Commissioner Bruce Campbell, Brett said, "A percentage of the accidents occurring in that area are those of pedestrians being struck by automobiles. As this area is frequented by youths who frequently are crossing to and fro across the roadway, I feel the median obstacle will tend to aggravate the safety problem as the young people climb and jump over it."

Brett also questioned the safety of the proposed openings for U-turns. He labelled these openings "dangerous" and added that they would lead to tremendous traffic back-ups."

"Rather than the median barrier proposal" Brett added, "I would suggest the implementation of "safety signs" and "left-turn" lane markings along the roadway and also an increase in police involvement toward closer supervision over the hot-rodders and drag-racers who frequent the area."

The median strip, which would run from McGrath Highway to River Street, has previously been opposed by local businessmen. David Reinstein, owner of Howdy Beefburger, termed the strip "A Berlin Wall, it would absolutely put me out of business" before a recent meeting of the City Council.

Representative Brett spoke similarly in his letter to the DPW. "The median barrier would make it very inconvenient for motorists to gain access to many of the business establishments as well as some of the residences in the area and, as a result, it could very well discourage business activity along the Artery."

The median strip, which would cost about $550,000, was tentatively scheduled to be constructed in the fall. However, The City Council passed a resolution May 21, requesting the DPW to halt construction until a better plan is worked out.

Revaluation Delayed For One More Year

base assessments on 100 per cent value of real estate.

All that remains now before the official tax rate can be announced is approval by the State Tax Commissioners. Approval is expected some time next week when the commissioners return from their convention.

After that, the deluge – of tax bills to taxpayers.

In support of the city's bid for a year's extension of the court order, City Solicitor Richard J. McCormick told Judge Griffin he believes Quincy could be using the 100 per cent valuation figures in 1974.

The city's bid for a continuance was supported by the opposition, the Quincy Taxpayers Association, a group that has supported the suit for revaluation since it was first filed in 1965.

"We are content that the city has taken some action," said Stephen T. Keefe, attorney representing the QTA. "It is the opinion of the petitioners that irreparable harm will be done to Quincy if this [continuance] is not granted for at least another year."

Revaluation has had a stormy history in Quincy over the past eight years.

The original suit seeking revaluation was brought against the city in 1965 by Frederick J. Murphy and others.

As a result, the firm of Cole, Layer and Trumble was hired to revalue property in the city. The revaluation was completed in 1967.

But the revaluation produced more than 6,000 appeals from the tax bills so the city decided not to use the Cole, Layer and Trumble figures at all.

Another revaluation suit was filed in 1968 and the ensuing court order has been postponed annually each year since.

Meanwhile, the city was sued by Cole, Layer and Trumble for the final installment payment for the revaluation work.

The city is using some of the information obtained by Cole, Layer and Trumble to make its own revaluation of property.

Just imagine horse's return

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

We hear a lot about the "energy crisis" these days and the resulting shortage of gas for our cars.

Though I haven't the foggiest about big-oil dealings with the Bedouins or pipelines from the Yukon, I have thoughts about the possible return of the horse. Maybe we shouldn't fight it.

I keep imagining a freeway at peek traffic time filled with commuters on horseback and the friendly comradeship that would take place.

No longer would my husband be encapsuled in his Motown ego extension awaiting a possible whiplash. Instead, he'd be galloping along, dressed in Levis like Steve McQueen, and breathing clean — if horsey — air.

That makes a man want to smile at the guy next to him and say, "Howdy, partner." Even if that guy is the Highway Patrol. Because with everybody using only one horsepower, there'd be no need to fear arrest.

A rider could wave at an officer and say, "Sir, I believe you are needed two miles back at the pass — formerly known as the Hill Street off-ramp — there's a big pile-up there." And the officer, knowing horses will be horses, would take his shovel, and broom from his saddle bag and canter off to do his duty.

On family vacations there'd be no more squabbling among the kids in the back seat, because there'd be no back seat. And no more stopping at every gas station to let them explore the wonders of the rest rooms.

"Keep riding, kids," a father would call over his shoulder to his four-horse family, "or we'll never make Disneyland before sundown."

Motels would be called hotels again. Garages would have lofts and hayrides would come back.

We'd all learn to sing again. Best of all, when a child phoned his mother from a friend's house two blocks away and asked to be picked up, that mother could say, "Sorry, Elmo, I've donated our car to the museum. Walk."

It would do the kid good. First, to look the word up in the dictionary, and then to do it.

- The 'Crossover Memo'
- Watergate Impact Abroad
- Nixon In '76?

WASHINGTON — The story can now be told how the Pentagon falsified intelligence reports in 1967 and, as a result, was caught unprepared for the Tet offensive in February, 1968. It was a Watergate-size scandal which, until now, the military has hidden from the public. We have been able to dig out the details, however, from sources who have access to the secret documents.

In early 1967, the Joint Chiefs became persuaded that the war was ending. Their intelligence reports indicated that the Viet Cong had been hounded out of their hideouts by American B-52s. This optimistic outlook was based largely on a secret memo prepared by Major General Daniel Graham, an intelligence officer. His famous memo, nicknamed the "Crossover Memo," reported that Communist losses had crossed over the gains. In other words, Communist strength was declining.

Graham's estimate was based on a total Communist strength of 275,000. The Central Intelligence Agency, however, came up with the shockingly higher figure of 600,000. But rather than admit a gross miscalculation, orders actually went out to underestimate enemy strength — in other words to falsify the figures.

This tampering with intelligence ultimately gave President Johnson a false picture. I remember a visit with LBJ in mid-1967. He told me Communist losses were so severe that the Viet Cong had been forced to conscript 15-year-olds from the villages. "The war," he said, "should be over in 1967."

Johnson was wrong because the Pentagon had misled him.

Watergate Abroad: The State Department has prepared a depressing summary of the impact of Watergate on foreign affairs. From Europe to Asia, according to the secret summary, foreign leaders recognize that President Nixon's diplomatic hand has been weakened by Watergate.

Both our friends and foes abroad have already started maneuvering to take advantage of the President's poor bargaining position. European leaders, who seek a third devaluation of the dollar, are using Watergate as a bargaining tool. The recent decline of the dollar has come to be known in financial circles as the "Watergate flurry."

Even Spain's 81-year-old Generalissimo Franco, a personal friend of Nixon, has imposed sudden new restrictions on the use of American military bases. Among other things, the Spaniards are demanding information on the comings and goings of U.S. nuclear submarines. They have been emboldened, according to the diplomatic summary, by Watergate.

But above all else, the State Department is worried about the summit meeting this week between President Nixon and Soviet Chairman Leonid Brezhnev. The Kremlin leader is coming to Washington fully aware that he has been dealt a new ace, called Watergate, to play at the bargaining table.

Brezhnev may be willing to make the President look good, thus strengthening him politically in the wake of Watergate. But the State Department strategists are worried over what concessions Brezhnev will expect in return. They fear another sell-out like the Soviet wheat deal, which has come to be known as the great grain robbery.

Nixon in '76?: Washington is buzzing with talk about impeaching President Nixon. But a small, faithful band of Nixon loyalists are quietly working to keep him in power. They used to call themselves "Citizens for Nixon in 1976." But as a concession to the Watergate revelations, they have changed their name to "The Committee to Repeal the 22nd Amendment."

Their aim is to re-elect Nixon in 1976. But first, they must repeal the 22nd Amendment, which limits a President to two terms in office. Ironically, it was passed in 1947 with the enthusiastic support of Congressman Richard Nixon, who wanted to prevent another Franklin D. Roosevelt from staying in power more than two terms.

The Nixon loyalists have already filed a civil suit in Cincinnati challenging the 22nd Amendment. Now they are preparing to launch a massive propaganda campaign. Like the money that funded the Watergate operation, the money backing the Nixon loyalists comes from secret sources.

The president of the Madison Avenue agency handling the publicity campaign claims that disclosure of financial sources "might do personal harm." The ad agency denies that it has received any of the leftover money from the Nixon presidential campaign. The agency, however, expects to spend more than a million dollars for radio, TV, newspaper and billboard advertisements.

The campaign will commence on — what else — the Fourth of July. But at this point, there probably isn't enough money available to change the Constitution and re-elect Richard Nixon in 1976.

Cambodian Leaks: Secret CIA intelligence reports explain why Communist casualities from U.S. B-52 raids over Cambodia have turned out to be too small. According to one recently retired CIA analyst, the Communists are frequently forewarned of the raids.

The Cambodian government apparently seldom bothers to encode messages asking for air strikes. The Communists, therefore, have little trouble intercepting messages from the Cambodian government to U.S. forces.

Sheriff Charles Hedges will take his badge off next year.

Regardless of rumors to the contrary, Hedges will not seek re-election.

"Definitely not," he confirms. "I'm going to retire and enjoy life."

Hedges, former Republican state senator from Quincy, has been Norfolk County sheriff since 1961. That was the year he unseated Democrat Peter McCormack of Brookline who had been appointed by Gov. Foster Furcolo to succeed the late Samuel Wragg. [And, where does the time go!]

Republicans and Democrats don't agree very often on political matters. But most of them will tell you that "Charlie Hedges had done one helluva job" during his administration at the Norfolk County Jail and House of Correction.

He initiated historic work release programs by which carefully screened inmates went out--on their honor--into the community to work. And returned, on their honor.

He also established in-jail educational programs in which inmates could study for high school diplomas.

Norfolk County, once a GOP stronghold, turned Democratic some years back. Republicans just don't win any more.

Hedges is the last of the GOP powers. If he decided to run next year, he'd probably keep the badge.

He's in good health. Doesn't look a day older than when he was first elected. But:

"I wouldn't run again if someone handed me $50,000," Hedges says. "It's time to step down."

YOU CAN THUS add Deputy Sheriff John Brownell to the list of contenders for the sheriff's job.

Brownell, father of Rep. Thomas Brownell [D-Quincy] is telling friends he will run providing Hedges does not run. [So, get ready to run, Jack.]

HOCKEY PLAYERS look big and awesome with their padded equipment. So it was a little surprising to see that tough Teddy Green isn't really big at all. In fact, at the New England Whalers Day festivities in Quincy Saturday, he was even wearing high heels. [Men's high heels]. But that didn't stop the kids from asking him for his autograph.

IS GEORGE FRAZIER really necessary?

Frazier who has always had a poison pen as a newspaperman--columnist, rather--now has a poison mouth as a TV critic.

We caught WNAC-TV's "Mass Reaction" premiere the other night and old George was old George: Mr. Knocker himself.

Apparently the "in" thing these days on TV is that you have to knock or shock. Try a four-letter word, you might get away with it. Shaft somebody real hard. Don't say anything nice about anyone. Knock! Knock!

Frazier has bounced from newspaper to newspaper knocking people. The bigger they are, knock 'em harder. Everyone likes to see the big guy get the needle.

But who is Frazier to sit on a TV panel and refer to the President of the U.S. as a "louse".

Whether you think President Nixon is innocent or up to his ears in the Watergate scandal, the fact is he hasn't been convicted and he holds the highest office in the land – an office that still deserves respect. But Frazier is allowed to sit there and call him a "louse".

WNAC-TV has a good idea in presenting a live studio audience voicing its opinions and asking panel members questions.

But how about keeping it a little decent?

From where we sat on opening night, the audience scored a lot higher than the panel in general and a couple of questioners made Frazier look pretty small.

THE SPECULATION CORPS figures Councillor Joseph LaRaia will pass up a mayoralty bid this year and run for re-election. The expected drop in the tax rate will probably leave Mayor Walter Hannon without a major name challenger.

INCIDENTALLY, although Hannon last week predicted the tax rate would drop "about $1", some City Hall observers wouldn't be surprised to see it go down "about $2".

* * *

FRANK McNALLY, a member of the Quincy Vocational Technical School Advisory Board, is giving serious thought to making a bid for the School Committee.

SOME business firms come up with catchy names. For example, Bromo's Appliance Service on Beach St., Wollaston, is owned by: Harold Seltzer. Aw, fizz.

OLD POLITICAL WARRIOR Carl Anderson who is attempting a comeback this year as a council at-large candidate, says he's "getting fed up" about political testimonial dinners.

"A candidate has to be obligated to someone who buys $100 worth of tickets," says he.

Q - I owe money to a large department store, and while I realize I'm behind in my payments, I am making every effort to keep up. Yet, the collection agency for the store has threatened to tell my employer about my delinquent debt. Can they do this?

A - Harassing and debt collection techniques are illegal in Massachusetts. A creditor may not telephone the debtor at unreasonable hours or threaten to use violence if the debt is not paid, or tell the debtor's office, relatives, employer or other close associates about the debt in order to encourage payment. The creditor may not send forged or "legal-looking" documents to imply that court or legal action has been taken against the debtor.

Q - What assurance do I have that my used car was not subject to intensive wear by the previous owner, ie as a leased vehicle?

A - Under Massachusetts law the prospective buyer must be informed if a car has been used as a rental vehicle, as part of a taxi fleet, as a police car, or if the engine or electrical parts have been submerged in water.

Q - I purchased several magazine subscriptions recently from a young man who said he was a student working his way through college. I later learned that this was a familiar sales pitch for selling subscriptions. Is this a common technique?

A - There are as many phony sales pitches in the magazine subscription business as there are imaginative salesmen. Persons will pose as any thing from a student working for points toward a college scholarship to a war veteran who elicits your subscription as a proof of patriotism. Threats, pleading, and sympathy appeals are frequently used. Remember, reputable magazine dealers will not use psychological ploys to attract business. Deceptive and misleading sales methods by magazine salesmen have been prohibited.

'Lonely People'

From a magazine: "A lonely man, 44 years old, 6'1" tall and weighs 180 lbs., recently separated, would like to meet a woman between 30-40 for companionship and dates. I like sports, movies, plays, dining and dancing. Send photo if possible. Write Box ..."

From the same issue: "Divorced female in 30's, well educated, considered attractive and interesting, with a 5½ year old son, would like to meet divorced or widowed professional or business man of excellent character and who will appreciate the affection and warmth I can give him. Write Box ...."

On and on I read these pleas of lonely people for companionship. Day after day I hear these pitiful cries of loneliness.... often by husbands and wives still living in the same house. There's a great search on for companionship ... for someone to listen ... someone with whom to share our lives ... our thoughts ... our hopes. The cocktail lounges which seem to ring with laughter from happy people are often serving people who are seeking to assuage their loneliness. Why so much loneliness?

One reason is that we have NOT LEARNED TO COMMUNICATE with each other after we have gone beyond the "hello" ... "What's your name." ... "Where do you work?" ... "What do you like to do?" We have not learned to talk about FEELINGS ... the happy feelings ... the angry feelings ... the confused feelings ... the fears ... the grief ... the guilt. We hide our feelings from each other. The result is that people remain lonely ... because we are unwilling ... or fearful to express our feelings. A meaningful marriage relationship must find two people who can talk with each other about feelings.

A second reason for so much loneliness is that many people have not learned TO BE THEIR OWN PERSON ... to find pleasure in their own "thing" ... to be able to FIND a measure of FULFILLMENT in SOMETHING CREATIVE that one likes to do. I know a man who walks the beach ... finds rare stones ... puts them in his "smoothing machine" ... and then mounts them for sale. A young friend has started his own painting business ... this he does while going to college at nights. A young wife with two little children plants her garden ... makes her drapes ... makes clothes for herself and her children ... paints beautiful pictures. She also has a part-time job which she enjoys. She has things to interest her ... so that she is not dependent upon her husband for her fulfillment and meaning in life. She is not lonely.

There is no one who needs to be lonely. If you are completely bereft of talent perhaps your loneliness can be assuaged by making a friend of an older person who is crippled ... blind ... or incapacitated in some other way. Not to make that person more dependent, but with your good legs you could do errands. With your good eyes you could read to the sightless. You can find a friendly service which will be meaningful both to you and the recipient of your gift of love and time.

Perhaps the biggest problem with all of us who experience loneliness is that WE DON'T REALLY LOVE OURSELVES ENOUGH. If one doesn't like himself/herself then we can't stand to be alone with ourselves. Perhaps a second look at yourself will reveal that you are more worthy of love than you first thought.

A Tribute To James Asher

Editor, Quincy Sun:

To those of us who were privileged to know James D. Asher, his untimely passing leaves a void in the community it will indeed be difficult to fill.

My close friendship with him dated back to the early days of Radio Station WJDA when he had the vision, courage, and determination to provide the South Shore Area with its first broadcasting station. To be sure, it was somewhat of a gamble but Jim went ahead with his plan with limited capital and a modest little building on Brackett Street, the interior of which he personally laid out to accommodate such broadcasting equipment as he and a few of his friends could raise the money for back in the days following World War II.

If my memory serves me correctly it was on September 13, 1947 that we tuned in 1300 on our radio dials and heard the voices of Jim Asher and his associate, Joe Tobin. Thus came into being what is now one of the best equipped [and housed] broadcasting stations outside of the larger metropolitan areas.

Jim Asher was a Christian Gentleman in its finest sense, a successful business executive, an active community leader, and a devoted family man. He contributed freely of his time and energy in helping to build the community, - whether it be in the early hours of the morning during his daily "Breakfast with J-D-A" broadcasts, at public events or with his inimitable comments at the various football games in the fall.

Yes, we do want to honor the memory and accomplishments of a good man who worked early and late because he thoroughly enjoyed it and liked people equally as much. We will miss Jim Asher!

To his mother, Mrs. Asher Sr., his wife, Ruth, and the members of his family we extend our sincere sympathy in the great loss they have sustained. May they be comforted by the many tributes of respect and admiration from his many friends.

A FAVORITE – For some informal repast serve the all-American favorite, the hot dog, with a variety of tangy toppings.

COOKING CORNER

Pickles, frankfurters combine for picnics

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

Picnic and outdoor dining time is at hand.

For some weekend, you might like to team two picnic favorites, pickles and frankfurters.

Toppings are a popular way of dressing up the frankfurters. Any of these toppings given here will help star the hot dog for picnics, after-game, or swim-fest parties.

DILLED SLAW TOPPING
(Makes about 1 quart)

1 quart finely shredded cabbage
1 medium tomato, chopped
½ cup chopped dill pickle
½ cup mayonnaise
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon celery seed
Dash pepper

Combine and mix all ingredients. Serve as topping for frankfurters, as desired.

PICKLE BEAN TOPPING
(Makes about 2 cups)

1 can (16 ounces) pork and beans
One-third cup chopped sweet mixed pickles
2 tablespoons catsup
1 tablespoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon prepared horseradish

Combine all ingredients in saucepan. Heat to serving temperature; stirring occasionally. Serve as topping for frankfurters, as desired.

RELISH CHEESE TOPPING
(Makes 1½ cups)

1 package (½ pound) pasteurized process cheese spread, at room temperature
One-third cup undrained sweet pickle relish
¼ cup chili sauce
2 tablespoons mayonnaise

Beat cheese smooth. Blend in remaining ingredients. Serve as topping for frankfurters, as desired.

World health chiefs warn of VD spread

The World Health Organization warned recently that venereal disease is spreading so rapidly it is threatening to become completely out of control, and quick action is necessary to avert this situation.

The WHO report says that one reason for the rapid increase is that education in sex and health is "deplorably inadequate."

MOVIE DEBUT

On June 7, 1909, Mary Pickford made her motion picture debut with the release of her first film, "The Violin Maker of Cremona."

STRICTLY PERSONAL

Avoid detecting in secretary role

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS
Copley News Service

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have a good job so don't tell me to leave it. I am a private secretary to a very successful man and enjoy my work. There is only one problem connected with my business life. Recently my boss has been receiving numerous phone calls from a young woman. He may be refusing all other calls (even from his wife) but always instructs me to put this young woman through immediately.

This irritates me greatly. I know his wife. She is a nice person and deserves better. I do not feel that I should be caught in the middle of handling this "affair." How can I get out of this annoying situation?.

The Secretary

Dear Secretary:

You were hired as a secretary to handle telephone calls, correspondence, and follow instructions. You were not employed to judge your boss' behavior or his personal life.

If you like your job, stick with the dictation and leave the detecting to others.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I am 16 and must have braces. I've talked my parents out of this for a year and now the date is set. What worries me is how boys feel about girls who wear braces?

Angie

Dear Angie:

The same way girls feel about boys who wear braces. Just keep in mind how pretty you'll be when the braces are removed. And keep smiling!

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My father lets me use the family car but believe me it costs me plenty. He insists that I pay for the gas, wash the car, and keep the oil and tires checked. I feel that if I must assume this much of the expense and responsibility my father should allow me to have the car when I want it.

Well, a real tornado hit last week when I wanted to go shopping and he wanted to play golf. I had promised to pick up a friend at ten, shop, and then have lunch. When Dad insisted that he was taking the car, I said some pretty awful things. I told him that no self-respecting father would make his daughter wash a car; and that on top of this, he was tight. The result is that I can't drive the car for a month.

Was I that wrong?

Andrea

Dear Andrea:

I'm afraid I have to vote with Dad on this one. Take your punishment like a lady and Dad may soften and reduce the sentence.

When you start SUPPORTING a car, you'll realize how fair Dad really is.

Confidential to Depressed:

Please send me your name and address. Perhaps I can help. Or if you prefer, have a talk with your school counselor or a favorite relative. Perhaps they can solve at least one of your problems by convincing your parents that all 17-year-olds must be allowed to have friends.

LADY COSMONAUT

On June 16, 1963, a woman was launched into orbit for the first time as Soviet cosmonaut Valentina Tereshkova participated in the flight of Vostok 6.

PRICE PROTEST

On June 6, 1904, Philadelphians campaigned against the outrageous prices of food: eggs, 17 cents a dozen; chickens, 40 cents each.

THINK PRETTY

Makeup finds a new honesty

By PEGGY WALKER
Copley News Service

Women have more choices today. You can see it in their faces — and how they paint them.

They're doing it their own way now — opting for individualism instead of categorical fads set forth by some personality of the moment.

There's a new honesty in makeup, a playing up of one's own best features. Today's woman expresses herself instead of the whims of magazine makeup artists.

Natural is in. Nothing is extraneous. Like the refined classic clothes of spring, makeup is well-groomed and subtle.

Eyes are soft, defined with quiet color. Eyeliner makes a comeback only as a subtle definition in the same color as a shadow. Lashes are wispy when used, not so distinctly perceived as before, more enhancing than obvious.

Eyebrows are naturally arched. Some remain pencil thin but are balanced by softer hair styles and free-falling curls. The hard 30s look is too contrived for '73.

Lips and cheeks glow with healthy color, from the new pastels to offbeat reds and beige-tones. Pale, no-color lips and cheeks are as passe as excessive makeup and scarlet lips.

LOOKING GOOD – A pretty face is a natural face this spring and summer. Makeup is subdued, whether you're the outdoor tennis type or all angora, peaches and cream. Lips and cheeks shine. Hair is softer, shorter and casually controlled.

There's new balance to faces and hairstyles. No single feature stands out alone, the whole stands out.

It's a year for skin — arms, shoulders, backs and throats, and smooth, luminescent complexions, scrubbed clean and shiny. Foundation is transparent.

Hair reflects the same controlled care as the face. It's shorter this year. Long-haired women are cutting their excessive manes to a cleaner, free spirits are going shorter, shortest with Liza Minelli bobs and close-cut boy looks.

But shortness is offset with softness. Wafty curls and upswept bangs frame faces even on the shortest sheared heads. Most of the short styles are cut to be blown dry and curled with a curling iron.

Creamy complexions, haloes of wispy curls, maybe even a surge of blond highlighting are accessory to the revival of prettiness this season.

So much for hard chic. Spring '73 is for the soft and natural.

June 24 To 30

By GINA
Copley News Service

ARIES: (March 21 to April 19 — Also Aries Ascendant) — Energy runs high so make new friends, champion new causes and "do battle" for integrity and freedom. However, leave time for winding up old projects too. Probable need to tighten the budget. Curb impulse.

TAURUS: (April 20 to May 20 — Also Taurus Ascendant) — Do not be disturbed by someone working "behind the scenes" apparently to your detriment. Be discreet in giving advice. Let others do the talking. Personal problems require realistic consideration of facts.

GEMINI: (May 21 to June 20 — Also Gemini Ascendant) — Attend to new projects in business and personal life — don't let energy lag. Pay particular attention to communications like letters and phone calls. Ideas should come easily and friends will be helpful.

CANCER: (June 21 to July 22 — Also Cancer Ascendant) — With lots of support behind you now is the time to push for progress in your affairs. Don't "rest on your laurels" now — use opportunities to reach goals. Ponder ways to increase your savings account.

LEO: (July 23 to August 22 — Also Leo Ascendant) — Affairs at a distance appear important now. If travel is impossible keep in touch by letter and telephone. Career matters are stressed, possibly exposing some limitations. Observe safety precautions when driving.

VIRGO: (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22 — Also Virgo Ascendant) — A previously blocked service or project appears to be released now and you can proceed. Good time to redecorate or refurnish your home. If you need a loan this is a good time to borrow. Intuition is reliable.

LIBRA: (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22 — Also Libra Ascendant) — Take a "back seat" and let others "take the wheel." Concentrate on detail work, but keep the long range view too. Others may seem difficult and critical. Keep calm — show no irritation — keep temper in check.

SCORPIO: (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21 — Also Scorpio Ascendant) — Enjoy the feeling of inner-calm. Pets are accented so acquire one now or give special attention to those you own. Review legal documents, partnership contracts, to decide if they need additions or revisions.

SAGITTARIUS: (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21 — Also Sagittarius Ascendant) — A rather nostalgic time when past accomplishments are reviewed. Romance may come to the single, renewed appreciation of the mate for the married. Guard speech carefully and discipline temper.

CAPRICORN: (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19 — Also Capricorn Ascendant) — "Cooperation" is your keyword now! Share information and exude warmth. Repair and renovate real estate. On the domestic scene, bring anxieties "out in the open" for discussion. Release worry.

AQUARIUS: (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18 — Also Aquarius Ascendant) — Residence interests are highlighted. Move carefully if buying or selling property that the value is realistic to price. Keep "communication lines" open with children. Take time to meditate over problems.

PISCES: (Feb. 19 to March 20 — Also Pisces Ascendant) — A time of reckoning regarding past commitments, future plans, money and power. Meet the demands of associates and superiors. Use caution and be conservative regarding money, investments, promotions.

The sun is now in Cancer: Cancerians have a highly developed "nurturing" instinct. They care for and protect all things including people, memories, possessions and mementos. They "feed" others in many ways, but are especially good in the kitchen and love to cook.

Wedding no place for toddler

By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: My daughter is being married for the second time. It is to be a church wedding. She wants her two year-old (by the first marriage) to be the flower girl. What do you think of this idea? — Grandma Mary

Dear Grandma: I don't think much of it. In the first place, a second wedding shouldn't include a retinue, least of all a flower girl. Secondly, small children don't belong at weddings, and by small children I mean toddlers. A throng of adults milling around overhead can confuse a two year-old. The solemnity of the marriage and the gala party afterward will be more than your granddaughter will be able to comprehend. She should be left at home with a competent babysitter.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: I just returned from a wedding and the bride was the ugliest girl I've ever laid eyes on. I simply couldn't bring myself to say all the ordinary pleasantries. Any comment? — W. Warren

Dear W. Warren: Ouida said, "Familiarity is a magician that is cruel to beauty, but kind to ugliness." J.J. Vade put it another way ... "Nobody's sweetheart is ugly." I do hope you wished the bride and groom much happiness.

Questions on etiquette may be mailed to Riv Tobin, Copley News Service, in care of this newspaper.

Delahunt Asks Traffic Survey

City Councillor William D. Delahunt has asked for a traffic survey of streets intersecting in parallelling Newport Ave. from West Squantum St. to Furnace Brook Parkway.

In a letter to City Planning Director Geoffrey Davidson, he wrote:

"Area residents inform me that these streets are inundated with motor vehicles attempting to avoid the traffic lights at Beale St. and Newport Ave., and at Furnace Brook Parkway and Newport Ave.

"I would presume that many of these people are employees of State Street South and are unfamiliar with Quincy streets. Some complaints also indicate that some of the motor vehicles are travelling at an excessive rate of speed."

He suggested the survey of these streets:

Arlington, Brook, Fayette, Farrington, Safford, Winthrop, Oakland and Cedar Streets; Elmwood, North Central, Prospect, South Central and Grandview Avenues.

Delahunt added:

"I would also request that you contact the proper personnel at State Street South to determine if they could encourage their employees to stay on Newport Avenue as they travel south toward Quincy Center and avoid residential streets off Newport Avenue."

35 Foreign Students To Arrive Here June 30

About 35 young foreign students will arrive in Quincy June 30 for a five-day visit.

They will be on their way back to their native lands after a year of study in American high schools. Their countries include Germany, France, Italy, Spain, Denmark, South Africa, Japan, Philippine Islands, several South American and Latin American countries.

The students are here under the auspices of the American Field Service, of which there is a chapter in Quincy High School. Quincy has been chosen as a stopover visit partly because of its historical interest. While here they will be shown the various historical sites - also they will enjoy beach parties, picnics, and trips to interesting places or events in Boston.

These young people will be hosted during these five days by families in Quincy or surrounding towns. There are several still to be placed. Anyone who would like to take care of one or two of the students in this way, is asked to contact Mrs. Barbara Wine, 472-1498.

Prisoners Of War Problems Discussed At QHS

Navy Capt. Gerald C. Canaan, commander of the South Weymouth Naval Air Station and a prisoner of war in the Korean conflict, spoke to the faculty and students of Quincy High School recently on the problems of prisoners of war.

Capt. Canaan, who was in a North Korean prison camp for nearly two years from 1951 to 1953, also spoke of the problems encountered by the families of war prisoners and the assistance given them by the Department of Defense.

He told of conditions that existed in the prison camps of Korea and North Vietnam and described the esprit d' corps and confidence in America displayed by returned prisoners.

Capt. Canaan was escorted by cadets of the Air Force Junior ROTC and introduced by Capt. William J. Sullivan, USN [Retired], a member of the Department of Social Studies.

MONEY TALKS

Bases for Giving Money to Children

By Philip J. Lawrence
President
COLONIAL FEDERAL SAVINGS And Loan Association of Quincy and Holbrook
8-6 Weekdays 8-7:30 Thursdays

"Dad, can I have a dollar?"

This is a familiar refrain in most American households. It is sung in various rhythms and moods but its import is unvarying. The only thing that changes, as generations succeed each other, is the amount asked — tangible evidence of the inflationary spirals that buffet us.

After all, nowadays, Junior can scarcely bowl or go to the movies or sock golf balls without approaching Mom or Pop for an extra buck or two.

The problems of money and its use by children baffle most parents. We don't profess to have all the answers, but there are several ideas on the subject that we'd like to share.

Idealists on this topic hold that children should be brought up free from the thought of money, uncontaminated by any contact with it. In the bosom of the family, they should find all they need —food, shelter, clothing, entertainment. Time enough later for the hard realities of pay checks and bills.

We question the good sense of this approach to—or, rather, retreat from—money. The time of childhood and adolescence is one of preparation for maturity. Learning how to handle and use money is an important part of the child's educational experience.

Nor do we hold with the other extremists who lavish money on their children in response to every youthful whim. There are always one or two youngsters in any neighborhood who have money in apparently endless supply. They are the envy of playmates and the bane of moderation-minded parents.

It seems to us that a child should have money in limited quantities, with fixed rules on when he gets it and what it covers. The youngster who cadges a dime here, a quarter there, from his parents and relatives, isn't learning anything about managing money —though you will have to admit he may be learning plenty about how to manage his elders.

How is this grant of money, in fixed amounts at specific times, to be considered? Is it a salary in return for small services rendered, a reward for good behavior or accomplishment, or a freely given subsidy?

To regard an allowance as payment for household services defeats the spirit of cooperation that should exist among family members. The youngster puts a dollar value on his chores and may be unwilling to do those for which he is not paid. He may even prefer to work for a neighbor whose salary scales are higher!

Such a child is being cheated. He is encouraged to put his emphasis on selfishness and money rather than helpfulness and devotion to the family cause.

It seems equally unsatisfactory to hand out money as a reward for achievement or good behavior—or, conversely, to withhold it as a penalty for infractions. Problems of discipline should be handled separately.

We incline to the thesis that the child is entitled to his mite as a dependent member of the family, just as he is entitled to his clothes, the bed he sleeps in, the food he eats, and the toys he plays with.

Smyth Urges Construction Of North Quincy Pumping Station

Ward 6 Councillor J. Vincent Smyth, has urged the MDC to begin building the proposed pumping station at the corner of Quincy Shore Drive and the Squantum Causeway.

In a letter to MDC Commissioner John Sears, Smyth noted that the plans for the station are "being held in abeyance" although "last fall the site was chosen and money was available to start the erection."

Smyth said that completion of the pumping station would "completely solve" the sewerage problem in North Quincy and that it would lead to the closing of Moon Island so that "sanitary bathing in the Quincy Bay area will be assured."

Andy Walsh Like 4 Different People

By PAUL FELDMAN

A Master of Philosophy, an ex-FBI agent, a violinist and a restaurant owner would seem to be men with different backgrounds and interests. But not necessarily so.

Andy Walsh, owner of Walsh's Restaurant at 9 Billings Rd in North Quincy, is all four!

Walsh, 45, has lived a varied and interesting life. Born in Quincy, he graduated from Boston College High School. He then matriculated at Fordham University in New York where he earned a Masters Degree in Philosophy.

"My main interest is in Greek, Pro-Socratic philosophy" he says, "although running a restaurant leaves me little time to think of philosophy anymore".

Walsh jumped straight from thinking to fighting when he entered the Army during the Korean conflict. He rose in a short time to the rank of lieutenant.

"After the war, I was going to teach philosophy but in those days, the salary was meagre. I had two kids already and I could not afford to go from lieutenants pay to the equivalent of a private's pay. So I stayed with the government."

And the new government job happened to be as an FBI agent. He worked in both Dallas, Tex. and Jacksonville, Fla., and calls the experience "very interesting".

After seven years in the FBI, Walsh came home to Quincy to run the restaurant that his father, the late Michael J. Walsh, started 40 years ago.

His mother, Catherine, is his "right hand man" and Gal Friday, looking out after the many small details that mean a lot.

The spacious and pleasantly decored restaurant has a main dining room, a function room and a bar.

ANDY WALSH, owner of Walsh's Restaurant, Billings Rd, North Quincy, is a man of many talents.

The dining room, which seats over 125 people, has neat wooden tables with seascapes on the walls.

The function room, which holds 90 persons, is used for any number of occasions, from wedding receptions to business luncheons.

The menu at Walsh's is almost as varied as Andy Walsh's life. It is a full menu specializing in steaks and seafoods.

Walsh, who lives in Wollaston, is married and has eight children, ages 7 to 19.

In addition to spending spare time with his family, he also finds time in his busy schedule to play violin in the Quincy Symphony Orchestra. Walsh is a vice-president of the orchestra organization. He is also a member of the Quincy Rotary Club.

Multibank Makes It Easier To Buy Extra Shares

A new service designed to make it easier and more economical for Multibank Financial Corp. investors to buy additional shares is being introduced by the Boston-based, state-wide bank holding company.

The reinvestment plan will be available to all Multibank stockholders beginning with the July 1973 dividend.

A stockholder participates in the program by authorizing the purchase of additional full shares or fractional shares of Multibank stock with his dividend payment.

Should a quarterly dividend be too small to buy a full share, the stockholder's account is credited with a fractional share.

In addition to providing stockholders another means of saving, the dividend reinvestment plan provides them additional Multibank stock at a savings in the price of the stock and a reduction in the broker's fee because of volume purchase.

"This will be a new service which will operate much like a monthly investment plan," said Elliott Grabill, Chief Executive Officer of Multibank. "It is an easy way for our stockholders to use small amounts of money to increase their investments."

Multibank lists assets of over the half-billion dollar mark, with 67 offices from Cape Cod to the Berkshires, and is traded over-the-counter. The member banks include: Attleboro Trust Company, The Falmouth National Bank, First Agricultural National of Berkshire County, Pittsfield, The Mechanics National Bank of Worcester and South Shore National Bank of Quincy.

Multibank recently announced that the $65 million B.M.C. Durfee Trust Company of Fall River and the $21 million Northampton National Bank have reached agreement to affiliate with Multibank.

The full breakfast meeting is geared for chamber members, citizenry interested in municipal government and officials from area communities.

Speakers will include: Atty. Richard B. Olson, of Palmer & Dodge, Boston, father of the "18 month budget" legislation. He will discuss clarification of misunderstood areas, latest developments and legislation, and modifications of the 18 month budget.

Edmond M. O'Riordan of Quincy, Deputy Director of Finance for the Massachusetts State Lottery who will speak on "The Game - What Next?" what cities and towns will get financially, from The Game, next year.

Peters, senior vice president, John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company and Chairman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce task force which developed the "Boston Government/Regional Delivery Systems, A Metropolitan Boston Model for Regional Economic Development and Delivery of Services" will discuss on "Regional Government - A New Approach."

● Quincy Softball League

Wells, Marcel, A & T, Ship Haven Roll On

Dick Taylor of Wells Grille was one out away from a Quincy Softball League no-hitter last week only to have Fred Dearing of Walsh's Restaurant hit a two-out single in the seventh.

Taylor was given some fine support in the field especially by Ed Hutchins at second base.

Wells, leading the National League East by a good margin, later in the week topped Howard Johnson's, 7-1, as Bob Swirbalus continued to pound the ball.

B & B Health Spa is starting to make its move toward a playoff spot with two wins during the past week.

Dave Tarbox pitched an excellent game in a 4-3 win over County Line as he continually put down threats by County Line's strong batters. He was given fine support and Mike Pratt came up with some outstanding plays.

B & B also pounded Howard Johnson's, 17-1. Paul Nagle, hitting at a fantastic .760 pace, who had a home run against County Line, had another big night. Jerry Pratt made some amazing defensive plays.

Hofbrau dumped St. Catherine's, 13-7, sparked by Pete Daley's titanic three-run homer in the sixth inning. Hofbrau also edged Palmer Pub, 9-8, but cropped an 8-6 decision to County Line.

Rain halted games twice during the week.

Amorsino Succeeds Finnegan

Leone: 'Marty Did A Fine Job But It Was Time For A Change'

There will be a good deal of rivalry when the Quincy and North Quincy basketball teams face each other next winter.

Joe Amorosino, junior varsity coach at North under Bob Nolan for four years before moving to Quincy a year ago as jayvee coach, last week was named to succeed Marty Finnegan as Quincy's head coach and will be facing his old boss, Nolan, beginning next season.

Many were surprised when the school committee confirmed the interview team's selection of Amorosino over Finnegan, who again applied for the position. Marty had coached the Presidents for 14 years and it was generally expected he would be reappointed.

However, on the other hand, there are those who expressed no surprise at the appointment.

"The interview team felt it was time for a change," Athletic Director Carl Leone said, and the school committee evidently agreed. Marty had done a fine job and we all were happy with his work."

Under Quincy school regulations, each coaching position is re-advertised within the system each year and anyone can apply. This time there were only two applicants, Finnegan and Amorosino.

"Anytime there is a vacancy or more than one person applies for a coaching position, an interview team must be formed to interview the candidates," Leone explained. He further pointed out that in this case there was a four-man interview team of which he was chairman.

"After the interviews, if there is agreement by the team on a candidate, the recommendation is sent to the superintendent and his recommendation then goes to the school committee which either accepts or rejects it. In 999 cases out of a thousand the incumbent is rehired but it just didn't happen in this case."

Finnegan turned out many outstanding teams but had some hard luck during the past few years. He was hounded by injuries and last year lost three of his top players at the same time, all three being on crutches for some time. Many teams would have folded under the circumstances but the Presidents refused to quit, turned in some great performances and came up with some big wins near the end of the season.

"I was extremely proud of these kids," Marty had said following the injuries. "They could have easily quit but they refused to do so and their spirit and determination was tremendous."

A native of Boston who graduated from Sharon High in 1957 and from Plymouth, N.H., State College in 1961, Amorosino has a philosophy solidly grounded on defense.

"My Philosophy is to have a strong defense and a controlled, disciplined offense," he said. "All of last year's varsity players graduated so last year's jayvee team will move up with me. I met with them after my appointment and we will play as a unit this summer in a Braintree League. This experience of playing together against other high school teams should prove beneficial."

Joe was head coach at Hopkinton High for three years before moving to Sterling Jr. High in Quincy as physical education instructor and basketball coach. He coached Sterling basketball for three years, winning the ninth grade crown his final year.

He then went to North as junior varsity coach, while still teaching at Sterling, for four years and last year moved to Quincy High as physical education teacher and jayvee basketball coach. He had a 12-5 record which, added to his 50-17 mark at North, gave him an overall record of 62-22 as junior varsity coach.

Joe has worked at many basketball schools, being associated with such hoop luminaries as Sam Jones, Larry Siegfried and John Killilea, former Quincy High star who compiled a remarkable record as a high school coach and is now assistant to the Celtics' Tommy Heinshon.

Amorosino credits these people and Nolan for his success. "I learned what organization was, particularly the importance of scouting and being prepared," Joe said.

The new Presidents' skipper, who lives in Braintree with his wife; Jan, and their three sons, Joe Jr., 4, Paul 2½, and Mark, four weeks old, has another coaching record of which he is mighty proud.

He has coached soccer at Sterling Junior for the past seven years, compiled a remarkable record of 39 wins, five losses and 12 ties, and his teams were unbeaten city champs the last four years during which time they went 35 straight games without a loss.

Morrisette In Tight Race For Title

It looks like another interesting season in American Legion District 6 baseball competition.

A year ago Morrisette had to go down to the wire before winning its 18th title and this year's race could also go down to the final week.

Following two straight wins, the defending champs were nipped by Weymouth, 3-2, Sunday at Weymouth. It was the second straight win for Weymouth.

Wednesday night Morrisette played at Randolph, Friday night at 8 will meet Quincy under the new Adams Field lights and next Wednesday will play at Hingham.

Bobby Lane pitched excellent ball for Morrisette Sunday, giving up five hits, striking out eight and walking four, but his mates were held to three hits by Bob Hillyer, who struck out 14 and walked five.

All three Weymouth runs were unearned as it scored a run in the second and two more in the sixth.

Morrisette tied it in the third on Artie Boyle's home run and added another run in the fifth.

Boyle had a homer and double and the only other Morrisette hit was Lee Watkins' single.

Last Friday Morrisette topped Milton, 7-4, as 15-year old Tim Clifford pitched his second win in a row. The big right-hander scattered nine hits, struck out 10 and walked four.

Morrisette salted the game away with four runs in the fourth, receiving five straight walks. Jim Driscoll's single was the only hit of the inning.

Bob Benn had two hits, Dave Nelson and Watkins triples and Mike Conroy, Driscoll and Clifford singles.

Morrisette had received a tough blow in its previous game when it led Braintree, a prime title contender, 4-2, when rain washed out the game in the fourth. The game will be replayed.

Expects Quincy To Improve

Despite one-run defeats in the first two games, Coach Connie Carlozzi expects his Quincy Legion baseball team to improve over last year.

Quincy started well a year ago but faltered late in the season.

Wednesday night Quincy hosted Milton, Friday faces Morrisette in an 8 p.m. game under the new lights at Adams Field, Monday plays at Braintree and next Wednesday is home to Weymouth at 8 under the Adams Field lights.

Following a 5-4 loss to Weymouth, Quincy dropped a 3-2 squeaker Sunday to Randolph, all three Randolph runs being unearned.

Quincy took a 1-0 lead in the third on hits by Kevin Jago and Jim McCabe and two walks.

Randolph scored two unearned runs in the fourth but Quincy tied it in the sixth on hits by Billy Shea and Bill Berberan and two more walks.

In the ninth, with a man on third and two outs, an infield error gave Randolph the winning run.

Steve Mele was the hard luck loser as he gave up just three hits, struck out eight and walked three. Quincy had six hits, a double and single by Shea and singles by McCabe, Bob Pierce, Jago and Berberan. Greg Fennessey walked three times.

"I have six holdovers from last year who are real fine players," Carlozzi said. "They are Bob Morton, Bill Shea, Jim French, Greg Fennessey, Steve Mele and Paul Craig."

Morton of North Quincy High is one of the better catchers around with an excellent throwing arm and is also a fine pitcher. He pitched a one-hitter in Legion ball in 1972 and did some outstanding hurling for North this spring.

Shea, also of North, is a fine fielding first baseman and a good hitter.

French of Quincy High is another good first baseman and a real hustler.

Fennessey from Abp. Williams High, also coached by Carlozzi, is backup catcher with a good arm and will be behind the plate when Morton pitches.

Mele, son of Red Sox Scout Sam Mele, is a regular outfielder but came through with some brilliant pitching last year when Carlozzi ran into pitching troubles. He also pitched for Williams.

Craig, a small southpaw from Quincy High, has good breaking stuff and should help the pitching.

Carlozzi seems to be pretty well off for pitchers. In addition to Morton, Mele and Craig, he has Bob Pierce, North Quincy High ace, who is also a tremendous batter and led North in hitting this spring. He will play third base or the outfield when not pitching.

Dave Sten is a big 220-pound six-footer with limited experience, as he was on the Quincy High track team. Carlozzi explains that he has a great fast ball.

Jim McCabe from North Quincy High, a good fielder and hustler who hits in the clutch, is the second baseman.

Kevin Jago of North, one of the top defensive third basemen in the Greater Boston League, will play short for Quincy and his only weaknesses, in Carlozzi's opinion, are going to his right and making the long throw. He made some sensational plays at third for the Raiders this spring.

Pierce will be at third when not pitching and his coach feels he has to learn the position a little better. Other third base prospects are Ken Marsters of North Quincy, who has had little baseball experience, Frank DiSalvo of Quincy, who did well for the Presidents this year, and Roy Pettinelli, a young utility infielder from Quincy with a good deal of promise.

In the outfield will be Mele when not pitching, Don Collins from B.C. High and Bill Berberan of North Quincy, with others also seeing action there. Carlozzi rates Mele the best all-around outfielder around and has high hopes for Collins and Berberan.

Other utility players are George French of Quincy, Mark Austin of Quincy and Don Cobban of North.

Carlozzi is being assisted by his Abp. Williams aides, Billy Weiler and Keith Cullinan. Team manager is George French, Sr.

Elks Outing Sunday

The Quincy Lodge of Elks will hold its annual Family Outing Day Sunday at Pageant Field, Merrymount from 11:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

There will be games and sports for children and adults and a menu including barbecued chicken, hot dogs, hamburgers, watermelon, tonic, ice cream and milk.

Joseph Antonuccio is committee chairman and Joseph Rindone is co-chairman.

The event will be held rain or shine.

• Junior Farm League

Orioles Clinch Pennant, Braves, Dodgers Await Showdown

The Orioles have clinched the American League pennant in the Quincy Junior Farm League but the National League co-leaders, Braves and Dodgers, will go down to the final night, meeting for the flag next Monday.

Both had 11-1 records following the games during the past week.

The Braves clobbered the Yankees, 15-2, as Pat King pitched four-hit ball and struck out seven. Mike Sandonato and Dan Flynn hit grand slam homers, Jack Brown had a triple and drove in two runs, Dan Walsh had two hits and 2 RBIs and Glen Segalla, Jojo Gonzales and John Barrett also had hits.

The Braves also squeezed by the Giants, 5-4, exploding for all their runs in third inning after trailing, 2-0. There were two outs when the five runs scored. The big blow was a two-run homer by Segalla. Brown had a two-run single and Walsh had two hits. King also had a hit. Segalla pitched five innings, striking out 10 but walking seven and Walsh finished up.

The Tiger bats came alive as they walloped the Giants, 14-3. Vin Whelan and Dean Coletti drove in three runs each, while Paul Jenette, Bob Palma, Steve Kraunelis, Mike Ferullo, Mike Doherty, Brian Belliveau and Mark Panico also drove in runs. Mike Marshall and Paul Andrews did some fine base running.

The Tigers also topped the Red Sox, 6-2. Losing pitcher Sean Martin drove in both Sox runs. Tom Corliss had a single and Brian Dietsch made a fine throw to catch a runner at the plate.

The Dodgers eked out a 3-2 win over the Pirates with Bob Bolster, Brian Sullivan, Phil Maloney and Tom Canavan collecting the big hits.

The Dodgers defeated the Cubs, 6-0, with Brian Sullivan the winning pitcher with relief help from Tom McHugh. McHugh, Canavan, Sullivan and Bolster drove in the runs.

'KISSING DISEASE'

One of the most common diseases among college students is infectious mononucleosis. It is popularly known as the "kissing disease", supposedly because it is transmitted by kissing.

It is also called glandular fever, or simply mono. Mono means "one nucleus" which is characteristic of certain white cells in the blood. These cells become numerous in the blood of a person with the disease.

Although the disease has been recognized for more than a century, it still remains somewhat of a mystery. Some physicians have suspected that it is caused by a virus, but the U.S. Medical Laboratories states that "no infectious agent has actually been isol ted"

It generally attacks young people between 15 and 30. However, it seems to be impossible for some people to be infected. In many cases, one student will contract the disease while his roommate will not.

Cardinals In N.L. Top Spot, Tigers Tie For A.L. Lead

By PUTNAM BORDEN

The surging Cardinals knocked the Braves out of first place in the St. John's Little League and took over the top spot in the National League.

Behind the four-hit pitching of Ed Tinney, who struck out 13 and walked only two, the Cards romped, 17-0. Danny Flannery went five for five and had two home runs and Jim Belmonte had a homer, triple and two singles.

In the American League the red hot Tigers moved into a first place tie with the White Sox in a race which promises to go down to the wire.

SATURDAY, June 16.

The Cardinals whomped the Yanks, 16-1 with Jeff McGrail the winning pitcher and Danny Flannery the big hitter. The Cubs forfeited to the Tigers.

FRIDAY, June 15.

The Cubs nipped the White Sox, 10-9, with Jimmy Mullarky and Bill Chiavaroli pacing the winners with home runs. Jeff Connerty and Ron Jones had homers for the White Sox.

The Giants topped the Dodgers, 8-4, with Mike Fantasia the winning pitcher. John Vespaziani and Bob Graham wielded the big bats.

THURSDAY, June 14.

The Tigers outlasted the Yankees, 13-11, with Jimmy Adams getting the win with a fine five-inning relief stint. Bob Varrasso had two triples and six runs batted in as 11 shining in the field. Shawn Gillis hit a grand slam for the Yanks and Bob Dunn also homered.

The Braves toppled the Cubs, 8-4, with Jeff Marcel notching his seventh win with 11 strikeouts and two walks. Gary Young had a triple and single, Mike Romano a double and single, while for the Cubs Bill Draicchio and Ray Alongi had triples.

MONDAY, June 11.

The White Sox topped the Red Sox, 11-6, with Orieo Perreault saving the win with a fine relief effort after Ron DiCesare faltered. Pat Connerty had three hits and Jeff Connerty a homer. The Cubs mauled the Yankees, 21-5.

• Farm League

Dodgers Win N.L. Title

Tom McHugh pitched his sixth straight victory Monday as the Dodgers whipped the Braves, 11-3, to win the National League championship of the Quincy Farm League on the final day.

The Dodgers meet the Orioles, the American League champs, for the Farm League title Wednesday [June 27] at 5:30 p.m. on Faxon Field No. 1.

The Dodgers broke the game open in the second inning with five runs and put it out of reach with five more in the fourth. The big hits were by Phil Maloney, Tom Canavan, Brian Sullivan and McHugh.

The game might have been closer had it not been for a circus catch in right field by the Dodgers' Chip Servant who also cut down a runner at the plate with a perfect throw from the outfield.

The teams went into the game with identical records of 11 wins and one loss.

In earlier games last week, the Dodgers came from behind to beat the Pirates, 3-2, on Tom McHugh's bases-loaded single in the fifth; and the Dodgers bopped the Cubs, 6-1, with three runs in the first on hits by Phil Maloney, Tom Canavan, Brian Sullivan and Scott Rafferty.

'Learn To Swim Week' At YMCA June 25-29

The Quincy YMCA will hold a special "Learn to Swim Week", June 25-29 for boys and girls between 7 and 15 who are not members of the "Y".

Classes will be held Monday through Friday between 8:30 a.m. and 3 p.m. Registrations are now being accepted at the "Y", 79 Coddington St., Quincy. Enrollment for each class is limited.

There are at least two good reasons for learning to swim, according to Norma Finnegan, Women's and Girl's Director: "The first is safety. Drownings are the third leading cause of accidental deaths in the U.S. Two thirds of the victims don't know how to swim. And there's no reason for it; just about anybody can be taught to swim."

Using the YMCA teaching method, most beginners can be taught to swim in five lessons. By the time they have completed the lessons, beginners should have learned the basic fundamentals, and be ready for more advance instruction. Beginners successfully completing the course will be awarded YMCA certificates.

"The second good reason for learning to swim is because it's fun," says Mrs. Finnegan. Aquatic sports are among the most popular forms of recreation, as well as an excellent way to keep physically fit. Among them are boating, skin-diving, water-skiing. None of these should be attempted without first becoming a good swimmer.

Denvir Asks Voter Registration At Senior Citizen Facilities

Robert F. Denvir would like to see Quincy extend the same courtesy to senior citizens that it gives to high school students when election time rolls around.

Denvir, who is a candidate for City Council from Ward 1, has asked the Quincy Housing Authority to ask City Clerk John Gillis to make on-the-spot voter registration available at senior citizen housing developments.

He pointed out that the service already is available to high school students and should be extended to the elderly who might not be able to get to City Hall to register during regular hours.

Gacicia Urges Correction Of Penn's Hill Water Pressure

Peter P. Gacicia, candidate for Ward 3 Councillor, has urged an investigation and correction of the water pressure problem in the Penn's Hill area of South Quincy.

In a letter to Mayor Walter Hannon, Gacicia noted that the Mayor's recent report on updating Quincy's water and sewer systems made no mention of the Penn's Hill problem.

Gacicia said that the "low water pressure in the Penn's Hill area presents a safety hazard and contributes to uncomfortable living conditions for the residents in this area."

THAT IS AMIGO

The desert is wild
And the rocks are tall
You might notice
A creature so small
But that is Amigo

Who runs with the wind

There,
Toward the sun.
See that brown speck
Dart and run.

And where is he going?
What does he seek?
Why does he gaze
At the mountain peak?

Amigo runs to a certain hill
There he stops and waits until
He hears the sounds of a boy's easy laughter,
Then he knows he's found what he came after.
That boy.

Dear Miss Harcourt:

Thank you for the day at Science Center. I liked it very much. The pond was the best thing there. Where we walked there were many interesting things in the woods. The store was very good. My mother and father liked the stuff I bought. I got some things for my brother and sister and for myself.

I wish I could come again some day because I had a lot of fun and it was all good.

Survival Inc. Makes 3 Staff Changes

Survival Inc., the multimodality drug treatment and rehabilitation program serving the South Shore, announces three staff changes to improve services, the agency offers troubled youth in the area.

Executive Director Robert Hassey, notes that "lengthy searches" were conducted before the two were hired.

Jeffrey Beeman will be Walk-In Center Director at Survival's 44 Faxon Ave. facility. He is a graduate of Florida State University and Northeastern University where he received a Masters Degree in Counselling Education. He has had experience in operating inpatient residences and has worked at similar type drop-in centers throughout Boston.

Beeman will be in charge of a staff and a large number of volunteers at the Walk-In Center and will oversee the 24-hour hotline and crisis service, all individual and group counselling, and the workshops and seminars at the center.

John Biggio has been named Director of Survival's Redirection Residence at 1230 Hancock St., the agency's inpatient residence which treats persons with opiate addiction. He is a graduate of Marathon House in Attleboro and has directed a similar type House in Glastonbury, Conn. He has also managed two Project Turnabout facilities in Hull and Hingham.

Biggio will be involved with running the residence that will eventually be able to house 20 to 25 young persons at any one time. Here, they will live and work while receiving therapy designed to help them "kick" drug-free a heroin addiction.

In addition, Charles Diamond, who has been employed at the agency for about a year, has been assigned added responsibilities, assuming the newly created position of clinical and legal director. Diamond will oversee the recently founded Court Evaluation Clinic at Quincy District Court wherein agency staff members meet with representatives from the Probation Department, District Attorney's Drug Education Unit, South Shore Mental Health Center, and the Region V Mental Health Psychiatrist in an effort to make the most appropriate dispostion of drug related court cases.

Hassey said, "These personnel changes are right in line with my hopes for reorganizing Survival into an efficient, business-like agency that will better provide services to those in need. These three men are all excellent clinician, but have displayed effective administrative skills as well. This has been a very weak point for Survival programs in the past, and with these men, should be much less a problem in the future."

Curtain Call Theatre To Present Summer Workshops

Curtain Call Theatre will conduct summer workshops, open to the public, beginning June 19 at 8 p.m. at the group's Clubhouse, Bicknell Square, Bridge St., North Weymouth.

At this time, all workshop leaders will present an introductory presentation of the workshops' focus of their particular group. The formal workshops will begin the following Monday, June 15 and will continue throughout the summer for 10 sessions.

A description of the workshops:

Monday, 7:30 - 10 p.m. "DO YOU WANT TO DANCE?" Using the Murray method, this will focus on ballroom dancing including waltz, fox trot, swing etc. Purpose of this workshop is to directly aid the student in becoming more effective in his stage performance.

Tuesday, 8 p.m. "THE SOUL OF THE ROLE". Pantomine, improvisation, sensory perception, exercises designed to develop imagination and concentration for the actor, and to strengthen character understanding for the experienced performer.

Wednesday, 7:30 - 8:30 p.m. "BACKSTAGE, TRY IT YOU'LL LIKE IT". An actor who performs before the footlights should have a thorough working knowledge of all aspects of stage craft if he is to understand the coordination required for good performance.

Wednesday, 8:30 p.m. "THE PREGNANT PAUSE & THE BEAT IN MUSICALS". The bag of tricks most important to a performance are things we call techniques. All actors can be extremely enriched if they gain particular kinds of techniques, and this Workshop will teach you this.

Thursday, 8 [illegible]m. "THE CURTAIN CALL ROAD SHOW". All Workshops talents can find meaningful utilization in this particular workshop, since the performance developed in this particular segment of the workshop program will be used of presentation to various community groups which we find are seeking Curtain Call services in a growing demand.

Members of the group are free to attend any or all of these workshops and some workshops will be recommended to the individual to aid them in a specific development.

Age requirement to attend is high school age and up.

Many Questions Hanging

City Redistricting Suit May Affect Elections Throughout State

By TOM HENSHAW

The legal uncertainty that hovers about Quincy's 1973 elections may spread over all Massachusetts.

Or it may vanish as suddenly as it came under the fire of a confusing decision of the U.S. Supreme Court.

The elections came under a cloud last Friday when a group of citizens, headed by Atty. Douglas A. Randall, former city solicitor and chairman of the Ward 6 Republican Committee, filed suit seeking immediate redistricting of the city's wards.

The suit left the city with the alternatives of realigning its wards under the gun, a virtual impossibility, or conducting next fall's City Council election entirely on an at-large basis instead of by wards.

The most frequently quoted section of the suit is the allegation that "as a result of the existing great disparities between populations of the six wards, the citizens residing in the large populated wards have a disparately smaller voice in selecting city councillors..."

This, the suit charges, is in violation of the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution as interpreted by the "one man, one vote" decision of the U.S. Supreme Court.

But another, largely ignored, section of the suit takes it beyond the bounds of Quincy.

It seeks to have declared unconstitutional Chapter 54, Section 1 of the General Laws of Massachusetts under which city wards are apportioned on the basis of the number of legal voters rather than the population.

This, the suit contends, is also in violation of the "one man, one vote" guideline.

Either way, the six wards in Quincy are way out of proportion.

In the following tabulation, the first column of figures are the legal voters, as of July 2, 1972, and the second column is the population:

Ward 1	11,286	21,119
Ward 2	5,435	10,165
Ward 3	4,630	8,861
Ward 4	5,268	9,689
Ward 5	10,817	20,891
Ward 6	9,468	18,873

But how close to proportion do the wards have to be?

And does the "one man, one vote" principal mean anything at all on the municipal level?

That's where confusion is injected by the U.S. Supreme Court.

The Court ruled last February that "one man, one vote" does

QCBPA Asks Month's Extension Of Parking Ban

The Board of Directors of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association has asked for a one month extension of the 30-day trial ban on parking on the west side of Hancock Street.

The ban was instituted May 21 and theoretically expired June 19, although a 21-year-old city ordinance enabled Quincy Police to enforce it even after the expiration date.

A three-member study committee, Bernard Reisberg of Modern Formal, Jack Kerrigan of Baskin-Robbins, and Ted Johnson of Granite City Hardware, reported their findings to the Board of Directors Tuesday.

The report, pointing out both the advantages and the disadvantages of the ban, were to be forwarded to Mayor Walter J. Hannon along with the request for the extension of the ban and a meeting with Hannon.

Vapor Lights To Brighten Downtown

Mass Electric is moving to install new mercury vapor street lights that will nearly triple the illumination of Hancock Street from Temple St. to School St.

The company told Joseph Shea, executive secretary to Mayor Walter J. Hannon, that the size of the 34 new lights will be increased from the present 22,000 lumens to 63,000 lumens output per lamp.

Currently the city is paying $4,760 annually for 748,000 lumens, says Mass Electric. The new lighting will provide 2,142,000 lumens for $8,160 annually, or almost three times the light for less than twice the money.

"We are sincerely happy to receive such news," said Ronald Mendler, executive director of the Quincy Center Business and Professional Association, which has been working with City Hall on the lighting problem.

"The cooperation of everyone has been helpful in this matter and plans are underway for a study of Parking Way and the lighting needs of that area.

"With this improved lighting, shoppers now will find Quincy Center an attractive area to visit during the evening.

"In response to the improved lighting, several merchants have stated they will now consider remaining open during the evening hours to serve area shoppers."

Quincy Tax Rate $154.30

"We have done a lot this past year with the tax dollar."

Two weeks ago, Mayor Hannon predicted a $1 drop in the tax rate, attributing the difference to "careful spending" by his administration and the advent of the State Street South complex, which makes a difference of $10 in the rate.

A week ago, the City Council rejected a chance to buy a tract of land adjacent to City Hospital for $112,000 which had already been budgeted, and predictions were that 40 cents more would come off the rate.

Since Norfolk Superior Court Judge Eileen Griffin has granted the city its sixth annual postponement in a revaluation suit, nothing now stands between the taxpayer and his manifest destiny – his annual tax bill.

The tax bills will be in the mail in about four weeks, said Assessor Chairman Elmer K. Fagerlund.

Fagerlund placed the total valuation of the city's tax base at $250,245,850, which is up about $9 million from last year.

A large part of the rise in valuation is due to State Street South, the Kemper Insurance Co. building and Presidential Gardens, the apartment complex in Quincy Point.

Looking ahead to future city budgets and tax rates, Mayor Hannon said:

"We are continually looking at the operation of the city. Two years is not sufficient time to get at every avenue of waste. We are always looking for new ways to economize without curtailing services."

McDonald Candidate For Sheriff

County Commissioner George B. McDonald Wednesday announced his candidacy for sheriff of Norfolk County, a full 16 months before the election in the fall of 1974.

The current sheriff, Charles Hedges, longtime Republican state senator from Quincy, is retiring after holding the office since 1961.

McDonald said his early announcement is in answer to "many individuals and groups [who] have been making inquiries relative to my intentions and plans on becoming a candidate for the office of Mayor in the City of Quincy.

"I feel it only fair to let these friends and others, who may want to be candidates for local office, know just what my future political plans are."

McDonald, who will be 51 in August, is one of the city's biggest vote-getters. When he retired from the City Council after 12 years in 1972 he had received the largest plurality of any candidate for the Council.

McDonald, who lives at 133 Grove St., West Quincy with his wife, Sheila, and their three daughters, has been a Norfolk County Commissioner since 1968. He has been employed as a storekeeper by the MDC's Sewerage Division for 19 years.

You can save an awful lot of energy with just a little bit of effort.

Reliable electricity is something we all take for granted. But it's also valuable energy we're going to have to conserve and use wisely. You can help.

For example, the less electricity you use during the peak load hours—4 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the winter and 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the summer—the better we can serve you.

By reducing your usage during these hours and doing more household chores during the rest of the day, you make the most efficient and economical use of our total generating capacity.

Here are some other things you can do to conserve electricity and also to keep your bill as low as possible.

- Use your dishwasher, washing machine and dryer only when you have a full load.
- Set your food freezer at zero temperature (not below) and defrost before the ice becomes a ¼" thick.
- When cooking vegetables, use a small amount of water and cover the pot. It will boil faster.
- Use electric fry pans, broilers, and rotisseries whenever possible. They require less electricity than your range.
- Take showers instead of baths and save on hot water.
- Fix leaking faucets...they waste water and make your water heater work overtime.
- Install storm windows and doors and check your insulation. Ideally you should have 6" in your attic, 3" in unheated crawl spaces, and 3" in side walls.
- Keep your fireplace dampers closed when not in use. Set your thermostat at a comfortable temperature and leave it there...never turn it down for brief periods or overnight.
- Install your air conditioner on the shady side of the house. Keep outdoor vents and condensers clear and draw drapes or shades to cut down on sun heat.

We're doing everything we can to provide you with reliable electricity at reasonable prices and with environmental safeguards we can all live with. You can help us by using it wisely. Together, we can make the most of our energy resources.

People like you working to make life a little better.

Mama's picnic was special

By ANN RUDY
Copley News Service

Everybody's picnic, like everybody's fingerprint, is different. There is the intimate picnic for two of Omar Khayyam fame — a loaf of bread, a jug of wine and wow!

There is the family picnic which, depending on the family may be anything from a basket of peanut butter sandwiches to a feast lovingly prepared by a grandma's aged, capable hands.

But the best picnic of all is the one we remember from our own childhoods. What sticks in my mind, just as they did in my throat, are the stuffed eggs my mother used to pack in our laundry basket which we converted to a picnic hamper on those wonderful summer outings in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park.

Mama was what you would charitably call a "sometime" cook. Her meals were balanced, hot and on time, but to expect anything beyond that, you were whistling Dixie.

For a picnic, however, mama outdid herself and stuffed eggs. I wonder now just what she stuffed them with, for they were incredibly lumpy, and if you didn't eat them within 15 minutes after the air hit them, they sent your teeth back where they came from.

Yet these rubbery nuggets were passed out with the greatest of care by my mother and, consequently, we came to respect them as great delicacies.

But along with the eggs, contributing to the nostalgia of those long-ago picnics, was the setting. And if you think I'm going to tell you of shady cypress and rolling lawns, you're wrong.

Those things were there, but what really grabbed my 7-year-old heart was where we sat: on a rise above the donkey rides. Not so far above, however, as to leave any doubt about the nearness and regularity of our animal friends.

How my mother stood it I'll never know, but we kids were delighted. Thomas Wolfe said you can't go home again and that's too bad — even considering those eggs and the down wind.

- Goldwater Worries Nixon
- Plumbers Nothing New
- Aviation's Reluctant Regulators

WASHINGTON — Of all the Watergate critics, the one who worries President Nixon the most is Sen. Barry Goldwater. The plainspoken Goldwater is the voice of the Republican conservatives, whose support the President seeks for his Watergate alibi.

His excuse for bringing the Watergate ringleaders, G. Gordon Liddy and E. Howard Hunt, into the White House was that a secret anti-subversive squad was needed to combat radicals and revolutionaries.

The President's strategy, according to those privy to it, was to raise the national security issue. He hoped the conservatives, with their strong sense of patriotism, would respond to this in a loud chorus. It was important to the President, therefore, to sell his national security argument to the Goldwater faction.

But from the first, Goldwater had misgivings about Watergate. His criticism of Nixon's silence, probably more than any other, caused the President to speak out on Watergate. Goldwater called upon him to take more decisive action.

The President solicitously asked for his recommendations. Goldwater urged him to bring more experienced politicians into the White House to fill the vacancies in the federal leadership and to rejuvenate the government departments.

The President quickly appointed two political veterans, Mel Laird and Bryce Harlow, as top White House advisers. The President also started filling the vacancies and took steps to rejuvenate his administration.

Our sources say the President then made a strong pitch to Goldwater to take up the national security cry. We phoned Goldwater who denies the President put any pressure on him. Goldwater accepts the national security alibi in part, but also believes the President is using it to justify the unjustifiable.

Government Eavesdropping: Much has been said during the Watergate affair about the team of "plumbers" President Nixon installed in the White House to plug the "leaks" of information that had been flowing out of his administration. The truth is that the gentle art of "plumbing" has been practiced by the federal government for years.

Virtually every government agency has a policy which permits the telephone conversations of its employes to be monitored. The offical excuse is to insure that no information is given out which would endanger the "national security." The real reason, however, is that high-level government officials want to know which of their underlings are talking to newsmen.

Despite all the disclaimers to the contrary, the federal government claims the right to listen in on its employes' phone conversations at any time. The practice has become so common at the Pentagon, for example, that the brass hats recently felt compelled to announce in a memo that 42 phones in the building were tap-free. These were the telephones used by reporters in the Pentagon press room.

Now that it is known their phones are secure, reporters on the military beat tell me, they expect to be swamped with requests from Pentagon personnel wanting to make personal phone calls.

Reluctant Regulators: The Federal Aviation Administration is supposed to look out for the safety of air travelers. Instead, it is usually more interested in befriending some of the companies it is supposed to regulate.

The FAA, for example, obligingly changed its rules last year to allow air carriers to stow more radioactive material in commercial cargo compartments, although pilots had been fighting to get the FAA to reduce the legal amount. The pilots have told us that the radioactive material poses a more serious threat to passenger safety than hijacking. A District Court recently forced the FAA to change its decision and lower the amount of radioactive material in passenger planes.

The FAA might not be too vigilant when it comes to passenger safety, but they are really on top of things when it comes to their own comfort. FAA chief Alex Butterfield hopped on the agency's Jetstar to travel in style to the Paris air show recently instead of taking a commercial jet.

But a more flagrant violator is chief of aircraft programming Jimmy Vines. Vines spent a weekend recently vacationing in South Carolina. Instead of paying his own way home like anyone else, Vines called on his subordinates to provide the transportation.

An FAA plane was dispatched from Washington to pick him up, but on the return leg, it ran into some trouble. The plane blew a cylinder and an emergency landing was required at the Greenville-Spartanburg airport. Another plane was sent down, with its crew drawing overtime from the government, to pick up Vines.

Sunbeams

By HENRY BOSWORTH

City Council President Arthur Tobin has been pretty mum about it but those very close to him report he's really doing some serious thinking about a mayoralty bid--this year.

The Ward 6 Republican Committee suit filed to block the city's fall election unless all city councillors are elected at-large, doesn't set too well with Tobin, a Democrat.

He has already hinted he may put together a strong all-Democrat slate with plenty of financial backing in retaliation.

If it all jells, Tobin could very well be the "standard bearer"--the mayoralty contender.

The sources say that the one thing that is bothering Tobin about running is that "he likes Walter Hannon, and would hate to run against him."

The Republican chief executive and the Democratic president of the City Council have gotten along well the past two years.

But Tobin, according to the sources, is quite irked over the Ward 6 GOP suit--especially because he feels that he and the rest of the Democratic city council have been quite fair to the Republican mayor.

* * *

WHETHER TOBIN actually tosses his hat into the mayoralty ring remains to be seen. If he does run, it would certainly jazz up what so far has looked like a ho-hum campaign.

It would be the best mayoralty race since Amelio Della Chiesa edged a young James McIntyre in 1959 by 2,117 votes.

* * *

THE SAME SOURCES report that Tobin--just before the GOP suit--had virtually decided not to seek re-election to his council at-large seat.

If he doesn't run for mayor, the question now is: Will the court suit now make him decide to run for re-election after all?

Meanwhile, potential at-large contenders like Ward 5 Councillor William Delahunt and School Committee Vice-Chairman Paul Kelly are waiting, and wondering, too.

* * *

AND WHAT ABOUT Joseph LaRaia? Though most observers are pretty much convinced LaRaia will seek re-election to his council at-large seat, there's still a possibility he may go for mayor.

LaRaia says he still has not decided. The tax rate drop, he says, would not deter him from getting into the mayoralty race.

"I'm still giving it careful thought," he says. "The tax rate wouldn't stop me."

And, in case you think he has already decided not to run for mayor he reminds you: "I haven't yet taken out papers for re-election."

* * *

THE NAME of former Mayor James McIntyre is popping up as a possible candidate this year. Some observers think he might go for council at-large because of the Republican suit. Could be.

However, he has told friends in the past that if he came back into city politics, he'd like to run for the School Committee. And someday, he'd like to be a teacher.

* * *

SPEAKING OF McIntyre, did you know that he has joined the bicycle set? He and wife, Sheila, were spotted cycling along Hancock St. in front of City Hall the other Sunday.

* * *

MILESTONE: Joseph Shea, Mayor Hannon's executive secretary, is handing out stogies. His wife gave birth to their second child, first son, Joseph Daniel, at Quincy City Hospital.

* * *

STATE STREET SOUTH already has more than 400 job applications from Quincy residents. The new complex, incidentally, is one of the handsomest buildings you've ever seen. A real asset to the city and one that, along with neighboring Kemper Insurance, should bring more such vital tax revenue construction to Quincy.

* * *

WILLIAM O'CONNELL, former executive vice-president of the Quincy-South Shore Chamber of Commerce, is keeping pretty busy these days as membership chairman of the Quincy Historical Society. Membership at this writing totals 696: 269 new ones since January and 49 this month alone.

Consumer Corner

By ROBERT H. QUINN
Attorney General

Q - I recently spent a day at the beach and received a bad sunburn after using a suntan product which supposedly blocked all the harmful rays. Is there any product which will block the rays?

A - Suntan Lotion may help screen out some of the sun's ultra-violet rays, depending on the quality of the product. In addition, many lotion companies engage in fraudulent or misleading advertising. Harmful and beneficial rays are one and the same. Unfortunately, no one has been able to separate their burning and tanning effects. Suntan lotions are considered cosmetics by the Food and Drug Administration and are subject to the FTC cosmetic regulations. If you feel you have been a victim of fraudulent advertising by a suntan product company, report a complaint to the Federal Trade Commission which works in conjunction with the Consumer Protection Division.

Q - Last month I hired movers to move me to another part of the state. Some articles were lost in transit and the movers' insurance is inadequate to cover the loss--aren't movers required to fully insure their customers?

A - Generally the insurance carried by a moving company is for its protection in case of claims against the company--this is not direct protection for the consumer. To ensure that you are fully covered, you must arrange for insurance by paying a premium or arranging for a mover to do so, if your property is worth more than the amount of insurance carried by the mover.

Q - Recently I went to a store to purchase low-priced windows for my new house. The salesman told me the windows advertised in the paper had to be periodically cleaned with steel wool. He then attempted to sell me higher priced windows. Is this legal?

A - No, it's a gimmick known as "bait and switch". These or similar tactics are used to discourage your interest in the advertised product and to sell you a more expensive one. This sales technique is prohibited by Massachusetts law.

A Graduation Memento

Where has the time gone, my Son, since those kindergarten days.
Through the years of lunches and books and the summers through Autumn Haze.
The little problems and decisions that seemed so big to you,
You realized as you grew up, how really they were few.
As you graduate, my son,
Please always bear in mind,
As time goes on you'll treasure most,
Those years you left behind.

'People Respond To Clothes'

When I used to wear clerical clothes as a pastor, people responded to me in very special ways. Doors opened to me that wouldn't have opened without explanation if I'd worn the business suits ... in hospitals ... jails ... homes. It wasn't that God had arrived when I entered ... but neither had another man. My image was "something" in between God and man. It was the clothes that made that difference. When I was wearing the clerical collar, though stopped by traffic officers a few times, I was never arrested. People subdued their talk around me ... very little swearing or sexy stories. I was always respected ... called Reverend ... Father ... or Doctor ... never just plain Bill which I like most. What was it? The clothes. People respond to us according to the clothes we wear.

A lawyer friend for whom the bottom had dropped out of his practice ... he was a tort lawyer ... took a job in a tire store. He said to me recently ... "the biggest adjustment I had to make was getting used to the difference in the way people treat me in stores and restaurants now that I'm in workclothes. I'm the same man ... but I feel different and people respond to me differently."

From bathing suits to evening gowns people respond to the clothes we wear. This is not surprising ... since the clothes we wear do say something about us ... that we know how to put combinations of color together aesthetically ... that we dress with the times ... that we dress for the occasion ... that we dress neatly or carelessly ... even something about how conservative or liberal our ideas of life. People do respond to clothes.

So do husbands and wives. Husbands often complain ... as did John ... "I'm tired of coming home and seeing Deb in an old pair of my pants and a sweat shirt. I'm in the office all day where the girls are dressed smartly and attractively. To have to come home to the way Deb is dressed just turns me off." Deb's clothes when John comes home say something about her. Knowing how he feels, "why does she keep doing it? Is she taunting me? Or doesn't she care?" Would you believe that within three months of this conversation, John was having an affair? People do respond to clothes.

A daughter who was 14 said recently ... "I'm so embarrassed when I come home with a girl friend and find Daddy lying lazily on the divan in his underwear. It's no wonder mother keeps going out to the neighborhood cocktail lounge. Daddy just doesn't seem to care." People do respond to clothes ... husbands and wives and daughters are no exception.

There is no relationship more precious than that of a loving husband and wife. Whatever comes between them to threaten the close loving bond is an ugly intruder ... and should be driven out ruthlessly ... or made to submit to their reign of love. That includes the kind of clothes we wear ... because people respond to clothes.

Many husbands appreciate having their wives shop with them for their clothes. After all ... gentlemen ... if you live with a wife with taste in clothes ... why not benefit from her skill? Most women dress for their men. Dressing is just one more way in which a loving husband and wife can have fun. People do respond to clothes.

Takes Issue With Nixon-Frazier Sunbeam Item

Editor, Quincy Sun:

I would like to reply to your Sunbeam statement regarding "Mr. President" and the respect he must command for holding the highest office in the land.

Whether politically left or right of center, one must agree that a president whose falsehoods and deceptions are declared "inoperative", who preaches honor and law and order yet dishonors the country by attempting to destroy the high standards of the most impartial judicial institution which safeguards the rights of individuals - The Supreme Court; who uses repressive political rather than impartial indictment in the F.B.I., and brings more men of unethical and criminal standard into the White House than any other administration, His judgement and credibility can be questioned.

Furthermore, one doesn't respect an inanimate object. It is the man who commands or distains one's respect, and not the office itself.

Thumbing ride is dangerous

By PAT and MARILYN DAVIS

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I am having an argument with my mother. Beach time is near and I want to hitchhike like everyone else. My mother absolutely refuses to let me. She says it is dangerous and that I can either ride or stay home. How can I convince her that everyone is doing it?

Helen

Dear Helen:

Statistically, you are in the danger zone when hitching a ride. You may see hitchhiking as a cheap way to travel but it is also dangerous. Don't thumb rides. The life you save may be your own. Besides that, it is against the law in many states.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

I have unreasonable parents. I want a motorcycle and they refuse to allow me to own one. I have agreed to pay for it myself and I am a senior in high school. I think I should be allowed to buy a motorcycle. Dad says, "It is unsafe. Forget it." Do you agree? Dad did buy me a car.

Bob

Dear Bob:

I agree that motorcycles and cars do not belong on the same road. The motorcycle is no match for a car when it comes to an accident. A motorcycle accident is three times as likely to be fatal as an automobile accident.

If you do buy a motorcycle, observe as many safety rules as possible. Always wear a helmet. Buy the best one you can possibly afford. With the helmet one needs a shatterproof face shield or a pair of goggles. Wear heavy clothing in case of a spill. This includes gloves and sturdy boots or shoes.

Dear Pat and Marilyn:

My name is Sallie and maybe you can help me. I think I am in love with Dan. We have been going steady for two months. He has given me his class ring.

My trouble is my mother. She says all men are after one thing. She says they will tell you that they love you and then leave you as soon as they get what they want. Dan says he loves me and has always been a perfect gentleman.

However, as our relationship progresses so does our lovemaking. I want to keep things under control but, as you can see, I could never talk with my mother. She would only say that Dan was using me and would never let him in the house again.

I want things right but can feel my will power slipping after being with Dan for hours. How can I handle this and am I abnormal to feel this way?

Eleanor - Age 17

Dear Eleanor:

You are a perfectly normal young girl. Young people have always thought about sex and always will. The idea is to put sex in the proper place at the proper time.

Ask youself a few pertinent questions: What would I do if I got pregnant? Is it worth the risk involved? Could I escape my guilt feeling even if I didn't get pregnant? What would I do if Dan got tired of me? After you have answered these questions, I'm sure you will decide not to put yourself behind the 8-ball.

Your problem is not uncommon and is one which faces every teenager who decides to go steady, and this is my main objection to the going steady syndrome. But if you must go steady, why put yourself in the middle of an all but impossible situation?

Have plans for the evening. Don't just drive around. Do not attend unchaperoned parties. Plan group entertainment and set a curfew for yourself. Keep in mind that Mr. Right at 17 may just be Mr. Wrong at 24.

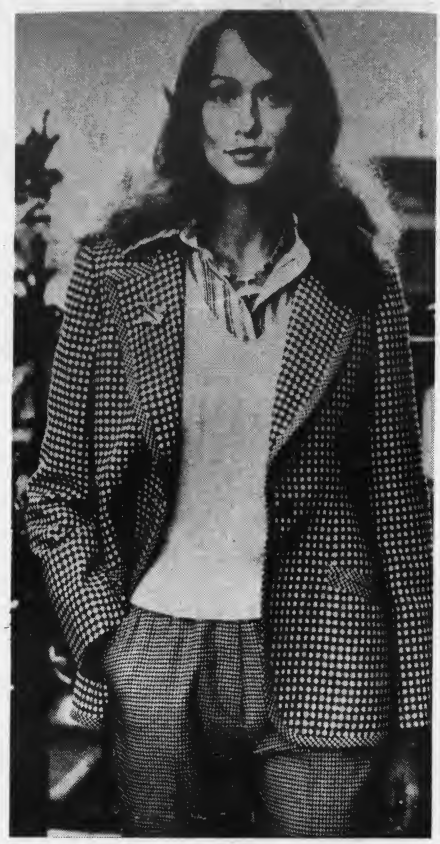
Let heart dictate donations



By RIV TOBIN
Copley News Service

Dear Mrs. Tobin: I just returned from a conducted tour of our city's major churches for a charitable cause. I bought a ticket which included transportation and a buffet lunch given in one of the churches. The tour took us through a Buddhist Temple, a synagogue, the Catholic and Episcopal Cathedral and a Lutheran Church. In every one there was a plate or bowl for donations prominently displayed. Should I have left a coin or bill at every church? I am not a member of any of the churches we visited. — Mary H.

Dear Mary: You were under no obligation whatsoever. Your heart and bank account should dictate your donations.

Dear Mrs. Tobin: I recently read an article about, "The Language of Flowers." Is that used much today? — Bill C.

Dear Bill: Yes, by romanticists.

KEEPING SPIRITS UP -- Lightweight toppings to keep the spirits up when the weather's down include this classic blazer, by Bill Blass. Jackets have been a growing trend and are in their prime this year.

THINK PRETTY

Weather brings out the jacket

By PEGGY WALKER
Copley News Service

Warmish days, coolish nights. Jacket weather.

It's that time of year when a coat is a drag, and a sweater isn't enough.

So you take cover in something betwixt and between. The jacket — in its prime this year — short on clumsiness, long on fashion.

Jackets have been a growing trend for the past season or two. "Toppers" they called them in New York this past winter, a sort of antithesis to the long midi coats that achieved such popularity just a few seasons back.

Designers now have shortened everything, and the jacket has achieved full-fledged fashion status.

The jacket is more than an isolated blazer or a cardigan with shirt and skirt to make a suit.

It's well-defined, coordinated or mix and matched. It's a smock, a blouson, a baseball jacket, a bike jacket, the athletic jacket, the newsboy jacket.

The blazer's still way up front. But the shirt jacket is newer. You can put it over everything. There are style variations — smocking, pockets, belting — but always the shirt collar and cuff.

It's perfect for pants, skirts, palazzos, and makes a costume of anything you pair it with. Wear it over a bandeau, another lighter shirt, a halter.

As the weather turns warmer and heavier shirt jackets are put aside, the cotton shirt will take its place. The perfect cover up for off-shoulder and backbaring summer things.

Variety marks tennis fashions

By BETH MOHR
Copley News Service

"Variety" is the name of the game in tennis fashions. The most attractive of all active sportswear, tennis clothes are expanding their appeal by taking new ideas from street clothes and breaking limits set by old color rules.

Elasticized and drawstring waistlines give bodices enough ease for swinging action and gather skirts into flippy fullness. Other skirts are pleated or flared from natural and lowered waistlines, tunics are lightly sashed or straight and the little A-line dress maintains its classic simplicity or makes more daring appearances with halter necklines.

The rule of all-white on the courts has been shattered. Most tennis dresses and shorts costumes have at least a touch of color in trims or have gone so far as to be made of solid pastel fabric.

Color accents are in neckline and waistline borders, stripes encircling waistlines and hemlines, bodice appliques, pleat insets, belts and panties. Still greatly outnumbered by whites with color trims, the solid pastels favor pale blues, greens, pink and peach.

Small bedroom usable

By BARBARA HARTUNG

Q. I have a bedroom that is a mere 9 by 9 feet and is useless at the present. I want to use it for a study and sewing room. It is a dark room and without personality. Would you kindly suggest some sort of furnishings and a color scheme? The room has a white mottled vinyl tile on the floor which I must keep. — D.H.

A. First of all, you probably need storage. So why not buy two tall bookshelves about 32 inches wide. Between them put a low cabinet as deep as the bookshelves. Use the low cabinet for seating — stitching up a soft pad for on top. In the alcove that is created thus you might cover walls with felt in a light, bright color — maybe lemon yellow or bitter green. This could be used for taking up notes, patterns, etc., or for creating an interesting art arrangement. Paint all the other walls and furniture white so it will blend into the background.

Salads aid family budget, health

Copley News Service

The high price of lettuce has prompted many requests for other ideas for salads that are lower in cost but high in nutrition.

Our suggestions include watching the market ads for the week's specials in fresh produce. Use your imagination as well as cookbooks for different ingredients like spinach or watercress. Perhaps you could use grated carrots when that popular vegetable is the best buy? All of today's salad recipes will help with your budget and your family's health.

One glance at the figures below tells you that vitamin C is an outstanding nutrient in Cole Slaw. One serving actually provides more than three-quarters of the daily requirement.

CREAMY COLE SLAW

1 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon grated onion
10 cups shredded cabbage (1 medium head)
2 carrots, shredded
¼ green pepper; optional

Stir together real mayonnaise, vinegar, salt, sugar, pepper and onion. Just before serving, toss mayonnaise mixture with cabbage, carrot and green pepper until coated. Makes 10 servings.

TANGY COLE SLAW

1 medium head (2 to 2½ lbs.) cabbage, chopped or shredded
2 medium carrots, shredded
1 medium green pepper, chopped
½ cup sugar
½ cup cider vinegar
¼ cup polyunsaturated oil
½ teaspoon celery seed
½ teaspoon garlic salt
½ teaspoon onion salt

Mix together cabbage, carrot, and green pepper. Mix together sugar, vinegar, oil, celery seed, garlic salt and onion salt. Pour over cabbage mixture and marinate overnight. Makes about 10 servings.

CUCUMBER SALAD

3 large cucumbers
One-third cup vinegar
One-third cup polyunsaturated oil
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon freshly ground pepper
1 tablespoon minced dill, optional
⅛ teaspoon garlic salt

Slice cucumbers wafer thin. Combine vinegar, oil, sugar salt and spices in a 1-cup measure. Pour mixture over cucumbers. Refrigerate for at least one hour. At serving time, drain off liquid; sprinkle with dill. Makes six servings.

POTATO SALAD

How many people pass up potato salad thinking it is too starchy? A serving of this potato salad supplies only 70 calories of carbohydrate which is equal to one slice of bread. Another nutrient that pops up most dramatically is vitamin C from the potatoes and green pepper. Hard cooked eggs are a traditional ingredient in potato salad and add protein. The yolks were left out of this recipe because of their high cholesterol content, but egg white may be used.

1 cup mayonnaise
¼ cup vinegar
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1 tablespoon salt
½ teaspoon paprika
2 quarts (about 4 lbs.) diced cooked potatoes
6 hard-cooked egg whites
¼ cup chopped celery
½ cup coarsely shredded carrot
½ cup finely chopped green pepper
¼ cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped pimiento

In large bowl, mix together mayonnaise, vinegar, mustard, salt and paprika. Add remaining ingredients and toss well. Chill until ready to serve. Makes 12 servings.

Delahunt Not To Seek Re-election, Hints He May Run At-Large

Ward 5 Councillor William D. Delahunt announced Wednesday he will not seek re-election and hinted he might run for a council at-large seat instead.

"My decision not to run for re-election does not in any way mean that I am leaving political life–only that I feel that it is an appropriate time to move along and possibly seek higher municipal office," Delahunt declared in a prepared statement.

He did not identify the "higher office", but political observers have long believed he will run at-large.

Delahunt, who is also a state representative, indicated he would seek re-election to that seat next year.

Delahunt's statement follows:

"I have served on the council and have represented the Greater Wollaston area with great pride and satisfaction. I wish to thank the people of Wollaston for the confidence placed in me and I trust that I have fulfilled my obligations to them and the City of Quincy. Their support and kindness to me and my family is most appreciated and will never be forgotten."

"As Ward 5 councillor, I have tried to face up to each and every problem that has confronted our ward and city and have made my decisions in the best interests of Quincy."

"My decision not to run for re-election does not in any way mean that I am leaving political life - only that I feel that it is an appropriate time to move along and possibly seek higher municipal office."

"Several worthy individuals have indicated a desire to serve as Ward 5 Councillor, and I am confident that Ward 5 will be well represented by whomever the people of Wollaston elect."

Joseph Doran, John Horrigan Knowledge, Personality Team

By PAUL FELDMAN

Independent insurance agents rely on knowledge and personality to be successful.

And Joe Doran and John Horrigan of Doran and Horrigan Insurance and Real Estate, 19 Billings Rd, North Quincy, have both qualities going for them.

Joe is a graduate of Stratford Business College and has taken Accounting and Management courses at several local colleges. John is a graduate of Boston University's College of Liberal Arts.

Both worked for John Hancock Insurance Co. as life insurance agents for 13 years before they opened their own firm. Doran and Horrigan have now been in business for 10 years.

Both men are members of the Massachusetts Association of Independent Insurance Agents and Brokers.

"If it's insurable, we can insure it," says Joe.

The partners carry a full line, representing several of the largest insurance companies, including their own new North Quincy neighbor Kemper Insurance.

The office is managed by capable, efficient Sally Campbell of Wollaston. She holds an Insurance Brokers License and also a Real Estate License.

This year the agency was awarded the Kemper Insurance President Club award.

The partners real estate qualifications are equally solid. Both Joe and John are members of the State and National Board of Realtors as well as the Quincy-South Shore Board. Joe is a director of this local organization.

Joe has also recently graduated from the Realtor's Institute of Massachusetts.

"We got into the real estate business primarily as a service to our insurance customers," he says. "But it has grown into a large part of our business."

Joe and John are friendly, active people.

Joe lives in Wollaston with his wife, Helen, and their six children. The couple are bowlers of reknown, winning a first place trophy this year in a Quincy Mixed Couples League. He proudly displays his trophies in the agency's window. Joe is a Past President and current Treasurer of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association. He is also active in a local parish.

John, a native of Jamaica Plain, has recently moved to Squantum. He and his wife, Barbara, have four children. John likes to play golf when he has the time. He sports a 14 handicap even though he has only golfed three times this year. John and his wife also bowl in a mixed couples league. But they have some catching up to do with Joe and his wife. They finished second this year.

John is currently the Vice President of the North Quincy Business and Professional Association.

As Joe says, "The best way to buy insurance is locally, on a first name basis, through people you can know and trust."

Doran and Horrigan are such people.

Cynthia Newton Finalist

Cynthia Newton, a junior at North Quincy High School, is a finalist in a German examination sponsored by the American Association of Teachers of German. She is now eligible to compete for a free trip, combined with study, to Germany, according to North Quincy High School Principal Peter J. Chrisom.

Carter School Committee Candidate

Bryant L. Carter Jr., of 102 Faxon Rd, North Quincy, announces his candidacy for School Committee.

A 1968 graduate of North Quincy High School, he entered Bentley College and received his B.S. in Accounting degree at Bentley College this year. He is now employed as an accountant at Woodward's Spring Shop in Quincy.

Carter is a member of Rural Lodge A.F.&A.M. and is on the Advisory Council of Old Colony Chapter, Order of DeMolay, of which he is a past Master Councillor, senior member, and was awarded the Chevalier Degree.

He is a coach and official in the Quincy YMCA Church School Basketball League Program and a former member and adult leader of the Koch Club of Quincy. He is an active member of the Sons of the American Legion, Squadron 380, Houghs Neck, and a former counselor and committee member of the Department of Massachusetts American Legion "Boys State" Program. He was a citizen and State Senator of "Boys State".

Carter said his interest in youth is the prime reason he is seeking a position on the School Committee. He said he feels that not enough emphasis is put on the curriculum in the school system to challenge each and every student's capabilities and cause them to maintain an interest in their studies throughout their public school years.

He said he believes that only with the cooperation of the School Department administrative offices and the teachers and instructors can this be accomplished.

Specially trained Coast Guardsmen from the First Coast Guard District's Boating Safety Team [BOSTEAM] will present an outdoor demonstration July 4 at Faxon Park, South Quincy.

The boating safety demonstration will be held during the Adam's Heights Men's Club's annual picnic, according to the club's president, Harold Merrill. Picknickers from the club, and the general public, will be able to familiarize themselves with proper boating equipment and safety requirements for their recreational watercrafts, he noted.

Project chairman for the event, City Councillor Ted McLelland III, and project coordinator, William McDonald, said the demonstration will highlight area activities supporting National Safe Boating Week, which this year runs from July 1-7.

MOST COMMON ALLERGY

What is the most common allergic disease suffered by Americans? If your answer is hay fever - you are 100% right! Each year, some 250,000 persons in this country lose a week or more of work or school because of the disease.

The sufferer has attacks of sneezing, congestion, and itching of the eyes, nose, and throat.

The severity of hay fever depends on the amount of pollen in the air and the person's degree of sensitivity. Most trouble occurs when the weather is hot, dry, sunny and windy. However, some persons become worse on cool or rainy days.

Although hay fever is not dangerous, it should not be neglected, especially in children. Hay fever, according to medical authorities, can have serious complications such as trouble in the ears, nasal sinuses, and bronchi of the lungs.

Apply Now For Medicare Hospital Insurance Even IneligibleBefore

Starting July 1, those 65 and over who haven't been able to get Medicare hospital insurance before may be eligible.

They can apply for the protection now, according to Frank Culkin, social security district manager in Quincy.

"Previously, to get Medicare hospital insurance, you had to be 65 or over and either eligible for social security payments or have a certain amount of social security work credit," Culkin said. "Under recent amendments to the social security law, people 65 or over who were not eligible before may now purchase Medicare hospital insurance protection. To get this protection, however, they must also sign up for the medical insurance part of Medicare.

"This new provision is designed to extend hospital insurance coverage to people 65 or over who have little or no work credit under social security and are unable to get comparable insurance through private companies," Culkin said.

The initial premium for hospital insurance will be $33 a month plus $6.30 a month for medical insurance. "The protection will begin July 1, 1973, for people who sign up before June 1," Culkin said.

"This year, you can sign up as late as August 31," he said. "If you delay past May 31, though, coverage will begin later. If you delay past August 31, you can sign up in the first three months of any year."

Medicare hospital insurance helps pay for hospital bills and many related expenses.

The medical insurance part of Medicare helps pay doctor bills and other medical expenses not covered by the hospital insurance. It is funded by individual premiums and by general revenue.

For people who become 65 after June 1, who are not otherwise eligible for hospital insurance, there is initially a seven-month period to apply for both the hospital and medical insurance parts of Medicare.

"You can apply during the three months before you're 65, the month of your 65th birthday, or the three months thereafter. But you must apply in the three months before you're 65 to get coverage beginning with the month you become 65," Culkin explained.

Starting in July, Medicare will also be extended to workers under 65 who have been getting monthly disability payments from social security or railroad retirement for two years or more–and to many people with chronic kidney disease.

Wells Grille Beefs N.L. Lead, A & T Still Undefeated In A.L.

Inter-League play is in full swing in the Quincy Softball League.

Wells Grille, behind the four-hit pitching of Dick Taylor, walloped Beau's, 7-0, to increase its National League East lead over Dee Dee's. Fine defensive play, especially by outfielder Bob Swirbalus and second baseman Ed Hutchins and the big bat of Gary McGrath [he hit his ninth home run] aided Taylor.

Despite a two-run homer by Tom Marino, Beau's was nipped by Dee Dee's, 9-8. Dee Dee's center fielder, Jack Bryan, made a circus catch, saving at least two runs and pitcher John Laverty retired the last nine batters. Bryan also had three for three and reached his fourth time on a walk.

A & T Movers, unbeaten American League West leaders, scored five runs in the seventh to edge St. Catherine, 13-11. The Saints just fell short with four runs in the bottom half of the inning. Don Duggan paced A & T, reaching base five times and scoring three runs. For the Saints Steve Verenis and Dave Page hit homers while Don Smith and Brian Buckley had three hits each.

Alumni Cafe exploded for 14 runs in the last two innings to erase a seven-run deficit and top Mr. Kelly's, 16-10. Bob Cleary sparked Alumni with some timely hits.

Later in the week Alumni pitcher John Cleary and Pagie's pitcher Mat McKeon hooked up in a tight duel with Alumni holding a 2-1 lead. However, two runs in the bottom of the seventh, with Bill Osborne driving in the winner, gave Pagie's a 3-2 win.

China Lido, behind the pitching of Brian Delory, won its first game, 8-6, over Mr. Kelly's. "It was a team win," said Coach Don Thomas.

Bob Kelley and Tony Camillo continued to hit the ball hard for Barry's Ship Haven but to no avail as an awesome attack by B & B Health Spa paced a 19-10 win over Ship Haven. Harry Daniels had a home run and Charlie Viola and Paul Nagle each went four for five for the winners.

Morrisette Wins 4th

The Morrisette Legion baseball team continues near the top of District 6 with a 4-1 record as it seeks its 19th championship, but Quincy Legion's fortunes get worse as it has a 0-4 record after Monday night's games.

Quincy was walloped, 11-2, Monday by Braintree which feasted on the pitching of Steve Mele, Dave Sten and Paul Craig.

Quincy's batters were held in check with Jim McCabe, Frank DiSalvo, Bobby Pierce, Bob Morton and Mele having the only hits.

Last night Morrisette, loser only to Weymouth by a 3-2 score, played at Hingham. Friday night it hosts Braintree in an 8 o'clock game under the Adams Field lights, Monday plays at Milton and next Tuesday will entertain Weymouth at 8 at Adams.

Meanwhile Quincy last night played Weymouth under the lights at Adams, Friday will play at Hingham and next Tuesday will be at Randolph.

Last Friday night Morrisette survived a big scare in the last inning to hand Quincy its fourth loss in a row, 8-5.

Morrisette had an 8-1 lead going into the seventh but Quincy exploded for four runs and had the bases loaded with two outs when Billy Shea flied deep to Mike DePolo in right field.

Tim Clifford, young right-hander winning his third straight, was within one out of pitching his third successive complete game. Bobby Lane came in to get the final out. Clifford, only 15 and with four more years of Legion ball ahead of him, allowed only two hits in his 6 2/3 innings, struck out seven and walked three.

City Redistricting Suit May Affect Elections Throughout State

not apply to districts represented by state legislators. Does that ruling also apply to city council districts? No one knows for sure.

The court also ruled in February that election districts may vary in population up to 16.4 per cent and even more for valid reason. Is there valid reason for the great variance between Wards 1 and 3? Who knows?

Meanwhile, in the aftermath of the suit:

There were indications that the City Council might dust off City Clerk John M. Gillis' old eight-ward plan for redistricting, shelved five months ago, and hustle it into the breech.

The problem is that such action would require also a special act by the State Legislature to get around a provision in the city charter and it's pretty late in the legislative season for the filing of new bills.

Quincy Republicans – and there are a few of them – were busily trying to disassociate the party from the suit.

Those who filed the suit are members of the Ward 6 Republican Committee, but, said Thomas Blacklock, chairman of the Republican City Committee, "This is not anything at all to do with the Republican City Committee."

Prospective candidates were considering and reconsidering the cost of running for the City Council at-large instead of by wards. Best estimates of the difference appeared to be $500 by wards, $5,000 at-large.

And City Solicitor Richard McCormick suggested the defendants in the suit – Mayor Walter J. Hannon, City Clerk John M. Gillis, the nine City Councillors and three vote registrars -- refrain from commenting on the whole confusing thing.

HN Council Plans 4th Of July Celebration

Baker Beach Association Plans July 4th Celebration
